An F-B-I agent was shot and wounded in Miami last night. Officials say he was shot during an exchange of gunfire between drug suspects and local and federal law enforcement officers. A bullet hit the agent just below his bullet-proof vest. But his wound was NOT serious. He was treated at a hospital and relased.

A New York City police officer was shot and critically wounded during a gunfight with a mugger in the Bronx last night. Officials say the bullet hit the officer in the abdomen just below his bullet-proof vest and went through his body. He's listed at critical but stable condition in the Jacobi Hospital.

(APRIL 26) UPI - Exxon shareholders have voted down six environmental resolutions. Fewer than 10 percent cast favorable votes for each of the resolutions at a stockholders' meeting in Houston yesterday. Exxon Chairman Lawrence Rawl ignored one shareholder's suggestion that he resign because of the Alaska oil spill.

Emergency equipment was put on stand-by at the St. Louis airport yesterday for the fifth time this month for the landing of a T-W-A jetliner. But the L11 landed safely and taxied to a gate under its own power even though the pilot said he might have a problem with the nose-wheel steering.

The House unanimously passed legislation that would permit the closing of banks or savings and loans that allow laundering of drug money. Illinois Democrat Frank Annunzio says the measure ''contains a death penalty'' for financial institutions that launder money. The bill now goes to the Senate.

SIDON, Lebanon (APRIL 26) UPI - Representatives of the International Red Cross met with a Moslem militia leader Thursday amid intensified efforts by the humanitarian agency to win freedom for two Swiss Red Cross Swiss employees, officials said.

The delegation, including Michel De Four, the Red Cross representative in Lebanon, and Marjolane Martin, the agency's press attache, held a lengthy closed-door meeting with Mustafa Saad, the chief of the pro-Palestinian People Liberation Army militia in the port city 24 miles south of Beirut.

There was no official word on an expected imminent release of two Swiss IRC workers, Emmanuel Christen and Elio Erriquez, who were kidnapped Oct. 6 near the refugee camp of Ein El Helweh on the outskirts of Sidon.

''We are optimistic,'' said de Four as he emerged from the meeting.

The leftist Voice of the People radio station quoted ''well-informed sources'' as saying the captives could be set free in 48 hours.

The talks at Saad's heavily guarded seaside house were followed by a brief visit to the militia leader by a representative of the radical Palestinian group, the Fatah Revolutionary Council - the group believed holding the two Swiss.

The Palestinian refused to talk but sources at Saad's house said the efforts appeared aimed at working out the release.

Dozens of journalists have crammed Saad's house since early Wednesday, poised to cover the expected release of the captives.

Martin arrived at Beirut International Airport two days ago on a mission believed linked to the release of Christen, 32, and Erriquez, 23.

There has been no claim of reponsibility for the abduction and the shanty town near where they were snatched is controlled by various guerrilla factions.

Saad expressed disgust at a statement earlier this week by a pro-Iranian fundamentalist leader, Hussein Musawi, calling on the kidnappers of 17 Western hostages - including seven Americans - not to free any captive. Musawi made the appeal in retaliation for a recent resolution by the U.S.

House of Representatives recognizing Jerusalem as Israel's capital.

''Foreign hostages should be released on (a) humanitarian basis,'' said Saad, who was blinded by a bomb blast more than five years ago.

''That statement (of Musawi) should not affect the issue. A foreigner should not be held responsible for political stands by his government,'' Saad said.

Musawi had said in a statement Tuesday that another American hostage could be freed soon following the release of Robert Polhill. But he linked the release to the captors' demands - freedom for 400 Arabs held in Israel and the release of 16 Shiites convicted and imprisoned since 1983 for bombing Western and Kuwaiti targets.

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (APRIL 26) UPI - The minority white government presented a bill to parliament Thursday abolishing the death penalty as a mandatory sentence for murder and granting the automatic right of appeal to death row prisoners.

The bill, the second piece of reformist legislation introduced this week, is intended to respond to criticism by human rights movements and legal societies and repair South Africa's reputation as having one of the world's highest judicial execution rates.

Its publication follows President Frederik De Klerk's unveiling in February of a major reform program and comes six days before his first formal meeting with the African National Congress on obstacles standing in the way of formal power-sharing negotiations.

Five ANC exiles on the 11-member negotiating team are expected to arrive in South Africa Friday from Lusaka, and the daily Citizen reported Thursday the government was expected to announce later in the day a guarantee of safe passage for them.

The government earlier this week presented a bill that would empower de Klerk to grant temporary or permanent amnesty to guerrillas of the ANC or any one else, but it was not expected to be approved before the arrival of the ANC delegation.

In South African law, the death penalty is mandatory for murder where a court finds no extenuating circumstances. For such crimes as treason, sabotage, kidnapping, rape and terrorism, a death sentence is discretionary.

The amendments would give a superior court judge the discretion to impose the death penalty for the crimes and guarantees automatic appeal by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court where no such right presently exists.

Ranking among the top five executing nations, along with Iraq and Iran, South Africa hanged a record 164 people in 1987, 117 in 1988 and 53 last year, including four convicted of politically motivated crimes, according to the independent Human Rights Commission.

Most of those executed have been black, fueling the controversy.

At the same time de Klerk pledged to propose abolishing the compulsory imposition of the death sentence, he also declared a moratorium on executions of some 280 death row prisoners, including about 80 awaiting execution for politically motivated crimes.

If passed, the legislation would apply to all death row prisoners and would have a ''significant influence on the imposition of death sentences '' de Klerk said in his February address.

''One of the main objects of the bill is to do away with the compulsory imposition of the death sentence and to vest the Supreme Court with a discretion to impose that sentence in appropiate cases,'' according to a memorandum attached to the bill.

The existing law also grants a judge the discretion to sentence to death a person under 18 years of age at the time the crime is committed. Under the proposed legislation, a minor may not be sentenced to death under any circumstances.

The abolition of the death penalty was among key preconditions the ANC put forward last year before it would agree to formal power-sharing talks.

Others were the lifting of a 4-year-old state of emergency and the release of all political prisoners - issues expected to be raised by the ANC in its three-day meeting with de Klerk starting next Wednesday.

The wave of political unrest that swept the country in 1984 and prompted the government to impose the state of emergency in June 1986, produced a generation of death row prisoners, including the internationally known ''Sharpeville Six.''

The six were sentenced to death for the September 1984 killing of Sharpeville township's deputy mayor. Former President Pieter W. Botha, under international pressure, commuted their sentences to life imprisonment in November 1988.

What made the imposition of the death sentence even more controversial in politically motivated crimes was the use of the ''common purpose'' doctrine,holding a person liable for a crime whether the person was actually found guilty of committing it.

In the Sharpeville case, the state never proved all six had actually committed the murder, only that they ''shared a common purpose to kill the deceased with the mob as a whole.''

(APRIL 26) UPI - Prices on the Tokyo Stock Exchange closed slightly lower Thursday in a see-saw of arbitrage-index selling and selective buying of individual issues.

The blue-chip Nikkei Average of 225 selected issues, which shed a marginal 62.98 points Wednesday, lost 139.78 points, or 0.47 percent, to close at 29,424.58.

The broader-based Tokyo Stock Exchange Index of all listed major stocks eased 0.41 points to 2,200.10.

An estimated 550 million shares changed hands, compared with 679 million shares Wednesday.

Declines edged out advances 490 to 411, with 199 issues unchanged.

Markets in Japan will be closed for three days beginning Monday for the Golden Week holiday.

Elsewhere in Asia, prices were mostly lower in light trading on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange.

The key Hang Seng Index, which added 2.74 points Wednesday, fell 9.24 points to 3,009.34. Utilities gained 11.17 points, financials added 2.62, industrials lost 10.74 and properties dropped 53.70 points.

Turnover amounted to 976 million shares, compared with 1.16 billion shares Wednesday.

In Singapore, stock exchanges, banks and most major businesses were closed for the Hari Raya holiday. Trading will resume Friday.

In Australia, prices were slightly lower in light post-holiday trading on the Sydney Sharemarket.

The blue-chip All Ordinaries Index, which fell 16.1 points Tuesday, fell another 4.6 points to 1,462.5.

Markets in Australia were closed Wednesday for the ANZAC (Memorial) Day holiday.

(APRIL 26) UPI - Discovery sticks close to the Hubble Space Telescope... ex-hostage Robert Polhill heads back to the United States... Violeta Chamoro is inaugurated in Nicaragua... a power blackout stuns Toronto. Now the details, from U-P-I.

The English poet John Milton wrote... ''They also serve who only stand and wait''... and that might well describe the role of the shuttle Discovery the day after the dramatic deployment of the Hubble Space Telescope.

Discovery's role today is to shadow the one-point-five-BILLION-dollar instrument in case ground controllers need help activating it during several days of preliminary maneuvers.

Astronaut Steven Hawley used Discovery's 50-foot robot arm to put the 12-ton space telescope into a record 381-mile-high orbit yesterday.

Today engineers will check the telescope's electrical and mechanical systems to make sure the orbiting outpost will have a clear, accurate view when it begins exploring the deep recesses of space.

Those critical steps will be followed by about eight months of intense work that includes systematically calibrating the telescope's two cameras... two light-splitting spectrographs... and a high-tech light meter.

One NASA scientist described the tedious but necessary process as learning ''to crawl before we walk... walk before we run.''

Former hostage Robert Polhill plans to return to the United States quietly today.

The State Department says NO big welcome is scheduled for the professor's return.

Polhill is scheduled to fly into Andrews Air Force Base near Washington, and then go immediately to the Walter Reed Hospital for further medical tests.

The 55-year-old professor has been undergoing tests and being de-briefed at a U-S military hospital in Wiesbaden, West Germany, the last several days. An official says Polhill is willing to talk... but is concerned about endangering comrades still held hostage.

Reports of imminent freedom for two Swiss Red Cross workers have a Red Cross official waiting in Beirut to see if the reports come true and ready to mediate if necessary. Marjolane Martin, news attache to the International Committee of the Red Cross, arrived in Beirut yesterday.

Moslem sources said Tuesday the two hostages could be freed by tomorrow.

TOKYO (APRIL 26) UPI - U.S. Ambassador Michael Armacost welcomed the signing of an agreement to increase Japan's lumber imports and said Thursday it signals the end of the major trade problems that have caused friction between the two countries.

''The immediate problems seem now to have been sorted out,'' Armacost said in a speech at the Foreign Correspondents Club of Japan.

U.S. Trade Representative Carla Hills announced Wednesday in Washington an agreement had been reached with Japan to provide greater access for some wood products to Japan's markets.

Lumber, supercomputers and satellites were three specific areas cited by President Bush last year as sectors where Japan's markets were closed to imports. The Japanese reached agreements with the United States on supercomputers and satellites earlier this year.

The Bush administration also entered into talks with Japan in September on a wide range of basic economic structures in both countries which were seen as barriers to increasing U.S. imports. Negotiators successfully concluded an interim agreement on those issues earlier this month.

''It is a special delight to be able to report good news,'' Armacost said.

But he added although agreements have been reached on most of the outstanding trade issues, the results will depend on turning the talk into action.

''Getting a commitment is one thing, translating it into administrative action or laws is a lot of work,'' he said.

''We are not going to close up shop,'' he said. ''There is a lot of business to be tended to, details to be tied up.

Armacost said he is hopeful the focus of trade issue will move from the tense atmosphere of high-level negotiations to the more cooperative stage of working out the details of implementation.

(APRIL 26) UPI - Nicaraguan President Chamorro hasn't been in office for 24 hours... and already she's under intense criticism for a Cabinet choice.

Chamorro took the oath of office yesterday... formally ending 10 years of rule by the Sandinista leader Daniel Ortega. She promised an end to compulsory military service... reductions in the armed forces... and economic reforms.

But Chamorro's decision to name Ortega's brother, Humberto , as chief of the armed forces drew sharp threats from Contra rebels and members of her own political alliance.

A Contra spokesman told U-P-I that Chamorro's naming of Ortega is making the U-S-backed rebels think twice about their agreement to disarm by June 10th.

And two Cabinet members... Agriculture Minister Jaime Cuadra and Construction Minister Gilberto Cuadra... said they would NOT accept their posts if Ortega remains armed forces chief of staff.

Support for Chamorro's decision came from an unexpected source- the White House. Spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said her choice of Ortega is- in his words- ''a choice she has every right to make.''

The Soviets indicate they may tighten the economic clamps on Lithuania by trying to prevent outside goods from entering the rebel republic.

Electricity shortages have caused Lithuania to scale back radio and television broadcasts. A lack of fuel has idled six-thousand buses and swelled the black-market price for gasoline to four times the standard price.

Moscow cut off all oil and most natural gas supplies to Lithuania, forcing rationing and factory closures. The Soviet government newspaper Izvestia said at least 75-hundred people are out of work because of the sanctions.

Soviet President Gorbachev's spokesman indicated that Moscow may try to prevent imports. In his words now- ''Lithuania is still part of the Soviet Union, and what can be imported or delivered is a question for the Soviet Union.''

A Lithuanian delegation sent to Moscow Monday to seek negotiations with Soviet officials on independence finally met with Prime Minister Ryzhkov yesterday.

Ryzhkov repeated Moscow's hard line that negotiations can NOT be held unless Lithuania rescinds its March 11th independence declaration and agrees to return to the authority of Soviet law. The Lithuanian delegation told him that was NOT possible.

Officials say a power station explosion and fire knocked out electrical power... leaving large portions of the city in darkness and the subways immobilized for nearly four hours.

The explosion occurred at a generating station in the Toronto suburb of East York... and flames burst from the damaged equipment.

Subway service stopped citywide... but police say conductors managed to lead passengers to safety and NO one was unaccounted for.

Bus service was being provided for stranded subway riders, particularly for some of the more than 35-thousand baseball fans who had watched the Blue Jays beat the Cleveland Indians at the Toronto SkyDome. The game was played under lights which were unaffected by the outage.

Police say there was ''remarkably little looting,'' with most reports confined to downtown Toronto. Officials report NO accidents... although two firefighters called to the burning power station were hospitalized for minor smoke inhalation.

Power was restored just before midnight when workers re-routed power through a transformer in the eastern part of the city of three-Million people.

San Diego area police say they will seek criminal charges against as many as 12 high school students who stopped illegal aliens at the border and held them against their will.

Police Commander Larry Gore says the charges will stem from two incidents involving illegal aliens confronted by youths along the border. Police say the youths... wearing para-military garb... were playing war games with B-B guns when they confronted Mexicans entering the United States illegally.

The charges could include false imprisonment, assault and civil rights violations. At least three students and as many as 12 may be charged.

Gore says several witnesses have come foward to implicate students pictured in a February 24th broadcast.

Students pictured in the broadcast later said they were duped by the show's producers and had NOT actually hunted illegal aliens. But Gore said yesterday their statements were at least partly wrong.

The district attorney's office has been asked to evaluate the activities of some members of the broadcast team.

CHICAGO (APRIL 26) UPI - The acquisition of Marshall Field & Co. by Dayton Hudson Corp. will result in most of Field's 1,700 corporate employees losing their jobs.

Plans announced Wednesday by Dayton's include consolidation of the administrative and buying operations of the two companies and moving Field's corporate headquarters from State Street to Dayton Hudson's Minneapolis offices.

Some of the employees will be offered transfers to Minneapolis or jobs in a new regional office in Chicago, and some will be offered a bonus to continue working past their termination date to assure a smooth transition Dayton Hudson officials said.

The employees were notified in a letter signed by Dayton Hudson president Stephen Watson and Chairman and CEO Marvin Goldstein. However, the letter did not say how many jobs will be eliminated or when the cuts will take effect. Talks were continuing with Field's chairman, Philip Miller, and other top managers about their future employment.

For the present, Dayton's plans to operate all Field's stores and warehouses, so workers at those locations will not be affected immediately. A spokesman for Dayton's said no decision has been made concerning the future of some departments in which the two retailers duplicate services. Dayton Hudson announced plans last week to acquire Field's from B.A.T. Industries PLC for $1.04 billion.

WASHINGTON (APRIL 26) UPI - Sen. William Roth, R-Del., proposed Thursday giving any savings realized from cuts in defense spending to middle and lower-income workers in the form of a tax cut.

In a Senate speech, Roth said, ''It's clear that the reduced Soviet threat will result in substantial savings to the federal government - what many are calling a peace dividend.''

''The taxpayers have paid their dues to the defense of their nation and if a portion of those funds are no longer needed for that purpose, then they should be returned to the taxpayers,'' Roth said.

The Roth plan would cut the 15 percent rate for low-income earners and the 28 percent for middle-income workers by 3 percent over the next five years. The wealthiest taxpayers would not get a reduction.

GENEVA (APRIL 26) UPI - The Soviet Union said Thursday it expects a basic agreement on deep chemical arms cuts to be signed at the superpower summit beginning May 30 in Washington despite unresolved issues.

Soviet negotiator Sergei Batsanov said that while some important issues must be resolved at a high political level, plans are for ''a main text'' to be signed by presidents Bush and Mikhail Gorbachev.

It was agreed at the latest 16-day round of talks that ended Thursday to limit each side's chemical weapons arsenals to 5,000 tons.

That means the United States would have to destroy around 20,000 tons and the Soviets a massive 45,000 tons.

That basic accord was announced Wednesday by U.S. negotiator Stephen Ledogar and reiterated Thursday by Batsanov at a meeting in his villa with reporters.

''Yes, we expect that will be possible and certainly hope so,'' Batsanov said when asked if a basic accord would be signed at the summit.

Batsanov said two important issues are outstanding - a timeframe for scrapping nearly all existing stockpiles and a ''non-production provision.''

Moscow stopped producing chemical weapons two years ago and insists that the United States cease as well under the bilateral agreement, he said.

''I don't think it is realistic to expect an agreement to be signed without a commitment to non-production,'' Batsanov said. ''That is a very important provision for the Soviet side.''

Washington has argued that it has the right to replace its outdated nerve gas and similar chemical weapons with more modern agents because it produced nothing for 20 years while the Soviets stopped only recently.

Batsanov said the issue must be handled at the pre-summit meeting in Moscow May 16-19 between U.S. Secretary of State James Baker and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze.

The Soviet negotiator also strongly indicated a compromise is possible.

''There is still one month left,'' he replied evasively when asked if the issue was non-negotiable for Moscow.

''We must have something in the agreement on non-production,'' he dodged again when pressed on whether a compromise would be to have a non-production clause come into force when actual destruction of old stocks begins.

Batsanov conceded that a timetable for scrapping nearly all superpower chemical weapons is a problem mainly because Moscow lacks any advanced, and therefore safe, destruction facilities.

''This is much more of a Soviet problem as we do not yet have a destruction program,'' he said. ''We look to our American counterparts in this respect.''

But Batsonov stressed there is ''no intention'' to move Soviet chemical weapons for destruction to U.S. facilities - primarily on Johnston island in the South Pacific.

''Under the agreement each side will have to destroy its own (chemical) agents,'' he said.

Arrangements already are being made, however, for the United States to supply Soviet engineers with sophisticated technological information and other assistance, Batsanov said.

''We need destruction technology cooperation and information,'' he said.

In any case, the Johnston island facility was built according to ''American weapon designs and quantities,'' the Soviet negotiator said.

Under their projected bilateral accord, he said, the two superpowers also pledge to push hard for an international chemical weapons ban under discussion at the separate multilateral 40-nation Disarmament Conference in Geneva.

Destruction of U.S. and Soviet stockpiles down to 5,000 tons will involve ''a process of several years'' and a global convention is likely in the meantime, Batsanov said.

Bilateral U.S.-Soviet meetings will therefore continue after the summit on preparing a joint international treaty draft text.

The two major military powers also have to continue discussions on monitoring each other's compliance with their bilateral 5,000-ton agreement.

ALBANY, NY (APRIL 26) UPI - New York state's highest court ruled Thursday the United States did not cheat in sailing a twin-hulled catamaran in the September 1988 America's Cup challenge race against New Zealand, awarding yachting's most prestigious trophy to the San Diego Yacht Club.

The Court of Appeals ruled 5-2 the 1887 deed establishing the America's Cup did not require yachts entering the contest to be equally matched. The court's two yachtsmen were the lone dissenters.

The decision resolved a dispute between the San Diego Yacht Club and the losers of the race: the Mercury Bay Boat Club of New Zealand, which charged the United States won the race because it entered a catamaran that was inherently faster than the traditional yacht sailed by the New Zealanders.

''Such a requirement that the vessels be 'evenly matched' is antithetical to the consent provisions of the deed,'' the court ruled in a 55-page decision.

The only two judges to back Mercury Bay's attempt were the court's two yachtsmen, Judge Stewart Hancock Jr., and Judge Vito Titone.

In their dissent, Hancock wrote San Diego purposefully chose to race a boat that by design would be faster than New Zealand's ''for one reason: to be certain that there could be no reasonable possibility of losing.''

Hancock and Titone called for nullifying the September 1988 America's Cup race and holding a rematch.

But the court's majority ruled the deed's call for a ''match'' and a ''friendly competition between foreign countries'' did not constitute a requirement that the race be fair.

The controversy erupted July 17, 1987, five months after U.S. skipper Dennis Connor recaptured the America's Cup from Australia. New Zealand investment banker Michael Fay hand-delivered a challenge to San Diego Yacht Club Commodore Fred Frye, asking San Diego to defend the America's Cup against a sleek, white dream yacht with computerized controls.

When San Diego refused to respond to the challenge, Fay took them to court which ruled the United States must race.

However, under the deed of gift, San Diego did not have to announce until the last moment what boat it would sail. The United States unveiled the catamaran, which New Zealand conceded would be far quicker than its traditional yacht.

With Connor at the helm, the United States easily won the race in two legs on Sept. 7, and 9, 1988. Fay then sued to have the race results overturned.

The ruling clears the way for another, multi-national America's Cup race in May 1992, said Tom Mitchell, spokesman for the America's Cup Organizing Committee.

''We were not happy with the callenge by Fay obviously, but I think this now goes in the record book as a correct action that San Diego took,'' San Diego Yacht Club Commodore Sandy Prudhom said.

''Looking forward, it means we do have an event in May 1992,'' he said, ''and we are going to have a fantastic array of foreign challengers here over the next couple of years with a significant impact to our economy.''

New York state Supreme Court agreed to award the trophy to the New Zealanders, but the court's Appellate Division said it should stay with the United States.

The Court of Appeals ruling upholds the Appellate Division decision.

Several former America's Cup skippers had backed the New Zealanders in their bid for the silver trophy, the oldest in all of sports.

The case ended up in New York courts because the 1887 deed of gift was signed in New York by George Schuyler, a grandson of Revolutionary War hero Philip Schuyler, whose family mansion is just 10 blocks from the Court of Appeals building in Albany.

In strong language, the judges blasted both yacht clubs for bringing the dispute to court, saying they should have settled it according to International Yacht Racing Union rules.

''It would be most inappropriate and counterproductive for the courts to attempt to fix the rules and standards of competition of any particular sport,'' according to the majority opinion written by Judge Fritz Alexander.

Several former America's Cup skippers had backed the New Zealanders in their bid for the silver trophy, the oldest in all of sports.

BENTON HARBOR, MI (APRIL 26) UPI - Whirlpool Corp. Thursday blamed adverse economic conditions in Brazil for a 27.5-percent decline in worldwide earnings during the first quarter.

Whirlpool said it earned $29.5 million, or 42 cents a share, compared to $40.7 million, or 59 cents a share, in the first quarter of 1989. Sales were $1.6 billion, up 6.6 percent from $1.5 billion a year ago.

Excluding the company's Brazilian affiliates, Whirlpool's net earnings rose 11 percent, paced by market share gains, continued effective cost controls and price increases in most product categories, the company said.

However, as a result of economic conditions and reforms in Brazil, Whirlpool said its operations in that country posted a loss of 26 cents a share in the first quarter, compared with a loss of two cents a share in the year-ago period. "Economic reform in Brazil has brought economic life there to a temporary standstill," said David R. Whitwam, chairman, president and chief executive officer.

But Whitwam said he was pleased with the company's overall performance in the first quarter. "While industry shipments in North America were down for the quarter, Whirlpool's North American revenues, operating profits and unit volumes were up," he said. "Whirlpool Financial Corp. also demonstrated strong revenue and earnings gains compared to first-quarter 1989 results."

ADDIS ABABA, ETHIOPIA (APRIL 26) UPI - Ethiopia rejected Thursday international urgings that it stop bombing the rebel-held northern port of Massawa to permit shipment of emergency food for famine-struck parts of the country.

In a statement issued by the Foreign Ministry, the Ethiopian government said calls in the United Nations for use of the port to avert a repeat of the famine of 1984-85 were inappropriate and amounted to ''dictating a code of conduct to a sovereign state.''

The European Community, Canada, the United States, Norway, Sweden and Switzerland all called on Ethiopia this week to put aside its war with the Eritrean People's Liberation Front on humanitarian grounds.

The EPLF captured the port in early February, cutting off a government garrison at Asmara, 40 miles to the west, and wrecking government plans to move food into Eritrea and Tigre provinces from Massawa.

Massawa is the only port serving northern Ethiopia and the government has been forced to implement an ad hoc convoy system from the southern port of Assab to get food into drought-affected areas.

The government has been bombing the port with cluster bombs every other day so famine relief donors would need government cooperation before sending food through the city.

At least 2.5 million people risk starvation in Eritrea and Tigre in the next nine months, according to government, church and U.N. estimates. Analysts fear 4.5 million could die in Ethiopia as a whole.

The emergency trucking operation of the three-church Joint Relief Program last week moved its first 700 tons of food into Tigre province but organizers fear that trucks alone will provide too little too late.

Relief officials at Dessie, 160 miles north of Addis Ababa said they needed at least 300 trucks to be sure of supplying enough food. Only 80 trucks are operational.

''The government rejects claims, however implicit, that other countries are more concerned about the fate of Ethiopians than their own government '' the foreign ministry statement said, however.

It said it wished to reassure the international community that everything possible was being done to get food to those needing it, but that allowing the rebel-held port to be used as a conduit was unacceptable.

Ethiopian Relief and Rehabilitation commissioner Yilma Kassaye last week hit out at the international community for its one-sided approach to the issue of famine relief.

''They did not condemn it when the rebels took Massawa,'' he said.

MINNEAPLIS (APRIL 26) UPI - MEI Diversified Inc. announced Thursday it has agreed to sell substantially all of the assets of its Candy and Snack Group to Ezaki Glico Co. Ltd, of Osaka, Japan.

Donald Benson, president of MEI Diversified, said the purchase price will result in cash proceeds of approximately $58 million at closing.

The proposed transaction is subject to the pre-merger notification waiting period, Benson said. The transaction is expected to close on or before May 31.

Benson said MEI's Candy and Snack Group had 1989 sales of approximately $107 million.

HOUSTON (APRIL 26) UPI - Compaq Computer Corp. reported first-quarter net income Thursday of $92 million, or $2.13 a share, an 11-percent increase over net income of $83 million, or $1.96 a share, for the same period a year ago. Sales rose 28 percent to $872 million from $683 million in the first quarter of 1989.

"Compaq's first-quarter results reflect an extremely strong growth rate in our international business," said President Rod Canion. "For the first time, our international sales comprised more than half our revenue. Our international revenue grew 56 percent, fueled primarily by strong European PC market growth and increasing Compaq market share in Europe.

"Our North American increase of four percent reflects the sluggish North American business PC, market which showed no significant growth over the first quarter of 1989." Compaq operates 12 wholly owned European subsidiaries.

Compaq makes PC systems and desktop, portable and laptop personal computers. The company's products are sold in 62 countries through more than 3,000 authorized Compaq computer dealers.

MIAMI (APRIL 26) UPI - A single helicopter equipped with six spray nozzles began sprinkling pesticide Thursday over a 15-square-mile section of Miami where nine Mediterranean fruit flies have been discovered since April 16.

The aerial attack, the first of four planned bombardments, was delayed for about 2 1/2 hours because of problems with a generator and two spray nozzles, said Maeve McConnell, spokeswoman for the Florida Department of Agriculture.

The helicopter took off from Opa-locka airport about 6:55 a.m., but was forced to turn back about 25 minutes later after two spray nozzles became clogged and an on-board generator stopped functioning, McConnell said. Spraying resumed about 9:40 a.m. after the problems were fixed, she said.

McConnell said officials expected to complete the spraying by mid-afternoon. The spraying was to be confined to an area mostly north of Miami International Airport, in the communities of Miami Springs, Virginia Gardens, and Hialeah.

The spray is a mix of the pesticide Malathion and a fly bait, mixed at 2.4 ounces of pesticide to 9.6 ounces of bait per acre, said Phyllis Habeck, another department spokeswoman. "So we're talking about actually less than three tablespoons of Malathion per acre. The flies have to eat it. It's not a contact type pesticide," she said.

The medfly poses a major threat to Florida's multibillion-dollar citrus industry, and could threaten exports if it spreads to commercial groves. State officials established a quarantine in the mostly residential area to prevent any uninspected fruit from leaving the infested zone. The medfly attacks citrus, mango, and other tropical fruit.

Agriculture agents set 2,500 traps over a 106-square-mile area around the airport in an effort to catch the pests. They also planned to release weekly batches of 20 million sterile medflies over the 15-square-mile area for about 75 days once the spraying ends, in an effort to thwart the insects' breeding.

State agriculture workers discovered a tenth medfly this week in Fort Lauderdale. It was the first to be found outside the Miami airport area. McConnell said the discovery of the unmated female near Port Everglades will prompt officials to increase trapping efforts in that area. There were no immediate plans to begin spraying in Fort Lauderdale, however.

BRUSSELS, BELGIUM (APRIL 26) UPI - European Community leaders may grant a special aid package to East Germany before it is incorporated into the EC as part of a unified Germany, the EC Commission president said Thursday.

The assistance would give East Germans a sense of ''solidarity and fraternity'' with the 12 EC countries, said Jacques Delors, president of the community's executive agency.

The commission has proposed a three-phase process for incorporating East German territory into the EC and the plan is expected to easily win approval at the summit.

During the preliminary phase, the EC could provide ''special aid which would give East Germans in particular, and all the Germans, a feeling of solidarity and fraternity,'' Delors told a news conference. He did not specify how much aid he was proposing East Germay be given.

He said the unification of Germany represents a ''heavy burden'' for West Germans, which they accept ''with enthusiasm and joy.''

Still, other countries of the wealthy community could assume ''a little of this burden, not much,'' said Delors. ''I am appealing to their benevolence.''

Delors said some EC foreign ministers showed support for providing ''a little help'' when they met in Dublin last Saturday.

GREENBELT, MD (APRIL 26) UPI - NASA technicians worked Thursday to open a vital communications channel with the Hubble Space Telescope after briefly losing contact with the $1.5 billion observatory.

Engineers at the Goddard Space Flight Center failed to establish contact as planned at about 8:30 a.m. between the telescope's two ''high-gain'' antennas and the Tracking Data Relay Satellite (TDRS).

The high-speed route is critical for transmitting huge amounts of potentially revolutionary information about the universe the telescope is expected to collect during it's 15-year quest.

Technicians regained contact with the satellite by about 9:15 a.m. with the 12-ton telescope's back-up slow-speed ''low-gain'' antennas and began searching for the source of the problem.

''It was going well until I handed off the shift. As I was leaving I did hear that we were having some problems. The TDRS satellite did not acquire our transmitter signal,'' said NASA's Steve Terry, director of orbital verification. ''The subsystem engineers are looking at that carefully at this moment.''

The problem may have been caused by a misalignment of the telescope's antennas.

''My speculation might be that we have some pointing error in the telescope that would allow us to be four or five degrees off of pointing to the TDRS satellite,'' Terry said. ''If that's the case then that would explain why the TDRS is not receiving the signal from us.''

Although Terry was optimistic the problem would be resolved, the snafu could put technicians behind schedule, he said.

''The worst-case would probably be losing time,'' he said after a news briefing. ''If we delay pieces of our calibration process ... basically we dig ourselves into a deeper hole.''

Technicians also lost contact with the telescope for about 45 minutes at about 1 a.m. because of what they later determined was a faulty computer command sent by ground controllers.

The problems occurred as workers began a painstaking eight-month process of turning on and checking all the telescope's systems to make sure it is focused and aligned properly when it begins peering deep into space.

After coaxing open the satellite's balky solar panels, the railroad-sized telescope was placed safely into orbit Wednesday by the crew of the shuttle Discovery, which blasted off Tuesday from Kennedy Space Center in Florida.

Other than the communictions problems, the process had been going smoothly Terry said.

Technicians loaded programs into an on-board computer, tested the gyro system that slowly moves the telescope and began the day's primary objective - checking a complex pointing system that will enable the telescope to precisely find and lock onto targets.

''We have to take baby steps on the way. This is our first set of baby steps,'' said Terry.

Officials hope to open the telescope's hatch-like ''aperture door'' at 10:15 a.m. Friday to allow light to hit the telescope's near-perfect mirror for the first time from space.

Although a test image from the telescope should be available early next week, it will be at least eight months before the complicated fine-tuning of the telescope is complete and long-awaited research can begin.

Operating high above Earth's hazy atmosphere, the telescope is expected to revolutionize astronomy by peering more deeply into space and with greater clarity than ever before - perhaps answering fundamental questions about the birth of the universe and its ultimate fate.

The check-out period will eventually include systematically calibrating the telescope's two cameras, two light-splitting spectrographs and a high-tech light meter called a photometer.

''The precision steps of Hubble Space Telescope verification could be compared to those required for cutting a fine diamond,'' a NASA information sheet says. ''Each step is important. Each must be completed correctly. Rushing or skipping a step could be disastrous. But in the end the finished product is one of incalculable value.''

WASHINGTON (APRIL 26) UPI - Czechoslovakia is considering a fair, swift, and massive privatization of state enterprises by distributing vouchers to the public to buy shares in the companies, the Czechoslovak finance minister said Thursday.

Vaclav Klaus told the World Bank's Conference on Development Economics that his country wants to avoid the "reform traps" of limited economic changes, which he said experience showed would not work in Central and Eastern Europe, and of "all-embracing reforms" that postpone change in search of perfection.

He also rejected the model of a mixed economy, "a third way that is the quickest road to becoming a Third World country." He also said that Czechoslovakia plans to have a convertible currency by the end of the year and liberalize prices quickly and across the board to create market incentives for production.

"Czechoslovakia is not that different from other countries," he said. What the country needs is to avoid "pseudo-rationalistic social engineering by irresponsible intellectuals and technocrats."

Klaus was appointed Finance Minister Dec. 13 in the aftermath of the "velvet revolution" that ended more than 40 years of Communist rule in the Central European country.

One of the thorniest problems of Central and East European nations in their transition to market economies is that of privatizing state companies, since private capital to purchase them is missing.

Recalling the experience of some Western governments that "took ten to 15 years to privatize five percent to ten percent" of their state companies, Klaus said Czechoslovakia wants to sell the bulk of its state enterprises in a matter of "weeks or months."

"There is no time to wait," he said, adding that such rapid sale would avoid unfairness by giving every citizen a chance to buy a share of the companies.

The Czechoslovak government is studying ways of putting state enterprises on a commercial footing - making them autonomous and not dependent upon subsidies - and issuing shares that could be sold to the public at auction.

The state enterprises should be transferred free of charge to the public by giving all citizens vouchers to exchange for company shares, Klaus said.

DETROIT (APRIL 26) UPI - Chrysler Corp. is expected to announce Thursday new product plans that may add as many as 1,600 new jobs at its Jeep plants in Toledo, Ohio.

A spokesman for the nation's third largest carmaker declined comment on details of the expected announcement. However, U.S. Rep. Marcy Kaptur, D-Ohio, said she was told by company Chairman Lee Iacocca that Chrysler will build a new sport utility vehicle in Toledo, starting in July 1993. That vehicle could possibly be a compact sport utility vehicle code-named the JJ, which Chrysler plans to build in Europe as well for that market.

The Ohio Democrat also said she was told Chrysler will transfer production of the Jeep Wrangler model from its Brampton, Ontario, plant to Toledo in July of 1992.

The production shift could mean the closing of the Brampton plant, which Chrysler acquired in its purchase of American Motors Corp. in 1987. "If indeed there are new products intended for Toledo, then Brampton would be next in line for a permanent closure," said industry analyst Cynthia Certo, of Integrated Automotive Resources Inc., of Wayne, Pa.

Certo said any future product for the Toledo plant would "be wonderful news," since most observers have pegged the former American Motors facility for closing.

Chrysler is also constructing its new Jefferson Avenue complex in Detroit that will start building a new sport utility vehicle in early 1992. That model, code named ZJ, is expected to eventually replace the current Cherokee built at Toledo.

The Toledo plant, built in 1906, also makes the Jeep Comanche, Wagoneer and Grand Wagoneer models. It employs about 5,500 workers, although Chrysler said March 30 that 400 hourly workers were to be indefinitely idled late this month due to a 12 percent reduction in output.

ORLANDO, FL (APRIL 26) UPI - Harcourt Brace Jovanovich Inc., the publisher that blocked a takeover bid in 1987 but tripled its debt in the process, may sell more assets or negotiate other deals to reduce debt, company executives said.

President Peter Jovanovich Wednesday confirmed that the company has discussed possible transactions with certain, unidentified parties. The transactions under consideration involve offers of some or all of Harcourt's existing public debt at a discount from its aggregate book value, as well as the sale of assets, Jovanovich said. The company did not identify the assets which may be sold.

"At this time, it is simply premature to speculate as to whether a transaction will occur and, if one does occur, as to its eventual form or terms," Jovanovich said in a statement. Jovanovich said the company itself is not for sale.

The Wall Street Journal reported Thursday that Thomson Corp. of Canada is considering a possible purchase of some of Harcourt's publishing operations.

The newspaper quoted Harcourt director Eugene McCarthy as saying discussions between the two parties had been ongoing for the past month. Harcourt officials could not be reached for comment.

Harcourt posted a profit of $316.6 million, or $4.22 a share, for the fourth quarter ended Dec. 31 after selling six theme parks to Anheuser-Busch Cos. Inc. for $1.1 billion. Harcourt said it used proceeds from the sale of the parks to pay off its long-term bank debt.

Much of that debt was incurred in 1987 when Harcourt directors adopted a $3 billion recapitalization plan in order to thwart a hostile takeover bid by British publisher Robert Maxwell. Maxwell eventually abandoned his bid.

Harcourt sold about $370 million in assets in the fourth quarter of 1987, including a magazine publishing business, to reduce its debt. Harcourt earned $72.1 million, or 17 cents a share, in 1989. The company said annual sales and revenues from its remaining publishing and insurance businesses equaled $1.34 billion.

ATHENS, GREECE (APRIL 26) UPI - A number of people charged with spying for the United States will be hanged within the next few days, the official Islamic Republic News Agency said Thursday.

Quoting the public prosecutor in Tehran's Islamic revolutionary courts, an IRNA dispatch monitored in Athens said the forthcoming executions had been authorized by spiritual leader Ayatollah Ali Khamenei.

IRNA did not disclose how many were to be hanged or identify any of them, saying only that ''a number of persons arrested earlier for spying for the U.S. will be hanged within the next few days.''

On April 26, 1989, Iran announced that seven military officers and 13 civilians were arrested on charges of spying for the United States. All were apparently Iranian citizens, but no names were disclosed.

Hojatoleslam Mohammed Mohammedi-Reyshahri, who was then information minister, said the officers arrested included one brigadier, three colonels, one commodore and two captains, apparently naval.

The civilians included two clerics, an expert in the Petroleum Ministry, and an employee of the Shiraz Petrochemical Complex in southern Iran.

Mohammedi-Reyshahri said the alleged spies were linked to the office of the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency in Wiesbaden, West Germany, and were members of a network of spies discovered in Iran in 1985.

Since last January, Iran has executed three people charged with spying for Iraq - one in the Kurdish city of Sanandaj and two others in the southeastern city of Zahedan, in Sistan and Baluchistan province.

OSHAWA, ONTARIO (APRIL 26) UPI - Production at General Motors' Oshawa complex returned to normal Thursday following an illegal two-day walkout triggered by the suspension of a union official. GM said its Oshawa car, truck and parts plants "were functioning normally" when the first shift began at 7 a.m.

Nick Hall, spokesman for the automaker, said GM and union officials were meeting with the Ontario Labor Relations Board to deal with the walkout. Violation of the collective agreement between the two sides and the employee's suspension were two issues the board would examine, Hall said.

On Tuesday, the auto maker sent home 3,800 workers at Car Plant No. 1 after a group of employees walked off the job to protest the suspension of a Canadian Auto Workers union representative.

The workers, whose departure disrupted production at other plants Tuesday, remained off the job Wednesday. Hall said it was too early to tell exactly how much production was lost due to the walkout.

CHICAGO (APRIL 26) UPI - Anybody can make a 101-yard strudel but only Chicago could threaten to condemn it.

A New York chef, Helmut Moelk, constructed the strudel Wednesday on Chicago's Daley Plaza, using 250 pounds of apples, 250 pounds of dough and 7.5 pounds of ''secret ingredients.''

Moelk and his helpers claimed records for longest strudel ever made and fastest construction of a giant strudel.

Unfortunately, Chicago was experiencing record heat Wednesday, with the mercury topping out at 87. And, equally unfortunately for Moelk, Health Department officials had a bird's eye view of the super strudel from their second-story windows in the Daley Center.

''With the temperature of the air and the length of time it has sat out, there may be a problem,'' said Deputy Health Commissioner James Masterson. ''We're investigating the matter and we'll seize it if it's bad.''

Moelk was outraged.

''I've made strudel for 17 years and no one's died yet,'' he protested.

Moelk said the strudel was to be sliced up, baked at the recently reopened Intercontinental Hotel and distributed to charity.

WASHINGTON (APRIL 26) UPI - A State Department official said Thursday the Bush admininistration opposes slapping Iraq with economic sanctions despite the country's ''abysmal'' record on human rights and its recent missile deployment.

John Kelly, assistant secretary of state for Near East and South Asia, told a House Foreign Affairs subcommittee that the administration agreed with members of the subcommittee that ''Iraq's own reckless words and actions have raised new questions'' about Iraqi intentions.

But urged by members of the subcommittee to respond with economic sanctions, Kelly said, ''If those of us in the administration thought legislating trade sanctions would have the effect of promoting the goals we share with this committee and the Congress, we would not hesitate to support their imposition. We simply do not believe that to be the case.''

Kelly conceded that U.S. relations with Iraq have become strained, particularly since the annual State Department Human Rights Report in February described Iraq's record as ''abysmal.''

''We stand by that report,'' Kelly said.

He also revealed that the United States learned last month Iraq had placed new missile launchers at an airbase, known as H-2, along the Jordanian border. Kelly said Iraq has a large store of Scud extended-range missiles that could reach Israel from the airbase.

Last month, Iraq President Saddam Hussein warned he would ''burn'' Israel with ''dual'' chemical weapons if Israel attacked Iraqi nuclear facilities.

Kelly said Iraq's attempts to smuggle electronic parts that could be used to trigger a nuclear weapon ''raise serious questions about Iraq's willingness to live up to its commitments under the non-proliferation treaty.''

But, he said, ''We do not believe Iraq is close to possession of a nuclear weapon.''

Although he held out the prospect that the administration might be prepared to impose selective controls on relations with Iraq, he said, ''We are not prepared to see economic and trade sanctions legislatively imposed at this point.''

He listed some of the reasons:

-Unless economic sanctions are imposed on a multilateral basis, unilateral controls by the United States would turn over American export programs to others, including Canada, Australia, Western Europe and Japan.

-Limiting American exports to Iraq would have the effect of making the U.S. trade imbalance worse. The United States currently imports $3.7 billion worth of petroleum from Iraq per year, while selling Iraq $1.2 billion in American products, mainly agricultural.

-The United States in the first two months of 1990 imported Iraqi oil at the rate of 675,000 barrels per day, and Iraq's oil reserves are second only to Saudi Arabia's.

BOGOTA, COLOMBIA (APRIL 26) UPI - A gunman aboard a commercial airline flight assassinated a leftist presidential candidate Thursday, the third candidate killed in Colombia in a year, hospital officials and aides said.

Carlos Pizarro, former M-19 communist guerrilla commander, was shot three times aboard the Avianca airline flight that was taking him to a campaign appearance in Barranquilla. A spokeswoman at the Caja Nacional de Prevision hospital in Bogota and Pizarro's brother Eduardo said he died.

The gunman was wounded by the candidate's bodyguards, reports said.

The Bogota-to-Barranquilla passenger flight returned to the Colombian capital and made an emergency landing. There was no immediate word on the number of passengers or whether there were any other casualties.

Pizarro, 39, was former commander of the M-19 guerrilla group, which had laid down its arms. He was shot from behind by the gunman, who was wounded himself by the candidate's bodyguards, radio news reports said.

Another leftist presidential candidate, Bernardo Jaramillo Ossa of the Patriotic Union, was assassinated March 23 at the Bogota airport by a gunman. Both right-wing death squads and cocaine cartels were blamed for the assassination.

The leading candidate for the ruling Liberal Party candidate, Luis Carlos Galan, was assassinated Aug. 18 at a Bogota campaign rally by cocaine cartel gunmen.

The assassination came one day after a car bomb exploded in the city of Medellin, headquarters of a warring cocaine cartel, killing five people, including a policeman.

The car bomb Wednesday morning was aimed at a truck carrying 12 members of the National Police Elite Forces. Authorities said Wednesday that nine people had died but lowered the figure to five Thursday.

A police spokeswoman said 57 people were wounded when the remote-controlled bomb with 440 pounds of dynamite went off in a commercial area, destroying cars and damaging buildings in the area.

Government officials also were studying a declaration putting the Medellin area under military control. A bomb two weeks ago near Medellin, 160 miles northwest of Bogota, killed 22 people, including seven Elite Force members.

Officials blamed the attack on the cartel and its leader, billionaire cocaine kingpin Pablo Escobar, who is the subject of a massive manhunt.

There have been 126 policemen killed in Colombia this year, according to Defense Ministry figures.

JERUSALEM (APRIL 26) UPI - Prominent Palestinians urged Czechoslovakian President Vaclav Havel Thursday to play a major role in the Middle East peace process and to prevent Prague from becoming a transit point for Soviet Jewish immigrants to Israel.

On his second day in Israel, Havel also received an honorary doctorate from Hebrew University and toured Jerusalem's Old City, visiting Christian and Jewish holy sites, but not Moslem mosques.

Havel, the highest-ranking East European leader to visit Israel since its creation in 1948, met with 12 prominent Palestinians in Arab East Jerusalem about two hours after he finished a luncheon with right-wing Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir.

Radwan Abu Ayyash, chairman of the Arab Journalists Association, told reporters the discussions centered on Jewish immigration.

Shamir's transitional government has been pushing for Prague to become a transit point for Soviet Jews immigrating to Israel. Palestinians fear the newcomers will wind up in settlements outside Israel's pre-1967 borders.

''We expressed our concerns about the Jewish immigration to Israel and we demanded Prague not to allow Jewish immigrants to come to be settled in the occupied territories,'' Ayyash said.

''We told him we have concerns because there is no (peace) settlement yet and we cannot allow immigrants to come to Palestine without having a peaceful settlement because the situation would be an obstacle to peace,'' he said.

Havel reportedly told the Palestinians he was seeking guarantees from the Israeli government that the new immigrants would not settle in the occupied territories.

The Palestinians also urged Havel to pursue his interest in helping to mediate the Israeli-Arab conflict.

''We demanded (of) him to play a major role to push the peace process in the area and to ask the Israeli government to take the Palestinian hand that is stretched for peace,'' Ayyash said.

Havel and the Palestinians also discussed the ''daily ill-treatment'' of Palestinains in the territories, Ayyash said. Two Palestinans were killed and more than 100 wounded Thursday when violence flared in the Gaza Strip.

Shortly before his meeting, Havel toured the Old City with Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Arens.

At the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, Havel saw the slab of marble on which Jesus' body was believed anointed after his crucifixion and the small chamber built over the site where, according to tradition, Jesus was buried.

At the Western Wall, Havel donned a cardboard skullcap before entering the men's prayer section and placing his hand on the wall, Judaism's holiest site. Havel, however, did not tour the nearby Moslem sites, Dome of the Rock and the Al Aqsa Mosque.

Arab shops in the Old City were closed, as they have been afternoons during the 28-month-old uprising against the Israeli occupation.

Arens told Havel's entourage when asked that Palestinians force the Arab shopkeepers to take part in the protest.

''They force them to close. If they don't close, they threaten them,'' Arens said.

MANAGUA, NICARAGUA (APRIL 26) UPI - President Violeta Chamorro's decision to name her vanquished opponent's brother to lead the armed forces angered political allies Thursday and Contra rebel leaders said they would ''wait and see'' whether to abide by their disarmament agreement.

Two members of Chamorro's party declined offers of Cabinet positions because of the appointment. Anti-Sandinistas within the National Opposition Union (UNO) have opposed retaining Humberto Ortega, brother of former President Daniel Ortega, saying it would give the Sandinistas too much control over the largely Sandinista army.

Chamorro insisted in her inauguration speech Wednesday that she would be defense minister and that Ortega would hold only operational control and would take his orders from her. She also pledged a reduction of the armed forces and an immediate end to mandatory military service.

But newly named Agriculture Minister Jaime Cuadra and Construction Minister Gilberto Cuadra said they would not accept their posts if Ortega remained as armed forces chief of staff.

A Contra leader known as Commander Franklin said Thursday, ''We will have to wait and see'' what the Contra reaction to Ortega's appointment will be.

A Contra spokesman in Honduras told United Press International by telephone that the Contras would remain in the security zones where they have concentrated for the demobilization process but that they would not begin to disarm until they make a final decision on whether to comply with the disarmament agreement they signed a week ago. They were scheduled to begin disarming Thursday and complete the process by June 10.

UNO labor leaders also criticized the Ortega appointment and called for workers to march in the streets Thursday in protest.

World reaction to the appointment appeared favorable but curious about its implications.

U.S. officials said Ortega's role would not jeopardize aid, and a high-ranking foreign diplomat in Managua told UPI Thursday it appeared to be a ''wise and calculated decision but we will have to wait and see what the consequences will be.''

''Even a child could see that it would cause a lot of political controversy, and Antonio Lacayo is no child,'' the diplomat said. Lacayo is Chamorro's top aid and the diplomat said the Ortega appointment was encouraged by him.

Chamorro took over the presidency Wednesday from Daniel Ortega, who she defeated in Feb 25 elections, ending more than a decade of Sandinista rule in Nicaragua.

Chamorro's decision, which Senator Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., called ''a bold one,'' was defended by the Bush administration.

''That's a decision that she has every right to make. We are confident that in President Chamorro's leadership, Nicaragua will enjoy prosperity and national reconciliation,'' White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said in Washington.

The inauguration was attended by 11 heads of state and Vice President Dan Quayle, who led the U.S. delegation to Nicaragua carrying a token quantity of flour and cooking oil to signify a new era in U.S. policy toward the Central American country.

Quayle, accompanied by his wife, Marilyn, and bearing word of nearly completed congressional action on the $300 million U.S. aid package, said Chamorro faces ''Herculean economic problems.''

''It's going to take a tremendous rebuilding effort. It's going to take an international effort,'' he said.

Daniel Ortega stirred the crowd with a dramatic speech calling on the United States to stay out of Nicaraguan affairs and saying Chamorro's 55 percent to 41 percent Feb. 25 election victory was ''the conquest of the revolution.''

Ortega pointed to Quayle and said: ''We want to tell the Americans that this is a democracy ... We want the Americans to keep their politics out of Nicaragua. We will decide our policies ourselves.''

He also vowed to take up the opposition banner and fight Chamorro's plans to privatize industries and implement capitalist-style farming programs.

Chamorro, once a member of the Sandinista junta, ran for president in tribute to the memory of her husband, Pedro Joaquin Chamorro, whose 1978 assassination sparked the nationwid insurrection that helped the Sandinistas overthrow dictator Anastasio Somoza.

She later broke with the Sandinistas and battled them for most of the past decade, using the newspaper she publishes, La Prensa, as a mouthpiece for her criticisms of the government.

SAN FRANCISCO (APRIL 26) UPI - California prosecutors, seeking to reinstate the state's first execution in 23 years, urged a federal appeals court Thursday to reject the latest challenge to the death sentence of killer Robert Alton Harris.

Harris is not entitled to an evidentiary hearing on the competency of his 1978 court-appointed psychiatrists, Deputy Attorney General Louis Hanoian argued in papers filed with the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

The appeals court has set May 14 for an oral argument in the case before a three-judge panel.

Appeals Judge John T. Noonan issued a stay of execution in San Francisco March 30 at the close of an emotion-charged hearing.

A San Diego jury sentenced Harris to die for the murders of Michael Baker and John Mayeski after he abducted the 16-year-old boys from a fast-food restaurant.

Defense lawyers argued that two psychiatrists appointed to help Harris with his defense in 1978 were ''shockingly deficient'' under prevailing professional standards at the time.

Hanoian maintained there is no support for the defense proposition that a 1985 Supreme Court decision in an Oklahoma case gives Harris the right to judicial review of the competency of psychiatrists.

The Oklahoma case dealt with ''the right of access to psychiatrists,'' Hanoian argued.

Even if the Oklahoma case provides a review of the competency of psychiatrists, ''it cannot be applied retroactively to this case where the state proceedings were final long before the ... decision,'' Hanoian wrote.

Charles Sevilla and Michael McCabe, defense lawyers for Harris, contend their client suffered organic brain damage, fetal alcohol syndrome and post traumatic stress disorder as a result of years of physical and mental abuse at the hands of his parents.

Sevilla said the prosecution psychiatrist testified falsely when he told jurors Harris was a sociopath incapable of remorse or learning from his mistakes.

LONDON (APRIL 26) UPI - Prices closed lower Thursday in moderate trading on the London International stock exchange.

The blue-chip Financial Times 100-stock index, which fell 16.8 points Wednesday, eased 9.5 points to 2,133.6. The narrower top 30 industrial average slipped 7.4 points to 1,676.1.

Volume was around 511 million shares, compared with 393 million shares Wednesday.

The trade deficit figures released Wednesday continued to rattle markets, prompting worries the government will raise interest rates again, analysts said.

On Wednesday, the government reported an unexpectedly large $3.55 billion trade deficit for March.

Among the most widely traded stocks, Rolls-Royce added 2 cents to $3.16 following what analysts described as a favorable presentation to analysts.

Bass PLC added 11 cents to $14.51 in hopes that the Crest Hotels will be sold.

BTR slipped 6 cents to $6.48 after the conglomerate announced it had sold its stake in Norton Company.

Among the day's other highlights, Trafalgar House slipped 11 cents to $4.96, Carlton Communications gained 26 cents to $7.80 and Guinness gained 21 cents to $10.72.

Elsewhere in Europe, prices on the Frankfurt Stock Exchange ended broadly lower in moderate trading.

The closely watched German Stock Index, which gained 12.78 points Wednesday, fell 16.24 points to 1,827.07.

Traders said prices eased amid growing speculation that interest rates would move higher, possibly next week.

ATLANTA (APRIL 26) UPI - Cigarette advertising should be banned or more closely regulated because it throws up a smoke screen clouding government health warnings, federal health officials said Thursday.

The national Centers for Disease Control's proposal to launch a new government offensive against cigarette advertising comes on the heels of an attack by Health and Human Services Secretary Louis Sullivan, who criticized tobacco companies for using commercials to target blacks and working women.

''A ban is certainly a lot more feasible now than it used to be,'' said Ronald Davis, director of the CDC's office on smoking and health and author of the report. ''There's no question Congress has the authority to ban or restrict advertising of an inherently dangerous product.''

Tobacco industry officials immediately criticized the report.

''To call for a ban on advertising completely subverts the entire meaning of the First Amendment as it applies to commercial speech,'' said Walker Merryman, vice president of The Tobacco Institute, a Washington lobbying group.

The CDC proposal is based on a study that found tobacco companies spent $3.27 billion in 1988 to advertise and promote cigarettes.

Tobacco commercials encourage children and teenagers to experiment with cigarettes, keep current smokers from quitting, prompt former smokers to begin smoking again and increase smokers' daily consumption, the CDC said.

Advertising also ''may contribute to the perception that smoking is less hazardous, more prevalent and more socially acceptable than it is,'' the report said.

Davis outlined seven options in the report to battle the tobacco industry's big-budget approach to selling cigarettes, beginning with funding for a substantial ''counteradvertising'' campaign.

''We would have to have a budget that could combat tobacco advertising,'' said Rose Mary Romano, director of public information for the CDC. ''It would have to be a substantial budget to be effective.''

Romano said federal or state programs could be patterned after a California anti-smoking campaign funded by an excise tax on cigarettes. The tax provided $14 million last year for anti-smoking advertising, she said.

The report also proposed different levels of advertising regulation, including limiting ads to only words and pictures of the product, eliminating the tax deduction for cigarette advertising expenditures and banning all tobacco advertising and promotion.

The Tobacco Institute's vice president said most smokers have heard the warnings about cigarettes and have chosen to continue smoking.

''People at the CDC don't like the decision smokers have made,'' Merryman said. ''These officials apparently feel they can tell people what choice to make.

''Those warnings make billions of impressions every year'' and are paid for by cigarette companies, Merryman added, referring to the Surgeon General's warning that by law must be carried on all cigarette advertising.

Davis said he also supports Sullivan's February statement that it is immoral to advertise a product proven deadly.

Merryman maintained tobacco industry research shows ''there is no disease exclusive to smokers.''

''I don't think it's appropriate to say smoking causes any disease,'' he said.

MIAMI (APRIL 26) UPI - A drug suspect was killed and an FBI agent slightly wounded in a shootout that ended when police and FBI agents blitzed a home with tear gas early Thursday, officials said.

Four other suspects were arrested on drug trafficking charges and 1,617 pounds of cocaine were seized, Metro-Dade County police detective Bill Kinnebrew said.

Neighbors said at least 40 shots were fired during the five-hour siege at a home in the affluent Kendall neighborhood in southwest Miami. Agents had the house under surveillance for suspected drug activity and followed a van that left the house about 5 p.m. Wednesday, Kinnebrew said.

''As it was unloading the cargo that it had, they realized it was cocaine. They made three arrests,'' he said.

While the agents were awaiting a warrant to search the house, another van left with another load of cocaine, he said. Authorities stopped that van and made a fourth arrest, Kinnebrew said.

The two vans together contained about 660 pounds of cocaine, he said.

An hour later, with the search warrant, the agents surrounded the house and prepared to enter.

''As they surrounded it, shots were fired from inside the house. Evidently the guy inside saw them and he started shooting,'' Kinnebrew said.

He was conscious and alert when airlifted to Jackson Memorial Hospital, where he was treated and released. Davis, a 10-year veteran of the FBI, was reported to be in excellent condition at home Thursday.

''He is very lucky,'' said FBI spokesman Chris Swecker.

Gunfire was exchanged and the police SWAT team blitzed the house with tear gas as negotiators tried to persuade the suspect to surrender, Kinnebrew said.

The neighborhood was cordoned off and neighbors were warned to stay inside their homes. Search dogs were brought to search for other possible suspects.

The man inside the house did not answer the negotiators and early Thursday more than five hours after the siege began, SWAT team members in gas masks entered the home and found the suspect shot to death.

Authorities later discovered 957 pounds of cocaine in the house, Kinnebrew said.

Neighbors said they heard gunfire all night.

''You could see the flashes of light,'' said Tony Perez, 15, who watched from his home across the street.

Police said they did not know how many bullets were fired.

''There were a lot of gushots all during the night which were really not gunshots. They were tear gas being fired,'' Kinnebrew said.

Streets in the neighborhood were reopened Thursday morning and police said they no longer believed other suspects were involved.

WASHINGTON (APRIL 26) UPI - Rep. Pat Williams, D-Mont., said Thursday he has introduced legislation urging both sides in the violence-marred strike against Greyhound to return to the bargaining table.

''For the good of all sides, good-faith talks simply have to resume and resume now,'' Williams said. ''The toll exacted by this increasingly bitter dispute is worsening with each day that passes without negotiations.''

Williams said a bipartisan group of more than 75 House members is already cosponsoring the resolution.

Greyhound had no immediate comment on the resolution.

Williams said more than 10,000 communities, many of them in rural areas without alternative means of public transportation, ''have felt the impact of this dispute, including significant reductions in vital bus service.''

''For most of these communities, bus service is the sole transportation link to the rest of the nation,'' he said.

More than 9,000 Greyhound drivers and other employees, represented by the Amalgamated Council of Greyhound Local Unions of the Amalgamated Transit Union, went on strike March 2, and efforts by the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service to get the stalled talks restarted have foundered on the issue of violence.

Since the beginning of the strike, the company said there have been more than two dozen incidents of violence - incidents the company blames on the union - and it has refused to return to the bargaining table until a week without violence passes.

That period would have been reached on Monday but there were reports of two shooting incidents in Pennsylvania.

The union insists it neither condones nor is responsible for the violence and has released its own list of picket line incidents it blames on the company.

Williams' ''sense of Congress'' resolution has no legal force but could heighten pressure on the two sides to resume talks. It urges the resumption of talks under the auspices of the mediation and conciliation service and the secretary of labor.

The union immediately welcomed the Williams initiative.

''Obviosuly we welcome the involvement of the U.S. Congress,'' said union spokesman Nick Nichols. ''We are ready to return to the bargaining table at any time. That has been our position since the beginning.''

Nichols also said the union was ''encouraged by the very sizable number of members of the House cosponsoring the resolution, and we hope the company will heed the call.''

JERUSALEM (APRIL 26) UPI - Israel's highest court Thursday ordered the eviction of 150 militant Jewish settlers who occupied a huge Christian Quarter house and disrupted the fragile status quo in Jerusalem's Old City.

The three-judge panel ruled, however, that 20 representatives of the Panamanian company SBC could remain in the 72-room building, owned by the Greek Orthodox Church, until a lower court decides on the question of legal occupancy.

Lawyers for SBC, which purchased a sublease on the house from a former tenant, said a lower court eviction order against the settlers did not apply to the Pananamian firm, an argument accepted by the High Court of Justice. But the judges ordered the settlers, who are mostly religious militants, to be out of the house by noon Tuesday.

The 20 Panamanian representatives will be allowed to stay to keep up the sprawling house, known as St. John's Hospice. The building is located in the center of the Christian Quarter near the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, one of the holiest sites in Christianity.

Greek Orthodox Church leaders at the court said they were pleased with the decision, but still planned to close all holy sites for 24 hours beginning at 9 a.m. Friday as a protest against the Panamanian company's occupation.

Lawyers for the church said they did not recognize the legal existence of the Panamanian company, calling it a front for the settlers.

''It's not completely good, but it's good,'' one bishop said of the ruling.

Hanan Porat, a right-wing Parliament member and leader of the Gush Emunim settler movement, said he was pleased the court had decided not to follow the advice of the attorney general to evict everyone.

''We will continue with the legal process so the building remains in our possession,'' he told reporters outside the court.

SBC lawyer Dan Avi Yitzhak said 20 settlers would remain in the building at the company's expense.

''Under the court order, we have possession and we will have the keys,'' he said.

The presence of the 150 settlers has provoked disturbances and drawn sharp criticism within Israel and from outside. Jerusalem Mayor Teddy Kollek and American Jewish leaders have criticized the occupation of the house, which occurred April 11, during the Christian Holy Week.

Since the Jewish families took over, paramilitary border police and riot police have been stationed outside St. John's Hospice.

The Panamanian company bought the lease from the former tenant, Martyros Matossian, an Armenian whose family says it was tricked into making a deal and thought the new tenants would be Christians. Matossian, who reportedly is abroad, received $1.5 million, family members said.

The daily Ha'aretz newspaper reported Thursday that Moshe Arad, the Israeli ambassador to the United States, warned Israeli officials that the settlers' actions were harming Israel.

''The settlement in the Christian Quarter is causing unprecedented damage to the Israeli status in the United States and is threatening our most important asset - Jerusalem,'' Arad said in a cable.

While affirming the right of Jews to live anywhere in Jerusalem, Israeli officials have maintained the issue is strictly a legal matter and should be decided by the court.

The controversy surrounding the house was further fueled by the the revelation Sunday that the Construction and Housing Ministry contributed $1.8 million toward purchasing the lease.

GENEVA (APRIL 26) UPI - American newspaper columnist William Pfaff has been awarded Geneva's annual Jean-Jacques Rousseau literary prize for 1990 for his book predicting the current changes in Europe, city officials announced Thursday.

Jury chairman Pierre Chaunu praised Pfaff's ''extraordinary foresight'' in writing ''Barbarian Sentiments: How the American Century Ends.'' Pfaff, who lives in Paris, writes a column that is syndicated by the Los Angeles Times to 60 newspapers in the United States and abroad.

The prize is worth $34,000 at the current exchange rate.

A historian as well as newspaper writer, Pfaff's book more than one year ago predicted the current changes in Eastern and Western Europe, including early German reunification. He said that Europe as a whole will probably become the richest and productive region of the industrialized world but also be dangerous.

Pfaff described U.S. and Soviet interventionist superpower polices as having been disastrous with the two nations being forced to brake ideological confrontation.

WASHINGTON (APRIL 26) UPI - Motorists may be overpaying as much as $150 million a year for gasoline with octane that is lower than the figures posted on service station pumps, a report to Congress said Thursday.

Because of staff and budget cuts, the two federal agencies responsible for monitoring and enforcing octane rules have not done their jobs, and the extent of the mislabeling is unknown but could be significant, according to the report, prepared by the General Accounting Office, the investigative arm of Congress.

Gas generally is sold at three different octane ratings - 87, 89 and 91 or above - with prices tied to the octane level. As gasoline is refined and transported through a complex distribution system to retail stations, octane can be accidentally or intentionally mislabeled, the GAO said.

As a result, motorists may be getting lower-level octane than they expect and may experience reduced engine efficiency, engine damage, or increased emissions, the report said.

The GAO report was based on surveys conducted between 1979 and 1987 by the Motor Vehicle Manufacturers Association, on sample results from 11 of the 20 states that test octane and on spot checks in four states that do not conduct tests.

The manufacturers' survey revealed that over nine percent of the gas sampled was mislabeled by more than one-half point below the posted octane rating. If the nine percent figure is applied to 1988 gasoline sales, the GAO estimated, "consumers could have paid about $150 million for octane they did not receive."

Results from the states that conduct their own tests indicated mislabeling of less than two percent, but the GAO's one-time tests conducted in states without testing programs "revealed that mislabeling ranged from 22 percent to 53 percent."

A 1978 law required the posting of accurate octane ratings and directed the Environmental Protection Agency to test the ratings and the Federal Trade Commission to enforce compliance with the law.

But the agencies have not carried out their responsibilities and "there are no federal controls to ensure that gasoline octane postings are accurate," the GAO said.

The report noted the incentive to mislabel octane ratings is great: "The difference in price at the wholesale level of the distribution system between regular and premium unleaded is about 13 cents per gallon, while at the retail level the difference may be up to 20 cents per gallon."

The mislabeling means "a shell game for consumers," said Rep. Charles Schumer, D-N.Y., who released the report along with Rep. Phil Sharp, D-Ind. "In order to get what they are willing to pay for, in order to protect their car in the manner they have chosen, consumers have to guess under which shell they will find the truth," Schumer said.

PARIS (APRIL 26) UPI - A year-long battle for control of the world's largest luxury goods conglomerate ended Thursday with the resignation of Henri Racamier as head of the Louis Vuitton luggage maker after a Paris appeals court refused to annul a stock warrant issue.

The warrants, representing 12 percent of Louis Vuitton Moet Hennessy's capital, allowed the group's president, Bernard Arnault, to take control of the conglomerate, which last year earned $508 million on sales of $3.43 billion.

In many ways the battle for control of the company, whose brands include Moet et Chandon and Dom Perignon champagnes, Christian Dior perfumes and Vuitton leather bags, came to symbolize the passing of the old generation of French businessmen and the emergence of a new, more aggressive French entrepreneur.

Racamier, 77 years old and patriarchal by nature, is a sharp contrast to the abrasive 40-year-old Arnault, whose stunning rise to the top is more frequently associated with American than European businessmen.

"We can only accept this decision, which eliminates the last obstacle that prevented Bernard Arnault from obtaining the objective he has pursued for over a year - to eliminate the current directors of the Louis Vuitton group so he can exercise total control," Racamier said in explaining his decision to step down.

The court case decided Thursday was brought by shareholders who questioned the legality of 1.4 million shares gained by exercising warrants that were issued by Moet Hennessy in 1987 just before the merger with Vuitton that created the current group. Louis Vuitton is 98 percent owned by the parent group.

The shareholders argued that the issue was to have been placed internationally, but by early 1988 Arnault had acquired 11.4 percent of it giving the entrepeneur the opportunity to take control of the group with 44 percent of the capital and 35 percent of the voting rights. The other main shareholders in the group are the Moet Hennessy and Vuitton families.

An earlier decision on the case handed down by a Paris commercial court in November 1989 ruled that the warrants in question had been illegally issued, but the court refused to cancel it as stockholders had requested. It was that decision that was upheld today and led to Racamier's resignation.

Ironically, Arnault entered Moet Chandon Louis Vuitton's capital at the request of Racamier, who was unhappy with his relationship with Alain Chevalier, the former head of the group.

Arnault eventually had 30 percent of the conglomerate through the Jacques Rober holding company that he owned with the British drinks group Guiness PLC. But Racamier soon realized that Arnault wanted to take over the company, and the battle that finally ended Thursday was under way. Arnault left France in 1981 when the Socialist government came to power and moved to Florida to develop housing projects.

(APRIL 26) UPI - Defense Secretary Cheney said this morning he trimmed six major Pentagon aircraft programs. He says he'll save about 17-BILLION dollars through fiscal 1994 and another 18-BILLION from 1995 to '97. Cheney reduced the B-2 stealth bomber program to 75 planes. He also reduced the number of the C12 planes the Pentagon will buy and delayed the next generation of Air Force fighter planes. As copies of his statement were made available at the Pentagon... Cheney headed to Capitol Hill to outline his decisions to the House and Senate Armed Service committees.

Red Cross officials met with a Moslem militia leader in Lebanon today. The meeting came amid intensified efforts by the humanitarian agency to win freedom for two Swiss Red Cross employees. The Red Cross officials met with the chief of the pro-Palestinian People Liberation Army militia. After the meeting, the Red Cross representative in Lebanon, Michel de Four said he's optimistic about the release.

(APRIL 26) UPI - A report released today says an increasing number of children risk growing up illiterate and unhealthy- especially children who are poor and from single-parent households. The National Commission on Children says its report should be a warning to the nation. It recommends the country do more to make sure children receive adequate parental attention... or attention from other adults.

The Bush administration has introduced a bill to crack down on drug companies that abuse the government's drug-approval process. The measure would bar convicted drug companies from applying for future product approvals. The bill follows a scandal at the Food and Drug Administration. Four F-D-A officials have pleaded guilty to taking bribes and speeding up the application process for several generic companies.

ATLANTA (APRIL 26) UPI - Cigarette advertising should be banned or more closely regulated because it throws up a smoke screen clouding government health warnings, federal health officials said Thursday.

The national Centers for Disease Control's proposal to launch a new government offensive against cigarette advertising comes on the heels of an attack by Health and Human Services Secretary Louis Sullivan, who criticized tobacco companies for using commercials to target blacks and working women.

"A ban is certainly a lot more feasible now than it used to be," said Ronald Davis, director of the CDC's office on smoking and health and author of the report. "There's no question Congress has the authority to ban or restrict advertising of an inherently dangerous product."

Tobacco industry officials immediately criticized the report. "To call for a ban on advertising completely subverts the entire meaning of the First Amendment as it applies to commercial speech," said Walker Merryman, vice president of The Tobacco Institute, a Washington lobbying group.

The CDC proposal is based on a study that found tobacco companies spent $3.27 billion in 1988 to advertise and promote cigarettes. Tobacco commercials encourage children and teenagers to experiment with cigarettes keep current smokers from quitting, prompt former smokers to begin smoking again and increase smokers' daily consumption, the CDC said.

Advertising also "may contribute to the perception that smoking is less hazardous, more prevalent and more socially acceptable than it is," the report said.

Davis outlined seven options in the report to battle the tobacco industry's big-budget approach to selling cigarettes, beginning with funding for a substantial "counteradvertising" campaign.

"We would have to have a budget that could combat (tobacco advertising)," said Rose Mary Romano, director of public information for the CDC. "It would have to be a substantial budget to be effective."

Romano said federal or state programs could be patterned after a California anti-smoking campaign funded by an excise tax on cigarettes. The tax provided $14 million last year for anti-smoking advertising, she said.

The report also proposed different levels of advertising regulation, including limiting ads to only words and pictures of the product, eliminating the tax deduction for cigarette advertising expenditures and banning all tobacco advertising and promotion.

The Tobacco Institute's vice president said most smokers have heard the warnings about cigarettes and have chosen to continue smoking. "People at the CDC don't like the decision (smokers) have made," Merryman said. "These officials apparently feel they can tell people what choice to make."

"Those warnings make billions of impressions every year" and are paid for by cigarette companies, Merryman added, referring to the Surgeon General's warning that by law must be carried on all cigarette advertising.

Davis said he also supports Sullivan's February statement that it is immoral to advertise a product proven deadly. Merryman maintained tobacco industry research shows "there is no disease exclusive to smokers." "I don't think it's appropriate to say smoking causes any disease," he said.

EAST BERLIN (APRIL 26) UPI - Thousands of East Germans, panicky over a West German plan for monetary unification, lined up at banks Thursday and waited for up to two hours to reshuffle their accounts in a bid to protect their life savings.

Bank officials said customers were ''withdrawing sizeable amounts of their savings, then re-depositing them immediately in newly opened childrens' accounts.'' The residents apparently were trying to spread their money over several small accounts containing less than $2,367.

A West German proposal presented Monday would limit to $2,367 the amount of savings held in East German banks that could be converted on a one-to-one basis. The remainder would be converted at a rate of two East German marks to one West German mark.

Thousands of people began flocking to banks following the proposal, waiting for up to two hours in line in a last-ditch effort to salvage their savings. Scenes of near panic have been reported at some banks in East Berlin.

''Of course people are trying to make sure they come out ahead when the West German mark is introduced,'' said Kirsten Noack, 27, a hairdresser in East Berlin. ''They are scrambling to the banks because of insecurity and a feeling they could miss out when the pay day comes round."

In Bonn, officials of the West German Bundesbank did little to reassure East Germans Thursday. Karl-Otto Poehl, the president of bank, gave his full support to the monetary unification plan and warned East Germany against seeking to gain any better terms than Bonn has already offered.

''The Bundesbank could not passively accept the consequence of an overly broad expansion of the monies as the result of an overly generous exchange rate for savings,'' he told an annual convention of West German bankers.

Finance Minister Theodor Waigel, in his own speech to the bankers, urged a quick agreement for monetary union between the two governments.

''Every day that the monetary union is not implemented is more expensive because the economic decline in East Germany continues and the urgent necessity of investments remains,'' Waigel said.

The hightened concern about German monetary unification came as East Germany's Parliament debated the security aspects of German political reunification.

East Germany's social-democratic foreign minister told the Parliament in East Berlin that the former cfmmunist state would consider joining the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, but only if the Western military alliance gave up its ''old, cold-war doctrines.''

Foreign Minister Markus Meckel, in a parliamentary debate in East Berlin, said the issue of whether East Germany should join NATO is the most hotly debated topic in his ministry.

''In the next few months we have to develop views on what form a future European security could take,'' he said.

Meckel, who also leads the Social Democratic Party, said ''the membership of NATO is not our goal. We will only consider membership in a NATO which rids itself of old, cold-war doctrines.''

In its first official statement earlier this month, the new conservative-led East German government said a reunited Germany should be part of NATO but that Soviet troops should be allowed to remain in what is now East Germany.

The government said this should only be a temporary solution, pending the formation of a ''European security system.''

Meckel said Thursday that East Germany wanted to remain loyal to its Warsaw Pact allies. ''We shall have to talk with the Soviet Union and find out precisely what sort of things would satisfy their security concerns,'' he said.

Rainer Eppelmann, a former peace activist who is minister for defense and disarmament, said the East German army is well on its way to becoming a true people's army.

He said several officers still in the ranks today played a role in preventing a government crackdown on protestors last fall that could have become a massacre rivalling the killing of students by Chinese authorities last year.

''The officers who prevented this were also members of the Communist Party - I never said they were all bad,'' he said.

BRIDGEPORT, CT (APRIL 26) UPI - The reputed head of the Gambino organized crime family's Connecticut faction wants to withdraw his guilty pleas to conspiracy and tax evasion charges, court officials said Thursday.

A lawyer for Anthony Megale, 36, of Stamford, filed a motion Wednesday in U.S. District Court asking Judge T.F. Gilroy Daly to allow Megale to withdraw last week's guilty pleas and go to trial in connection with alleged sports betting operations in Fairfield County and Port Chester, N.Y.

Daly has not yet ruled on the motion, filed by attorney Paul Victor of New York City, a court clerk said.

Victor accused federal prosecutors of violating a plea bargain agreement by linking Megale in court to other alleged organized crime activities and to John Gotti, reputed nationwide head of the Gambino crime family, the clerk said.

Under federal law, a withdrawal of a plea was only allowed before sentencing and after a showing of ''fair and just reason,'' officials said.

U.S. Attorney Stanley A. Twardy Jr. said his office would fight Megale's request to withdraw the pleas.

During court proceedings last week, Assistant U.S. Attorney Robert Devlin said if the case went to trial he would present as evidence tape-recorded conversations in which Aurelio Carmolingo, a co-defendant in the case, said Megale was ''the power'' and was ''tied up with John Gotti from New York.''

Prosecutors told Daly the government also had proof Megale was a party to a so-called sit-down at the Marquess Cafe in Bridgeport in which a debtor, identified as Andrea Dora, was warned he had 60 days to pay back a $35,000 loan plus $5,000.

The sit-down was preceded by a recorded conversation in which two co-defendants in the case referred to ''poking out the debtor's eyeballs, breaking his hands and pulling his toenails out,'' prosecutors said.

Victor claimed this characterization of Megale's role had rendered the plea ''fundamentally unfair.''

''This mischaracterization of the defendant's role has resulted in a miscarriage of justice,'' Victor said.

In his motion, Victor contended that Megale's plea under the federal Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act was limited to two acts of gambling in Greenwich and Bridgeport.

Victor said his client made it clear to the government that he would not plead guilty to any of the other allegations of the indictment, including that the alleged crimes ''involved the Gambino family of La Cosa Nostra, organized crime or any of the other code references to such organizations.''

Megale, who was free on $50,000 bond, was scheduled to be sentenced June 19. He faced up to 30 years in prison and $750,000 in fines, officials said.

Under a plea bargain agreement, Megale also had agreed to pay all the back taxes he allegedly owed the government between 1984 and 1988, including $18,000 for 1987 and $36,000 for 1988.

In pleading guilty on Apr. 17, Megale had admitted to receiving more than $200,000 of taxable income in 1987 and 1988 for which he did not file tax returns, prosecutors said.

The indictment returned against Megale and 21 others in December 1989 charged he headed the Gambino operation in illegal gambling and loansharking in Connecticut and in Port Chester, N.Y.

KALAPANA, HI (APRIL 26) UPI - Searing lava from Kilauea Volcano flowed across a street in an embattled housing area on the island of Hawaii Thursday and burned two homes, bringing the total destroyed in the seven-year-long eruption to 100, officials said.

The lava broke out about 400 feet behind the flow front and moved quickly over a slightly downslope area of Duff Street in Kalapana Gardens, Hawaii County Civil Defense Deputy Administrator Bruce Butts said.

''The lava moved in a thin sheet and covered about 150-to-200 feet between 4 a.m. and 5 a.m. and reached to about 50 feet from two homes,'' Butts said.

The lava then slowed, but it still covered 50 feet in the next 50 minutes to send a house at the corner of Duff and Kalapana Avenue up in flames, he said.

''At 6:10 a-m, a second house was destroyed. The two structures are the 99th and 100th incinerated since the eruption began in January 1983,'' Butts said.

They are also the 19th and 20th homes to burn to the ground in the rural settlement in nine days.

A second flow front in the area of the intersection of Highway 137, also known as Old Government Road, and Kalapana Avenue was still moving slowly, Butt said.

Lava was filling a slight depression and once that was done, it would continue its relentless flow toward four or five houses within 100 feet of the front, he said.

Hawaii County Mayor Larry Tanimoto met with Gov. John Waihee Wednesday afternoon and made a formal plea for disaster relief for the area.

Federal aide for the stricken area will not be authorized unless the governor first issues a disaster declaration.

Late Wednesday, Kim ceased to use the word evacuation to describe the official orders to residents to move from the impacted area.

The right word is ''relocated, realistically, for these folks. Most of them are not going back, ever,'' he said.

In the first update on damage estimates in six months, Kim said the total was now above $25 million and ''growing day-by-day.''

SACRAMENTO, CA (APRIL 26) UPI - Former Sen. Joseph Montoya, the first California legislator convicted of corruption in 36 years, was sentenced Thursday to 6 1/2 years in federal prison.

He also was fined $32,000 and ordered to pay restitution of $8,000 in campaign contributions and honorariums.

U.S. District Judge Milton Schwartz ordered him to surrender at noon June 29, and recommended that he be placed in the low-security camp at Lompoc to be near his family in Southern California.

Prosecutors said Montoya is likely to serve 95 percent of his sentence. He has said he will appeal.

Montoya was ensnared in a three-year FBI sting investigation aimed at exposing corruption at the Capitol. An undercover agent, posing as a businessman seeking special-interest legislation, was secretly videotaped handing the Whittier Democrat an envelope containing a $3,000 check.

Montoya, who will turn 51 next Monday, contended during his seven-week trial that the money was an honorarium, or speaking fee, for meeting with the ''businessman.''

But the jury agreed with prosecutors that the money actually was a bribe for helping with a bill. Montoya was convicted Feb. 2, and resigned shortly thereafter.

On the way to the courtroom Thursday, Montoya punched a United Press International photographer, causing a small cut over his right eye. Moments earlier, Montoya's wife, Pilar, had grabbed a flash cable attached to the camera of Dan Groshong. When Groshong resumed taking pictures with another camera, Montoya struck him.

The exposure of the sting investigation in the summer of 1988 sent chills through a Legislature that 20 years ago was considered a model for the rest of the nation.

Last week, it overwhelmingly passed legislation banning honorariums and limiting gifts, provided voters approve a ballot measure that would pave the way for a legislative pay raise.

The bill now is on the desk of Gov. George Deukmejian, awaiting his signature.

Montoya's conviction on seven counts of racketeering, extortion and money-laundering is the first of an elected state official arising from the sting.

Former Democratic Sen. Paul Carpenter, now a member of the tax-setting Board of Equalization, was indicted on racketeering and extortion charges arising from the sting last month. He is due to go on trial Aug. 13.

During the sting, undercover agents posing as Southern businessmen came to the Legislature with a plan to build a fish processing plant in Yolo County, west of Sacramento.

Giving legislators more than $80,000 in campaign contributions and honorariums, they won easy passage of bills in 1986 and 1988 that would give them cheap, state-backed financing.

The governor, who had been tipped off by agents, vetoed both bills.

The last time a California legislator was sent to prison in a corruption case was 1954, when Assembly Charles Lyon, a one-time Assembly speaker, was convicted of bribery in a liquor-license scandal.

WARSAW, POLAND (APRIL 26) UPI - Poland vowed Thursday its army will never be used against European nations and demanded that leadership of the Warsaw Pact, in Soviet hands since its founding, be rotated to other East Bloc generals.

In a major policy speech to Parliament outlining Poland's new independent policy toward Europe, Foreign Minister Krzysztof Skubiszewski said good relations with the Soviet Union will remain the pillar of Polish foreign policy - but stressed it must be based on the principle of partnership.

The foreign minister also said the Soviet Union's economic blockade against Lithuania would not bring ''any solution'' and reaffirmed Poland's support for the independence drive.

Skubiszewski noted the Solidarity government of Prime Minister Tadeusz Mazowiecki is attempting to regain full sovereignity for Poland, which for last 45 years was limited by Moscow.

Bronislaw Geremek, chairman of the Solidarity parliamentary caucus, said Polish independence is now a fact. ''It was in the interest of the country '' he said.

In a move to further shake off Soviet domination over the military alliance of which Poland is a key member, Skubiszewski proposed a rotation of East Bloc military officials to lead it, instead of having command always reside with Moscow.

''We should stop having the practice under which the post of the Soviet Defense Minister guarantees the job of the commander-in-chief of the Warsaw Pact and a rotation should be introduced of the high jobs and other functions based on the equal rights,'' Skubiszewski said.

Soviet generals have been commanders of the Warsaw Pact since its formation in 1955 following the creation of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization military alliance in 1954.

Skubiszewski said Polish military doctrine will no longer permit Polish troops to be used by the Warsaw Pact outside Poland. During communist rule Poland agreed to the use of its troops in the Soviet-led invasion against Czechoslovakia in 1968.

''The Polish army does not have and will not have any external tasks and will be only used for the defense of our state against a foreign aggressor '' he said, to the applause of deputies.

Skubiszewski urged the other nations to act with caution in regard to the Lithuania crisis and advised the Kremlin to settle the issue by opening talks. Lithuania declared its independence from Moscow on March 11.

''The key to the solution of the problem lies in the opening of the talks between Vilnius and Moscow,'' Skubiszewski said.

He predicted Moscow's economic blockade against Lithuania will not bring ''any solution'' and reiterated once more Poland's support for Lithuania.

''The aspiration of the Lithuanian nation must be fulfilled,'' he said, again drawing applause from the deputies.

Skubiszewski said ''there was a chance for reconcilation between Poland and Germany'' in the scheduled talks on German unification. The talks, dubbed ''two-plus-four,'' will be between of World War II victors - the United States, Britain, France and the Soviet Union - and the two Germanys. Poland also has been allowed to participate in discussions of its borders with Germany.

Noting that some 6 million Poles died at German hands during World War II, he said a peace treaty should be initialed between Poland, East Germany and West Germany guaranteeing the Polish Western border on the Oder and Neisse rivers. The treaty would later be signed by a united Germany.

Geremek admitted that 8.5 million Germans were forcibly moved from areas gained by Poland as the result of the 1945 Potsdam agreement, but no apolgy will be made by Poland.

At the same time 3 million Poles living in the former eastern Polish territories taken over by the Soviet Union had to be resettled in the West and their ordeal could be compared with the sufferings of the Germans.

''They (the Germans) paid the fault of the (Nazi) system,'' he said. ''We ask you for forgiveness for the sufferings of the people.''

Geremek, replying to West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl's demand for an apology, said Poland will not apologize to Germany.

''Those who have demanded apologies from us, we ask them for their own responsibility for what was the shame of the 20th century,'' Geremek said in reference to the Nazi atrocities.

NORFOLK, VA (APRIL 26) UPI - For the first time since an April 1989 explosion killed 47 sailors aboard the battleship USS Iowa, the Navy on Thursday allowed reporters to inspect the gun turret where the fiery blast occurred.

The No. 2 turret became a six-level inferno the day of the explosion, which took place during an exercise off Puerto Rico as sailors were loading one of its powerful 16-inch guns.

Despite the thunderous series of blasts that rocked the World War II battleship, Navy officials Thursday said the gun itself held up well.

The massive weapon, encased in steel, bears little evidence of the disaster. A metal wall that was around the powder hoist, however, no longer remains.

''There wasn't that much damage to the gun when you come right down to it '' Cmdr. Bob Kissinger, the Iowa's weapons officer, told reporters during a shipboard tour at Norfolk Naval Station.

The Navy at one time planned to spend an estimated $12 million to fully repair the No. 2. But earlier this year, extensive repairs were halted after federal officials indicated the Iowa and a sister battleship, the USS New Jersey, would be mothballed.

No formal announcement has been made, but the Iowa is expected to be retired this fall at the end of the current fiscal year.

If the Iowa were not being decommissioned, Kissinger said the No. 2 turret's three guns could all have been ready to fire by June 6, when repairs are to be completed at Norfolk Naval Shipyard in Portsmouth.

Kissinger estimated the gun turret is at about 50 to 60 percent of its capability. The middle gun can tilt, but not fire, and some powder hoists need work.

Since the Iowa was recommissioned in 1984 under the Reagan administration, it shot more than 2,000 rounds from its 16-inch guns, said Lt. Cmdr. Brad Goforth. The guns can hurl projectiles more than 20 miles.

The gun captain in the No. 2 turret was Gunner's Mate Clayton Hartwig. In its inquiry into the explosion, the Navy depicted the 24-year-old petty officer as as suicidal, and said he likely caused the explosion.

Hartwig's family and a House Armed Services Committee panel have strongly challenged the finding.

Critics of the Navy's investigation say the other sailors would have seen Hartwig slip a detonating device between the powder bags and stopped him from committing sabotage.

Five powder bags were being loaded inside the gun when the blast occurred, killing 47 sailors almost instantly, blowing open bulkheads and starting a fire that roared through the turret.

The battleship does not have an automatic sprinkler system, and Kissinger credited sailors for quickly activating sprinklers to prevent further blasts.

MOSCOW (APRIL 26) UPI - The Soviet Union held a 24-hour telethon on the fourth anniversary of the Chernobyl nuclear accident Thursday to raise money for health care and to evacuate a quarter-million people still living in heavily contaminated areas.

The telecast combined haunting footage of the suffering of radiation victims and teary-eyed schoolchildren describing their health problems with music and dance performances and pleas for contributions.

The broadcast said nearly 4 million people still live in areas contaminated by the April 26, 1986, accident and as many as 260,000 should be evacuated urgently from the worst radioactive zones. An estimated 15,000 need medical care, it said.

The Soviet news agency Tass said the program had raised 22.3 million rubles, or $35.7 million, from Soviet donors in the first 12 hours. The largest donation was from the Soviet Peace Fund, which organized the broadcast.

A teenage boy was shown donating a diamond ring that he said was a family heirloom and a group of schoolchildren gave 380 rubles, or $608, collected in a box for children in the contaminated zone.

Tass said foreign donations totaling $510,000 had also come in, including $25,000 from the Rev. Robert Shuller, an American televangelist and pastor of the Crystal Cathedral in Garden Grove, Calif.

Portions of the broadcast were carried on Cable News Network in the United States and Sky Television in Great Britain, which also gave telephone numbers for Soviet embassies that would accept donations.

In what was the world's worst nuclear power accident, a turbine test at the Chernobyl nuclear power plant triggered a series of explosions and fires April 26, 1986, that caused 31 deaths and spread radiation nearly around the world.

More than 135,000 people were permanently resettled from a 19-mile zone around the Chernobyl plant in the Ukraine, about 600 miles southwest of Moscow and 80 miles northwest of Kiev.

The damaged reactor was encased in a concrete sarcophagus nearly 50 feet thick and 197 feet high. Other reactors at the plant have continued to function.

Wide areas of the Ukraine, Byelorussia and the Russian republic were contaminated by the fallout, with estimates that one-fifth of the arable land in Byelorussia was rendered unusable because of the contamination.

The Soviet authorities have been criticized recently for not doing enough to help victims of Chernobyl and for allowing so many people to remain in contaminated areas.

In addition to showing abandoned buildings near the damaged nuclear plant, the telethon broadcast pictures from the area showing monitors registering dangerous radiation in front of still occupied schools and homes.

Workers who helped in cleanup and evacuation efforts at the plant in the Ukraine have formed a ''union of the irradiated'' to demand better benefits and radiation patients held a hunger strike recently to push for better health care.

On Wednesday the Supreme Soviet, or Parliament, approved a 16 billion ruble, or $25.6 billion, three-year plan to resettle 180,000 to 200,000 people still in the area and increase health care and other benefits for those affected by the accident.

''The Chernobyl accident spawned a syndrome that will long remain in the consciousness of many people,'' Prime Minister Nikolai Ryzhkov said. ''Sixteen billion rubles is not enough.''

WASHINGTON (APRIL 26) UPI - Edward Rowny, for two decades a major figure in U.S. arms control negotiations, resigned Thursday as a special adviser to President Bush amid reports he was skeptical about the rush to reach a new superpower accord.

In announcing that Bush had accepted the resignation effective June 30, White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said that Rowny, a well-known hard-liner, had asked him to report that Rowny had ''no ulterior motive'' in quitting and ''no disagreements'' with current talks on a Strategic Arms Reduction Treaty.

Fitzwater noted that Rowny, 73, had been involved in arms negotiations for 17 years and has been serving as an adviser to both Bush and Secretary of State James Baker.

''He has served our country well,'' said Fitzwater. He said that Rowny submitted his resignation April 18 and asked that it be announced Thursday.

There have been reports that Rowny disagreed with the accelerated effort to achieve an agreement with the Soviet Union on cutting back the superpowers' long-range nuclear missile arsenals.

But Fitzwater told reporters, ''He assured me there are no differences on arms control.'' Rowny, he added, has ''been a key player in all negotiations.''

Rowny is ''outspoken and has always given straight advice,'' the spokesman said, describing the retired Army general as a ''team player.''

Rowny was on the arms control delegation early in the Carter administration, but quit to lead opposition to ratification of SALT II, the strategic arms limitation treaty that the Senate refused to ratify.

He returned to government as a chief arms negotiator for President Reagan, but his role was sharply reduced in the second Reagan term as the administration sought to finish the 1987 Intermediate Nuclear Forces Treaty and move toward broader accords with Moscow.

Fitzwater said Rowny continued in the role of ''special adviser because of his expertise'' and ''lots of years of experience.''

Rowny will still be on the job when Bush and Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev are scheduled to hold their second summit May 30-June 3. The initialing of a preliminary startegic arms pact is still considered a possibility at that time.

On leaving government, Rowny is to become a visiting professor at George Washington University and will serve with the Center for Strategic Studies and on the board of the University of Maryland.

CHICAGO (APRIL 26) UPI - A sharp rally in soybean meal supported the entire soybean complex Thursday on the Chicago Board of Trade and, to a lesser extent, carried over to the grains.

Soybeans and meal were sharply higher at the close. Several contract highs were established in active trading dominated by professionals and commission houses.

Most of the buying in the soy complex was attributed to concern over unseasonably warm temperatures in the Midwest and higher basis levels in Brazil. Rumors continued of possible Soviet interest in buying soybean meal.

Corn was moderately higher at the final bell, mostly on spillover from the rally in soybeans. Speculative buying also supported corn values.

May wheat was fractionally lower but new-crop wheat ended the day with moderate gains.

Favorable weather conditions across much of the Midwest kept the market on the defensive.

Country movement was light.

At the close, corn was up 2 to 2 3/4, soybeans up 14 to 19 1/4, wheat up 2 3/4 to down 1 and oats up 1 to 1 1/2.

WASHINGTON (APRIL 26) UPI - A White House spokesman urged Congress Thursday to ''consider the consequences'' when it votes on seemingly symbolic measures - like one that has angered the Arab world by recognizing Jersualem as the capital of Israel.

The Jerusalem resolution, adopted by an overwhelming vote in the House, prompted warnings that attempts to win freedom for the remaining seven Americans held hostage in Lebanon could be setback.

Asked about the resolution, White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said: ''Our only comment is that Congress needs to consider their resolutions more seriously than in the past. Some can have unintended consequences. They ought to consider it (the resolution) more than having 'daisy months'.''

In referring to ''daisy months'' he apparently was alluding to the congressional practice of honoring special causes by proclaiming special months, weeks or days.

Hussein Musawi, leader of the Islamic Amal in Beirut, told the Voice of People radio that Washington responded to the release Sunday of U.S. hostage Robert Polhill with ''proof of bad intention since the U.S. House of Representatives adopted a resolution recognizing Jerusalem as Israel's capital.''

The United States officially recognizes Tel Aviv as the capital of Israel and the congressional resolution, which also was approved by the Senate, is of symbolic value only.

NEW YORK (APRIL 26) UPI - Keith Mondello, the accused ringleader in a Brooklyn racial slaying, watched in horror as his friend Joseph Fama pointed a gun at a black teenager and fired three times at close range, a homicide detective testified Thursday.

In the dual murder trial in state Supreme Court in Brooklyn, Detective Darcy Callahan read from a statement taken from Mondello the afternoon after 16-year-old Yusuf Hawkins was shot Aug. 23.

''He heard a shot to his left,'' said Callahan, reading from a statement. ''Then he observed Joseph Fama with a gun in his outstretched hand.

''He saw him fire three more shots from the gun. He saw the blue flash. He saw the black fall to the ground.''

Mondello, watching without expression, put his hands over his head and ran away from the scene of the slaying, Callahan said.

The alleged confession places Mondello, charged with second-degree murder, at the head of a pack of white youths that surrounded Hawkins and three black friends when they came to the predominantly white Bensonhurst neighborhood to look at a used car.

Fama is charged with being the triggerman in Hawkins's slaying that has inflamed racial tensions citywide and sparked a series of protests, some violent.

Both youths are being tried two separate juries. Mondello's statement was not heard by the Fama's jury, because by law written statements made by an accomplice cannot be used against an defendant in court.

Mondello's lawyer, Stephen Murphy, grilled Callahan, saying the statement was not in Mondello's handwriting and had been doctored by police.

But the detective insisted that the statment had been read and approved by Mondello.

''I asked him to read it out loud so that he understood it,'' he said. ''Then I had him sign each individual page.''

Wednesday, a second jailhouse snitch testified that Fama admitted shooting Hawkins.

Robert Russo, a convicted swindler with a long criminal career, also testified that Fama expected he would get out on bail and bragged he would ''go home to my window and pop them all.''

The prosecution in the Fama case is expected to rest Friday, while the last evidence against Mondello, was expected to be presented Thursday.

They are the first of eight young men to be tried in the case.

WASHINGTON (APRIL 26) UPI - Freed American hostage Robert Polhill, looking frail but happy, stepped off an Air Force jet on to U.S. soil Thursday, four days after his release from 39 months of captivity in Lebanon.

Polhill, who flew from Wiesbaden, West Germany, touched down at Andrews Air Force Base near Washington about 2:30 p.m. EDT. He waved and gave a thumbs-up gesture upon stepping off the sleek blue and white jet.

His was accompanied by his wife, Ferial, who held his arm as he was led to a black sedan waiting on the air strip's tarmac. Wearing a tan blazer and pullover sweater, Polhill smiled broadly but waved off questions from reporters assembled for his arrival.

As was planned, Polhill's arrival in the United States was low-key despite his three years and three months as a hostage of Moslem extremists in Lebanon. Joe Reap, a spokesman for the counterterrorism bureau of the State Department, said Polhill, 55, would be taken to Walter Reed Hospital in Washington for further medical tests.

Meanwhile, the U.S. hostage reception team flew out of Wiesbaden Thursday and the State Department task force in Washington has been disbanded, indicating another hostage release is not expected anytime soon.

''They can be put back in action very quickly,'' Reap said. ''We are still hopeful of more hostage releases.''

At the White House, press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said the United States had ''no independent observations'' from Syria or elsewhere that another hostage release might be imminent.

Fitzwater also offered a mild rebuke of Congress for House passage Wednesday of a controversial resolution recognizing Jerusalem as the capital of Israel. Without calling it a complication to efforts to free the hostages, he said passage of such symbolic measures ''can have unintended consequences.''

Fitzwater said Polhill probably will come to the White House next week, but no date has been set. Fitzwater said he did not expect President Bush to meet with Polhill at the hospital this week.

The former hostage, joking and in good spirits, apparently is recovering rapidly following his long captivity by Moslem extremists in Lebanon.

Polhill, Alann Steen, 51, and Jesse Turner, 42, all American professors at the U.S.-affiliated Beirut University College, were abducted Jan. 24, 1987 by gunmen disguised as police officers.

Also taken with the three American professors and released in October 1988 was Mithileshwar Singh, an Indian-born U.S. resident in his 60s and Beirut University College chairman of business studies.

Polhill, who was released in Beirut Sunday and flown Monday to an Air Force base in Wiesbaden used to care for and debrief hostages. He was interviewed by U.S. intelligence officials seeking to establish the pattern of kidnappings in Lebanon. An official said Polhill indicated willingness to talk but was concerned about endangering comrades still held hostage.

Polhill was released to Syrian hands by the Islamic Jihad for the Liberation of Palestine, the pro-Iranian Moslem fundamentalist group that kidnapped him and the other educators from Beirut University College.

Islamic Jihad for the Liberation of Palestine took responsibility for the kidnappings and said their captives would be freed only in exchange for the release of hundreds of Arabs jailed in Israel.

WASHINGTON (APRIL 26) UPI - Defense Secretary Dick Cheney, responding to reduced threats of war and congressional demands for less defense spending said Thursday he is cutting the B-2 stealth bomber program from 132 to 75 planes.

Cheney, disclosing a major review of aircraft programs, said orders for C-17 cargo plane will be reduced from 210 to 120, a new Navy attack plane will be cut back, and a new Air Force fighter and its Navy version will be stalled for two years.

His presentation on both sides of Capitol Hill was an attempt to finish plans for a 2 percent reduction in defense spending and to keep the Pentagon from being frozen out of the debate on its own 1991 budget as congressional calls intensify for deeper defense cuts.

While Cheney's presentations won praise, Chairman Les Aspin, D-Wis., of the House Armed Services Committee noted that scaling back programs may not be enough.

''I think it's very unlikely that we're going to do the kind of budget he's projecting,'' said Aspin.

Cheney said 75 stealth bombers, designed to escape radar detection, were enough for two wings of 30 each, plus spares for training, which he said were as few B-2s as could be built and still have a credible combat capability.

He said the Navy's A-12 program is being cut because the Marine Corps will not get the plane, and the estimate of 620 planes, instead of the planned 828, is based on there being 12 aircraft carriers. He emphasized, however, he has not decided to cut the 14-carrier fleet back to 12.

Cheney said production of the new Air Force advanced tactical fighter, the ATF, will not begin until 1996, two years later than planned, and the Navy version will not start till the year 2000, also two years late.

Because the Air Force of the future will be smaller, Cheney said, it is possible he will recommend in future budgets reducing orders for the ATF from the 750 now contemplated.

Cheney said for fiscal 1991 his cuts would save $2.4 billion, and through 1997 the total would be about $34 billion or $35 billion.

Congress is talking about cutting at least $6 billion in actual spending from the $303 billion Cheney has asked for. It is also considering cutting $20 billion or more in long-term spending authority from the nearly $307 billion in the original budget submission.

''If you think I've got troubles now, wait till Congress passes that kind of a budget mark for '91,'' said Cheney ''... The kinds of choices we're making here is to fit the president's spending profile.''

''If that spending profile on defense is going to be significantly lower, then I'm going to have to come back with even tougher calls than we've already made,'' said Cheney, who did not cancel any program among those reviewed so far.

The aircraft review was part of a larger study that included such items as the Strategic Defense Initiative, the new Seawolf SSN-21 attack submarine, a new Navy cruiser, and the Army's light helicopter.

Cheney expressed a concern that significantly deeper cuts will damage the nation's defense industrial base, telling Aspin's panel:

''I am worried that as we reduce the defense budget by the magnitude that's now being considered ... that we will in fact so shrink what we're doing that an awful lot of firms will get out of the business.''

He pleaded with the panel to remember that actions taken now will affect the kind of defenses the nation has in two and three decades - planes available to ''pilots not yet born and presidents not yet old enough to vote.''

Cheney acknowledged that reducing the orders of planes like the B-2 and the C-17 will drive up the unit costs.

Some $26 billion to $27 billion has been invested already in B-2 research and development for a total of 15 planes. The original cost of the entire program, research on 132 planes included, was about $75 billion, or about $580 million each.

A 75-plane B-2 program will cost about $800 million per plane, or $61 billion overall. The C-17 unit cost would rise from $190 million to about $250 million per plane.

Cheney's program envisions saving $14.3 billion on the B-2, with a total program cost of 61 billion.

WASHINGTON (APRIL 26) UPI - Here is a detailed look at Defense Secretary Dick Cheney's actions on four major Pentagon aircraft programs:

B-2 stealth bomber

Cheney cut the overall program from 132 planes at about $75 billion to 75 planes at $61 billion, a savings of $14.3 billion. Unit costs would rise from about $580 million per plane, counting the $26 billion or $27 billion already invested for research and the first 15 planes, to about $800 million per plane. The peak annual production rate will fall from 24 to 12 planes. The 1991 proposed purchase was cut from five to two.

The bat-winged bomber built in Southern California by the Northrop Corp., utilizes the flowing, non-angular lines of its shape, along with radar-absorbing composite materials, to evade radar detection. It is not entirely invisbile to radar, but is sufficiently so that it can weave its way through radar sites staying out of detection range to get to its assigned targets.

Unlike a missile, is recallable in time of crisis, making it a more stabilizing weapon. It can also be used to deliver conventional weaponry.

The figure of 75 was believed to be a bargaining position. The night before Cheney's testimony, a source said, his figure was 67.

Air Force C-17

The C-17 is a replacement for the aging C-141 cargo plane. It is designed to carry outsized cargoes, such as the huge M-1A1 tanks and large helicopters, that now can only be carried in the massive C-5A Galaxy. Its advantage is that it can land on shorter runways than the C-5A, making it more versitile in getting troops and materiel closer to the front lines.

The plane will be built by McDonnell Douglas of St. Louis, Mo.

The Pentagon originally thought it would buy 210 of the planes for almost $42 billion, but will save $11.9 billion with the reduced purchase. For fiscal 1991 the order is being cut back to two planes from the six originally sought.

Navy A-12

Designed as a replacement for the Vietnam-era A-6 Intruder, the A-12 relies heavily on stealth technology developed for the B-2 and its forerunner, the F-117A. It is a twin-engine two-man all-weather attack plane that would operate off aircraft carriers and be able to perform figher-bomber missions. It also could be nuclear capable.

The Navy had planned to buy 858 planes for a still-classified figure, but Cheney said the purchase was cut back to 620 to equip just 12 aircraft carriers with the planes and because the Pengagon decided that the Marine Corps does not need the plane.

The Air Force version of the plane is known as the Advanced Tactical Aircraft and it is intended to take over the deep attack mission now assigned the F-15E and the FB-111. Cheney decided to stop production of the ATA until sometime beyond 1997. It had been due to start in production in 1993.

Although the cost is classified, the A-12 by some accounts will cost about $60 billion.

The ATA is under develpment by McDonnell Douglas and General Dynamics.

Air Force ATF

The Advanced Tactical Fighter or ATF is the Air Force's next generation fighter, a replacement for the F-15. It also makes use of the stealth technology and is intended to counter improvement in Soviet aircraft and surface-to-air threats.

The size of the Air Force purchase was kept intact at 750 planes, but the production starting date of 1994 was pushed back until at least 1996 for the twin-engine plane with a supersonic cruising speed. Although the size of the purchase was kept intact, the peak production rate was sliced from 72 a year to 48 per year.

There is a Navy version of the plane on the drawing boards and its production start was slipped two years to the year 2000. The purchase was reduced from 618 planes to 546, with the peak production rate kept at 48 planes a year.

Northrop and McDonnell Douglas have teamed up for one version of the ATF and Lockheed and Boeing are providing another. Both versions are expected to fly later this year.

SLAUGHTER BEACH, DE (APRIL 26) UPI - The size of a crude oil spill off the Delaware coast was under dispute Thursday by state environmental officials and the oil company believed responsible.

Officials with Chevron USA said they believe only one barrel of oil, or about 42 gallons, spilled from their ship in the Delaware Bay Wednesday.

But Roger Lucio, a spokesman for the state Department of Natural Resources and Environmental Control, said the department estimated the size of the spill to be as much as 100 barrels, or about 4,200 gallons. A barrel of oil has about 42 gallons.

''Chevron contends they spilled one barrel, but it looks like there's more '' said Lucio. ''It could be minimized as the investigation goes on.''

Chevron spokesman Jack Galloway said the spill occurred as crude oil was being transferred from one internal tank on the Chervon Steamer to another. Galloway said an operational error caused the spill.

Lucio said the oil company first reported the spill to the state about 2:30 p.m. Wednesday. He said globs of oil ranging from 2 inches to 4 inches have washed ashore at Slaughter Beach over a 2 1/2-mile stretch of beach.

Workers with Guardian Environmental Service of Bear, Del., continued cleanup efforts Thursday.

State officials had not yet determined what, if any, environmental damage wascaused by the spill.

''One of the good things about this is that it happened three weeks before the migration of shore birds and horseshoe crabs,'' said Lucio. He said the impact of the spill would have been further complicated by the presence of the wildlife.

Chevron has agreed to pay for the cleanup, even though the company maintains it may not be responsible.

Lucio said tests were being conducted Thursday on the ship and on the oil that washed ashore to determine if the spilled oil is from the Chevron tanker.

NEW DELHI, INDIA (APRIL 26) UPI - The Foreign Ministry Thursday summoned the Australian ambassador for the second time this week and told the envoy that his government's plan to sell Pakistan 50 warplanes had dealt a ''negative'' blow to bilateral relations, a spokesman said.

The spokesman, who spoke on condition that he not be further identified, said Additional Secretary (East) Chandrashekhar Dasgupta informed Australian High Commissioner Graham Barton Feakes that the sale was a ''most unfortunate and regrettable decision, particularly in context of the current tension prevailing in the subcontinent.''

Dasgupta also said the deal involving 50 outdated Mirage-III jetfighters ''was not calculated to send a message of restraint to Pakistan.''

''The high commissioner was also told that this military sale would not contribute to the stablilization of the situation in the region, which is the stated aim of Australian policy,'' the spokesman said.

''Particularly in the context of the traditionally friendly bilateral and Commonwealth ties between India and Australia, the Australian decision to provide Mirage-III aircraft to Pakistan, especially at this juncture, ignoring the interests of peace and stability, is a negative development in Indo-Australian relations.''

The deal has created a diplomatic storm because it comes amid fears of a fourth war between New Delhi and Islamabad due to tensions over the disputed Himalayan region of Kashmir stoked by an uprising there by its Moslem majority for independence from India.

Feakes was summoned on Monday to the Foreign Ministry to hear an Indian complaint over the sale, which Australia has defended by contending the aircraft would help bring stability to South Asia and that the jets, which were built in the 1960s, are obsolete.

An official source said that it was unusual for an ambassador to be summoned to the Foreign Ministry more than once to discuss the same issue. He said India expressed ''regret and concern'' during the meeting Monday, while the high commissioner was told on Thursday that the sale could adversely effect relations.

He said the two calls to the Foreign Ministry were part of an effort to pressure Australia to either cancel the sale or at least delay it indefinitely.

In the Kashmir region, violence continued Thursday when a Moslem extremist posing as a patient shot dead a Hindu doctor in the town of Pulwana, 30 miles south of Srinagar, the state's summer capital, police said. They said the doctor was killed because he was suspected of being a police informer.

More than 250 people have been killed in the region since mid-January, when security forces fired at a group of protesters calling for self-determination for Kashmir, triggering a mass insurrection demanding independence.

In other developments, about 300 residents of the Srinagar localities of Batmaloo and Nowpura held separate protests during a brief break in a curfew. They were demanding the release of jailed male relatives in time to celebrate the feast Friday that marks the climax of the Islamic fasting month of Ramadan.

In New Delhi, leading human rights groups issued a report detailing alleged atrocities committed against Moslem residents by security forces, which are overwhelmingly comprised of Hindus from other parts of India.

The groups, whose representatives visited Srinagar from March 28 to May 3, said security personnel enraged at attacks by militants have often directed their anger at bypassers, a number of whom have been killed or injured in the reprisals.

They also detailed complaints by residents that paramilitary and military personnel had committed acts of theft, brutality and rape during searches of residential areas. The government has previously denied the allegations.

''The army is worse than the security forces. They should never be given the task of keeping the peace within the country,'' said V.M. Tarkunde, a former Supreme Court justice and a member of the People's Union for Civil Liberties.

CAPE CANAVERAL, FL (APRIL 26) UPI - Relieved ground controllers fixed a potentially serious communications glitch with the orbiting Hubble Space Telescope Thursday, with the Discovery astronauts sticking close by the satellite in case of additional problems.

Anxious engineers reoriented the 12-ton observatory after its critical science antennas failed to lock onto a NASA relay satellite as planned. When contact was finally established late in the day, controllers burst into applause.

''We have confirmation that we have achieved communication with the tracking and data relay satellite through the high-gain antenna system,'' NASA spokesman David Drachlis said.

It was the second straight day of drama for the $1.5 billion Hubble Space Telescope, launched Wednesday from Discovery in what shuttle co-pilot Charles Bolden's wife, Jackie, said was ''a little like birthing a baby.'' Bolden, commander Loren Shriver, 45, co-pilot Charles Bolden, 43, Steven Hawley, 38, Bruce McCandless, 52, and Kathryn Sullivan, 38, launched the telescope into a 380-mile-high orbit above Earth's obscuring atmosphere.

Since then, engineers at the Goddard Space Flight Center in Greenbelt, Md. have been carefully activating and testing its myriad electronic and mechanical systems in the early stages of an eight-month checkout procedure.

The work proceeded smoothly until 6:44 a.m. EDT Thursday, when controllers at Goddard attempted to use the telescope's two ''high-gain antennas'' for the first time to ''lock'' onto a NASA tracking and data relay satellite.

The telescope was unable to establish the crucial link, forcing ground controllers to utilize a low-speed radio system instead while they worked to pin down whether the telescope and its antennas were pointed in the wrong direction for some reason.

''Unfortunately, we don't have any easy system of executing a search and having it lock on,'' Albert Boggess, director of space telescope science verification, said by telephone from Goddard. ''It's kind of an unforgiving system. When it isn't right, we don't have a simple, straightforward way of fixing it.''

The space telescope was designed to beam science data back to Earth at 1 million bits per second, fast enough to transmit the contents of a 30-volume encyclopedia in 42 minutes.

The high-gain antenna link between the telescope and NASA's data relay satellite is crucial to the observatory's operation because, without it, images and other digital data gathered by Hubble's sensitive instruments cannot be relayed back to Earth.

After the initial attempt to establish high-speed communications failed, engineers sent commands reorienting the cylindrical telescope, returning it to the position it was in when launched from Discovery Wednesday.

Controllers then were able to precisely determine the telescope's exact orientation in space. They quickly discovered it was aimed some 6 degrees away from where it should have been pointed during the initial communication attempt.

The next major milestone for the telescope's checkout will come Friday when commands are sent to open a protective door allowing starlight to fall on the observatory's near-perfect 94.5-inch mirror for the first time.

The Discovery astronauts trailed the space telescope by less than 60 miles following pre-launch plans to stick close by for a possible rendezvous and spacewalk repair job in case the door fails to open on command at 12:27 p.m. Friday.

The astronauts spent the day Thursday conducting experiments, taking pictures of the blue Earth below and sightseeing from Discovery's record-high orbit, looking down at the Kennedy Space Center at the precise moment the crew of the next shuttle flight arrived for a practice countdown.

''The view from 330 nautical miles is absolutly spectacular,'' McCandless radioed mission control in Houston. ''You can very distinctly see the curvature and the spherical nature of the Earth. It's a really spectacular day up here.''

Space shuttles are typically launched into 180-mile-high orbits, but Discovery was fired to a record 380 statute miles up to minimize the effects of friction with the tenuous outer reaches of the atmosphere on the space telescope. Such ''drag'' could cause the observatory to slowly fall back to Earth.

''The amazing thing to us here on board is we have a perfect view of Lake Michigan,'' Shriver said as Discovery sailed over the Gulf of Mexico. ''It's like you could look out and touch it. You can see the entire eastern coastline here. Lake Erie and Lake Ontario. You can see Long Island.

''I'm sorry if we're boring you with this commentary, but the view is just so fantastic, we've got to tell somebody about it.''

The astronauts used a large format ''IMAX'' camera to shoot scenes of San Francisco and California, operated a protein crystal growth experiment and activated another designed by a high school student.

The shuttle fliers plan to wrap up their five-day mission with a touchdown Sunday at Edwards Air Force Base in California's Mojave Desert.

#90116u1774 04/26/1990 ~United Press International

JERUSALEM (APRIL 26) UPI - Labor leader Shimon Peres told President Chaim Herzog Thursday he had failed to form a coalition and opened the way for transitional Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir to try his hand at creating a new government.

Peres's telephone call to Herzog concluded more than six weeks of intense, often bewildering political haggling that ended in an even split in the 120-member Israeli Parliament divided between the Labor and Likud camps. Shamir, who will receive his mandate Friday to form a government, must woo at least one seat away from the Labor camp to gain majority approval of a Likud-led coalition.

Political analysts have said Peres's failure to form a government may foreshadow his last days as head of the center-left Labor Party and usher in former Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin as its next leader.

During a Labor Party meeting Thursday, Rabin hinted at the possibility Labor would enter a ''national unity'' coalition with Likud even if the right-wing party refused to agree to a U.S. plan for Israeli-Palestinian talks.

But, while it was not clear whether Shamir would invite Labor into his coalition, Rabin conditioned his willingness to join a Likud-Labor government on Likud's agreement to hold direct elections for prime minister within six months. Labor's main goal must be to block creation of a narrow right-wing government, which would be a disaster for Israel, said Rabin, an architect of Israel's peace initiative.

Rabin served as prime minister for nearly three years in the mid-1970s but was forced to resign after admitting he and his wife lied about the amount of money they kept in illicit bank accounts in Washington.

In the end, Peres's coalition efforts were shot down when Liberal faction leader Yitzhak Moda'i announced Wednesday that he would support Shamir's right-wing Likud Party. Peres said he was not disappointed and pledged to ''serve in any government that continues the peace process.''

''We are struggling for peace. This struggle will not stop for a moment,'' Peres told Army Radio Thursday. ''It will continue at full force because this is what is needed for the Jewish nation. ... Our problem is not the wideness or narrowness of the government, but rather the direction of the policies.''

Herzog first asked Peres to form Israel's next coalition last month, five days after Shamir's government fell March 15 during a vote of no confidence orchestrated by Labor. But Peres was forced to ask for an extension to his first 21-day mandate and was given 15 more days.

Eight hours before his second mandate expired, Peres called Herzog and thanked him ''for placing his trust in him. But because he failed to succeed in forming a government, he was returning the mandate to the president,'' Herzog's office said. Herzog then called Shamir and invited him to the president's residence Friday to receive the mandate to form the next government.

In a front-page commentary in Yediot Aharonot, journalist Nahum Barnea wrote that the Israeli exhaustion over the nearly two months of intense political bargaining is ''playing into his (Shamir's) favor.''

''It makes standpoints more flexible and shortens procedures,'' Barnea wrote. ''But together with this Shamir has a real problem of credibility.''

The 15-month-old Labor-Likud coalition collapsed March 13 over Israel's approach to the peace process. The collapse, which set up the no-confidence vote, was caused by Shamir's refusal to approve a U.S. format for holding talks with a Palestinian delegation.

Shamir and hardline members of his party objected to the inclusion of Palestinian deportees and East Jerusalem Arabs, fearing their participation would raise the issues of Israeli sovereignty over Jerusalem and the right of Palestinian refugees to return to their homes.

Since the collapse of the coalition, Israeli leaders have become almost totally preoccupied with coalition horsetrading. The backroom bargaining has alienated many Israelis and ignited a grassroots movement for electoral reform.

WASHINGTON (APRIL 26) UPI - Saying ''charity begins at home,'' Senate Democrats took aim Thursday at a bill to send $720 million in emergency aid to Panama and Nicaragua, seeking to shift some of the money from Panama to domestic uses.

''Our own people cry out for help,'' said Sen. Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., calling for a national debate on foreign aid priorities. ''I'm not saying there shouldn't be any foreign aid program. But we need a responsible foreign aid program.''

The aid for the new U.S.-backed governments in Central America is the centerpiece of a $2.3 billion supplemental spending bill adopted this week by the Senate Appropriations Committee that also includes money for a variety of uses at home ranging from food stamps to Hurricane Hugo relief.

The bill, like one passed this month by the House, provides the full $300 million sought by Bush for Nicaragua and $420 million of the $500 million the president wanted for Panama.

Administration officials have said the foreign aid figures are acceptable, if overdue, since they hoped to have the money Wednesday in time for Violetta Chamorro's inauguration as president of Nicaragua.

But Byrd, chairman of the Appropriations Committee, offered an amendment cutting aid to Panama by another $120 million and using the money to clean up Energy Department facilities, improve Indian housing, provide food for poor women and infants, and cope with natural disasters.

His voice often rising with emotion, Byrd said there is a ''growing cynicism'' about foreign aid as ''the chickens come home to roost'' after years of neglect of domestic problems by Republican administrations.

''We do not have to knee-jerk and say yes to any request sent up here by any administration,'' he said. ''Charity begins at home. ... My priority is the United States first.''

Byrd said the money being cut was not going for emergencies, pointing out it included $30 million to encourage tourism. And Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., warned of waste if Panama received so much money so quickly.

But Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz., noted that 23 Americans died in the invasion of Panama and said cutting the aid request could led to further instability.

''That will send a signal to dissident elements in Panama that the United States does not support the freely elected Panamanian government,'' he said, ''and will encourage elements within Panamanian society to disrupt that society, cause further unrest and ... risk American lives.''

Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., said Panama deserved the money because of the damage from the invasion. ''We have a special, unique obligation to the Panamanian people at this time in history,'' he said.

Byrd tried in committee Tuesday to make the same cut in aid to Panama and use the money for Eastern Europe and Chile, but was narrowly defeated.

At the White House, Assistant Secretary Bernard Aronson said the administration was ''encouraged'' the bill had made it to the Senate, but added, ''Time is wasting.''

''Both the new Panamanian democracy and Mrs. Chamorro need the assistance '' Aronson said.

However, although the administration accepted the foreign aid figures in the committee bill, it did object to a provision, not included by the House, that would allow Washington, D.C., to use its own money for abortions.

Bush last year vetoed the District of Columbia's appropriations bill because it contained the provision. Administration officials said a veto of the supplemental bill would be ''virtually certain'' if it contains similar language once it emerges from a conference with the House.

Another part of the bill that has met opposition from the White House would appropriate $10 million for an embassy in Lithuania in the event the United States decides it needs one in the breakaway Baltic republic.

In all, the bill provides $865 million in foreign aid, with smaller amounts going to Africa, the Caribbean and Soviet and Eastern European refugees.

Not included in that total is $400 million in housing loan guarantees for Soviet Jews settling in Israel. A committee report said the loans will not be used for housing in the Israel-occupied territories.

Most of the new appropriations would be offset by cuts in defense spending.

The bill also allows the Defense Department to make across-the-board cuts to make up for shortages in its payroll accounts created last year by the deficit reduction law, thereby preventing layoffs of thousands of servicemen.

WASHINGTON (APRIL 26) UPI - President Bush hailed the inauguration of Nicaraguan President Violeta Chamorro as ''a time to celebrate'' Wednesday even in the face of serious challenges confronting her transition to democratic rule.

Meeting at the White House, Bush and Venezuelan President Carlos Andres Perez welcomed Nicaragua's first democratic transfer of power one day earlier as evidence of a growing spread of freedom throughout the Western Hemisphere.

Although Perez declared that Latin America had ''become free of dictatorships,'' his talks with Bush at the start of a state visit produced agreement that Cuba remains a nettlesome holdout from the global trend.

At a formal arrival ceremony, held under a hot sun that felled several guests, Bush said that with the end Wednesday of a decade of Marxist-led Sandinista rule in Nicaragua, ''another nation has joined freedom's ranks.''

''For the people of all America, all the Americas, this is a time to celebrate,'' he said. ''More than that, it's a time to dedicate ourselves to the day, perhaps not so distant, when all the people of this hemisphere live in freedom and democracy.''

Perez, who has criticized U.S. policy in Central America and, like other Latin American leaders, opposed the invasion of Panama, said he wanted to ''express our joy at the new surge of democratization which is sweeping today's world.''

''I am certain, Mr. President, that we have come to the end of all solutions that fuel the historic lack of understanding existing between our people,'' he added.

After a working lunch with Secretary of State James Baker, Perez described the change in Nicaragua as ''a miracle'' and added, ''We must be very careful about nurturing this miracle.''

He said he was ''very encouraged'' by his talks with Bush and Baker and said he found them ''very receptive and very understanding as far as Nicaragua is concerned.''

Perez flew to Washington straight from Managua, where Chamorro took office Wednesday in a vivid display of lingering divisions as some of her own allies rebelled at her decision to retain Humberto Ortega, the brother of outgoing Sandinista President Daniel Ortega, as chief of staff of the armed forces.

While some U.S. officials privately expressed concern over that decision, Assistant Secretary of State Bernard Aronson asserted that ''it isn't up to the United States to determine the cabinet of any country, let along Nicaragua.''

Aronson told reporters Perez ''made it clear'' in his meeting with Bush ''that continued strong support for Mrs. Chamorro is needed'' as she struggles to consolidate her power and rebuild an economy ruined by civil war, failed policies and international sanctions.

''He's a realist about the challenges that are faced there,'' Aronson said of Perez, ''but I think he is optimistic, as we are, about the eventual outcome.''

As Bush met with Perez, his request for $300 million in emergency economic assistance for Nicaragua remained bogged down in the Senate, attached to a broad spending bill targeted for possible veto because of abortion provisions unrelated to the aid proposal.

Aronson said Perez reported on recent talks with Cuban President Fidel Castro, who has resisted the kind of reform sweeping Eastern Europe, ''and said that Latin American countries, Spain and others all recognize that change has to come to Cuba.''

But uneasy with some of the anti-Castro tactics used by the United States, including broadcasts by TV Marti, Perez also expressed concern ''that Cuba evolve in a peaceful way and not in a violent way as it changes inevitably '' Aronson added.

Bush praised Perez, whose country was part of the five-nation Contadora Group that sought a framework for peace in Central America, for his ''deep personal commitment to the advance of democracy'' and to a sometimes painful transition to a free-market economy in Venezuela.

''It isn't an easy path,'' he said, ''but we're convinced it is the only path to prosperity and better lives for all Venezuelans.''

MEXICO CITY (APRIL 26) UPI - Mexican President Carlos Salinas de Gortari, meeting with Vice President Dan Quayle Thursday, expressed ''his strong displeasure'' over the abduction and arrest of a Mexican doctor in the case of a murdered U.S. drug agent, the vice president said.

After a two-hour breakfast meeting with the Mexican president, Quayle also said he had assured the leader that the United States intended to respect Mexican sovereignty. ''We will not interfere with the sovereignty of Mexico or any nation,'' the vice president said.

But at the news conference after the session, Quayle also indicated that Salinas had not been satisfied with U.S. reassurances on the matter and disclosed that the Mexican had requested some new rules in the area.

''President Salinas expressed to me his strong displeasure with the Dr. Alvarez incident. Furthermore, he indicated that there should be new rules of understanding between Mexico and the United States on drug cooperation '' Quayle said.

The contentious discussion revolved around the April 3 arrest of Mexican Dr. Humberto Alvarez Machain, who was indicted along with 18 others in the 1985 torture-murder of U.S. Drug Enforcement Agent Enrique Camarena Salazar and his pilot.

Mexican officials want to know if Alvarez, a gynecologist, was kidnapped by bounty hunters working with renegade Los Angeles-based DEA agents. According to reports published in Mexico, the DEA paid abductors $50,000 to kidnap Alvarez in Guadalajara and spirit him to El Paso, Texas.

Quayle stated that he had assured Salinas ''there were no DEA agents in Mexico'' involved in the incident. But the vice president left open the question of whether U.S. officials may have paid others.

An administration official involved in the meeting said Salinas quite clearly expressed his ''unhappiness with certain aspects of the handling of this'' but stressed at the same time ''his hope, his desire, that this would not harm relations'' between the neighbors.

But at the same time, the official acknowledged, ''Clearly this is a bump in the road.''

The incident, coming on the heels of the U.S. invasion of Panama in Decmeber, has reignited Latin American fears of an interventionist America. Quayle, speaking to reporters before departing for Washington, went to great lengths to ease those concerns.

Let me be very clear,'' he said. ''There should be no doubt whatsoever that (President Bush) respects the sovereignty of Mexico. He respects the sovereignty of other nations.

''The United States preaches and participates in the rule of law. ... We will comply with the rule of law and we will also comply with the important issue of sovereignty.''

Quayle also said Salinas did not specifically request the return of Alvarez. An aide to Quayle said the Mexican leader ''did not challenge the vice president's account of the situation.'' Quayle said the administration was discussing ''a range of options'' meant to appease the situation.

Alvarez is accused of administering drugs to revive Camarena for further investigation by his captors after the agent had passed out while being tortured in Guadalajara.

The arrest of Alvarez has triggered new charges in Mexico that U.S. officials are violating the country's laws and paying bounties to those who kidnap its citizens.

U.S. officials have insisted that DEA agents did not participate in the capture of Alvarez, 42, who pleaded innocent to the charge and was ordered held without bail. The DEA has denied that a bounty was offered for his arrest.

A federal judge in Los Angeles has ordered a May 25 hearing into the arrest of Alvarez.

The controversy is the latest twist in the widely publicized case, which has been a major irritant in U.S.-Mexican relations for the past five years. The issue threatened to dominate the meeting between Quayle and Salinas.

''The purpose of my visit is to once again emphasize on behalf of President Bush the importance that we place on this relationship,'' Quayle said after his arrival in Mexico.

Salinas, who has pressed ahead in initiatives to cooperate with the United States in such areas as trade and anti-drug efforts, has nonetheless reacted to the Alvarez case by calling for a full explanation.

COLOGNE, WEST GERMANY (APRIL 26) UPI - A woman with a history of mental disorders told police she attempted to fatally stab popular West German chancellor candidate Oskar Lafontaine because she wanted publicity, police said Thursday.

A spokesman for Cologne police investigators quoted the attacker, Adelheid Streidel, 42, as saying, ''It was a private political decision. ... I wanted to kill Mr. Lafontaine so I would be taken to court and appear in the press.''

Lafontaine was critically injured Wednesday when Streidel stabbed him in the throat at a rally with a knife she had hidden in a bouquet of flowers. Hospital officials said Thursday he was well on the road to recovery.

Police spokesman Reinhard Fischer said that Streidel also told investigators she stabbed Lafontaine as ''a signal,'' because ''there are human factories and underground depots in which people's functions are adjusted, with the knowledge of politicians.''

Psychiatrists who examined Streidel in 1986 found her to be suffering from paranoid schizophrenia, Fischer said.

He said police, who searched her father's apartment, where she had been living, found no evidence the stabbing was politically motivated.

Lafontaine, 46, recently chosen as the Social Democratic Party challenger to conservative Chancellor Helmut Kohl in elections later this year, met with friends and read newspapers Thursday in his room at the Cologne University Clinic, spokesmen said.

Doctors battled for two hours Wednesday night to save his life by stopping a heavy flow of blood from a severed vein in his throat.

Dr. Heinz Pichelmaier, one of the surgeons, said Lafontaine was ''in a satisfactory condition, considering the circumstances.'' He said the opposition politician had lost a significant amount of blood.

Lafontaine, 46, is the premier of West Germany's state of Saar and a rising star in German national politics.

An estimated 800 people had watched in horror as Streidel walked up to Lafontaine during a political rally near Cologne, asked for an autograph, pulled a large knife from a bouquet of flowers and stabbed the politician in the neck.

Streidel, a doctor's assistant, was overpowered by guards and arrested.

Fischer said Streidel admitted she had been planning to murder a politician since December. She purchased two knives within the past few weeks and had inquired about the dates of party political rallies.

He said the woman told police, who interrogated her for six hours, that she wanted to kill either Lafontaine or his fellow SPD official, Johannes Rau, the prime minister of the North-Rhine Westfalia state.

Officials said Lafontaine received messages wishing him a speedy recovery from politicians in the East and the West, including Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev and Kohl, whom Lafontaine was due to challenge in general elections, Dec. 3.

West German deputies expressed shock at the attack, which they described in a statement read in parliament as ''an abhorrent act.''

Lafontaine, long considered one of the most charismatic West German politicians, gained further popularity within the SPD after inflicting a crushing defeat on Kohl's Christian Democratic Union in January elections in the western state of Saar.

Once known as ''Red Oskar'' because of his political convictions, he is also known for his strong defense of the market economy. In a daring political move, he recently called for a reduction of the number of ethnic Germans migrating to West Germany.

MOSCOW (APRIL 26) UPI - A Lithuanian tried to immolate himself in front of the Bolshoi Theater near the Kremlin Thursday in an apparent protest of Moscow's partial economic blockade of the Baltic republic.

Radio Moscow's Interfax news service said the Interior Ministry confirmed the self-immolation attempt, adding that the man was hospitalized with burns but apparently not critically hurt.

The official news agency Tass identified the man as Stanislaovas Zamaitis, 51, an unemployed Lithuanian with a wife and two children. The report did not describe how he had attempted to burn himself and said authorities had not established a motive for the act.

The protest came as the Kremlin's economic sanctions against Lithuania caused increasing hardship in the republic. An economic official in Vilnius said up to 10 percent of the republic's industries may have to shut down soon.

''Our stocks are helping us make do but they are running low,'' Albinas Jaovarauskas, a member of the new parliamentary commission on anti-blockade measures, told Tass.

As Moscow's cutoff of oil, natural gas and other sanctions cut deeper, Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev blamed the crisis on the Lithuanian leadership and said their decision to declare independence was undemocratic.

''We are dealing with a leadership demonstrating adventurism and speculating on democracy,'' Tass said Gorbachev told workers Wednesday night during a visit to Sverdlovsk in the Urals.

''When deciding the crucial issue of the fate of the republic and people living there...the deputies gathered at night, raised their hands, and decided everything,'' Gorbachev said. ''This is beyond any democratic framework.''

On Feb. 24, Lithuanians elected a new Parliament dominated by candidates supported by the pro-independence Sajudis movement, in the first free elections in the republic since it was annexed by the Soviet Union in 1940.

The new parliament declared the republic's independence from the Soviet Union at its first session March 11 and leaders have since repeatedly asked for talks with Moscow.

The Soviet Union has demanded that Lithuania rescind its declaration of independence and follow a long process set by Moscow - including a referendum and the approval of central authorities - in order to move toward secession. Gorbachev imposed the oil and gas cutoff in an effort to force the republic to turn back from independence.

Television and radio programming has been cut back to save electricity, more than 6,000 buses have been idled because of a lack of fuel and black market prices for gasoline have soared during strict rationing, Lithuanian officials said Tuesday.

Soviet statistics quoted by Tass Wednesday show 98 percent of Lithuanian industries depend somehow on the Soviet Union for supplies or customers.

Jaovarauskas told the news agency 10 percent of the republic's businesses may have to shut down in the next few days, and an official of the faction of the republic's Communist Party that remained loyal to Moscow said 46 enterprises have already closed.

''Talks with Moscow are inevitable,'' Jaovarauskas said. ''When several large plants grind to a halt many workers may take to the streets. I am very concerned about this.''

Moscow has refused to negotiate with Lithuania until it rescinds the declaration of independence. Despite earlier hints of a softening of the stand Gorbachev took a hard line again Wednesday, saying ''it is imperative to return to the situation ... on March 10'' before talks could be held.

Lithuanian leaders say it would be impossible to rescind the declaration.

Members of a Lithuanian delegation sent to Moscow Monday to seek negotiations on independence finally cornered Prime Minister Nikolai Ryzhkov outside Parliament Wednesday, but there was no apparent progress.

The conversation with Ryzhkov outside Parliament lasted about 20 minutes, but each side simply repeated its stand and rejected the other's position.

In Washington, a government spokesman said Venezualan President Carlos Andres Perez told President Bush in a meeting that he had received a letter from Gorbachev asking him to understand the situation Gorbachev faced and ''to try to make that known to other Latin American leaders.

WASHINGTON (APRIL 26) UPI - The House ethics committee is now acting as a jury as it evaluates evidence collected about the conduct of Rep. Barney Frank, D-Mass., with a male prostitute, Chairman Julian Dixon, D-Calif., said Thursday after a three-hour meeting.

Frank, who recently announced for re-election, is an acknowledged homosexual. He admitted paying Stephen Gobie for sex in 1985 and later hiring him as an aide and paying him with personal funds.

Frank said he fired Gobie in 1987 after learning that Gobie was running a prostitution service out of Frank's Capitol Hill home. Gobie alleges Frank always had been aware of the activities.

''We are in a deliberation stage as likened to a jury examining fact situations,'' said Dixon, chairman of the House Committee on Standards of Official Conduct.

''There is a human factor involved in that. Some juries come back right away; other juries take a long time,'' said Dixon after Thursday's three-hour meeting that concluded with no decisions.

The committee's next scheduled meeting is Tuesday, but Dixon declined to state whether any decisions would be announced.

The committee has the option of dropping the case altogether, concluding its investigation and issuing a report, or issuing a statement of alleged violation of House's Code of Official Conduct.

If it takes the last step, the committee could go forward with a disciplinary hearing, after which it could recommend disciplinary action by the full House.

WASHINGTON (APRIL 26) UPI - The Democrat-controlled House, struggling to find a way to balance the nation's books, soundly rejected two Republican budget plans that called for freezing most government spending.

The votes came as the House held a second day of debate on a $1.2 trillion budget outline drawn up by Democrats, and while the Senate Budget Committee labored to come up with its own budget proposal for the spending year that begins Oct. 1.

On a 305-106 vote, the House defeated an amendment by Rep. John Kasich, R-Ohio, that called for freezing budget authority for both defense and non-defense programs. A similar amendment by Rep. William Dannemeyer, R-Calif., that also proposed refinancing the national debt with gold-backed bonds, was defeated on a 354-48 vote.

The Democrats' plan, expected to be approved next week, features lower defense spending, higher domestic spending and smaller cuts in some programs and entitlements, such as Medicare, than Bush proposed in January.

Meanwhile, the Senate panel rejected three attempts to cut the deficit faster than the law requires.

The committee, trying to develop a blueprint to guide budget deliberations by other committees, voted 15-7 against a proposal by Sen. Kent Conrad, D-N.D., that would have committed the panel to shrinking the deficit by $56.5 billion.

That is about $20 billion more than required in the Gramm-Rudman balanced budget law, which demands the fiscal 1991 deficit be cut to $64 billion from $100 billion in 1990, a $36 billion reduction. The law requires a balanced budget by fiscal 1993.

The committee, on similar votes, rejected two other proposals calling for a $50 billion deficit cut next year.

The 10 Republican panel members opposed all three proposals, partly because a lower deficit would require bigger reductions in military spending or tax increases that President Bush and most Republicans oppose.

The Senate panel was scheduled to vote on other budget proposals later in the day.

In a surprising 11-11 tie vote, the Senate committee rejected a proposal by Sen. Timothy Wirth, D-Colo., to include a $5 a barrel fee on imported oil as part of a $50 billion deficit reduction plan. That fee would raise more than $6 billion next year.

Wirth's proposal was ahead 12-10, with support from four Republicans, until Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N.M., switched his vote to create a tie. A majority is needed to pass any proposal.

Explaining his change of heart, Domenici - a former Budget Committee chairman - said, ''My better sense just told me at the end, 'You're just voting for taxes.'''

Bush's $1.23 trillion budget proposal is scheduled for a House vote Tuesday. Also on Tuesday the House is to vote on a plan developed by the Congressional Black Caucus that makes deeper cuts in defense and spends more on domestic programs than would the Bush or Democratic leadership plans.

The budget resolutions pending in both the House and the Senate Budget Committee are guidelines for spending levels, programs cuts and ways of raising revenue used by other committees that have authority over particular areas of the budget.

The final budget plan, ultimately worked out between House and Senate negotiators, does not require Bush's approval, but he can veto the bills that implement the plan.

(APRIL 26) UPI - Toronto police say there was remarkably little looting last night during the four hours the city suffered a near-total blackout. A power station explosion and fire knocked out electrical power, leaving many of the city's three-Million residents in the dark. Police say the outage caused major traffic headaches, but NO accidents.

A published report says federal prosecutors may seek new drug charges against Washington, D-C, Mayor Marion Barry. The paper quotes anonymous sources who say prosecutors may base new charges on evidence from associates of Barry, who say they have seen him using drugs during the last five years. Barry faces trial in June on perjury and cocaine possession charges.

Georgia Republican Congressman Newt Gingrich and several public interest groups announced today that they will host a national teleconference next month designed to encourage what Gingrich calls ''common sense solutions to the bureaucratic welfare state.'' Gingrich will moderate the May 19th, four-city link-up, which will be carried on pay T-V.

Playboy magazine today will announce its first black ''Playmate of the Year''. The distinction goes to 21-year-old Renee Tennison of Boise, Idaho. The formal announcement will take place at Hugh Hefner's mansion in Los Angeles. Playboy magazine spokesman Bill Farley says Tennison's race was ''a factor'' in her selection, but- in his words- ''ultimately it is a business decision.''

CHICAGO (APRIL 26) UPI - UAL Chairman Stephen Wolf told shareholders at what could be the company's last annual meeting Thursday he believes a pending $4.4 billion buyout by United Airlines employees is financially feasible.

But a non-union employee said she will lead a campaign urging banks to refuse to finance the deal, which would make UAL the world's largest employee-owned company and put Wolf out of work.

"This may be the last public shareholders meeting of the UAL Corporation," Wolf told stockholders, noting the UAL board's approval of the $201 a share, $4.4 billion merger agreement with United's three employee unions.

"The board's decision was the result of a long, difficult and sometimes tumultuous process, but ultimately, given the circumstances we faced, it was the right decision," Wolf said.

Unions have agreed to billions of dollars in concessions in exchange for a stake in the Employee Stock Ownership Plan that will own UAL. "The concessions coupled with the underlying earnings strength of the carrier could easily manage that debt load and pay it off," Wolf told reporters.

Members of the Association of Flight Attendants approved concessions earlier this week. Members of the Airline Pilots Association and International Association of Machinists must still vote, but are expected to approve concession proposals.

United's 26,000 management and non-union salaried employees, however, were not party to the initial buyout negotiations and are negotiating with the union group on the concessions they will make, and the stake they will get in the ESOP.

Daryl Thorogood, a UAL stockholder and 33-year UAL employee who works in United's reservations center in San Francisco, said the unions have run roughshod over non-union workers. She said the buyout process was "rude, illegal, and unworkable." Of UAL's 71,000 employees, 26,000 are non-union.

Thorogood told stockholders she has written to major banks in the United States and Japan advising them of non-union workers' objections and urging them to refuse to finance the buyout.

Wolf, fielding questions from shareholders, said the $4.4 billion proposal is the best deal to be had in the time available, considering the failure last fall of a $6.75 billion employee-led buyout and the pressure brought by Condor Partners - UAL's biggest shareholder, with 11.8 percent of the outstanding common stock.

Wolf said the merger agreement negotiated between the board and United unions is better than a deal Condor negotiated with the unions and threatened to impose in a proxy fight if the UAL board failed to come to terms with the unions.

"I think they (Condor) wanted to cut and get out of this thing as soon as possible with as much money as possible without regard for the other 88.2 percent of the shareholders," Wolf told a shareholder who asked if the original deal negotiated by Condor might have been better.

The deal Condor negotiated would have provided shareholders with $150 a share in cash, $25 in senior subordinated ten-year-notes bearing 15 percent interest, and non-voting common stock representing 25 percent equity in the reorganized company.

The merger agreement betweeen the unions and the UAL board provides $155 a share in cash, plus $35 a share in senior subordinated nine-year notes bearing 16 percent interest, and a proportional stake in a new security of Covia Corp., the UAL subsidiary that holds a 50 percent stake in the Apollo computer reservations system.

UAL advisers estimated the value of the Covia interests at $11 a share, and some analysts said the total value of the deal could be as much as $500 million to $750 million.

Under the merger agreement, the employee group has four months to get at least half their financing solidly in place, and another four months to complete the deal.

"It is absolutely a financeable transaction," Wolf told reporters after the stockholders' meeting. "There are some open issues yet to be addressed. Clearly one ... is that they've got to put their management in place to manage the business, to indeed go out and personally secure the financing for the transaction," he said.

"They're working on all those (open issues) very diligently and we will all see how successful they will be. But they intend to be quite successful," Wolf said.

The employee group has announced it will replace Wolf as chairman, president, and chief executive. In the meantime, Wolf said: "I'm going to manage the business as aggressively as I can for as long as I am here, and when the transaction goes through I will assist the individual that our unions will select to become the new chairman and chief executive officer ... as much as I can, and then walk away and decide what I'm going to do."

(APRIL 26) UPI - The Soviet news agency Tass says as many as 10 percent of Lithuania's businesses will be forced to close soon because of the Soviet economic blockcade. A member of Lithuania's parliamentary commission on anti-blockade measures said that stockpiles are running low. Moscow cut off oil and natural gas to try to force Lithuania's parliament to rescind independence laws enacted last month. Tass also quotes Soviet leader Gorbachev as saying in a speech last night- quoting now- ''We are dealing with a leadership demonstrating adventurism and speculating on democracy.''

The Islamic Republic news agency quotes a hard-line Iranian newspaper report that a resolution passed by the U-S House will delay the release of more American hostages. An editorial objects to a House resolution that recognizes Jerusalem as Israel's capital. The paper... which reflects the views of hard-line Iranian clerics... says Shiite Moslem groups holding Western hostages will delay releasing the captives as a ''natural reaction.''

Discovery astronauts are running a series of experiments as the shuttlecraft continues to shadow the Hubble Space Telescope in orbit. The shuttle fliers spent the morning taking pictures of the Earth and conducting experiments. As Discovery's orbit swung over the Gulf of Mexico skipper Loren Shriver said the shuttle provides a ''perfect view'' of Lake Michigan. In her words- ''It's just like you could look out and touch it.''

NASA technicians briefly lost contact with the Hubble Space Telescope this morning as they continued running a complex series of tests. NEW YORK (APRIL 26) UPI - Stocks closed mixed in light trading Thursday after a late bout of computerized program buying and bargain hunting sent the blue chips to a gain on the day.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which rose 11.94 Wednesday, added 10.14 to close at 2676.58.

Among broader market gauges, the New York Stock Exchange composite index rose 0.36 to 182.66 and Standard & Poor's 500-stock index gained 0.89 to close at 332.92. The price of an average share rose six cents.

Declines led advances 761-675 among the 1,949 issues crossing the NYSE tape. Big Board volume totaled 141,330,000 shares, compared with 133,480,000 shares traded Wednesday.

Analysts said the bargain hunting was sparked by positive earnings surprises at some companies, such as Compaq Computer, which closed sharply higher after reporting first-quarter earnings above Wall Street forecasts.

Among the Dow industrials, Procter & Gamble and Du Pont posted sharp gains. Procter & Gamble's profits, reported late Wednesday, were better than expected. Du Pont's earnings, also reported Wednesday, were in line with forecasts.

Computerized program buying, used to profit on price differences between stocks and stock-index futures, helped send the blue chips higher as well. The market lost early gains to a sudden rise in interest rates.

In late trading, the yield on the bellwether 30-year bond was up 0.08 point to 9.04 percent, above the key level of nine percent, as dealers tried to find a rate that would make the bond attractive to investors but fears of inflation kept investors away. Treasury bonds were down 21/32 to 94 15/32. The key 30-year issue has not closed with a yield of nine percent or more since May.

Rodd Anderson, vice president in equity trading at Shearson Lehman Hutton Inc., said fears of an unpleasant surprise in the price deflator, a measure of inflation, in Friday's report on growth in first quarter gross national product, pushed rates up.

"Bonds cracked when there was talk that the deflator number would be bad," he said. "The market thought it would be bad all along, but then there was talk that it could be even worse."

The deflator is expected to have shot up a relatively sharp 5.3 percent in the quarter, after a fourth-quarter rise of 3.2 percent. Gross national product itself is expected to have expanded at a 2.7 percent rate in the quarter. "It's tough to compete with nine percent rates," said Anderson. "Till we get some help the upside of this market is going to be somewhat limited."

On the trading floor, Norton was the most active issue, down 1/2 to 88 1/4 after catapulting Wednesday on its agreement to be acquired by Saint-Gobain for $90 a share.

Bristol-Myers Squibb followed, surging 2 1/8 to 54 7/8 after saying Wednesday that earnings per share for 1990 would likely be in the range of $3.25 to $3.30. Prudential-Bache was said to have repeated a buy recommendation on the stock.

Safeway was third, up 3/4 from the opening bid in its initial day of trading to 12 3/8. Ten million shares of the food retailer were sold at $11.25 each and the stock opened at 11 5/8.

Among the other blue chips, AT&T gained 3/8 to 40 3/8, IBM lost 5/8 to 108 3/4, Procter & Gamble added 1 1/4 to 70 3/4, Du Pont jumped 1 1/8 to 37, and Merck rose 1/2 to 73 1/8.

Elsewhere, Xerox lost 1 1/4 to 51 after reporting a net loss for the first quarter, Illinois Power tumbled 1 7/8 to 16 after state regulators recommended a far smaller rate increase for the utility than it had sought, and Compaq Computer surged 4 1/4 to 98 1/4 after posting strong earnings.

Ames Department Stores rose 1/8 to 1 5/8. The troubled New England retailer filed for bankruptcy protection late Wednesday.

Volume of NYSE-listed issues, including trades in stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 169,109,440 shares, compared with 165,993,530 shares traded Wednesday.

Prices closed slightly higher in active trading on the American Stock Exchange. The Amex Market Value index rose 0.23 to close at 344.75. The price of an average share gained one cent. Advances just barely led declines 274-273 among the 792 issues traded. Composite volume totaled 17,543,600 shares, compared with 19,156,400 traded Wednesday. Hillhaven led the Amex issues, up 1/16 to one.

The National Association of Securities Dealers composite index rose 0.50 to close at 421.06.

(APRIL 26) UPI - A soviet negotiator in Geneva says the United States and the Soviet Union may place a ceiling on their chemical weapon arsenals as early as the May 30th super-power summit. He says negotiators have informally agreed to limit each side's stockpiles to five-thousand tons, a fraction of what each maintains. The United States would have to destroy around 20-thousand tons, and the Soviets 45-thousand tons.

A drug suspect is dead and an F-B-I agent wounded following a five-hour siege of an alleged cocaine outlet located in a home in an affluent Miami suburb early today. The F-B-I cordoned off the neighborhood and warned residents to stay inside while it tried to coax suspects out. SWAT teams finally went in with tear gas. The F-B-I arrested four suspects on drug-trafficking charges and seized at least 400 pounds of cocaine.

PARIS (APRIL 26) UPI - American and Soviet diplomats have reached tentative agreement on a bilateral trade treaty that could give the Soviets equal footing with U.S. Western allies, the top U.S. negotiator at the talks said Thursday.

Julius Katz, the Deputy United States Trade Representative who headed the American negotiating team in Paris, said, however, that the two sides were still apart on several important issues.

He refused to identify the remaining areas of disagreement, but said contacts between Moscow and Washington would continue in the coming weeks in an effort to resolve the remaining differences before June, when President Bush and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev meet in Washington.

The two leaders are expected to sign a bilateral trade agreement during a summit in Washington from May 30 to June 3. "Fundamentally, we have reached an agreement on a text," said Katz. "As far as I am concerned I think we have a substantial agreement, and I do not see an obstacle to its signature at the time of the summit." He said another session would be held Friday.

The fate of the treaty had been uncertain earlier in the week, when the fourth round of negotiations began, because of the ongoing crisis in Lithuania.

It had been widely expected that Bush would postpone the session as part of U.S. sanctions against Moscow for its economic blockade against the rebellious Baltic state, but Bush decided against any immediate action. As a result, Katz said, the negotiating sessions had run smoothly and the Lithuanian issue had never been mentioned.

If the treaty is signed by the leaders and approved by Congress, it would grant the Soviet Union the much-coveted most favored nation status, which is held by countries the United States supports.

The status would mean a reduction in U.S. duties on Soviet imports, but Katz said it was difficult to determine its potential impact on bilateral trade between the two nations.

Even if a treaty is signed at the summit, however, Bush must sign a waiver to the Jackson-Vanik amendment on emigration before he can submit it for Congressional approval. The amendment links granting most favored nation status to the Soviet Union with a liberalization of Soviet emigration policies.

An earlier agreement to grant Moscow for a second time the preferential trading status - which was lifted in 1951 as a result of the Korean War - was reached in 1972 but was not applied because of the emigration question.

Katz said the agreement "looks toward the development of a market economy in the Soviet Union but reflects the fact that they are not quite there at this point."

He said the two sides had agreed on the establishment of commercial offices in each country, provisions regarding trade laws and the establishment of guidelines for settling disputes between Soviet and American businessmen. Negotiators also agreed on the protection of copyrights, patents, and sound recordings, he said.

The tentative three-year treaty also includes provisions for the payment of profits in hard currency since the Soviet ruble is not convertible to dollars. But Katz said otherwise it was not much different from agreements the United States has reached with other favored nations.

WASHINGTON (APRIL 26) UPI - The Department of Transportation approved Thursday the sale of Eastern Airlines' South American and Latin American routes to American Airlines, a transaction Eastern has said is critical to the carrier's reorganization.

In a filing with the Department of Transportation, Martin Shugrue, the newly named trustee for Easternsaid approval of the sale would enable Eastern to complete its reorganization.

The troubled Miami-based airline agreed to sell the routes to American, owned by AMR Corp., in December for $349 million.

Eastern, which filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection from creditors in March 1989, said it needed to sell the routes as part of a reorganization plan. The Texas Air Corp. subsidiary won bankruptcy court approval for the sale in March.

Eastern welcomed the agency's decision Thursday.

Matell refused to speculate on when that might be. He said Eastern set July 1 as the original target date for the transfer of the routes.

Although no equipment is involved in the transaction, Matell said the sale would affect several hundred employees currently employed by Eastern in Latin America.

The sale still must be approved by President Bush, who has an option of disapproving it on grounds of national security or foreign policy, the Transportation Department said.

Transportation officials said the route transfer does not conflict with international aviation policy objectives.

In addition to the Latin American and South American routes, the transportation officials also approved the transfer to American of Eastern's Miami-to-Madrid route and Continental Airlines' Miami-to-London certificate. Continental is also owned by Texas Air.

The department declined to transfer Eastern's Miami-Tampa-Toronto route.

Transportation officials said the department would hold hearings to determine whether the route should be transfered to Dallas-based American. If not, another airline would be selected to take over the route. Three other airlines have expressed interest in the route.

Eastern currently flies to 14 countries in South and Central America.

The ailing airline was forced to revise its business plan after early negotiations with American over the sale of the Latin American routes broke down last summer.

Eastern later said it would keep the routes before again reversing itself, saying the sale would bring in badly needed cash.

(APRIL 26) UPI - Crude prices slipped with strong selling in the last hour of otherwise light New York Mercantile Exchange trading Thursday as the market tested the previous day's lows.

The benchmark West Texas Intermediate for June delivery declined 19 cents to $18.47 a barrel after trading as low as $18.45 a barrel, 9 cents below Wednesday's low.

Trading volume was a light 49,693 contracts.

On the U.S. Gulf Coast cash market, prompt-delivery WTI was quoted at $18.50 a barrel, a loss of 15 cents.

Unleaded gasoline for May delivery plunged 1.26 cents to 61.34 cents a gallon on the Merc, bringing the total two-day loss to 3.05 cents. This more than wiped out the gain of 2.46 cents scored Monday and Tuesday.

On the New York Harbor spot market, unleaded gasoline for prompt delivery skidded 1.45 cents to 61.05 cents a gallon, bringing its two-day slide to 3.45 cents.

Analysts Kevin Breslin and Tim Bentz of United Energy Inc. in New York said the factor dominating Thursday's market was selling by large traders in the last hour that took prices down through Wednesday's low.

''The question is whether it broke through enough to set a new trend line'' of selling, said Bentz, United's director of trading.

Both analysts said they expected some buying Friday in the form of profit-taking by traders, who had previously staked out short positions to take advantage of declining prices.

''In front of an OPEC meeting, people don't want to be too short,'' Breslin said, because of fears the cartel might force a price rise by cutting back on production.

Oil ministers of the 13-nation Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries are scheduled to meet Wednesday in Geneva in an effort to stop the recent decline in world prices. Crude lost 14 percent of its traded value earlier this month.

OPEC pumps more than a third of the world's crude and attempts to control prices by limiting members' output.

Prices recently fell largely because some OPEC members failed to abide by their quotas.

Bentz said the question for Friday's trading is whether the selling trend set Thursday is strong enough to overcome traders' tendencies to cash in their short positions as the OPEC meeting nears.

The crude market has had a downward bias since Tuesday's report by the American Petroleum Institute showed U.S. gasoline inventories last week declined less than expected.

On the European cash market, Britain's widely traded North Sea Brent crude dropped 22 cents to $16.43 a barrel.

United Arab Emirates' Dubai light - the key OPEC crude from the Middle East shipped mainly to the Far East - remained unchanged for the second consecutive day at $14.50 a barrel.

On the Merc, heating oil finished at 53.07 cents a gallon, up 0.67 cent, while prompt delivery heating oil in the New York spot market rose 0.70 cent to 56.85 cents a gallon.

ROCHESTER, NY (APRIL 26) UPI - A former employee of Eastman Kodak Co. has written to Gov. Mario Cuomo, saying $2.15 million in fines to settle the state's criminal and civil probes of environmental violations by the company were a slap on the wrist, a published report said Thursday.

The Rochester Democrat & Chronicle said it received a copy of the letter, in which the employee said Kodak got off too lightly and the settlement sends the wrong message.

''The message is this: If you are a large enough corporation, you can break the law and get away with it, if you simply agree not to break the law again,'' the letter states.

Former Kodak environmental engineer Thomas Ruggieri helped direct the company's internal studies of groundwater contamination at the huge Kodak Park manufacturing complex from 1982 to early 1986. He left the company later that year.

In his letter dated Apr. 13, eight days after the settlement between Kodak and the state was announced, Ruggieri said: ''While working at Kodak I saw firsthand an organization arrogantly ignoring their corporate, if not legal, responsibility to inform the state of New York and the community of significant environmental contamination at their facility.

Revelations of groundwater contamination at Kodak Park and the company's apparent failure to report it triggered separate investigations by the state's Department of Environmental Conservation and Attorney General's Office.

After two years and a threatened grand jury probe, Kodak agreed to plead guilty to two misdemeanor violations of state environmental law and pay a fine of $2.15 million in exchange for no further investigation of the situation. in addition, Kodak agreed to undertake a chemical clean-up and monitoring plan.

Kodak spokesman James Blamphin said while he hasn't seen the letter, the company was satisfied Ruggieri's charges were ''investigated thoroughly ... and we know the outcome.

Karen Polk, a spokeswoman for the governor in Albany, said Cuomo would discuss the situation with Attorney General Robert Abrams and DEC Commissioner Thomas Jorling.

''His (Ruggieri's) concerns are well-noted, and he will get a response,'' Polk said.

In his letter, Ruggieri said he oversaw the installation of some 100 test wells for sampling groundwater. He said test results and other data ''regularly identified areas in Kodak Park where groundwater quality had been affected due to chemical handling operations.''

He reported one case in which Kodak found ''a pure layer of methylene chloride at the bottom of the well, but nothing was done.''

NEW YORK (APRIL 26) UPI - The dollar mainly firmed Thursday in choppy New York trading as market participants, lacking any clear trend in the U.S. currency, focused on technical activity between various overseas units.

Switzerland's franc held center stage in cross-trading, or direct dealings between currencies other than the dollar. Traders cited speculation looking to Japanese obligations in Swiss bonds and interest rates.

In late New York trading, the dollar was changing hands at 1.68 West German marks, up from 1.6780 marks late Wednesday. Against Japan's currency, the dollar was quoted at 159.25 yen, up from 158.65.

An uptick this week in the Swiss National Bank's Lombard interest rate, applied to short-term central bank loans to commercial banks, incited heavy selling of the mark and the yen for Swiss francs.

Players also bought Swiss francs on speculation of upcoming demand for them because Japanese institutions are about to retire franc-priced bonds worth an estimated 1 billion Swiss francs.

But Bank of Tokyo senior customer dealer John Lyman said the bond factor was ''completely overblown'' because the bonds are mostly convertible to other instruments on maturity, reducing potential Swiss franc demand.

Lyman said the dollar slipped against the deutsche mark in early trading on technical grounds and in sympathy with the bond market, where the yield on the bellwether 30-year Treasury bond topped 9 percent.

But the dollar rallied as dealers bought to square positions ahead of Friday morning data on first-quarter U.S. gross national product.

Participants leaned heavily on technical strategies. Corporate adviser Karen Kluge of Credit Suisse said ''triangle'' chart patterns suggested the dollar is stuck in a consolidation phase preceding a new move.

''For a technician, when you're trapped inside these triangles, all you can do is wait until you break one side or another,'' she said.

Other dollar rates: 1.4570 Swiss francs, down from 1.4580; 5.6350 French francs, up from 5.6340; and 1,231.75 Italian lire, up from 1,231.25.

The British pound slipped to $1.6335 from $1.6415.

The dollar closed mostly lower in Europe. Currency adviser Reijer Groenveld of the Bank of America in London said it was ''choppy'' with no clear trend, and finished at the bottom of its trading range.

In Frankfurt, the dollar fell to 1.6780 deutsche marks from 1.6820 Wednesday and slid in Zurich to 1.4605 Swiss francs against 1.4735.

In London, the pound slipped against the dollar on a higher-than-expected March British trade deficit, ending at $1.6330 against $1.6365.

The dollar eased in Paris, Brussels and Milan, closing at 5.6205 French francs against 5.6820, 34.70 Belgian francs against 34.80, and 1228.75 Italian lire against 1,244.65 Tuesday. Markets in Italy were closed Wednesday for the Liberation Day national holiday.

In Tokyo, the dollar declined against the yen and the main European currencies in thin trading, ending at 158.77 yen against 159.25 Wednesday. Traders said the dollar's decline continued the trend on overseas markets.

Republic National Bank in New York closed cash gold at $371 an ounce, ahead from $370.75 Wednesday. The New York Commodity Exchange settled gold at $370.50 an ounce, down from $370.70. In Zurich, gold moved up to $373.50 an ounce, against $370.50. London gold rose to $372.75 an ounce from $371.25.

Republic closed cash silver at $4.94 an ounce, off from $4.945. Comex spot silver edged down to $4.913 an ounce, down from $4.919. Silver was unchanged in Zurich and London at $5.00 and $4.97 an ounce, respectively.

MONTREAL (APRIL 27) UPI - Robert Campeau, chairman of the troubled corporation which bears his name, struck a near $70 million deal with a Canadian bank to clear a loan default, the bank said Thursday.

The National Bank of Canada said in a brief statement that ''it had reached an agreement with Robert Campeau.''

The deal concerns a $128 million loan, currently in default, to one of Campeau's personal companies and certain securities pledged as collateral.

The bank said it will receive $34 million by May 31 and another $34 million plus interest by Jan. 31, 1992. The interest will accumulate from May 31.

''This agreement should enable Campeau to draw up a financial restructuring plan, and collection of these two amounts is conditional on the realization of that plan,'' the bank said.

In early January, the bank seized control of 29 percent of Campeau Corp. by transferring into its name securities secured against the defaulted loan.

A spokesman for the bank said no further announcement or clarification of the terms of the deal would be made.

Last week, the Supreme Court of Ontario ordered Robert Campeau to repay $22.7 million to the Bank of Montreal after defaulting on a separate loan last fall.

The court gave the Bank of Montreal the right to seize 425,000 common shares of Campeau Corp. and $14.5 million principal amount of 7.5 percent debentures that were pledged as collateral.

A third Canadian bank is also pressuring Campeau for missed payments.

On Feb. 8, the Bank of Nova Scotia filed suit in the Ontario Supreme Court against Campeau for defaulting on about $10.4 million in personal loans and interest payments.

Campeau's U.S. subsidiary, Federated Stores Inc. filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection on March 30, about 2 1/2 months after Federated Department Stores Inc. and Allied Stores Corp. filed for similar protection.

(APRIL 26) UPI - In Texas, two people are dead in flood-related accidents as severe thunderstorms continue to wrack the region. At least seven tornadoes ripped through north Texas last night, accompanied by torrents of rain and flooding. High waters forced police to evacuate some residents and businesses as high winds downed trees and power lines and tore off rooftops.

Israel's High Court of Justice ordered the eviction of 150 Jewish settlers who took over a Christian Quarter house. The 72-room house is owned by the Greek Orthodox Church. A Panamanian firm bought a sub-lease and allowed Jewish settlers to move into the building. The court ruled that 20 representatives of the Panamanian firm can remain in the building. The Panamanian firm vows to appeal the eviction order.

A federal jury in Memphis is trying to break a deadlock on the verdict in the fraud trial of Representative Harold Ford, Tennessee's first black congressman. The jurors yesterday said they were hopelessly deadlocked, but the judge advised them to re-evaluate the evidence. Ford predicts his acquittal on charges that he traded political influence for one-point-five-Million dollars in fraudulent bank loans.

(APRIL 26) UPI - A leftist presidential candidate was shot and killed today in Colombia by a gunman aboard an Avianca jetliner. Pizarro was killed while on the way to a campaign appearance in Barranquilla.

Violeta Chamorro's first day as president of Nicaragua was marred by controversy today. Political allies reacted angrily over Chamorro's decision to name Humberto Ortega , her opponent's brother, as armed forces chief. Two members of her National Opposition Union party declined offers of Cabinet positions because of the appointment.

President Bush says the West should celebrate the spread of democracy to Nicaragua. He made the remarks today as he welcomed Venezuelan President Carlos Perez to Washington. Yesterday, Perez was in Nicaragua for the inauguration of Violeta Chamorro.

NASA technicians continue to put the one-point-five-BILLION-dollar Hubble

NEW YORK (APRIL 27) UPI - The Dodge Index of construction contracting rebounded 4 percent in March to 156 from February's recent low of 150, McGraw-Hill's F.W. Dodge division said Thursday.

The seasonally adjusted leading indicator of future construction activity, which uses a 1982 base of 100, represents the value of newly started construction.

March's improved rate of construction contracting reversed a five-month slide of building activity that has been heavily concentrated in the Northeast, the report said.

''A 15 percent surge of non-residential projects was the source of the entire gain, as the value of homebuilding and 'nonbuilding' construction - public work and utilities - eased 2 percent and 1 percent, respectively,'' F.W. Dodge said.

''With the exception of offices, March contracts for non-residential construction revealed a general strengthening of commercial, industrial and institutional building,'' said George Christie, vice president and chief economist for F. W. Dodge. Institutional building was up a strong 29 percent in March.

In the first three months of 1990, construction contracting trailed 1989's first quarter by 6 percent.

The Northeast, where contracting fell sharply in winter, was off 25 percent in the 1990 quarter compared with the year-ago period, according to F.W. Dodge.

In March, non-residential building totalled $88.9 billion, compared with $77.1 billion in the year-ago quarter; residential building was $111.5 billion, down from $113.7 billion; non-building construction was $44.59 billion, down from $45.15 billion.

The overall value for construction for March was $244.9 billion, up from $235.9 billion in the same month of 1989.

COSTA MESA, Calif. (APRIL 27) UPI - The Securities and Exchange Commission is investigating trading in the stock of ICN Biomedicals during 1988, a company spokesman confirmed Thursday.

The company said the SEC made the request in January to provide information about trading in its stock.

''This was a routine request for information made not only of ICN Biomedicals but also of other companies that were the subjects of mergers and acquisitions,'' said spokesman Jack Scholl.

School said the SEC indicated in its request that the inquiry should not be construed as an indication that the company or its staff has violated securities laws.

ICN Biomedicals is a unit of ICN Pharmaceuticals, which posted a huge $85.7 million loss in the fourth quarter as a result of a decision to stop Canadian testing of the drug ribavirin as a treatment for the acquired immune deficiency syndrome virus.

ONTARIO, Calif. (APRIL 27) UPI - Representatives of Lockheed Corp. and striking machinists at three plants in San Bernardino County have completed two days of contract talks and will return to the bargaining table next week, a Lockheed spokesman said Thursday.

The talks between the aerospace giant and members of the International Association of Machinists, District 821, were supervised by federal mediator Phyllis Cayse, spokesman Al Dubiel said.

The talks opened Wednesday for the first time since about 935 machinists struck plants in Chino, Ontario and Upland March 12. The talks will resume on Monday, Dubiel said.

The strike at the plants, which are maintenance and modification facilities for such aircraft as the Air Force C-130 transport plane, began after 6,000 District 727 machinists at other Lockheed plants in Burbank and Palmdale, Calif., ratified a new contract.

The District 821 machinists, who have been without a contract since last November, said they walked off their jobs because they were offered a less favorable contract than District 727 machinists. The plants have continued to operate with salaried employees and supervisors.

(APRIL 26) UPI - Problems with the Hubble Space Telescope are fixed... a political assassination in Colombia... panic over savings accounts in East Germany... and phase-two of the census begins. Those stories and more, next from U-P-I.

Ground controllers today averted what could have been a serious problem with the Hubble Space Telescope.

Worried engineers re-oriented the 12-ton observatory after its critical science antennas failed to lock onto a NASA relay satellite as planned. When contact was finally established late in the day, controllers burst into applause.

The high-gain antenna link between the telescope and NASA's data relay satellite is crucial to the observatory's operation. Without it, images and other digital data gathered by Hubble's sensitive instruments canNOT be relayed back to Earth.

The problem was resolved when controllers discovered that the telescope was aimed six degrees away from where it should have been pointed during the initial communication attempt.

The astronauts are sticking close by the Hubble telescope for a possible rendezvous and spacewalk repair job in case a protective door on the end of the telescope's tube fails to open on command tomorrow afternoon.

While keeping the telescope in sight, the astronauts are spending their day conducting experiments, taking pictures of Earth and sightseeing from Discovery's record-high orbit.

The Hubble Telescope is expected to help scientists revise their understanding of universe and the ''big bang'' explosion thought to have created it some 15-BILLION years ago.

But Hubble's first target will be a surprisingly modest one.

Early next week, it will beam back its first pictures of a cluster of suns in the constellation Carina, visible only in the southern hemisphere.

Other, more spectacular targets could have been picked... and some scientists lobbied for just that. But NASA technicians say the cluster will provide a critical focusing test for the scope's optical and computer systems.

NASA officials say they will compare ground telescope pictures with those sent back by Hubble to determine the orbiting station's accuracy.

The cluster is believed to be about 13-hundred light years from Earth.

(APRIL 26) UPI - Another presidential candidate has been assassinated in Colombia, the third in a year.

Hospital officials in Bogota say a gunman aboard an Avianca jetliner shot and killed leftist presidential candidate Carlos Pizarro while the candidate was en route to a campaign appearance in Barranquilla.

Aides say Pizarro, former commander of the M-19 communist guerrillas, was shot three times from behind.

Reports say the gunman himself was wounded by the candidate's bodyguards.

The Bogota-to-Barranquilla passenger flight returned to the Colombian capital and made an emergency landing. There's NO word yet on the number of passengers aboard the flight or whether there were any other casualties.

The assassination came one day after a car bomb exploded in the city of Medellin, killing five people, including a policeman.

East Germans are staging a run on banks.

They are panicking over a West German plan for monetary unification. It calls for a ceiling on East German mark conversions.

Bank officials say customers are waiting as long as two hours in lines to re-shuffle their accounts in an attempt to protect their savings. They are withdrawing sizeable amounts of their savings, then re-depositing them immediately in newly opened childrens' accounts, apparently trying to spread out their money over several smaller accounts.

A newly proposed amendment to the West German plan prompted the scramble. Originally, the plan called for a one-to-one swap, but the new proposal will limit to about 23-hundred dollars the amount of savings held in East German banks that could be converted on a one-to-one basis. The remainder would be converted at a rate of two East German marks to one West German mark.

(APRIL 26) UPI - Senate Democrats today began an effort to shift some of the 720-Million dollars in emergency aid to Panama and Nicaragua to domestic programs.

West Virginia Senator Robert Byrd called for a national debate on foreign aid priorities. In his words- ''Our own people cry out for help.'' Byrd says the United States should be the first priority.

The Senate Appropriations Committee this week adopted a two-BILLION 300-Million-dollar supplemental spending bill that includes aid for the new U-S-backed governments in Central America... as well as money for a variety of uses at home.

The bill provides the full 300-Million sought by President Bush for Nicaragua and 420-Million of the 500-Million he wanted for Panama.

But Byrd wants to cut aid to Panama by another 120-Million and use the money to clean up Energy Department facilities, build Indian housing, provide food for poor women and infants, and cope with natural disasters.

He points out that the money he wants to cut includes 30-Million dollars to encourage tourism to Panama.

Tens of thousands of census takers are out combing the countryside today to help complete the nation's controversial population survey.

Census Bureau spokesman Ray Bancroft says some 250-thousand enumerators... 56-thousand more than originally planned... will go door-to-door in an effort to salvage the census.

Agency officials had hoped that 70 percent of the more than 90-Million forms mailed out would be returned. But with only a 63 percent return rate the bureau will have to visit between 35-Million and 37-Million homes. Bancroft also says the agency needs an additional 10-Million dollars in costs for each percentage point below 70 percent.

A New York Times poll attempted to find the reason for the low Census turn-out. More than half of all those who did NOT return the form say it was because they either forgot, or were too busy.

In his second day in the Ural industrial heartland, Gorbachev launched a bitter attack on a basic tenet of communism... state-set wages that allow little difference between the pay of laborers and professionals.

The Kremlin leader said talented people must be well paid for their labor and urged an end to what he called ''this foolish system of wage leveling.'' He said failure to break out of the system will caused the nation to suffocate.

Gorbachev spoke to residents on the streets of Sverdlovsk , an industrial hub in the Ural Mountains, in what appeared to be a full-scale public relations campaign for the radical economic reforms, which he says will be introduced by May 10th.

Gorbachev's economic radicalization program has raised fears of increased unemployment and inflation. And Premier Nikolai Ryzhkov today pulled NO punches in stating that the reforms will NOT provide equal opportunities for everyone.

In Paris, Soviet and American diplomats reached tentative agreement on a bilateral trade treaty that could give the Soviets equal footing with U-S Western allies. Gorbachev and President Bush are expected to sign a bilateral trade agreement during their summit in Washington beginning May 30th.

Lithuanian President Vytautas Landsbergis today renewed his appeal for help against the Soviet economic blockade.

Soviet President Gorbachev has insisted that the defiant Baltic republic annul its declaration of independence and other secessionist laws before negotiations can begin.

Moscow has cut off all crude oil supplies and most deliveries of natural gas and other raw materials to quash Lithuania's independence drive.

News dispatches and officials in Lithuania report panic buying and hoarding by people afraid that Moscow will broaden its embargo to include basic staples.

Long lines were reported at stores in the capital of Vilnius , as Lithuanians stocked up on cereals, salt, matches and other supplies.

A Lithuanian parliament spokeswoman said trade representatives have fanned out across the Soviet Union to try to barter for goods.

The effects of the Soviet economic blockade against Lithuania today spread to the neighboring Baltic republic of Latvia, where gasoline stations stopped filling private motorists' tanks.

Latvian television reported that the sale of gasoline was limited to vehicles engaged in public transport, emergency health services and industry.

(APRIL 26) UPI - President Bush and Venezuelan President Carlos Andres Perez today welcomed Nicaragua's first democratic transfer of power.

Bush hailed the inauguration yesterday of Nicaraguan President Violeta Chamorro as- ''a time to celebrate.'' He says it's evidence of a growing spread of freedom throughout the Western Hemisphere, despite serious challenges confronting her transition to democratic rule.

Bush and Perez held talks today at the White House.

Perez has criticized U-S policy in Central America and, like other Latin American leaders, opposed the American invasion of Panama. But today he said he was ''very encouraged by his talks with Bush and Secretary of State Baker and found them ''very receptive and very understanding as far as Nicaragua is concerned.''

In Nicaragua, President Chamorro grappled with a full-blown controversy over her decision to retain the brother of former Sandinista President Daniel Ortega as armed forces chief. During her first full day in office, Chamorro sought to blunt criticism of the appointment by saying she will serve as defense minister and that Humberto Ortega will have only operational control of the military and will take orders from her.

The Soviet Union marked the fourth anniversary of the Chernobyl nuclear disaster today by holding a 24-hour telethon seeking aid for those injured by the world's worst nuclear accident.

Contrary to the old-style Soviet secrecy and the silence which originally followed the disaster, the telethon today used haunting footage and frightening numbers to heighten the appeal.

The broadcast said four-Million people still live in areas contaminated by radiation, and that 260-thousand should be evacuated from where they're living as soon as possible.

An estimated 15-thousand people still require medical care as a result of the nuclear accident.

The telethon was broadcast NOT only on Soviet television, but also received air time both on Britain's Sky Television and the U-S Cable News Network.

The Soviet news agency Tass reported the telethon raised more than 22-Million rubles- or about 36-Million dollars- in the first 12 hours.

(APRIL 26) UPI - Lithuanian officials report panic buying and hoarding by people who fear Moscow will cut off other vital supplies to the rebellious Baltic republic. In Moscow, a Lithuanian man who set himself on fire near the Kremlin died of his burns. His action was an apparent protest of sanctions against the republic.

Nicaraguan President Violeta Chamorro spent her first full day in office dealing with controversy regarding her decision to keep the brother of Daniel Ortega as military chief. Contra rebels say they may NOT honor a committment to disarm because of Chamorro's decision.

The Senate voted 51-48 today to reject an attempt by Democrats to cut aid to Panama and give the additional money to domestic programs. Senator Robert Byrd of West Virginia had proposed cutting aid to Panama to 300-Million dollars.

Edward Rowny, a key U-S arms control negotiator, is stepping down amid reports he's skeptical about accelerated efforts to reach an arms control agreement soon. But the White House says Rowny is NOT resigning because of ''ulterior motives.''

Hospital and United Nations officials say Israeli soldiers shot and killed four Palestinians and wounded at least 130 others today. The violence occurred in several Gaza refugee camps during celebrations marking the end of the Ramadan holy month of fasting.

West German police say the woman who stabbed chancellor candidate Oskar Lafontaine yesterday has a history of mental problems. Police say the woman told them she attacked the popular politician for media attention. Lafontaine is recovering.

The official Chinese news agency reports an earthquake measuring six-point-nine on the Richter scale rocked a wide area of western China this evening. Buildings were knocked down and houses damaged but there are NO reports of any casualties.

(APRIL 26) UPI - The office of California Democratic Senator Alan Cranston confirms the now-failed Lincoln Savings and Loan Association approved a 300-thousand-dollar line of credit for the senator. The Senate Ethics Committee is investigating Cranston and four other senators in connection with the collapse of Lincoln.

A federal judge in Sacramento, California, today sentenced former state senator Joseph Montoya to six-and-a-half years in prison. Montoya, a 17-year veteran legislator, was convicted on seven counts of extortion, racketeering and money laundering.

In Washington, former American University President Richard Berendzen today apologized to the university and community for ''pain'' caused by his resignation. Police are investigating obscene phone calls allegedly made from his office.

Pop singer Gloria Estefan is suing a truck driver and others for injuries she sustained in a March traffic accident. The suit, filed in U-S District Court inPennsylvania, says the injuries resulted in the loss of ''many Millions'' of dollars in earnings.

Music publishing pioneer Wesley Rose died in Nashville today after a long battle with Alzheimer's disease. He was 72. Rose, often called a ''cornerstone'' of the country music industry, helped launch the careers of Hank Williams and Marty Robbins.

(APRIL 26) UPI - The Soviet economic blockade against Lithuania is spreading to other Baltic republics. The government of neighboring Latvia, which receives much of its refined oil from Lithuania, today ordered gas stations to stop filling private motorists' tanks. Latvian television reports that gas only will be sold to vehicles for public transport, emergency health services and industry.

Defense Secretary Cheney presented both houses of Congress with a ''peace dividend'' of sorts today. He went to Capitol Hill to say he's cutting the B-2 stealth bomber program from 132 planes to 75 planes and the number of new C-17 cargo planes from 210 to 120. Cheney is hoping to undercut Congressional attempts to slash the Pentagon budget.

U-S arms control negotiator Edward Rowny quit today as a special adviser to President Bush. Rowny's resignation comes amid reports he was skeptical about the rush to reach a new super-power accord on cutting back Soviet and U-S long-range nuclear missile arsenals. The 73-year-old Rowny has been involved in arms negotiations for 17 years. The White House says Rowny was a ''team player'' and had ''NO ulterior motive'' in quitting.

Colombian police say bodyguards shot and killed a hitman who smuggled a submachine gun aboard a commercial airliner and assassinated a leftist presidential candidate today. Hospital officials say the assassin shot presidential candidate Carlos Pizarro as many as 13 times before bodyguards killed him in a hail of bullets. Pizarro was en route to Barranquilla to make a campaign appearance for the May 27th election.

TORONTO, ONTARIO (APRIL 27) BUSINESS WIRE - Corona Corporation announced Friday that it has acquired a further 500,000 and entered into agreements to acquire 10,000,000 common shares representing in the aggregate an additional 16.6 percent of the common shares of Breakwater Resources Ltd.

On April 26, 1990, Corona, through its wholly owned subsidiary New Venture Equities Inc., purchased by private agreement a total of 500,000 common shares for cash representing 0.8 percent of the issued and outstanding shares of Breakwater.

On April 26, 1990 Corona entered into two private agreements, which are subject to regulatory approval, to purchase 9,000,000 and 1,000,000 common shares, respectively, in exchange for 3,000,000 and 333,333 Class ''A'' Subordinate Voting Shares, respectively, to be issued from treasury by Corona.

Corona now owns directly 1,152,100 common shares and owns through New Venture Equities Inc. 6,262,221 common shares for a total of 7,414,321 common shares representing approximately 11.8 percent of the total number of common shares of Breakwater outstanding. After the receipt of all regulatory approvals Corona will own directly 11,152,100 common shares and will own through New Venture Equities Inc. 6,262,221 common shares for a total of 17,414,321 common shares representing approximately 27.6 percent of the total number of common shares of Breakwater outstanding.

Breakwater has previously announced that it has entered into an agreement in principle with Bathurst Base Metals Inc. whereby Breakwater will acquire all of the issued and outstanding shares of Bathurst by way of business combination through which the shareholders of Bathurst will receive one common share of Breakwater for each 3.75 common shares of Bathurst held by them.

Corona holds 3,002,300 common shares of Bathurst and a debenture in the principle amount of $2,500,000. The debenture may be converted into common shares of Bathurst on or before November 30, 1990 at the rate of $1.50 per share (equivalent ot $5.625 per share after giving effect to the business combination) and thereafter at $2.10 per share (equivalent to $7.875 per share after giving effect to the business combination) at any time up to and including November 30, 1991.

If the business combination proceeds as planned and Corona converts the debenture on or before November 30, 1990 Corona will own directly and indirectly 18,659,378 common shares of Breakwater representing approximately 27.4 percent of the common shares of Breakwater outstanding.

Corona has acquired these additional shares for investment purposes and intends to continue to increase its holding in Breakwater. Corona's present intention is to acquire a substantial interest in Breakwater. However, Corona will continue to evaluate its investment and may increase or decrease its holdings as circumstances require.

PHOENIX (APRIL 27) BUSINESS WIRE - Pinnacle West Capital Corp. has reached an agreement in principle to sell Malapai Resources Co. for an undisclosed price to a U.S.-based affiliate of Paris-based Electricite de France (EdF), Pinnacle West Chairman Richard Snell said Friday.

Upon completion of the transaction, Total Minerals Corp., an indirect wholly owned subsidiary of TOTAL Compagnie Francaise des Petroles, will be operator/manager of Malapai, a company that mines uranium for use in nuclear power plants.

Snell said the sale is subject to completion of due diligence, execution of a definitive purchase agreement and certain regulatory approvals. The agreement involves the cash sale of 100 percent of Malapai's common stock, currently owned by Pinnacle West. He said Pinnacle West hopes to close the sale by the end of June and that net proceeds will be used to pay down Pinnacle West debt.

EdF is the only electric utility company in France. Approximately 75 percent of all electric power consumed in France is nuclear generated. TOTAL Compagnie Francaise des Petroles is France's second-largest energy company.

Other Pinnacle West subsidiaries include Arizona Public Service Co., the state's largest electric utility; SunCor Development Co., a real estate development company, and El Dorado Investment Co., a venture capital firm.

NEW YORK (APRIL 27) BUSINESS WIRE - Asset Securitization Cooperative Corp.'s (ASCC) $1.925 billion in commercial paper is rated 'F-1+' by Fitch.

The rating is based on the high quality of the receivables, and a revolving credit agreement provided by Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce (CIBC) and other high quality liquidity banks. This is the first time Fitch has been requested to evaluate the issuer's rating.

ASCC is a limited purpose cooperative corporation, created to engage in the securitization of financial assets. ASCC structures and purchases assets from Fortune 1000 corporations as well as commercial banks. The asset purchases are funded by the issuance of commercial paper.

CIBC, as servicing agent, has very strong management and servicing capabilities and is responsible for structuring and evaluating each proposed asset purchased by ASCC.

Each transaction is structured to be a strong investment grade in its own right.

Several layers of loss protection are provided for commercial paper holders. The first layer is a reserve, which is specific to each asset purchased, and enables it to achieve an investment grade level of credit strength. The next layer of protection is dependent upon the term of the purchased assets.

Short-term assets have secondary support from a CIBC revolving credit agreement which provides protection equal to the greater of 15 percent of ASCC's total investment in short term assets or the largest amount invested in short term assets purchased from any one seller. There is also available other revolving credit agreements from high quality liquidity banks up to their individual commitment levels.

Long-term assets have secondary support from a CIBC asset remarketing agreement. Under its terms, should more than 50 percent of the reserve for a specific transaction be drawn upon, CIBC would purchase assets at a price sufficient to pay off all commercial paper issued to fund the purchase of those long-term assets.

BREA, CA (APRIL 27) BUSINESS WIRE - PCC Group Inc. (formerly WMDM on NASDAQ, now traded over the counter) has reported record sales of $19,860,083 and net earnings of $215,714, or ten cents per share, for the first quarter of fiscal 1990 (the months ending Dec. 31, 1989), President and Chief Executive Officer Jack Wen announced Friday.

Wen attributed the strong results to greater sales of higher ticket products such as file server and multi-user operating systems, as well as the company's increasing penetration into the educational market.

"The workstation market is growing for PC platform manufacturers," he noted. (The workstation market includes centralized UNIX-type systems as well as so-called "Local Area Networks," or LANS, which link multiple personal computers in a single system).

"Over the past few months, PCC Group also has won contracts to supply such prestigious institutions of higher learning as UCLA, UC Riverside and UC Irvine with various Hewlett-Packard products and systems," he added.

PCC Group is a distributor of micro computer systems, add-in modules, memories, peripheral equipment, accessory products and integrated circuits.

In addition to manufacturing more than 50 products and systems on private labels (including its own "PC Craft" brand name), the company acts as an authorized dealer for Hewlett-Packard and an authorized distributor/OEM for a wide variety of products manufactured by such industry leaders as Western Digital, Funitsu, TEAC, NEC Home Electronics and Mitsubishi Electronics.

In all, the company purchases and resells approximately 600 products from some 50 outside corporations through its 12 sales and distribution facilities nationwide.

DALLAS (APRIL 27) BUSINESS WIRE - Greiner Engineering Inc. Friday announced its results for the first quarter ended March 31, 1990.

Greiner's 1990 first quarter net income was $698,000 equal to 20 cents per share on 3,424,907 average shares outstanding. This compares to first quarter net income in 1989 of $739,000 equal to 22 cents per share on 3,332,673 average shares outstanding. Revenue for the first quarter of 1990 was $26,535,000 compared to $24,091,000 in 1989.

The slight decrease in earnings was anticipated by management and was due to additional costs resulting from a reorganization of the company into five market-focused divisions which was implemented in the first quarter. Management anticipates that the company will begin to see the beneficial long term effects of the reorganization in the second quarter.

The company also incurred additional costs due to the unique marketing efforts necessary for a proposal on the new Hong Kong airport project. Greiner is included on the final candidate selection list and expects to receive notice of the successful firm within 30 days.

For the quarterly results reported above, earnings per share and average shares outstanding have been adjusted to reflect the 25 percent common stock split effected in the form of a stock dividend paid in 1989, and the 4-for-3 common stock split effected in the form of a stock dividend paid in February 1990.

Greiner's March 31, 1990 backlog stood at $117 million compared to $105 million at March 31, 1989.

The company also announced today a cash dividend of 5 cents per share of common stock. The dividend was declared by the board of directors on April 26, 1990 for stockholders of record on May 18, 1990 payable on June 1, 1990.

Several significant projects were awarded to the company in the first quarter of 1990. In the surface transportation market Greiner has been selected to re-design 10 miles of urban freeway through the City of Riverside, Calif.

The company had continued success in the air transportation market including a master plan update at Phoenix Sky Harbor Airport and expansion of Greiner's program management responsibilities at the Tampa International Airport. In the institutional market, the company was selected for a significant new school design project in a suburban Detroit area.

ST. LOUIS (APRIL 27) BUSINESS WIRE - Three McDonnell Douglas Corp. (NYSE:MD) employees in California are being honored Friday for their community service activities as part of McDonnell Douglas' first- ever Volunteers of the Year award program.

The employees are Elizabeth Fisher and Barbara Rose of Long Beach and Al Sanez of Huntington Beach.

The McDonnell Douglas Volunteer of the Year program is designed to motivate, recognize and emphasize the service the company's employees contribute to their communities. The 1989 awards program will honor 11 employees at a dinner Friday night hosted by John F. McDonnell, the company's chairman and chief executive officer.

Each volunteer will receive a framed certificate and an engraved commemorative crystal award. In addition, McDonnell Douglas will contribute $1,000 to the charitable organization of each volunteer's choice.

Sanez's grant will be awarded in his name to the Hispanic Cultural Study in Los Angeles; Rose's will go to the Veterans Memorial Committee in Long Beach and Fisher's to the Special Olympics in Long Beach.

Fisher, a senior secretary for McDonnell Douglas Finance Corp., joined the company more than a year ago. She is a long-time supporter of the Special Olympics program in Long Beach and serves as secretary for the Special Olympics Steering Committee.

Fisher also coaches and supervises numerous athletic competitions and coordinates dinners, dances and parades for the Special Olympics athletes.

Rose, a news distributor for Douglas Aircraft's Communications Department, has been with McDonnell Douglas for 28 years. Rose helps organize the annual food drive at Douglas Aircraft, acquiring food bins, coordinating the massive volunteer effort and assisting in the final sorting and distribution of the food and toiletry items collected.

Rose also coordinates clothing drives for homeless people and raises funds for the March of Dimes and the American Heart Association.

Sanez, an operations specialist for McDonnell Douglas Aerospace Information Services, will celebrate his 25th anniversary with the company in May.

For the past five years, he has contributed much of his free time as a volunteer with the Orange County Corporate Combined Project, where he helps maintain the Florence Crittenton Center, built a playground in Black Star Canyon and helps beautify the grounds of the Santa Ana Zoo.

In addition, Sanez has volunteered countless hours in support of the American Cancer Society, the March of Dimes and McDonnell Douglas' annual food drive.

For the first quarter of 1990, revenues were $551,273,000 compared with $516,709,000 for the like period in 1989. Net income for the quarter was $7,587,000, or 21 cents per share, as compared with $11,849,000, or 37 cents per share, for the like period in 1989.

In commenting on the first-quarter results, Mullane said: ''Operating income for each of our three lines of businesses showed an increase over the first quarter of 1989. I am pleased to report that the Casino Group's operating income was higher in both Atlantic City and in Nevada, that the Health Clubs achieved an all-time high in operating income, and the Products and Services Group continued to exceed same-period results as it had throughout 1989.''

Mullane further noted that the decline in net income of $4,262,000 was attributable to higher income tax rates, less capitalized interest and the absence of income from an operation sold in the second quarter of 1989.

SAN DIEGO (APRIL 27) BUSINESS WIRE - Furnishings 2000 Inc., a San Diego-based home furnishings retailer, announced that the company incurred a net loss of $14.6 million on sales of $43.3 million for the seven months ended Jan. 27 compared with an unaudited loss of $3.3 million on sales of $77.7 million for the seven months ended Jan. 28, 1989.

The company recently changed its fiscal year end from June 30 to the last Saturday in January.

The loss for the seven months ended Jan. 27, 1990, was due mainly to low sales volume, loss on closures of certain properties and the adverse effect of legal settlements. The low sales level was primarily the result of inadequate stocks of marketable inventory and the company's inability to advertise effectively.

As previously announced, GF Holdings Inc. acquired 63.1 percent of the outstanding common stock of the company on Sept. 20, 1989. Prior to the change in controlling interest, the company's inventory had become severely depleted and not salable at historical margins.

As a result of action implemented by the new management group, inventory levels increased subsequent to the change in control but were not present during the period ended Jan. 27, 1990, in sufficient quantities to support higher sales volumes. Included in the loss of $14.6 million were the estimated loss on closures of certain properties ($1.1 million) and legal settlements ($1.6 million).

As of Thursday, Apr. 26, the company had borrowed $6.5 million from a lender under its $10 million revolving credit facility and at that date had an additional loan availability of approximately $500,000 pursuant to the terms of the revolving credit agreement.

The funds borrowed, which have aggregated $6.0 million during the period subsequent to Jan. 27, 1990, were used principally to increase overall inventory levels (approximately $3 million) and fund operating losses.

In an effort to increase working capital in the near future, management (1) is in contact with its lenders in an effort to secure additional extended payment terms, (2) has suspended the management fee payable to its controlling stockholder, GF Holdings, (3) is continuing its programs to further lower its break-even point by taking actions to reduce costs at all locations including the corporate office and distribution centers, and (4) is also continuing its program to increase sales through advertising and marketing programs, selectively changing regional and store managers and store personnel as well as the reestablishment of internal sales training courses.

ALBANY, NY (APRIL 27) BUSINESS WIRE - The board of directors of KeyCorp declared a 6.3 percent increase in the quarterly dividend on its common stock at the directors' meeting held in Portland, Oregon on April 26, 1990.

The quarterly dividend has been increased 2 cents to 34 cents per share on its common stock, payable July 16, 1990, to shareholders of record June 29 1990.

A holder of KeyCorp common stock may now expect to receive cash dividends totalling $1.36 per share on an annual basis, up from $1.28 on an annual basis.

The board also declared a quarterly dividend of 98 cents per share on KeyCorp's adjustable rate cumulative preferred stock, Series A. That dividend is payable on July 2, 1990 to shareholders of record June 15, 1990.

KeyCorp (NYSE:KEY) with assets of over $15.4 billion is a financial services company headquartered in Albany. It has focused its banking expansion activities in the Northeast and Northwest.

Following a middle market focus, KeyCorp has concentrated its resources in cities and smaller communities of the northern tier of states, thus avoiding overcrowded marketplaces and single industry loan exposure.

OAKLAND, CA (APRIL 27) BUSINESS WIRE)--American President Companies Ltd. (APC) Friday announced a loss for its first quarter ended April 6, 1990 of $2.5 million, or 21 cents per share, compared with net income of $5.8 million, or 14 cents per share, for the first quarter of 1989.

Revenues increased to $587 million in the first quarter from $571 million in 1989.

Commenting on the first quarter financial results, Chairman W.B. Seaton said the company's transportation operations had a pretax loss of $11.2 million compared with pretax income of $7.9 million for the first quarter of 1989.

International revenues increased $6 million to $405 million due to a 5 percent improvement in volume, which was partially offset by a decline in the average revenue per forty-foot equivalent unit (FEU) for intra-Asia cargo. Domestic revenues of $172 million were essentially unchanged from the first quarter of the prior year.

The transportation pretax loss in 1990 was due to the continuing competitive impact on average revenue per FEU in the company's intra-Asia market, a decline in the margins of the company's intermodal freight brokerage operation and increased fuel and equipment expenses.

APC's real estate operations sold 48 acres of land in the first quarter of 1990 resulting in a pretax contribution of $6.8 million compared with $1.4 million in the first quarter of 1989.

Seaton said that since the beginning of 1990, the company has repurchased 488,100 shares of its common stock at an average price of $24.87 per share. The company has repurchased a total of 994,550 common shares since the board of directors approved an open-market repurchase program for up to two million shares of common stock in January 1989.

CORAL GABLES, FL (APRIL 27) BUSINESS WIRE - The chairman of the board of The Wackenhut Corp. (NYSE:WAK), one of the world's largest security and investigative organizations, announced Friday that the corporation's privatization efforts, which have been successful in the operation of jails and prisons, will now be increased and extended to other professional fields.

George R. Wackenhut, who is also the founder and chief executive officer of the corporation, announced first quarter, 1990, revenues and income as he addressed the shareholders at the corporation's annual meeting.

First quarter revenues totalled $125,079,000, compared to $106,355,000 for the like period last year, an increase of 18 percent. Net income for the first quarter amounted to $1,273,000, or 33 cents per share, compared to $873,000, or 23 cents per share for the like period last year, an increase of 40 percent.

Wackenhut reported to the shareholders that the revenues for the subsidiary which operates prisons, jails and correctional facilities quadrupled in 1989 compared to the previous year. Wackenhut Corrections Corp., which was formed only two years ago, now operates nine facilities in six states and is expected to surpass $30 million in annual revenues at the end of 1990.

He stated that future privatization should take place in the area of law enforcement and police support tasks. He explained that contract security officers could be used for routine tasks, thus freeing fully trained and sworn police officers to concentrate on patrolling and other activities which have a direct effect on deterrring crime.

The Wackenhut Corp. listed on the New York Stock Exchange, was founded in Miami 35 years ago, and now has over 39,000 employees, located in over 40 countries, on six continents. Its corporate headquarters is in Coral Gables and it has offices in over 125 United States cities.

LONDON (APRIL 27) BUSINESS WIRE - April 27, 1990, British Gas, (NYSE: BRG), the largest integrated gas company outside of Russia, said it will be looking for imported as well as indigenous sources of gas supply. ''The choice is a commercial matter and artificial restrictions on the sources from which new supplies to Britain come are clearly inappropriate '' said James Allcock, British Gas' Director of Gas Supplies, in a speech at the Gas Power '90 conference in London.

Allcock was unveiling a response to the changing market structure of the gas industry in Britain. The traditional method under which each purchase contract committed the entire recoverable reserves of a gas field had served well over 25 years but other forms of contract were now needed. But the British Gas objective would be to buy on the best possible terms the gas required to meet the demand. To achieve this, British Gas would: - Offer contract arrangements which were suitably flexible for sellers who had options to sell direct, particularly to the developing gas power generation market, - Speed up the process of contracting, simplifying and standardizing the contract terms where possible.

British Gas, headquartered in London, is the largest integrated gas company in the Western world and is primarily involved in the purchase, transmission, and sale of natural gas to domestic, industrial and commercial customers in Great Britain.

Important support activities to its marketing efforts include appliances trading and customer services to domestic gas customers. British Gas is also active in the exploration for and production of hydrocarbons both offshore and onshore. Expertise developed in the gas business is offered for sale overseas through the British Gas International Consultancy Service.

British Gas American Depositary Receipts are traded on the New York Stock Exchange. One ADR is equivalent to ten Ordinary Shares.

HARTFORD, CT (APRIL 27) BUSINESS WIRE - Aetna Life & Casualty Friday reported first quarter net income of $180 million, or $1.61 per common share, compared with $174 million, or $1.52 per common share, a year ago.

The 1990 results include net realized capital gains of $20 million (18 cents per common share), compared with net realized capital gains of $21 million (18 cents per common share) last year. First quarter 1989 capital gains were helped by a $23 million gain from the sale of the company's Australian insurance operations.

Commercial insurance and reinsurance results during the quarter continued to reflect a soft pricing environment. However, charges to first quarter 1990 results for additions to loss and loss expense reserves for prior accident years were substantially lower than charges in the quarter a year ago.

Total shareholders' equity at March 31, 1990 was $6.9 billion, up 6 percent from a year ago. Shareholders' equity per common share of $62.12 rose 6 percent from last year.

BUFFALO (APRIL 27) BUSINESS WIRE - Consolidated revenues and net earnings declined slightly during the first quarter of 1990 as compared to the previous year.

The Electronic Products segment sales and earnings are lower from that of the previous year; however, their backlogs have improved since December, 1989. The Industrial Process Equipment segment sales and earnings have improved significantly as compared to the similar period one year ago. Overall, the company's backlogs have improved 14 percent since the beginning of the year.

On April 27, 1990, the board of directors declared a 5-for-4 share distribution on its common shares, payable June 22 to shareholders of record May 18. No fractional shares will be distributed, and shareholders entitled to fractional shares will be paid in cash. The company presently has 5,865,935 shares of common stock outstanding, and the distribution will increase that to approximately 7,332,419 shares outstanding.

In addition, the board declared a regular quarterly dividend of $.045 per share on the new shares (after the 5-for-4 share distribution) payable July 16 to shareholders of record June 25. The quarterly dividend rate on the new shares represents an increase of 12.5 percent and represents the 13th consecutive year of increase in cash dividends.

CLEVELAND (APRIL 27) BUSINESS WIRE - Ferro Corporation (NYSE-FOE) reported increased sales and lower earnings for the first quarter ended March 31, 1990, compared with the same period a year ago. At the Company's annual meeting here today, Adolph Posnick, Ferro's Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, told shareholders that for the three-month period, worldwide sales of Ferro's specialty materials were $279.7 million, up from $271.5 million in the first quarter last year. Net income declined to $6.0 million, or 26 cents per common share (primary), from $12.4 million, or 60 cents per common share, in the first quarter of 1989.

Mr. Posnick commented that while the first-quarter performance was disappointing, there is optimism about the rest of 1990. The factors affecting recent earnings are not permanent and do not change Ferro's long-term business prospects.

At today's annual meeting, stockholders voted to re-elect three current directors -- Robert M. Ginn, Adolph Posnick and Rex A. Sebastian -- to serve three-year terms.

KPMG Peat Marwick were confirmed as independent auditors for the Company's books and accounts for the year ending December 31, 1990.

Ferro Corporation is a leading international producer of industrial specialty materials, including coatings, colors, chemicals, plastics and ceramics. In 1989, the Company reported sales of $1.08 billion.

ATLANTA (APRIL 27) BUSINESS WIRE - Richard D. Jackson, the chief executive officer of Georgia Federal Bank, announced Friday the appointment of William Farr III as president and chief operating officer, effective May 1.

Jackson, who has held both titles for the past four years, will assume the role of vice chairman while retaining the office of the chief executive officer.

With the additon of Farr to the Executive Management Group, Jackson indicated that he will now be able to perform his full responsibilities as a member of the Executive Management Group at First Financial Management Corp., Georgia Federal's parent company.

The addition of Farr to Georgia Federal's executive management team is a step in continuing to strengthen the organization. Dick Jackson explained, "The changing financial services industry, competition and the direction of Georgia Federal, as a result of our new ownership under FFMC, dictated that we needed more diversification, flexibility and capability at the executive management level."

Farr, an Atlanta resident, joins Georgia Federal with 28 years of banking experience at First Atlanta Bank, where he most recently served as executive vice president and deputy general manager of First Wachovia Corporate Services Inc., the corporate banking subsidiary of First Wachovia Corp., and as an executive vice president of the First National Bank of Atlanta.

Jackson expressed his enthusiasm about the change, saying that, "Bill will strengthen and add breadth to our executive management group. He brings to Georgia Federal an exceptionally strong banking background which encompasses all key areas of the banking industry, including corporate and retail banking, commercial real estate, and credit functions."

"Bill shares my vision for Georgia Federal," Jackson added. "He is as committed as I am to building our company as a superior banking organization."

Headquartered in Atlanta, Georgia Federal is a wholly owned subsidiary of First Financial Management Corp. Georgia Federal currently operates 64 banking offices throughout Georgia, as well as First Family Financial Services, a consumer finance company.

PLAINFIELD, IN (APRIL 27) BUSINESS WIRE - PSI Resources Inc. (NYSE:PIN) Friday announced earnings of 70 cents per share of common stock for the quarter ended March 31.

Earnings are down slightly from 74 cents for the first quarter of 1989. The earnings decrease is due primarily to the effects of a phased-in 13.2 percent rate reduction, which was ordered by the Indiana Utility Regulatory Commission in 1988.

Earnings for the 12 months ended March 31 were $2.28 per share, compared with $1.85 for the same period a year ago. Earnings were charged 57 cents per share in 1988 and 4 cents per share in 1989 for reserves to cover the anticipated cost of the tentative settlement of a lawsuit by Wabash Valley Power Association. The pending suit is related to the canceled Marble Hill nuclear project.

In a meeting today with Chicago security analysts, J. Wayne Leonard, vice president and chief financial officer for PSI Resources, said that 1990 earnings for the company are expected to be about $1.90 per share.

''Numerous factors could lower this estimate,'' Leonard said. ''These include, among other things, a reduction in the level of sales to other utilities, the outcome of pending litigation and lower than anticipated growth in electric operating revenues. The weather was extremely mild during the first quarter of 1990 with heating degree days down 16 percent. If this trend continues, earnings will be less than expected.''

PROVIDENCE, RI (APRIL 27) BUSINESS WIRE - Today, Providence Energy Corp. (AMEX:PVY) reported earnings from continuing operations for the six months ended March 31, 1990, increased to $9.9 million ($2.35 per share) compared to $8.6 million ($2.11 per share) last year.

Second quarter earnings from continuing operations were $5.3 million, or $1.25 per share, as compared to $6 million, or $1.45 per share, for the same quarter last year.

Earnings for the periods presented were favorably impacted by a rate increase granted to Providence Gas Co. in June 1989 and designed to increase revenues by $4.9 million annually and the addition of approximately 4,000 customers in the last 12 months. Providence Gas also continues strong budgetary cost controls.

The large increase in sales and earnings for the first quarter, which was primarily due to the record cold spell in December, was offset by the prolonged warmer-than-normal weather during the quarter ended March 31st. For the fiscal year-to-date, heating degree days were 4,827 or only 3.3 percent warmer than normal (4,992). However, during the second quarter, degree days were 2,498 or 16 percent lower than normal (2,986).

Robert W. Owens, vice president and chief financial officer of Providence Energy Corp., stated that ''the unseasonably mild weather that has occurred in the January to March quarter significantly reduced quarterly results and offset earnings gains from the first quarter ended Dec. 31. Results for the remainder of the fiscal year will be less weather sensitive and comparable with results from continuing operations for the corresponding periods of prior years.''

Providence Energy Corp. is the holding company and parent of Rhode Island's largest natural gas distribution company, Providence Gas Co. Providence Energy's utility subsidiaries provide service to approximately 150,000 accounts in Providence, Newport, and 20 other cities and towns in Rhode Island and nearby Massachusetts.

HOUSTON (APRIL 27) BUSINESS WIRE - Adams Resources & Energy Inc. (ASE:AE) announced first quarter 1990 unaudited net earnings of $322,000 or 4 cents per common share after accrued preferred stock dividends of $31,000.

This compares to unaudited first quarter 1989 net earnings of $155,000. Revenues for the current quarter were $24,116,000 as compared to $19,788,000 in the prior year first quarter.

K.S. Adams Jr., president, attributed the increased earnings to improved transportation volumes and earnings in the company's liquid chemical trucking operation as demand has been strong. The high level of demand for hauling service has continued in the second quarter and the company anticipates further improvement in its earnings level.

BASKING RIDGE, NJ (APRIL 27) BUSINESS WIRE - Science Management Corp. (AMEX:SMG) Friday announced sales from continuing operations of $16,204,000 for the first quarter of 1990 compared with sales of $19,089,000 for the same period of 1989.

A loss after taxes from continuing operations of $795,000, or 28 cents per share was incurred in the period compared with a profit of $3,000 or no cents per share in the 1989 quarter.

The loss from operations before taxes was $550,000 in the 1990 quarter vs. profit $208,000 in the 1989 period. Income tax expense resulted from Foreign and State Income taxes payable on profitable operations.

The company had a loss from discontinued operations of $114,000 or 4 cents per share in the 1989 period.

The company's performance in the quarter was primarily due to lower revenues and losses in Management Services in North America and Executive Recruiting and Compensation operations, as well as lower results in Computer Systems units.

Gains in earnings were recorded in each of the companies engineering operations.

SKOKIE, IL (APRIL 27) BUSINESS WIRE - Bell & Howell Company's 1990 first quarter sales increased 9 percent to $147.6 million compared to $135.7 million in 1989, while the net loss was $5.7 million versus a loss of $20.8 million for the similar period last year.

William J. White, chairman and chief executive officer, said the first quarter earnings improvement resulted from sales growth in all business segments, improved operating expense leverage, as well as lower interest expense as the proceeds of asset sales were used to reduce debt. Order intake in the first quarter was also strong.

WALTHAM, MA (APRIL 27) BUSINESS WIRE - The Reece Corp. (NYSE:RCE) Friday reported first quarter 1990 net income of $48,000, or 2 cents per share, compared with $329,000 or $0.13 per share in 1989's first period.

Revenues in the latest quarter were $14,718,000, compared with $14,050,000 in the comparable 1989 quarter.

Peter J. Abate, president and chief executive officer, said, ''Earnings in the quarter were hurt by continued softness in certain of the company's key direct markets, the effect of the stronger dollar on foreign-sourced revenues and earnings, and narrower margins given greater indirect sales and competition.

''Business was particularly sluggish in both the United States and United Kingdom markets,'' Abate said. ''The slower economies and restricted inventory purchases by most major retailers have impacted apparel manufacturing and consequently capital investment.''

''While current forecasts indicate modest economic improvement later in the year, we remain cautious. Accordingly, we will continue to streamline our costs in these markets to be more competitive at the current lower business levels,'' he added.

The Reece Corp. manufactures and distributes specialized apparel machinery for the worldwide clothing industry.

NEW YORK (APRIL 27) BUSINESS WIRE - The Trump Organization says Forbes magazine made a mathematical mistake or purposeful omission by forgetting to include the $160 million per year anticipated gross operating profit from the Taj Mahal, while including the Taj Mahal debt service.

They stated the yearly interest charge of all three Atlantic City properties at $180 million, but only included the income from Trump Castle and Trump Plaza, which is $140 million.

Forbes conveniently forgot to add the $160 million figure to the $140 million, they therefore had the two smaller casinos paying the costs of all three casinos including the massive Taj Mahal.

Therefore, instead of the $30 million loss per year, Trump will have a positive cash flow of $120 million from casinos alone.

SYDNEY (APRIL 27) - Australia's largest financial institution, Westpac Banking Corp., will list on the Paris bourse, banks officials said here Friday.

Tony Benner, a spokesman for Westpac - Australia's first bank and oldest public company - said the bank expected to be listed in the middle of the year.

"Westpac believes Paris is the capital of continental Europe and we want to be there," he said.

The bank already has a branch in Paris and will issue a token 10 million shares when listed, he said.

The bank, ranked 72nd in the world with assets of 81 billion U.S. dollars, was considering listing on the Frankfurt and Zurich stock exchanges, he said.

The bank is currently listed in Sydney, New York, London, Tokyo and Wellington.

MANILA (APRIL 27) - The Philippines' balance of payments deficit more than tripled between January 1989 and 1990 to reach 493 million dollars, Central Bank spokesmen said here Friday.

The sharp increase from the 133 million-dollar deficit posted in January 1989 was attributed to slow export growth and the continued surge of imports.

The current account deficit hit 181 million dollars last January, a 70 per cent increase from the same period in 1989.

Merchandise imports hit 855 million dollars, up 21.45 percent from the same period last year while merchandise imports grew by only 1.74 percent to 586 million dollars.

The bulk of imports consisted of oil, raw materials, capital equipment and intermediate goods while electronics, garments, coconut oil and copper pushed up export earnings.

The Philippines posted a 448 million dollar balance of payments surplus in 1989, due to infusion of foreign loans, rescheduling of debt payments and remittances of Filipino workers overseas which overcame a 2.56 billion dollar trade deficit.

NEW DELHI (APRIL 27) - India plans to boost annual aluminium production by 270,000 tons in five years' time and set up an export-oriented plant at a cost of more than 700 million dollars, an official said here Friday.

Mines Secretary P.K. Lahiri told reporters that public sector aluminium units would raise output by 160,000 tons and the private sector by 110,000 tons by 1995.

A private sector alumina plant at an estimated cost of 706 million dollars will be built during the period exclusively targeted for export, he said. Two private sector companies are in the race to land the project.

India's aluminium production stands at 480,000 tons and the planned expansion would go towards meeting an eight percent annual increase in demand.

Aluminium is the only non-ferrous metal whose production currently exceeds demand, enabling India to export 25,000 tons in the fiscal year ending March. Aluminium and alumina exports earned 240 million dollars in fiscal 1989-90.

A devastating fire at a public sector aluminium plant in Korba town last month caused production losses of 59 million dollars and a 30,000-ton shortfall in output, Mr. Lahiri said.

The official reported impressive performances by public sector units making non-ferrous metals, such as aluminium, copper and zinc, whose sales amounted to 1.32 billion dollars in 1989-90.

The National Aluminium Co. topped the list with sales of 505 million dollars and profits of 71 million dollars. The only loss-maker was Bharat Gold Mines, which was 15.8 million dollars in the red on a turnover of 22.3 million.

PARIS (APRIL 27) - Consumer prices in France rose by 0.3 percent in March after an increase of 0.2 percent in February taking the increase during the last 12 months to 3.4 percent, official figures showed on Friday.

So far this year prices have risen by 0.8 percent.

The number of people unemployed rose by 0.4 percent in March to total 2,504,200 on a seasonally adjusted basis, representing an unemployment rate of 9.4 percent of the workforce.

Compared with one year ago, the rate of unemployment was down by 1.2 per cent.

TOKYO (APRIL 27) - Japan Credit Rating Agency Ltd. said Friday it was reviewing its ratings for Mitsubishi Metal Corp. and Mitsubishi Mining and Cement Co. Ltd. following their merger announcement earlier this month.

The review affects almost 800 million dollars in long-term debt denominated in yen, dollars and guilders, all of which is currently rated "A-minus".

The two companies said on April 10 that they would merge their operations from December, creating a diversified metals and building-materials concern with combined sales of 900 billion yen (5.8 billion dollars) a year.

The two were both divisions of the same company until 1950, when the metal-mining division was spun off to form Mitsubishi Metal.

The rating review affects four bond issues by Mitsubishi Metal - two convertible issues denominated in yen, plus a dollar and a guilder issue with warrants - totalling the equivalent of 595 million dollars.

Two Mitsubishi Mining issues are also affected - a convertible issue denominated in dollars and a warrant issue denominated in yen - totalling some 195 million dollars, the agency said.

Wiesbaden (APRIL 27) - Trade between the two Germanys rose 12 percent in the first three months of 1990 amid a sharp upsurge in West German exports to East Germany, it was reported here Friday.

The Federal Office of Statistics said West German exports to East Germany totalled 2.05 billion marks (1.22 billion dollars) in the first quarter, up 22 percent.

East German deliveries to West Germany increased three per cent to 1.77 billion marks.

In March alone, West German exports reached 848 million marks 44 percent above the March 1989 figure for exports to East Germany, the office said.

East German deliveries to West Germany in March however slipped by one percent to 588 million marks.

MANILA (APRIL 27) - Total corporate investments in the Philippines in the first quarter of 1990 rose 119 percent to 6.22 billion pesos (273.9 million dollars), the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) said Friday.

Foreign corporate investments in the first three months of 1990 also rose by 276 percent to 1.456 billion pesos (64 million dollars), the government's business-monitoring agency said.

This was the first quarterly report on investment trends after the December 1989 coup attempt against President Corazon Aquino.

The figures show a sharp increase from the 2.83 billion pesos (127 million dollars) in total corporate investments and the 528 million pesos (23.6 million dollars) in foreign corporate investments posted in the first quarter of 1989, the SEC added.

The rise in investments came after the coup try by rightist soldiers which claimed 119 lives and injured over 500 people.

The Philippines posted total corporate investments of 21.966 billion pesos (985 million dollars) and foreign investments of 4.668 billion pesos (209.4 million dollars) in the whole of 1989.

BRUSSELS (APRIL 27) - Agricultural ministers of the EEC have agreed a basically static framework of farm price support for the third successive year while making some technical adjustments which assist notably France and West Germany.

The Irish Agriculture Minister Michael O'Kennedy, who chaired the overnight meeting, said that overall the meeting put the EEC in a strong position for negotiations at the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT).

The Commission of the European Economic Community (EEC) relied mainly on support from Britain and the Netherlands to win acceptance for a continuing policy of price restraint, sources close to the price talks said.

The final package broadly froze prices expressed in European currency units (Ecus), but took account of pressure for an easier stance by introducing technical measures on payment periods and on exchange rates.

Most of the nine million farmers in the Community will not experience price reductions. The French and Germans will benefit. French Agriculture Minister Henri Nallet said that the overall effect for French producers in French francs would be an increase averaging two per cent.

He explained that he had abstained from the vote because the other ministers had not agreed to reduce a tax on excess milk production.

The West German Agriculture Minister Ignaz Kiechle said that measures approved for cereals would almost totally compensate West German cereal producers for a reduction of prices caused by production controls.

The two-day meeting expressed support for the Commission in current negotiations at the GATT.

Mr. O'Kennedy, representing Ireland which holds the presidency of the Council of Ministers, said that the EEC was no longer in a defensive position in the talks, but on the contrary was maintaining the initiative.

The price package was "a good signal to our partners" in the GATT.

The ministers stressed the need for a global approach to an agreement on agricultural trade, due to be ready by December.

So far negotiations have been delayed by disagreements over subsidies for agriculture, and particularly over differences between the EEC and the United States.

The EEC is anxious that the reforms it has applied since 1986 be fully recognised, while defending the basic principles of the EEC's common agricultural policy, and in particular Community preference and market policy.

COPENHAGEN (APRIL 27) - The Danish central bank lowered its guideline interest rates on Friday by half a point, the bank announced in a communique.

It said its rate on deposits of financial establishments was lowered from 10.5 to 10 percent, and the rate on loans to banks (folio account) from 11.5 to 11 percent.

The move follows a relatively good performance by the Danish krone within the European Monetary System (EMS) and a continuing inflow of foreign currencies into Denmark, the bank said.

Denmark's leading bank, Den Danske Bank, reacted by lowering its interest rates by half a point.

PRETORIA (APRIL 27) - Three black men and three black women were murdered in Natal Province overnight, police said here Friday.

A man and a woman were hacked to death and their bodies set alight at Nosita township on Natal's south coast, police said in their daily "unrest" report.

In Molweni township near Durban port, a black woman was stabbed and burned to death. And in nearby Mpumalanga township, one of the fighting flashpoints, police said they found the bodies of two black men who had been shot dead.

A black woman was also shot dead by a "group" in Chesterville township, near Durban.

Natal townships have been fraught with battles between the socialist United Democratic Front (UDF) and the more conservative Zulu Inkatha since late 1986, with more than 3,000 deaths reported.

The Institute of Race Relations (IRR) said this week that death tolls in Natal are at present higher than both Belfast and Beirut. Some 700 people have died in the province since the beginning of the year.

Meanwhile, police have warned motorists driving through strife-torn Natal townships to keep their doors locked at all times following the brutal killing of a white mechanic near Kwa Makhutha township in coastal Natal on Wednesday.

His body was found a short distance from the burnt-out shell of Henry Jeffrey's car.

MOSCOW (APRIL 27) - Four years after the Chernobyl disaster, construction of another Soviet nuclear plant has been halted in the autonomous Tatar Republic in the Ural Mountains.

The newspaper Rabochaya Tribuna said Friday the autonomous republic's soviet, or parliament, took the decision following protests from local people.

It requested the Tatar council of ministers to provide recommendations as to the safety and environmental cleanliness of the plant before July 1.

The parliament said in a resolution that if the nuclear plant was completed, it could endanger the Volga River basin all the way to the Caspian Sea.

It added that the Soviet Union's biggest car factory, at Togliatti, and a petrochemical plant were only a matter of kilometres away from the site. The newspaper did not say when the parliament passed the resolution.

The halt to construction is the latest in a series of local revolts against nuclear-power-plant construction following the April 26, 1986 rupture of a nuclear reactor at Chernobyl in the Ukraine. Intensive fallout hit a wide area around Chernobyl.

ULSAN, SOUTH KOREA (APRIL 27) - If South Korean President Roh Tae-Woo orders his riot police to storm Hyundai's shipyard here to break up an ongoing strike, the troops will be up against a well-organized and armed band of workers.

Several thousand of them spent the night in the shipyard, which they have occupied, lugging around iron pipes and guarding mounds of metal fittings, nuts, bolts and anything that might make a handy projectile.

Workers from the Hyundai Heavy Industries Co. went on strike Wednesday to force the company to drop legal proceedings against union leaders and agree to a series of compensation and payment demands.

On Friday morning they emerged triumphantly, having survived another night despite predictions that police would attack at dawn.

After a rousing rally well past midnight, dozens of workers came to the compound's gate armed with sticks after they heard a rumor that a government attack was imminent.

That rumor, like many others, turned out to be false.

The workers are getting ready, however. In the afternoon they plan to have have a weapons-making session and practice battle drills to improve their aim with slingshots.

They have also organized themselves into units which patrol the huge shipyard, the largest in South Korea.

The plant, which employs 20,000 workers and normally rolls out vessels for costumers around the world, has been turned into a huge tented city.

Inside, the workers have pitched more than 100 plastic shelters where many keep up their vigil at night. They light bonfires to keep warm and sing labor songs to keep up their morale.

At the gate, an ad-hoc security force checks identification cards issued by the workers themselves. Wooden stakes have been piled up to impede the advance of police trucks, backed up further inside the plant by more ominous-looking gas tanks which they threaten to ignite if troops are sent in.

Motorbikes constantly buzz in and out of the compound, reportedly bringing in information about the police.

The police presence is not far away. More than 40 buses filled with riot police are lining the road which leads from the airport to this southeastern industrial port city.

Mr. Roh's government has made it clear that it is ready to quash the strike, with force if necessary, ordering more than 10,000 riot police into the city.

It says that increased labor strife would make South Korea's already slumping economy less competitive.

But exactly when the government will make its move is unclear to the striking workers here.

"They are coming in at five tomorrow morning. But we're ready," said one worker on Friday at the union office which is acting as a nerve center, repeating similar warnings made a day earlier.

However, both sides agree that this year will not be a repeat of 1989, when a strike lasted 109 days. Then too the government broke it up with thousands of riot police, rounding up and jailing some 700 workers.

In Seoul, student radicals attacked four retail shops of the Hyundai Motors Co. with petrol bombs and iron pipes late Thursday, police and company oficials said. Hyundai Motors is a sister company of Hyndai Heavy Industries.

The students broke windows and scattered leaflets denouncing the government's plan to use police force to end the strike at the shipyard. There were no arrests after the attacks.

Local press reports said 18,000 policemen were deployed near the shipyard for the police action in Ulsan. The police planned to use helicopters to drop teargas bombs and mobilize ships in the operation, the reports said.

WARSAW (APRIL 27) - Poland's municipal elections next month are being billed by officials here as a trial run in democracy for a population that has not taken part in a free poll in nearly 45 years.

Bronislav Geremek, the head of the Solidarity bloc of deputies in the Polish parliament, described the May 27 elections for 120,000 municipal councillors as "a decisive event for Polish democracy."

A top official in the ministry charged with reforming local government said that organizing the vote had been "a difficult struggle to change attitudes" in a population unversed in the workings of democracy.

A total of 2,500 offices have been set up across the country to provide voters, as well as candidates, with information about the elections and their new municipal councils.

Polish leaders have also sought to learn from the experience of the industrialized democracies and have brought in Western experts.

Andre Rossinot, the deputy mayor of the French city of Nancy, recently visited Warsaw and screened a 20-minute video outlining the workings of a French municipality.

The former minister said he hoped that the film would allow Poles, who own more than one million videotape recorders, to "get an idea of what the West does."

The film is to be distributed by the ministry charged with local government reforms and civic committees linked with Solidarity.

Many Poles appear to have only a vague idea at the moment of what exactly their future local governments will be expected to do.

The Polish parliament has passed legislation laying out some of the ground rules for the elections, although much remains unclear.

They will involve one round of voting in towns of less than 40,000 people with the winner being the candidate who earns a majority. In larger cities, seats will be distributed on a proportional basis.

The 120,000 municipal councillors are to then elect a mayor for each town or city and basically just accumulate power as they muddle along.

Parliament, struggling under a deluge of pending legislation, has not yet decided on the sharing of powers between the state and city authorities.

How city authorities are to raise funds has also not been alid out although mayors are expected to transfer state- or party-owned assets to the muncipal government.

Jerzy Stiepen, the top official charged with conducting elections, said that legislation mapping out the the powers of local governments should be voted in about a year and a half by the Polish parliament.

GENEVA (APRIL 27) - There has been a 64 percent drop in the number of boat people who have arrived in Hong Kong so far this year compared to the same period last year, a spokesman for the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) said here Friday.

But the spokesman warned that the trend cannot be confirmed until after May and June, the sailing season when boat people have tended to flock to the British colony.

In 1989, some 18,000 boat people arrived in Hong Kong during May and June. Since the start of this year, Hong Kong authorities have registered only 916 arrivals.

The spokesman said the drop could mean that more information appears to be filtering back to Vietnam alerting potential refugees of the difficulties they can expect to encounter on arrival in Hong Kong.

To curtail the severe overcrowding in refugee camps and stop what is seen as the rise in economic refugees, Hong Kong has started to implement a policy of strict screening with the possibility of forcible return for those deemed ineligible.

Since January 1, 1,000 Vietnamese boat people have voluntarily returned home, and in all 1,981 voluntary repatriations have been registered since the program started last year.

During the month of May, some 720 more voluntary repatriations are planned by the UNHCR, the spokesman said.

TOKYO (APRIL 27) - Bank of Japan Governor Yashushi Mieno plans to announce sweeping reforms in the bank next week to reflect changes in domestic and international financial markets, an informed source said Friday.

The changes within the central bank, which has not been reorganised for seven years, are to take effect May 28, the source said, adding that conduct of monetary policy would not be affected.

The main change involves reorganising bank departments and cutting their number from 18 to 16.

A major innovation includes a new market operations department -- replacing the existing credit department -- to monitor developments in financial markets, and a prudential supervision department to monitor commercial bank activities.

The bank will also establish a new international department to monitor developments in the foreign exchange market exclusively, the source said, adding that the department will no longer be in charge of monitoring the activities of Japanese banks abroad and foreign banks in Japan.

The central bank also plans to set up a representative office in Washington, supplementing those in New York, Frankfurt, London, Paris and Hong Kong, reflecting its wish to monitor more closely the activities of the Federal Reserve Board and increasingly influential U.S. Congress.

Mr. Mieno was appointed governor in December, replacing Satoshi Sumita at the end of his five-year term.

The current governor has spent his entire career at the central bank, while his predecessor was a Finance Ministry appointee.

PERTH, AUSTRALIA (APRIL 27) - Shares in Alan Bond's Bell Group Ltd. traded Friday as low as 0.5 Australian cents (0.38 U.S.) after a major shareholder ditched its stake, brokers said.

Analysts said the fall from Thursday's close of 10 cents (7.5 U.S) occurred when the Western Australian State Government Insurance Commission (SGIC) dumped its 19.6 per cent stake.

The SGIC later confirmed that it was a seller of Bell Group, the owner of Perth's daily newspaper, The West Australian, but refused further comment.

The SGIC acted to create the circumstances needed for a court battle with Bell Group's parent, Bond Corporation Holdings Ltd., to recover the loss booked on the sale, the analysts said.

The SGIC once took legal action to have a provisional liquidator appointed to Bond Corp. on the ground it was insolvent.

The SGIC's move came amid a dispute over 850,000 dollars (637,000 U.S.) it alleged was owed by Bond Corp. under an indemnity agreement relating to the commission's shares in Bell Group.

The 63.9 million Bell Group shares appeared to have been sold at an average price of three cents (2.3 U.S.) for a total of 1.9 million dollars (1.4 million U.S.).

HONG KONG (APRIL 27) - A slowdown in Hong Kong's domestic exports persisted in March, although the negative trend appeared to be bottoming out, official statistics showed Friday.

During the month, the value of locally made exports was 16.5 billion Hong Kong dollars (2.1 billion U.S.), 0.7 percent down from the same month last year.

The small decline compared with falls of three to four per cent recorded in the same category in recent months.

In March, the British colony's value of re-exports, mostly goods from China, rose 16 percent to nearly 31 billion dollars (nearly four billion U.S.)

Imports also grew 5.6 percent to to 51 billion dollars (6.5 billion U.S.), leaving a deficit of 3.8 billion (487 million U.S.) for the month although it was an improvement on the 5.3 billion dollar (680 million U.S.) deficit logged in March 1989.

BUDAPEST (APRIL 27) - Tibet's exiled spiritual leader and Nobel Peace Prize-winner, the Dalai Lama, arrived here Friday for a two-day visit, the MTI news agency said.

He had been invited by two Buddhist communities, Karma-Kadupa and Chan, set up in Hungary last year, and by a scientific society, the agency said.

In East Europe, the Dalai Lama has already been to Czechoslovakia, Poland and East Germany.

China, which has occupied Tibet since 1950 claiming the country as a part of Chinese territory, protested to the East European governments over he received on each occasion.

GENK, BELGIUM (APRIL 27) - A "part-time" strike by 11,000 Ford workers at Genk, in eastern Belgium, has cut the factory's output in half in the six weeks it has been going on, sources said at the company on Friday.

The plant makes the Ford Sierra, in particular. Workers have been going to work for only four hours a day.

Proposals of a mediator, accepted by management, were rejected this week by an overwhelming majority of the striking workers. Hence the unions have decided to continue the strike, demanding wage increases of around 50 Belgian francs 1.44 dollars) an hour. Management has offered 12 francs.

A company spokesman said the impasse is "complete" and negotiations are suspended.

Normally, the Genk factory turns out 1,470 Sierras a day and 364 Transit vans.

LONDON (APRIL 27) - The London Court of Appeal on Friday quashed jail sentences against three Irish nationals convicted of the attempted killing of former secretary of state for Northern Ireland Tom King.

The court ruled that Mr. King's statements in television interviews alleging that the defendants' silence was proof of their guilt had been detrimental to the trial.

A court in Winchester, southern England, jailed Martina Shanahan, 24, John McCann, 26, and Finbar Cullen, 29, for 25 years each in October 1988 for setting up an attack on the lives of Mr. King and other public figures including judges and the military.

Two of them had been arrested near Mr. King's private home.

The three were expected to be deported to Ireland within hours, according to their lawyer.

Last October a London court of appeal caused a sensation when it quashed life sentences against the "Guildford Four" -- three people from Northern Ireland and an English woman -- who had been found guilty in 1975 of a number of killings attributed to Irish Republican Army extremists.

BONN (APRIL 27) - Officers and other ranks in West Germany's Bundeswehr armed forces and the former communist-controlled East German National People's Army (Nva) should start cooperating soon, defence ministers of the two German states said here Friday.

Agreement on the issue was voiced at a press conference held by Bonn Defence Minister Gerhard Stoltenberg and his East German opposite number Rainer Eppelmann at CologneBonn airport.

It was the first meeting between a West German defence minister and his East Berlin counterpart since the end of the Second World War.

German armed forces should be rendered ''incapable of waging war'' said Eppelmann who added that the two Germanys would have to initially retain separate armies even after German reunification.

Both ministers agreed that the aim was to integrate a united Germany as a member of the Western Alliance without extending its military structures to the territory of the present East Germany.

The ministers also pledged to boost the exchange of information and cooperate on arms cuts, the scrapping of weapons and intra-German air safety matters.

Eppelmann said East German arms spending was due to sink by 29 per cent and later a total of 46 per cent. Nva strength might be reduced to below 100,000 men, he added.

NEW DELHI (APRIL 27) - More than 260 people were stricken with food poisoning in Madhya Pradesh state, central India, after a village marriage feast, but all were later said to be out of danger, the Press Trust of India reported Friday.

Doctors who rushed to Dhar village on Thursday night said the 266 patients were out of danger, while PTI quoted police as saying food samples had been sent for analysis.

The mass food poisoning was the second recorded in India in two days and the third this month.

More than 200 Moslems were hospitalized Thursday in Pune, western India, after drinking "sarbat," a local soft drink, to mark the end of Ramadan fasting.

Earlier this month 150 people died in northern Uttar Pradesh state after eating food contaminated with pesticide at a village engagement feast.

LONDON (APRIL 27) - Although there was more activity over the past week in the Middle-East Gulf, a surfeit of tonnage continued to pressure rates, London brokers E.A. Gibson said Friday in their latest report.

Iranian and Korean charterers absorbed a good number of large crude carriers (over 200,000 tonnes), but rates showed some deterioration compared with the previous week.

Very few fixtures were reported for smaller vessels in that area.

Charterers were very active in West Africa, but rates remained around previous levels due to sufficient tonnage.

An exception to the general trend was the Mediterranean, where a scarcity of early loaders and an increase in demand resulted in improved rates.

The Caribbean crude market was quietly steady, but clean rates decreased in places.

Although a respectable quantity of business was concluded in the North Sea, rates showed little change, Gibson said.

LONDON (APRIL 27) - British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher met here Friday with Soviet politician Boris Yeltsin and the two discussed prospects for development of a market economy in the Soviet Union, Downing Street said.

A Downing Street spokeswoman said Mrs. Thatcher told Mr. Yeltsin of her "special affinity" for Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev and expressed her support for the "historic" reforms being undertaken in the Soviet Union.

Mr. Yeltsin asked Mrs. Thatcher for help in management training programs and for home building projects in the Soviet Union and they had a "general discussion" of the country's economic problems, the spokeswoman said.

Speaking at a news conference after the meeting, Mr. Yeltsin, considered one of the most radical pro-reform politicians in the country, said the economic situation was "critical."

"We are almost bankrupt," Mr. Yeltsin said, adding that a 1.5 percent fall in production combined with a 14 percent average increase in wages in the past year were "speeding up inflation" in the Soviet Union.

He strongly criticized Mr. Gorbachev's plans for the economy which he said were at a "dead end" and said only "radical" reforms and the "complete independence" of businesses and other organizations would lift the country out of its economic crisis.

Mr. Yeltsin also sharply criticized Mr. Gorbachev's handling of the crisis in Lithuania, saying "I would consider it immoral to impose an economic blockade on our people."

"It is not a solution. The Lithuanians will suffer," he said, adding that economic sanctions against the breakaway republic would effect "ultimately the whole national economy."

BANGKOK (APRIL 27) - More than 40 people died when hundreds of pro-democracy demonstrators fought last month in northern Laos with troops of the communist government, a Thai military source said Friday.

About 1,500 people in Xieng Khouang province staged a protest "between March 11 and 13," calling on the government to allow greater democracy and solve the country's economic problems, the source said.

Seven soldiers and at least 35 protestors, mostly members of the large local H'mong minority, were killed in the clash, in Muang Bak, 250 kilometers (150 miles) northeast of Vientiane.

One of the world's poorest countries, Laos was taken over by communists in 1975 after years of conflict during H'mong tribesmen joined U.S.-backed special forces to fight Vietnamese and Laotian communist troops.

"Pro-democracy movements" have also developed in other parts of northern Laos, the Thai military source said, without elaborating.

He aded that Vientiane had made "baseless" and unpublished allegations that Thailand had masterminded the rallies.

Bangkok press reports meanwhile quoted Laotian Embassy officials as denying that the demonstrations had taken place.

"Although the embassy has not received any news from Vientiane, we can confirm and are sure that no such incidents took place in our country," the English-language daily Bangkok Post quoted one official as saying.

Official Vientiane radio, in a broadcast monitored here, on Friday reported "military suppressions of bad elements" in mountainous areas of Xiang Khouang province, in a district identified as Mok Mai.

It did not specify when the incident occurred.

Mok Mai residents live "in a state of backwardness," the radio said, adding that the area's "under-developed national defense and public security networks allowed bad elements to infiltrate ... to carry out subversive activities detrimental to the people's livelihood and security."

It added that "militia units have ... conducted regular patrols to search for the bad elements and suppress their sinister schemes," and described the troops' behaviour as "heroic."

The broadcast made no reference to casualties.

Some reports since late last year said an anti-communist group calling itself the United Lao National Liberation Front (UNLF), comprising mostly H'mong guerrillas, was becoming active in Xiang Khouang and other northern and central provinces.

Led by H'mong leader General Vang Pao, who now lives in the United States, the guerrilla force has sporadically fought the country's communist leadership since 1975.

Laos has long accused Thailand of backing such anti-communist movements, and asked the Foreign Ministry and National Security Council here on several occasions to help stop the alleged support.

Other reports say up to 20 insurgent groups are fighting to topple the government in Laos -- a narrow, landlocked country sharing borders with Cambodia, China, Thailand and Vietnam.

PARIS (APRIL 27) - The French insurance group UAP had a 1989 consolidated net profit, group share, of 3.42 billion francs (about 610 million dollars), up 20 percent from the 2.85 billion francs of 1988, the group announced on Friday.

Consolidated turnover of Union des Assurances de Paris was 64.48 billion francs last year, up 25.9 percent from the 55.6 billion of the previous financial year.

For 1989, UAP consolidated, for the first time, Sun Life (Britain), Allsecures (Italy), the SCOR Group, and UIF property company.

Consolidated technical reserves rise by 19.2 percent to 211 billion francs, while consolidated equity amounted to 20.5 billion francs at the end of 1989, against 16.8 billion one year earlier.

The group's unrealized pre-tax capital gains are estimated at 53.3 billion francs for 1989, against 41.2 billion the previous year.

A 1989 dividend of 8.60 francs per share will be proposed combined with a pre-paid tax credit of 4.30 francs. Hence total income per share will be 12.90 francs, up 36.5 percent.

LONDON (APRIL 27) - Natural rubber prices were quietly steady this week on the London physical market, with sterling's losses against the dollar providing some support late in the week, traders said.

The forward price (June delivery) for Ribbed Smoked Sheet No 1 (RSS 1) closed at 577.5 pounds per tonne against a May delivery price of 565 pounds the previous Friday.

Higher grade supplies continued to firm on a shortage of supplies due to dry weather in the Far East. Traders said they should continue their climb until rain arrives there.

Lower grades were mostly unchanged in quiet trading, they added.

JERUSALEM (APRIL 27) - All Christian holy sites in Israel and the occupied territories were closed Friday while church bells tolled to protest the occupation of a Greek Orthodox hospice by Jewish settlers.

A black flag flew over the Church of the Holy Sepulchre in Jerusalem when the basilica was closed at 9 a.m. in the presence of the Latin, Greek Orthodox and Armenian patriarchs.

"Be gracious, Oh God, for men trample upon me, all day long foemen oppress me, my enemies trample upon me all day," Latin Patriarch Michel Sabbah read from Psalm 56.

At the same moment, Christian communities closed the 150 other holy sites, at the Mount of Olives, in Bethlehem, Nazareth and on the shores of Lake Tiberias in the Galilee, correspondents said.

The closure until Saturday noon was decided Monday to protest the occupation by about 100 Jewish activists of a hospice near the Church of the Holy Sepulchre in the Christian sector of the Old City.

All church bells in Jerusalem rang as the sites were closed, the Holy Sepulchre's great bell tolling a knell.

The closure was without precedent since Ottoman rule over Jerusalem ended after World War I. It went ahead despite a Supreme Court decision on Thursday ordering the activists to leave the Greek Orthodox hospice.

The court however allowed 20 representatives of a Panamanian company holding the lease to the building to stay on until the legal dispute was resolved.

The settlers, whose action sparked demonstrations in the Old City, insist they have a contract with the Panamanian company, which bought the lease from an Armenian tenant.

The Greek Orthodox patriarchate says it did not approve the transaction.

A general strike, meanwhile, paralyzed Arab east Jerusalem and the West Bank, a day after Israeli troops shot dead four Palestinians in clashes with demonstrators in the occupied territories, Arab sources said.

The underground Unified Leadership of the 28-month-old Palestinian uprising in the West Bank and Gaza Strip called for the protest in solidarity with the Arab residents of Jerusalem.

OSLO (APRIL 27) - Israel has signed an accord to return 10.5 tons of so-called heavy water bought from Norway under a 1959 agreement, newspapers reported here Friday.

The quantity represents half the shipments of heavy water, which is used for nuclear reactions, that Israel bought from Norway under the agreement.

In Jerusalem, a foreign ministry spokesman confirmed that the new accord was signed Thursday in Oslo. The heavy water will be returned within one year of the accord's ratification by the Israeli government, he said.

An Israeli newspaper, Haaretz, also reported the agreement but gave no details of what had been done with the other 10 tons of Norwegian heavy water.

The new accord replaces the 1959 deal, under which Norway was granted the right to inspect nuclear plants in Israel to ensure that the heavy water was used exclusively for peaceful purposes.

Israel has repeatedly turned down Norwegian requests to inspect the Dimona nuclear reactor in the Negev desert, where Israeli scientists are alleged to have produced atomic bombs.

Only the United States and Norway produced heavy water for export at the time of the deal with Israel.

VILNIUS (APRIL 27) - About 50 opponents of Lithuanian independence demonstrated here for the first time Friday, blocking two bridges and a main road with cars and lorries as an economic blockade by Moscow took hold.

Commuters and police ended the demonstration in an orderly fashion after 90 minutes by moving the stalled vehicles to the roadside, police said.

A drivers' statement said that the situation in the breakaway republic "gives rise to concern and uncertainty about the future among working people, as tens of factories have been shut down, leaving their staff without means of subsistence".

Vilnius radio said proceedings would be laid against the protestors under legislation passed since Moscow eight days ago imposed its economic blockade on the republic, where parliament declared independence from the Soviet Union on March 11.

Food shops here were meanwhile preparing for fresh rationing measures from next Wednesday, following the May Day public holiday.

Sugar has being rationed throughout the Soviet Union for more than a year and ration tickets currently issued for it will now also be used for other staples.

Each person will be entitled to one kilogram (2.2 pounds) of sugar, two kg of flour, five 5 kg of oats, 500 gr of spaghetti, 250 gr margarine and one kg of salt per month, according to the official list circulated to foodstores.

NEW YORK (APRIL 27) - Iranian Foreign Minister Ali Akbar Velayati said Friday the security of the entire Middle East region could be in jeopardy if Iraq succeeds in acquiring new advanced weapons.

Velayati was responding to questions by newsmen at the United Nations about reports that Iraq threatened to use chemical weapons against Israel and attempted to build atomic weapons and a long-range cannon.

He said a Western reaction had been lacking when Iraq used chemical weapons during the Gulf War and to put down the Kurdish uprising on its own territory.

Only now, when it was becoming clear ''that this regime is going to be a real danger in that region for all regional countries, now they (the Western countries) have started to respond properly to what's going on in Iraq'',
 Velayati said.

LAGOS (APRIL 27) - The Nigerian military government Friday warned members of the public not to harbour or assist soldiers wanted by the government over last Sunday's abortive coup against President Ibrahim Babangida.

Any person found harbouring or assisting these wanted soldiers in their bid to escape ''will be summarily dealt with along with the suspects'', presidential spokesman Chief Duro Onabule said in an official statement.

Anyone with information on the whereabouts of any of these wanted soldiers should report immediately to the appropriate authorities, the statement added.

More than 200 soldiers had been arrested while 17 others, including a lieutenant colonel and an affluent businessman, had been declared wanted by the government since the failed coup bid.

Security agents were Friday still searching homes and offices in Lagos and its environs in a bid to flush out any participants in the putsch and to recover their arms, reliable sources in the Nigerian capital said.

A civil security guard outside the official presidential residence shot and killed the Nigerian driver of a Belgian embassy car here Thursday, a Belgian diplomatic source said.

The embassy has lodged an official protest over the killing with the Nigerian ministry of external affairs, the source added.

LIMA (APRIL 27) - Lack of funds is delaying the final tally of the first round of presidential elections here and could well push back the June 3 runoff, the National Election Board warned Friday.

With 90 percent of the vote tallied, novelist and Democratic Front candidate Mario Vargas Llosa had 33 percent to 35 percent of the vote, while independent Alberto Fujimori of Change-90 had 30 percent to 33 percent.

Neither received the simple majority of votes needed to win outright.

Board member Americo Vera said a delay in the runoff was unavoidable as it would take 20 days to print the ballots and 30 more to distribute them throughout Peru.

He said 1.2 million dollars was needed to print the ballots and other papers for the runoff but that Peru's ever-deepening economic crisis had drastically reduced tax revenues and the Ministry of the Economy had not released the funds.

MOSCOW (APRIL 27) - The Soviet economy continued to make a poor showing during the first quarter of the year, with inflation for consumer goods hitting eight percent, according to official statistics published here Friday.

National finances increased faster than incomes, and wages faster than productivity, Tass news agency said quoting a report issued by the Soviet committee for statistics.

During the same period Soviet savers added another 13.5 billion rubles (21 billion dollars) to their already burgeoning bank accounts, taking total savings deposits to 351.3 billion rubles (562 billion dollars).

The surplus money supply which the government is seeking to absorb is due to widely empty shelves in Soviet shops and the poor quality of consumers goods that few want to buy.

The average monthly salary was 257 rubles (411 dollars), up nine percent over the same period last year, while the average salary of kolkhoz farm workers was 184 rubles (294 dollars), up 10 percent.

Soviet officials have criticized the pay hikes which they said fuel inflation.

During the first quarter of the year incomes increased 13.3 percent rather than 7.3 percent as planned.

Statistics also revealed that state companies funnelled fewer funds into the national budget, slashing national revenues by 1.7 billion rubles (2.7 billion dollars) over the same period last year.

LIBREVILLE (APRIL 27) - President Omar Bongo announced late Friday that he had accepted the resignation of Leon Mebiame, Gabon's Prime Minister for almost nine years.

In a radio and television broadcast to the nation, Mr. Bongo said he had asked Casimir Oye-Mba, 48, governor of the Cameroun-based Banque des Etats de l'Afrique Centrale (Bank of Central African States), to form a new government.

The move came eight days after Mr. Bongo said a government of "national solidarity" would be formed following a nearly month-long conference on the future of the West African state.

Delegates to the conference recommended streamlining Gabon's government from its current membership of around 40 to between 15 and 20.

Mr. Bongo -- who for years opposed multi-party politics on the professed grounds that it would open the door to tribalism and undermine national unity -- said last week that Gabon "could be proud to be among the first black African states to realize the goal of democratic pluralism."

In his broadcast, he paid tribute to the 56-year-old Mr. Mebiame, calling him "my everlasting companion" and saying that he had rendered "immense services to the Republic."

Thanks to the former's premier's commitment to "the democratic process," Gabon stood "at the dawn of a new era," Mr. Bongo said.

Deputy prime minister since 1968, Mr. Mebiame became head of government on August 22, 1981.

LONDON (APRIL 27) - Boris Yeltsin, a leading Soviet critic of Mikhail Gorbachev, told British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher in London Friday that the Soviet president has ''only a few months left in which to achieve tangible economic results''.

Yeltsin, a member of the Supreme Soviet, said if the situation did not improve, then a revolution could erupt this year.

''If the Soviet economy were analyzed by Western standards, then we would be nearly bankrupt,'' Yeltsin said. ''In a civilized country like Britain, the government would resign.''

He called for radical reforms and said Soviet enterprises needed greater freedoms to make joint venture agreements with Western interests.

Yeltsin also criticized Gorbachev's handling of the Lithuanian crisis. ''It's not a solution to impose a blockade against a people,'' he said.

After the 40-minute meeting, Thatcher disagreed with some of the criticism. She said she supported Gorbachev's reforms which were historic and had opened a new era in East-West relations.

BRUSSELS (APRIL 27) - Most experts in a NATO group concerned with nuclear weaponry on Friday backed the scrapping of surface-to-surface missiles with a range of under 500 kilometres (310 miles), diplomatic sources said here.

The United States and Britain, however, wanted guarantees on a possible accord that would shift European nuclear defence to airborne strike forces and also eliminate nuclear artillery, the sources at the North Atlantic Treaty Organization said.

They particularly wanted assurances that airborne missiles currently being developed could be deployed in West Germany and other countries of the Atlantic Alliance from the mid-1990s.

Agreement was close, but the experts were unable to reach a final accord on the recommendations to put to a nuclear planning group gathering the defence ministers of the 16 NATO countries in Canada on May 9 and 10.

In West Germany, NATO currently has 88 launchers for 700 short-range Lance missiles, as against more than 1,000 short-range weapons held by the East bloc Warsaw Pact. In light of the decreasing perceived threat from Eastern Europe, the United States has decided not to modernize these warheads.

A U.S. source at NATO Friday denied as "absolutely false" reports that there was agreement on the total withdrawal of nuclear artillery. Washington is not keen to scrap 2,000 nuclear shells it holds, in addition to "neutron-bomb" warheads intended to kill living organisms without destroying material.

In December 1987, the United States and the Soviet Union signed an accord to get rid of intermediate-range nuclear forces (INF), which included short and long-range medium-distance missiles - the "double zero option", covering arms with a toal range of up to 5,500 kilometres (some 3,400 miles).

Moscow in January 1988 proposed the "triple zero option", to eliminate missiles with a range of under 500 kilometres (310 miles). The Soviet Union said that French Pluton and Hades missiles should be included, though France is not part of NATO's integrated command.

France refused, arguing that its nuclear strength was far inferior to that of the superpowers and that its missiles were in any case not intended as battlefield weapons. Pluton has a range of 110 kilometres (some 70 miles) and Hades of 480 kilometres (300 miles).

PARIS (APRIL 27) - The French government on Friday denied claims by the Australian defence ministry that France had approved the controversial sale to Pakistan of 50 Mirage warplanes built under licence in Australia.

"At no time did the government give its approval. The decision was taken by the Australian authorities without prior consultation with France," the foreign ministry here said in a communique.

India has officially protested twice since Australian Defense Minister Robert Ray announced the 36 million Australian dollar (27 million U.S. dollar) sale on Tuesday.

"The Mirage package was offered for sale on a commercial basis in August 1988 and negotiations initially commenced with Pakistan later that year," Mr. Ray said. "The Pakistan Air Force already operates Mirage aircraft similar to those acquired from Australia."

A defense force spokesman in Canberra said Wednesday that the Mirage III fighters were constructed under licence from France's Dassault company by the government aircraft factory, and for that reason Paris had to approve their sale to Pakistan.

The controversy comes as tension between India and Pakistan is running high because of nationalist agitation in the Indian state of Kashmir.

BOGOTA (APRIL 27) EFE - Security guards foiled an attempt to murder or kidnap the Catholic archbishop of the northern Colombian cocaine capital Medellin that came only hours after presidential candidate Carlos Pizarro was murdered, church officials reported Friday.

They said six men posing as secret police agents were allowed to enter the residence of Archbishop Alfonso Lopez Trujillo late Thursday, claiming the churchman was to accompany them on a "control operation".

The impostors fled, however, after security guards posted at the residence checked back with the Security Administration Department (secret police) and discovered that no such operation had been authorized.

Officials said their suspicions were roused after it was found that the bogus agents had used a different radio frequency from that ordinarily employed by secret police officers.

The gang's plans were doomed in any case, they added, because the archbishop had not been at home at the time.

The report came within hours of the murder of presidential candidate and former rebel leader Carlos Pizarro who was gunned down as he was traveling on a domestic air flight.

Subsequent phone callers claimed the killing was ordered by in Medellin's notorious cocaine trafficking cartel which has carried out random bombings and assassinations of public figures since the government began cracking down on them last year.

Pizarro's slaying came just weeks after the murder of leftist Patriotic Union presidential candidate Bernardo Jaramillo, which the government has also blamed on the traffickers

Managua (APRIL 27) EFE - Nicaraguan President Violeta Chamorro's government Friday devalued the currency 53 percent in the legal parallel market and introduced a new 1 million cordoba note, two days after taking office.

The price of the U.S. dollar rose from 77,600 cordobas to 144,200 cordobas in the parallel market, while the official price remained at 53,800.

On the black market, the dollar was selling for 128,000 cordobas Thursday.

The government also Friday introduced notes of 1 million cordobas and 500,000 cordobas, by adding digits to pre-existing notes of smaller denominations.

The largest note previously had been the 200,000 bill.

Barricada, the daily of the main opposition Sandinista party, reported Friday that Chamorro was also planning a +big devaluation+ of the cordoba's official exchange rate.

The leftist Sandinistas, the ruling party for more than a decade ending Wednesday, devalued the currency dozens of times.

TOKYO (APRIL 27) KYODO - JAPAN WILL MAKE CLEAR AT THE COMING QUADRILATERAL TRADE MEETING IN CALIFORNIA ITS WISH TO SEE THE ESTABLISHMENT OF A NEW WORLD TRADE ORGANIZATION AS PROPOSED BY SOME INDUSTRIAL COUNTRIES, A TOP-RANKING TRADE OFFICIAL SAID FRIDAY.

''JAPAN WILL GIVE ITS UNEQUIVOCAL COMMITMENT TO THE INTERNATIONAL EFFORTS TO CREATE SUCH AN ORGANIZATION AT THE MEETING,'' THE OFFICIAL, WHO REFUSED TO BE IDENTIFIED, SAID.

TRADE OFFICIALS FROM JAPAN, THE UNITED STATES, THE EUROPEAN COMMUNITY, AND CANADA WILL MEET NEXT WEEK IN NAPA VALLEY, CALIFORNIA TO DISCUSS VARIOUS MULTILATERAL TRADE ISSUES.

THE QUESTION OF CREATING A NEW WORLD TRADE ORGANIZATION THAT COULD REPLACE THE GENERAL AGREEMENT ON TARIFFS AND TRADE (GATT) AS THE PRINCIPAL FORUM FOR MULTILATERAL TRADE TALKS IS IN THE SPOTLIGHT AS THE DECEMBER DEADLINE FOR THE CURRENT URUGUAY ROUND OF TALKS APPROACHES.

A CONSENSUS AMONG BOTH INDUSTRIAL AND DEVELOPING COUNTRIES IS THAT IN ORDER TO TACKLE THE INCREASINGLY INTRICATE AND MUTUALLY CONFLICTING TRADE ISSUES, THE WORLD NEEDS A BETTER-FOUNDED BODY THAN THE GATT, WHICH DOES NOT HAVE A LEGAL STATUS AS AN INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATION.

U.S. TRADE REPRESENTATIVE CARLA HILLS CALLED FOR SUCH AN ORGANIZATION LAST WEEK, SAYING IT COULD OFFER A ''CONSISTENT MEANS FOR THE SWIFT RESOLUTION OF DISPUTES.''

THE JAPANESE GOVERNMENT OFFICIAL SAID, ''THE GATT IS UNDOUBTEDLY WEAK AS AN INTERNATIONAL BODY COMPARED WITH SUCH ORGANIZATIONS AS THE INTERNATIONAL MONETARY FUND.''

''A NEW, MORE POWERFUL, ORGANIZATION WOULD BE A GOOD THING FOR WORLD TRADE AND FOR MULTILATERAL SOLUTIONS TO TRADE ISSUES,'' HE SAID.

TOKYO (APRIL 27) KYODO - POINTING TO MOUNTING PRESSURES ON CORPORATE EARNINGS, THE BANK OF JAPAN (BOJ) SAID FRIDAY CONTINUED ATTENTION MUST BE PAID TO PRICE SWINGS IN FISCAL 1990.

IN ITS REPORT ANALYZING BUSINESS CONDITIONS, THE CENTRAL BANK SAID LATENT INFLATIONARY PRESSURES REMAIN STRONG BECAUSE HIGHER INTEREST RATES HAVE BEEN CASTING A SHADOW OVER THE PROFITABILITY OF BOTH MANUFACTURERS AND NONMANUFACTURES.

THE BOJ HAS RAISED ITS OFFICIAL DISCOUNT RATE FOUR TIMES SINCE LAST MAY, PUSHING UP INTEREST RATES.

AS A RESULT, THE GAP BETWEEN THE LONG-TERM PRIME LENDING RATE AND THE CORPORATE EARNINGS RATE, A MEASURE OF CORPORATE STRENGTH AGAINST PROFIT DECLINES, HAS NARROWED TO AROUND 3 PERCENT FROM ITS PEAK OF 4 TO 5 PERCENT LAST SPRING, ACCORDING TO THE REPORT.

AMONG OTHER THINGS, THE BOJ NOTED THAT CRUDE OIL PRICES, THE YEN-DOLLAR

EXCHANGE RATE AND LABOR COSTS SHOULD BE CAREFULLY MONITORED,AS SWINGS IN THESE FACTORS COULD PROMPT CORPORATIONS TO RAISE PRICES OF THEIR PRODUCTS AND SERVICES.

BUT THE CENTRAL BANK SAID CORPORATE CAPITAL SPENDING SENTIMENT AND PERSONAL CONSUMPTION, THE ENGINE OF THE PRESENT ECONOMIC EXPANSION, REMAIN STRONG DESPITE NEGATIVE EFFECTS OF THE SO-CALLED ''TRIPLE DEMERITS'' -- A WEAKER YEN AND DECLINES IN BOND AND STOCK PRICES.

THE CURRENT ECONOMIC EXPANSION WILL CONTINUE IN FISCAL 1990, ALTHOUGH THE PACE OF GROWTH WILL SLOW SOMEWHAT IN THE LATER HALF, IT SAID.

ON THE EXTERNAL FRONT, THE BOJ SAID THE NATION'S BALANCE-OF-PAYMENTS SURPLUS WILL CONTINUE TO SHRINK ON STRONG DOMESTIC DEMAND COUPLED WITH CORPORATE EFFORTS TO INCREASE IMPORTS IN DEFIANCE OF A WEAKENING YEN.

TOKYO, APRIL 27 KYODO - EIGHTEEN MAJOR JAPANESE TRADING COMPANIES CLINCHED 17.09 TRILLION YEN WORTH OF IMPORT DEALS IN FISCAL 1989, UP 20.4 PERCENT FROM THE PREVIOUS YEAR -- THE HIGHEST PERCENTAGE GAIN IN A DECADE, THE JAPAN FOREIGN TRADE COUNCIL ANNOUNCED FRIDAY.

THE RATE OF INCREASE WAS THE HIGHEST SINCE THE 79.9 PERCENT GAIN RECORDED IN FISCAL 1979.

THE COUNCIL ATTRIBUTED THE GROWTH MAINLY TO VIGOROUS DOMESTIC DEMAND AND THE RECOVERY OF CRUDE OIL PRICES.

THE 18 COMPANIES ARRANGED 14.57 TRILLION YEN WORTH OF EXPORT DEALS IN THE YEAR, A 10.1 PERCENT INCREASE, IT SAID.

THE COUNCIL FORECAST A CONTINUED UPTREND IN IMPORTS. HOWEVER, IT REFRAINED FROM GIVING AN OUTLOOK FOR EXPORTS, ON THE GROUNDS THAT THERE ARE MANY UNCERTAIN FACTORS INVOLVED.

AMID A GENERALLY SLUGGISH EXPORTS PICTURE, NEW SHIP EXPORT CONTRACTS CONCLUDED BY THE TRADING FIRMS POSTED A 48.4 PERCENT INCREASE, WITH THE REPLACEMENT OF GIANT CRUDE OIL TANKERS BUILT IN THE FIRST HALF OF THE 1970S GETTING UNDER WAY.

THE COUNCIL ALSO NOTED THAT A FEW BIG PLANT EXPORT CONTRACTS, EACH VALUED AT 100 BILLION YEN OR MORE, WERE FINALIZED WITH MIDEAST INTERESTS IN MARCH.

STEEL AND FOOD EXPORTS WERE IN POOR SHAPE. EXPORTS TO THE MIDDLE EAST RECORDED AN 88.4 PERCENT INCREASE. EXPORTS TO CHINA PLUNGED 36.3 PERCENT.

THE COUNCIL SAID IMPORT DEALS, INVOLVING FUELS, AND CENTERED ON CRUDE OIL, WERE UP BY 41.5 PERCENT.

IMPORTS OF AIRCRAFT AND OTHER MACHINERY JUMPED 67.6 PERCENT. IMPORTS OF TEXTILES, CENTERED ON HIGH-GRADE GARMENTS FROM WEST EUROPEAN COUNTRIES AND THE UNITED STATES, WERE UP 16 PERCENT.

OVERALL IMPORTS FROM THE U.S. WERE UP 40.7 PERCENT, WHILE IMPORTS FROM WESTERN EUROPE WERE DOWN 22.5 PERCENT.

TOKYO (APRIL 27) KYODO - A BANK OF JAPAN SOURCE SAID FRIDAY THE LATEST U.S. GROSS NATIONAL PRODUCT (GNP) DATA SHOWED THAT THE U.S. ECONOMY HAS BOTTOMED OUT.

THE SOURCE WAS COMMENTING ON A 2.1 PERCENT ANNUAL GROWTH RATE IN THE U.S. GNP FOR THE FIRST QUARTER OF 1990.

''IT'S A FIGURE WHICH PROVIDES CLEAR EVIDENCE THAT THE AMERICAN ECONOMY HAS BOTTOMED OUT,'' THE SOURCE SAID, ALTHOUGH HE DESCRIBED IT AS WITHIN THE RANGE OF EXPECTATIONS.

ASKED ABOUT THE POSSIBILE IMPACT OF THE GNP DATA ON U.S. MONETARY POLICY, THE SOURCE SAID THERE WOULD BE NO MAJOR CHANGE IN U.S. MONETARY STANCE TOWARD LOWER INTEREST RATES. HE DID NOT ELABORATE.

A DEALER AT ONE MAJOR COMMERCIAL BANK TOOK A SIMILAR VIEW, SAYING, ''THE GNP GROWTH RATE FELL NEARLY WITHIN OUR PROJECTIONS.''

COMMENTING ON A 5.7 PERCENT ANNUAL RISE IN THE GNP-DEFLATOR, A BROAD GAUGE OF INFLATION, THE DEALER SAID IT SEEMS A BIT HIGH.

BUT HE NOTED THE GNP DATA WOULD HAVE LITTLE IMPACT ON THE STOCK MARKET AS THEY HAVE ALREADY BEEN DISCOUNTED.

DUSSELDORF, WEST GERMANY (APRIL 27) PR NEWSWIRE - Eastman Kodak Company (NYSE: EK) unveiled the world's first laser-based direct digital color proofing (DDCP) system here today at Drupa '90, the printing and publishing industry's largest trade show.

The system produces proofs that are true likenesses of finished printed material, unlike most conventional proofing systems in which colors often seem artificial.

Moreover, the Kodak system eliminates the need for color separations in early proofing stages, since it produces color proofs directly from digital information stored in today's electronic prepress systems. (Color separations are special films for printing in color.) This capability, Kodak said, not only cuts material costs, but also enhances productivity: Proofs can be ready in 15 minutes vs. up to two hours with conventional systems requiring separations.

Also unlike such systems, Kodak's DDCP unit requires no special plumbing or electrical hook-ups and is a compact 5 ft. by 3 ft. It, consequently, moves digital color proofing beyond the proofing department into the color electronic prepress system environment where actual design of printed materials occurs, Kodak said.

The Kodak system can produce proofs up to 12 in. by 19 in. Kodak also announced at Drupa '90 a new daylight image assembly system and a low-cost high-quality PostScript-compatible color workstation:

SUNNYVALE, CA (APRIL 27) PR NEWSWIRE - Telebit Corporation announced today that it has made an initial public offering of 2,090,000 shares of its common stock at $10 per share. Of the 2,090,000 shares offered, 1,928,820 shares are being sold by Telebit and 161,180 shares are being sold by certain shareholders of Telebit. The shares will be traded on the NASDAQ National Market System under the symbol TBIT.

The shares are being offered through an underwriting syndicate managed by Cowen & Company and Needham & Company, Inc. Telebit has granted the underwriters an option to purchase up to an additional 313,500 shares of common stock to cover over-allotments, if any.

Telebit plans to use the proceeds of the offering for capital expenditures and for general corporate purposes. A portion of the proceeds may also be used to fund acquisitions of data communications businesses, products or technologies, although no such acquisitions are presently identified.

Telebit Corporation designs, manufactures and markets a family of high performance data transmission products, which utilize its patented multicarrier Packetized Ensemble Protocol (PEP) and proprietary digital signal processing technologies to achieve reliable, error-free connections and the highest available uncompressed data transmission rates over the public switched telephone network. These products excel in data intensive applications, such as the transmission of high resolutions graphics and large data files. Telebit's full line of high- speed modem products includes the TrailBlazer Plus, the T1000, T2000 and T2500 modems. In November 1989, Telebit introduced the CellBlazer modem for high-speed cellular data transmission applications.

TWINSBURG, OH (APRIL 27) PR NEWSWIRE - Revco D.S., Inc., today announced it has reached an agreement to sell 221 of its retail drug stores to Reliable Holdings Corp., of Fort Worth, Texas, which was formed by Acadia Partners, L.P., and the management of Reliable Drug Stores, Inc., a 112-drugstore chain based in Indianapolis. The purchase price was not disclosed.

Included are all the Revco stores in western Tennessee (west of metropolitan Chattanooga) and all Revco stores in the following states:

Illinois - Iowa - Indiana - Kansas - Kentucky - Michigan - Missouri Revco is currently operating under provisions of Chapter 11 of the U.S. Bankruptcy Code. The sale of stores to Reliable is subject to certain conditions, such as approval by the U.S. Bankruptcy Court.

Boake A. Sells, Revco chairman and chief executive officer, said, "All our customers can continue to shop at Revco with full confidence that their needs will be met. We anticipate a very smooth transition of these stores to Reliable."

Today's announcement represents the first major implementation step in Revco's plan, announced Jan. 26, to divest 712 of its stores in 17 states.

At the time Revco announced this plan, the company said it intends to focus growth, build market share and enhance its competitive position by reducing its store base to 1,100-plus drugstores in 10 contiguous eastern states accounting for 64 percent of chain sales.

Revco will focus its future growth in these 10 states where its stores provide the greatest return on assets: Georgia, Maryland, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, eastern Tennessee (metropolitan Chattanooga and east), West Virginia, and Virginia.

Added Sells, "We are pleased at the progress of our divestiture program," adding that, "throughout this process, I've been impressed again and again by the understanding and responsible attitude of Revco people. Impressed, but not surprised."

Revco, one of the nation's foremost drugstore chains, fills more than 66 million prescription annually. Based in Twinsburg, Ohio, the company has annual sales in excess of $2.7 billion.

COLUMBUS, OH (APRIL 27) PR NEWSWIRE - Construction of Saturn's first dealer facility in Ohio began today as Thomas Carpenter and company officials broke ground here for the future home of "Saturn/North."

Joining Carpenter in turning the first spade of ground were Donald W. Hudler, vice president of Sales, Service and Marketing; and Jerry Lewis, Saturn UAW representative.

"Tom Carpenter typifies our Saturn dealer partners," Hudler said. "They are highly successful retail automotive experts with organizations committed to providing superior customer satisfaction and an exceptional sales and service experience."

The stand-alone, uniform Saturn facilities will feature new concepts in merchandising and servicing cars including side-by-side sales and service entrances to enhance customer convenience and satisfaction.

"We're focusing on providing an exceptional experience for each customer who walks through the front door of this dealership," Carpenter said. "This key element of Saturn's philosophy will distinguish us in the market place."

Saturn currently has signed franchise agreements with 93 dealers for 102 marketing areas to build 121 dealer facilities across the United States. The automaker will introduce its cars first on the West Coast, Tennessee and the Southeast this fall, followed by a roll out across the rest of the U.S.

Paying tribute to the automaker's Spring Hill, Tenn., home and the environment, an area at the site was designated for a special Tulip Poplar tree to be planted at the dealership following construction.

"The Tulip Poplar symbolizes Spring Hill, the team spirit, and the hard work that will go into every car we will build," said Lewis.

While construction of Saturn's dealer facilities is under way in several states, equipment installation and validation of the automaker's new manufacturing and assembly complex is nearing completion in Spring Hill.

Saturn Corporation, an independent subsidiary of General Motors (NYSE: GM) is based in Spring Hill, and Troy, Mich. The company's mission is to develop, manufacture and market a family of high-quality, affordable cars to compete in the subcompact and compact segments of the market. Saturn products will be built at a 4-million-square-foot manufacturing and assembly complex in Spring Hill. The first cars, two-door and four-door models, will be introduced this fall.

WASHINGTON (APRIL 27) PR NEWSWIRE - Lufthansa German Airlines starts its first nonstop service between the capitals of the United States and the Federal Republic of Germany on April 30.

The new flight from Cologne/Bonn to Washington will expand the airline's daily service to Dulles International Airport by four flights a week.

Onboard Lufthansa's inaugural flight from Cologne/Bonn to Washington will be an official delegation including the Mayor of Bonn, Juergen Endemann, as well as Germany industry representatives and journalists. The delegation is headed by Dr. Falko von Falkenhayn, member of the executive board of Lufthansa. Dr. von Falkenhayn was appointed to Lufthansa's executive board in July 1989 and serves in the newly created board-level position of chief executive for marketing.

The nonstop service to Cologne/Bonn, Lufthansa's new Euro-Hub, gives passengers from the Washington-Baltimore area a choice when traveling to Germany and beyond. Now they can choose Lufthansa's nonstop flights to Frankfurt or Cologne. The daily flight to Frankfurt with LH 419 departs Dulles Airport at 5:50 p.m. and arrives in Frankfurt at 7:20 a.m. The flight to Cologne with LH 425 scheduled four times a week - Mondays, Wednesdays, Fridays and Sundays - departs Dulles Airport at 4 p.m. and arrives in Cologne at 6 am.

The new Washington-Cologne route brings to 11 the total number of weekly Lufthansa flights from the nation's capital to Germany. Lufthansa will also begin nonstop service to Cologne from Newark International Airport as of May 1.

On the new routes, Lufthansa will operate the new Airbus A310-300 jetliner which is noted for exceptional passenger comfort, environmental compatibility and fuel efficiency. The wide body, extended range plane has twin aisles, three classes of service in a 169 seat configuration (12 first, 40 business and 117 economy).

During 1989, over 20 million passengers flew on Lufthansa which provides passenger and cargo service to 182 cities in 85 countries. Earning a reputation as one of the worlds' most experienced airlines, Lufthansa has one of the youngest fleets of any airline.

A special US$ 399 introductory fare on the route Washington- Cologne/Bonn will be in effect until May 13. The fare is good for travel between April 30 and May 31. Certain restrictions exist such as a minimum stay of 7 days and a maximum stay of 30 days etc.

DEARBORN, MI (APRIL 27) PR NEWSWIRE - CMS Energy Corporation (NYSE: CMS) today announced that 200 megawatts of power from the Midland Cogeneration Venture (MCV), of which CMS Energy is a 49-percent owner, will be sold to Ontario Hydro, Canada's largest electric utility.

"This is the first major sale of needed electricity to utilities outside Michigan since the MCV began commercial operation just one month ago," said William T. McCormick Jr., chairman and chief executive officer of CMS Energy. "Clearly, the demand for MCV power is robust in Michigan and is growing throughout this region of North America," he stated.

Consumers Power is purchasing the 200 megawatts from the MCV for Ontario Hydro. Ontario Hydro will receive the 200 megawatts beginning this May. Ontario Hydro has estimated that it will need some 50 to 100 percent more electric power by the year 2014 than is used in the Province today.

"With few major new utility plants planned in the east central region of the U.S. and growing regional power needs in the early 1990s, the MCV is well positioned with new electric capacity," said McCormick. One of the cleanest major electric generating facilities in the world, the MCV is fully expected to meet any new acid rain compliance requirements pending before the U.S. Congress.

CMS Energy Corporation is a $3 billion (sales) diversified energy company with businesses engaged in the distribution of electricity and natural gas interstate storage and transmission of natural gas, oil and gas exploration and production, independent power generation and utility services. CMS Energy Corporation's principal subsidiary is Consumers Power Company, Michigan's largest utility and the nation's fourth- largest combination utility.

NEWPORT BEACH, CA (APRIL 27) PR NEWSWIRE - Pacific Scientific Co. (NYSE: PSX) Friday announced that its president and chief executive officer, Edgar S. Brower, has been named to the additional position of chairman of the board.

Brower succeeds Harry R. Goff who retired from the board at the annual meeting of April 25, 1990. The board vacancy created by Goff's retirement was filled by John C. Dieckman who was nominated and voted for by the company's shareholders.

Brower, 59, joined the company as president and director in June of 1985 and was named chief executive officer in December of 1985. Prior to joining Pacific Scientific Company, Brower was corporate group vice president at Allied-Signal Corp. and president of Allied Electronic Components Company. From 1972 to 1977, Brower was Assistant Postmaster General of the United States.

In recognition of Goff's service as a director of the company for 18 years, the board created for him an honorary, non-voting, position as director emeritus.

Dieckman, 70, is a CPA and a trustee for the McAllister Trusts which owns beneficially 247,392 shares, or 4.4 percent of the company's common stock. The McAllister Trusts was established by Decker G. McAllister who died in 1984. McAllister joined the company in 1925 and was chairman of the board until 1973 and a director until his death.

The company also announced the election of Ronald B. Nelson and Charles L. Perry as corporate vice presidents.

Nelson, 50, was appointed president of the company's Motor & Control Division in Rockford, Ill., at the beginning of this year. Previously, Nelson was vice president and general manager of the Motor Division of Barber Colman Co.

Perry, 41, was appointed president of the company's Sigma Instruments Division in Weymouth, Mass., in January of this year. Previously, Perry was vice president of the company's HTL/Kin-Tech Division and prior to that vice president of operations for the Sigma Instrument Division.

Pacific Scientific's core business is designing, manufacturing and marketing technology based proprietary products for niche markets. The principal industrial products include electric motors and controls, and measurement and control instruments. Aerospace products include fire detection and suppression systems, aircraft equipment and electric generators and alternators for aircraft and missiles.

LOWELL, MA (APRIL 27) PR NEWSWIRE - Wang Laboratories, Inc. (AMEX: WAN) today announced that it has completed the sale the sale of its international lease-financing operations to GE Capital.

As a result of the transaction Wang has reduced its bank group debt to approximately $90 million. Proceeds from the sale total approximately $240 million, of which $215 million has been used to reduce the company's bank group debt, and $25 million to increase the company's cash position. In August 1989, Wang's bank group debt was approximately $575 million.

Wang expects to record a book loss of approximately $19 million on this transaction, which will be reflected in the company's third quarter results.

Wang continues to actively negotiate the sale of other non-strategic assets, which are expected to yield additional cash during the next few months. These sales would enable the company to totally eliminate all debt to its bank group.

EVANSVILLE, IN (APRIL 27) PR NEWSWIRE - Southern Indiana Gas and Electric Company (NYSE: SIG) reported earnings per share of $1.01 for the three months ended March 31, 1990, compared to 99 cents in 1989. Increased gas operating income was partially offset by a higher level of maintenance expenditures related to scheduled projects during the quarter.

Earnings per share of $2.82 for the twelve months ended March 31, 1990 represents a 6.6 percent decrease when compared to the $3.02 earned for the comparable period ending in 1989. The decrease is attributed primarily to much cooler summer weather in 1989 and increased plant maintenance expenditures, partially offset by an increased customer base and increased earnings on cash investments.

MIDLAND, MI (APRIL 27) PR NEWSWIRE - The Midland Cogeneration Venture (MCV) announced today it has reached agreement with Consumers Power Company to be part of a sale of power to Ontario Hydro for use in its program to reduce sulfur dioxide emissions. MCV will supply 200 MW of on-peak power from mid-May through September of 1990. Off-peak energy will be provided from the Michigan system.

"We are very proud that in achieving commercial operation, MCV has been able to respond to this need for additional power," said MCV President and CEO Rodney E. Boulanger. "Of course, it's an additional plus that we can assist in a program to solve a pressing environmental problem."

The MCV entered commercial operation on March 16, 1990 with eight of 12 gas turbines and one steam turbine, providing electricity to Consumers Power and electricity and process steam to the Dow Chemical Company's Michigan Division. Currently, nine of the gas turbines are on line with the last three undergoing final testing. Upon full completion later this summer, the MCV will have the capacity to provide 1,370 MW of electricity and 1.35 million pounds per hour of process steam for industrial use.

The MCV is a limited partnership formed in 1987 to convert the former Midland plant into the nation's largest gas-fired, combined- cycle, cogeneration plant.

Equity partners include CMS Midland, Inc., a subsidiary of CMS Energy Corporation; Rofan Energy, Inc., (limited partner), a subsidiary of The Dow Chemical Company; Source Midland Limited Partnership, an affiliate of Panhandle Eastern Corporation; Coastal Midland, Inc., a subsidiary of The Coastal Corporation; MEI Limited Partnership, an affiliate of Asea Brown Boveri, Inc.; Micogen Limited Partnership, an affiliate of Fluor Corporation; and C-E Midland, Inc., (limited partner), a subsidiary of Combustion Engineering, Inc.

PLEASANTVILLE, NJ (APRIL 27) PR NEWSWIRE - J.G. Salamone, chief financial officer of Atlantic Energy Inc. (NYSE: ATE) today announced consolidated financial results for the 12 months and first quarter ended March 31, 1990.

Atlantic Energy is the parent company of Atlantic City Electric Co. (ACE), its primary subsidiary, and Atlantic Generation Inc., Atlantic Southern Properties Inc. and ATE Investment Inc.

Total consolidated operating revenues for the 12 months ended March 31, 1990, increased to $711 million from $691.2 million for the prior 12-month period. Net income for the 12 months ended March 31, 1990, totaled $83.5 million compared with $72.9 million for the prior period. Earnings per share for the 12 months ended March 31, 1990, amounted to $3.75, compared with $3.65 per share for the same period last year, with approximately 11.7 percent more average shares outstanding in the current period.

Salomone said that principal factors contributing to the results were higher kilowatt-hour sales of energy and lower operations and maintenance expense by ACE. Purchased power, depreciation and interest expenses were higher for the most recent period, as were state and federal tax expenses.

Total energy sales recorded by ACE for the 12 months ended March 31, 1990, increased 4 percent to 7.666 billion kilowatt-hours. Energy sales to Residential, Commercial and Industrial & Other customers increased 2.6 percent, 6.7 percent, and 2 percent, respectively. The increase in energy sales reflects increased numbers of customers in the Residential and Commercial classes and higher average use by all customer classes, offset in part by milder weather conditions and a slight decrease in the number of Industrial & Other customers in the current period.

Total consolidated operating revenues for the first quarter ended March 31 1990, increased to $166.7 million from $160.8 million for the comparable period in 1989. Net income for the three months ended March 31, 1990, totaled $15.1 million, compared to $12.6 million for the comparable period in 1989. Earnings per share for the current three- month period amounted to 67 cents, compared to earnings per share of 63 cents reported in 1989, with approximately 12.8 percent more average shares outstanding in the current period. "The primary factor for the change in quarterly earnings per share were higher revenues and lower operations and maintenance expenses, offset by higher tax expense in the current period," said Salomone.

Energy sales recorded by ACE for the three months ended March 31, 1990, increased 2.5 percent to 1.976 billion kilowatt-hours. Energy sales to Residential and Commercial customers increased 2.4 percent and 4.7 percent respectively, reflecting higher average energy consumption and increased numbers of customers by those customer classes. Sales to Industrial & Other customers declined 1.7 percent as a result of lower average use and a slight decrease in the number of customers.

results for its second quarter and six months ended March 31, 1990.

Net sales for the quarter ended March 31, 1990 were $26,409,000, up 24 percent from the second quarter of last year. Net income increased 47 percent to $1,057,000. Net income per share of $.30 increased 43 percent from the $.21 reported a year ago.

While pretax earnings increased eight percent in the second quarter from 1989, net income increased primarily due to a decrease in the effective tax rate. Last year's quarterly tax rate was higher due to the MetraByte acquisition. "The MetraByte acquisition reduced earnings per share by $.01 in the second quarter of 1990, versus an $.11 reduction for the same period last year," said Thomas G. Brick, Keithley's president and chief executive officer.

Brick attributed most of the sales increase for the quarter to the inclusion of a full quarter of MetraByte sales in 1990, compared to only six weeks in the second quarter of last year. The balance of the sales increase was due to a reduction of backlog which had increased during the first quarter of the current year, principally in the Systems and Instrument Divisions.

For the six months ended March 31, 1990, net sales were $50,395,000, up 21 percent from the same period last year. Net income of $1,855,000, and net income per share of $.53 both declined 18 percent from the same period last year.

Its products and systems are found in universities, industrial research laboratories, engineering development departments, quality control areas and manufacturing production lines.

LOS ANGELES (APRIL 27) PR NEWSWIRE - Broad Inc. (NYSE: BRO), a leading financial services company, today reported second quarter net income of $9.9 million or $0.30 per share, its highest quarterly earnings since the completion of its strategic corporate restructuring more than a year ago. Net income for its second quarter ended March 31, 1990 compared with $8.1 million or $.25 per share a year ago.

Showing even sharper operating improvements, net operating income (before net realized investment losses) rose 56 percent to $13.1 million or $.40 per share, compared with $8.4 million or $.26 per share for the three months ended March 31, 1989.

For the six months, the company reported net income of $13.2 million or $.40 per share, compared with a loss of $11.2 million or $.37 per share for the six months ended March 31, 1989.

Broad Inc. Chairman, President and Chief Executive Officer Eli Broad attributed the company's improved performance during the quarter to its increased level of assets under management.

Broad said that based on the company's continued back-office expense reductions, higher level of assets under management and investment performance, he remains comfortable with financial analyst earnings estimates in the range of $1.20 per share for the fiscal year ending Sept. 30, 1990.

Broad Inc. is the parent company of SunAmerica Corporation, a financial services group which markets fixed and variable annuities, mutual funds, investment counseling, trust services and other investments through approximately 15,000 representatives nationwide. At March 31, 1990, Broad Inc. had total capital approaching $525 million.

PARSIPPANY, NJ (APRIL 27) PR NEWSWIRE - Armco Inc. (NYSE: AS) today elected Robert L. Purdum, 54, president and chief executive officer at a board meeting preceding the specialty steel producer's 90th annual shareholders' meeting. He was formerly president and chief operating officer.

Robert E. Boni, 62, who remains as chairman, introduced Purdum to shareholders at the end of his annual meeting presentation. Dr. Boni said, "Bob Purdum has been Armco's chief operating officer during a period I believe was the most difficult for our business since the depression in the early 1930s.

"We've had to close steel plants, cut costs, sell assets and negotiate with bankers and insurance commissioners. Bob Purdum is precisely the right person to lead Armco into the 1990s," he said.

Purdum is a Purdue University graduate with a degree in civil engineering. After service as a Navy officer, he joined Armco's former metal products division as a sales engineer in 1962. He became president of Armco's Midwestern steel division in 1978 and two years later was named area vice president with reponsibility for four Armco divisions.

He became chief executive officer of Armco's steel group in 1982 and was named chief operating officer of Armco Inc. in 1985. Purdum was elected president of Armco in 1986. He is also a member of the company's board of directors.

Boni will direct his efforts to board activities and work with Purdum on matters of strategy, technology and succession. Both men have offices at Armco's Parsippany, N.J., executive offices.

Armco Inc. produces stainless, electrical and carbon steels and steel products. Through joint ventures, the company also produces coated and high-strength low carbon flat-rolled steels and oilfield machinery and equipment.

Two new joint ventures were finalized last week with Acerinox, a Spanish stainless steel producer, to finish stainless steel in the United States and to market stainless steels for automotive exhaust systems in Europe. Armco also conducts insurance services through businesses it intends to sell or liquidate.

TULSA, OK (APRIL 27) PR NEWSWIRE - In spite of a record-breaking warm late winter, The Williams Companies, Inc. (NYSE: WMB) today reported an unaudited net income of $32 million in the first quarter ended March 31, compared with a restated net income of $30 million in the same quarter last year.

Income applicable to common stock was $29.1 million, or 71 cents per share in the first quarter, compared with $30 million, or 79 cents per share, last year.

Revenues were $548 million, compared with $515 million for the quarter in 1989, said Joseph H. Williams, chairman and chief executive officer of the $3.8-billion energy transportation and digital telecommunications corporation.

Williams Telecommunications Group is expected to continue to see strong growth in demand from not only carrier and private-line customers but also for innovative services, such as its recent fiber-optic transmission of television signals of the Super Bowl and the NCAA's Final Four basketball championship.

The strategic strength of Williams' two interstate natural gas pipeline systems comes from the fact that they each link abundant, long-term reserves of environmentally superior fuel to vital markets.

The company is involved in new major natural gas pipeline projects that will maximize throughput on the company's existing systems and extend its economic reach into new gas markets.

Although implementation of Williams Pipe Line Company's new tariff structure was delayed by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC) in February, it will become effective Sept. 16 and is expected to improve the company's competitive position and earnings.

Williams Telecommunications Group, Inc. reported a first-quarter operating profit of $17.3 million, compared with an operating profit of $14.4 million in the same quarter last year. Revenues were $87.7 million versus $57.2 million for the quarter in 1989.

Northwest Pipeline Corporation reported a first-quarter operating profit of $30.8 million, compared with operating profit of $20.8 million in the same quarter a year ago.

Williams Natural Gas Company reported a first-quarter operating profit of $28.7 million, compared with an operating profit of $35.7 million during the first quarter of 1989.

Williams Gas Marketing Group, Inc. reported a first-quarter operating profit of $4.3 million versus an operating profit of $3.9 million during the same quarter in 1989.

Williams Pipe Line Company reported an operating profit of $7.3 million in the first quarter versus an operating profit of $9.7 million in the first quarter of 1989.

ST. PAUL, MN (APRIL 27) PR NEWSWIRE - 3M (NYSE: MMM), a leading supplier to the printing industry, today unveiled a new system that will revolutionize the way printers make color proofs, the step in the printing process that verifies the quality of color reproduction.

The 3M Digital Matchprint brand color proofing system is the first fully automated system that lets printers make high-resolution color proofs electronically, and faster than with any other system. It's an entry into what could become a $500-million market over the next five years.

The system fills a critical gap in the move to all-electronic color printing of catalogs, magazines and other publications with large volumes of color photos and artwork.

3M's Printing and Publishing Systems Division introduced the Digital Matchprint system at DRUPA, the world's largest printing trade show, which opened today in Dusseldorf, West Germany.

"The 3M system will enable printers to make the finest color proofs achievable in a fraction of the time it requires to make proofs with photographic film, the traditional method," said Ian Ferguson, business project manager, 3M Digital Prepress Systems.

One of the biggest challenges for printers is to accurately produce on press the original color of photos. Color proofs, such as those made by the Digital Matchprint system, give printers and their customers an opportunity to see what the finished job will look like before the presses start rolling.

The Digital Matchprint system makes a halftone proof for four magazine-size pages in 16 minutes. With film, the time required to make such a proof can vary from 45 minutes to two hours.

RED BANK, NJ (APRIL 27) PR NEWSWIRE - The trustees of the North European Oil Royalty Trust (NYSE: NET) announced today a quarterly distribution of 35 cents per unit, payable May 23, 1990, to holders of record May 11, 1990.

John H. Van Kirk, managing trustee, noted that the payment represents a 29.6 percent increase over the 27 cents distributed for the same period last year. Although overall gas sales were down approximately 8 percent due to the very warm winter weather, prices received for the gas improved 32 percent, and the average conversion rate for the Deutsche mark was up 8 percent over last year's average.

Total distributions for the first six months of fiscal year 1990 total 72 cents a unit compared with the 54 cents a unit paid last year. Distributions are made to unit owners of the trust from royalties received from gas and oil sales from royalty holdings in West Germany. The distribution reflects royalties for sales during the first calendar quarter of 1990. The trust makes quarterly distributions to owners during the final week of February, May, August, and November.

MIDLOTHIAN, TEXAS (APRIL 27) PR NEWSWIRE - The board of directors of Chaparral Steel Company (NYSE: CSM) today announced that construction has begun on a large section mill, expanding the existing product range up to 24-inch wide flange beams. The mill features a proprietary near-net-shape caster developed by Chaparral, which should allow the company to produce larger beams for costs substantially below those from existing technology. Chaparral management expects to achieve costs similar to those for reinforcing bar. Startup is scheduled for early 1991.

"The large section mill is the result of our longstanding commitment to the market mill concept," stated President Gordon E. Forward. "Our new caster provides the flexibility for Chaparral to continue its strategy of producing a wide range of products and sizes and is key to the company's mission statement: to be an international low-cost producer of quality steel products and to be the easiest steel company in the world with which to do business."

Chaparral is currently shipping special quality carbon alloy bars, beams, structural and merchant shapes, and reinforcing bars. The plant has grown since its startup in 1975 from 220,000 tons per year to 1.3 million tons, and the large section mill will increase rolling capacity by 500,000 additional tons.

Forward further stated that the strengthening in the company's domestic order book and the stabilization in pricing, coupled with the increased emphasis in overseas sales, indicates that the worst is over for the decline which began last fall.

"The board's confidence in Chaparral's future is reflected in its decision to increase the quarterly dividend rate from $.025 to $.05 beginning in May," continued Forward. "The dividend will be paid on May 31, 1990, to shareholders of record May 7, 1990.

"This dividend decision demonstrates the company's optimistic outlook.

We are very pleased to announce this increase in tandem with the startup of construction on our new large section mill."

HIGHLAND PARK, MI (APRIL 27) PR NEWSWIRE - Consumers rate the Chrysler Imperial as the highest quality 1990 American-built vehicle, according to the Consumer Attitude Research Survey of Early 1990 Model New Car Buyers. The survey also shows that the Imperial has the highest percentage of owners reporting no problems with their vehicles.

In two other major categories of consumer satisfaction with new vehicles in the CAR survey, Imperial also outscored all other domestic competition. It has the highest percentage of completely satisfied owners, ahead of the Lincoln Town Car, in second, and the third-placed Cadillac Eldorado. Imperial owners also reported the fewest number of problems.

"That Chrysler's reentry into the luxury car market with the Imperial should be recognized and applauded by our most important critics, our owners, demonstrates what Advantage: Chrysler is all about," said Michael V. Howe, general manager of the Chrysler-Plymouth Division of Chrysler Corporation (NYSE: C).

In addition to being rated highest in overall quality in the CAR study, the Imperial scored the highest in 13 of 16 quality sub- categories such as freedom from wind noise, door fit, body panel fit and quality of interior materials.

The survey was conducted among purchasers of new 1990 vehicles who purchased their vehicles in October and November of 1989 and owned the vehicles for 60 to 90 days. All major domestically produced vehicles were included in the study. Sample sizes were comparable to traditional industry buyer studies. DUBLIN, OH (APRIL 27) PR NEWSWIRE - Wendy's International, Inc. (NYSE: WEN) reported earnings of $3.5 million or $.04 per share for the first quarter ending April 1.

James W. Near, president, CEO and COO, said after tax income (before extraordinary gains) was $3.0 million versus last year's $800,000, reflecting substantially higher operating profits.

Revenues for the 1990 quarter were $241.3 million, compared with $259.5 million a year ago. There were 56 fewer company-operated restaurants than a year ago, most of which were sold to franchise owners.

Near said the continued success of Wendy's Super Value Menu, introduced in late 1989, contributed to the improved operating performance. The Super Value Menu is a collection of seven menu items priced at 99 cents in most markets.

A reduction in price discounts also helped make sales more profitable. Discount coupons, which reduce margins, were only 1.4 percent of company sales, compared to 6 percent in 1989.

Near explained that 1989 first quarter net income included a one- time, nonoperating gain of $5.2 million or $.05 per share, resulting from the accounting change for income taxes prescribed by the Financial Accounting Standard Board's Statement No. 96. Net income also included $500,000 from the early retirement of debt in 1990, compared to about $300,000 last year.

The accounting adjustment, along with the gains on debt retirement and restaurant operations, resulted in net income of $6.3 million or $.07 per share in 1989.

At April 1, there were 3,744 Wendy's Old Fashioned Hamburgers restaurants worldwide, including 1,103 operated by the company. Dividend Declared

JACKSON, MI (APRIL 27) PR NEWSWIRE - "CMS Energy Corporation continued to substantially enhance the value of the company for its shareholders in 1989," William T. McCormick Jr., chairman and chief executive officer, told shareholders at today's annual meeting in Jackson.

"The company posted a 15-percent increase in earnings to $312 million in 1989 and the market price of its stock increased 56 percent at year-end 1989 compared with 1988 -- the second-best performance among the 100 largest U.S. gas and electric utilities," said McCormick.

"The company has restored a modest dividend, achieved commercial operation of the Midland Cogeneration Venture and implemented further financial and efficiency improvements in utility operations while carefully diversifying into nonutility energy-related businesses," McCormick added.

The company's principal subsidiary, Consumers Power, remained the nation's safest and most productive utility while recording its sixth straight year of record electric sales and a 5.6-percent increase in natural gas deliveries. Electric sales grew 1.3 percent to 29.7 billion kilowatt-hours while gas deliveries climbed to 303 billion cubic feet, their highest level in eight years.

Consumers Power maintained its competitive advantage as Michigan's lowest cost major electricity and natural gas supplier, with electric rates well below those of the state's other large electric utility and natural gas rates below those of Michigan's other large gas company, McCormick noted.

Consumers Power also improved its position as the nation's most productive utility, with each employee serving 304 customers, compared with an industry mean of 162 customers per employee.

In 1989 The Oxford Energy Company (AMEX: OEN), an American Stock Exchange company of which CMS Energy is a 49-percent owner, began construction of a 30-megawatt waste-tires-to-energy facility in Sterling, Conn. The Connecticut facility will be the world's largest tire-fueled power plant, surpassing Oxford's tires-to-energy plant currently operating near Modesto Calif. Oxford and CMS Generation Company recently reached an agreement to create a project development partnership for at least three other waste-tires-to-energy projects elsewhere in the U.S. in the immediate future, McCormick said. "The resource recovery of needed energy and other materials from America's growing stockpile of trash tires is critical to both our national environmental and energy agendas," he stated.

McCormick highlighted for shareholders CMS Energy's strategies for the future, which include: growing both existing utility businesses and CMS Enterprises, stock repurchases and dividends, and possible acquisitions to further enhance shareholder value.

CMS Energy Corporation (NYSE: CMS) is a $3 billion (sales) diversified energy company with businesses engaged in the distribution of electricity and natural gas, interstate storage and transmission of natural gas, oil and gas exploration and production, independent power generation and utility services.

MONTVALE, NJ (APRIL 27) PR NEWSWIRE - The Mercedes-Benz 300SL/500SL coupe/roadster won its fourth major award when it was named as the winner of the "Car Design Awards Torino -- Piemonte, 1990" at the Turin Automobile Show, which closes Sunday.

The two-seat 300SL and 500SL coupe/roadsters are the successors to the 560SL, and the first totally new Mercedes sports cars in 18 years. They feature a new body/chassis unit, new engines and new front and rear suspensions. Both feature a fully automatic soft top, which can be raised or lowered at the touch of a button, and a removable metal hardtop is also standard.

The Turin award, selected by the editorial staffs of the most influential auto magazines in Europe and the United States, was presented to Bruno Sacco, director of passenger car design for Mercedes- Benz AG. The award cited the SL's innovation in the areas of safety, ergonomics, modern industrial design, overall enjoyable driving experience and consistency with the past model identity.

Earlier, Bild am Sonntag magazine of Germany awarded the new Mercedes two-seater the prestigious Golden Steering Wheel as the best car in the special class for high performance cars. The Golden Steering Wheel is chosen by a panel of 22 of Germany's top automotive journalists and experts.

Two other German magazine also honored the SL with awards. Auto-Zeitung named the car winner of the Auto Trophy 90 as the world's best convertible. Auto Motor und Sport presented Mercedes with the Paul Pietsch Prize for automobile technology for the SL's magnesium seats with integral seat belts.

Additionally, in a ballot by 114,000 readers of Auto Motor und Sport, the new SL was chosen as the most popular convertible, winning 53.4 percent of the vote.

The 500SL features a five-liter, 32-valve V8 engine which produces 322 horsepower -- giving a zero to 70 mph time of 6.2 seconds -- while the 300SL is powered by a 228-hp, three-liter, 24 valve inline six and reaches 60 mph in 8.3 seconds. The 500SL comes with a four-speed automatic transmission; the 300SL provides a choice of a five-speed manual or five-speed automatic transmission.

ATLANTA (APRIL 27) PR NEWSWIRE - Wilkinson Sword said here today that it would create a luxury shaving segment of the wet shaving industry by introducing the Royale, a German-designed pivoting-head razor available in two versions -- a 24-karat gold-plated model, and a silver-and-black brushed-chromium model.

Norman R. Proulx, president of Wilkinson Sword North America, said the Royale razors would be offered only through the $50 billion direct response marketplace. He indicated that a test is currently underway in selected MasterCard billing statements. The mailer insert emphasizes the brand's unique European design and convenient cartridge storage system that contains three blades in the handle, making it ideal for travel.

The Gold Royale is priced at $29.95 retail and the Chromium Royale at $24.95. Each comes with six of Wilkinson Sword's highest quality twin blade replacement cartridges with the unique Ultra Glide Blue Strip for unsurpassed shaving smoothness.

Royale's distinctive packaging completes the aura of shaving luxury and prestige. The gold razor comes with a plush burgundy velour pouch with a gold Wilkinson Sword seal. The chromium razor is packed in a black velour pouch. The gift package has a rick black varnished finish with a gold or chromium-embossed Wilkinson Sword seal. Dimensions of the package are 4-7/8-x-2-x-1-1/2 inches.

The Royale razor may be refilled with regular pivoting Ultra Glide blades or other pivoting replacement blades.

Wilkinson Sword is the first brand name razor blade company to enter the direct response luxury shaving market.

ST. LOUIS (APRIL 27) PR NEWSWIRE - Southwestern Bell Corporation (NYSE: SBC) achieved its sixth consecutive year of earnings increases during 1989 Edward E. Whitacre Jr., chairman and chief executive officer told shareowners here today.

Southwestern Bell's stock price increased 58 percent during 1989, more than twice the year's performance of the Dow Jones and Standard & Poor's indices, Whitacre said. "As an investor, those are the kinds of numbers you like to hear. And those are the kinds of numbers I enjoy reporting. Earnings per share on common stock has risen 20.9 percent since 1984."

Whitacre attributed the corporation's strong financial performance to careful planning. "Our financial performance is strong today because we've been carefully crafting Southwestern Bell Corporation for six years. And, the numbers for this, our seventh year, are sustaining positive momentum," he said.

"It's important to note that we delivered consistent improvement in total revenues and earnings per share during the tough economic times of the late '80s," Whitacre said. "During those years, we managed the business in a way that not only generated steady earnings growth, but positioned us to be even more successful when the economy recovered.

"As a result, when the Southwestern economy began to regain momentum in 1989, we had the people, technology and methods in place to help spur growth."

Southwestern Bell is taking advantage of other growth opportunities as well, Whitacre said. "We're expanding where we do business -- in cities like Chicago, New York, Los Angeles, Washington, D.C., Boston, and Baltimore."

Southwestern Bell Corporation owns Metromedia Paging Services, Inc. which operates paging networks in 30 U.S. markets and Southwestern Bell Mobile Systems operates cellular systems in 24 markets including Cellular One franchises in six major cities.

Southwestern Bell also is expanding its international business reach. "We're using innovative ways to serve customers because increasingly, they speak other languages, live in other countries and have more sophisticated communications needs," Whitacre said.

Shareowners re-elected directors Zane E. Barnes, chairman emeritus of Southwestern Bell Corporation; Gerald D. Blatherwick, vice chairman; Sybil C. Mobley, dean of The School of Business and Industry at Florida A&M University; Haskell M. Monroe, Jr., chancellor and professor of history at

The University of Missouri-Columbia; and Virginia V. Weldon, vice president public policy, Monsanto Company.

BURBANK, CA (APRIL 27) PR NEWSWIRE - Completion of several military aircraft production programs and efforts to reduce costs will force additional reductions in employment at Lockheed Aeronautical Systems Company (LASC) during the coming months, company officials said.

LASC President Ken Cannestra said the company is in the process of notifying approximately 2,750 employees in California and Georgia that they must be laid off by the end of June. He said about 2,000 of the layoffs will affect employees in Southern California and about 750 will be in Marietta, Ga.

Cannestra said this is the result of a continuing analysis due to the shrinking defense budget and the completion of major programs. "In the past year we have completed production of the C-5B transport and TR-1 reconnaissance aircraft for the Air Force," Cannestra said. "And we are approaching the end of production of our P-3 Orion maritime patrol aircraft and F-117A Air Force fighter. It is unlikely we will have any large new military aircraft production project that will begin before the mid-1990s."

Cannestra said the company is making intensive efforts to help furloughed employees find work at other companies. "We have outplacement centers established in California and Georgia where counseling and information are available to help employees find jobs elsewhere," he said, adding that hundreds of former Lockheed workers have found new jobs in recent months through the centers.

At the beginning of April, LASC had 22,900 employees, with approximately 12,800 in Southern California and 10,100 in Georgia. That total represented a decrease of about 9,000 since 1988, when the company began to complete its work in the C-5B transport program.

ROCHESTER, NY (APRIL 27) PR NEWSWIRE - Monroe County and Eastman Kodak Company (NYSE: EK) dedicated a landscaped picnic grove of mature trees in Highland Park this morning to salute county residents and Kodak employees on Arbor Day and to mark New York State Conservation Day.

Kodak donated the grove as well as 43,000 Douglas fir and Austrian pine seedlings, one for each Rochester-based Kodak employee. The seedlings will be distributed for planting in the county park system, by employees, and by outside groups before the end of the year.

County Executive Thomas Frey said, "Kodak's donation of the picnic grove in Highland Park and tree seedlings for planting throughout the county is an outstanding example of how private-public cooperation can benefit everyone."

The picnic grove is located at the southern end of Highland Park on the east side of South Avenue. The grove consists of an array of 39 mature ornamental, evergreen, fruit, and other trees. A large rock has been placed in the grove and a bronze plaque dedicating the grove is affixed to the rock.

Kenneth O. Hoffman, vice president and general manager of Kodak Park's Manufacturing Resources Division, said, "We hope our employees and the residents of this community will enjoy this grove and the environmental benefits these trees will bring for many years to come. Situated in this park, this grove is also appropriate as it underscores our shared responsibility to protect and improve the environment."

"All in all," he added, "Kodak plans to donate 43,000 tree seedlings for planting in Monroe County before the end of 1990. That's one tree for each Rochester-based employee and it underscores the fact that every Kodak employee has a stake in the area's environment and its future."

Kodak's support for the county parks system goes back to the early 1900s when George Eastman made substantial donations to help create Durand-Eastman Park and Cobbs Hill Park.

Kodak is using "A Growing Commitment" as the theme for its 1990 tree-planting activities. In the past years, Kodak has typically planted about 1,000 trees annually on its property in Monroe County.

WASHINGTON (APRIL 27) PR NEWSWIRE - Sales of stock, bond and income mutual funds totaled $13.8 billion in March, according to the Investment Company Institute, the national association of the mutual fund industry.

This compares with total sales in February of $11.8 billion. March sales one year ago were $8.8 billion.

Assets of all mutual funds increased to $1.013 trillion ($1,013.2 billion) in March from $1.007 trillion ($1,006.7 billion) in February. Assets of long-term funds (stock and bond) increased to $549.6 billion in March from $542.7 billion in February. Assets of short-term funds (money markets, including both taxable and tax-free) decreased to $463.6 billion in March from $464.0 billion in February.

"A combination of strong net sales, positive exchanges and sharply rising stock prices boosted assets of equity funds to a near-record level," said Dr. Jacob Dreyer, vice president and chief economist at the institute. "Net sales of bond funds in March were also quite strong. But, in contrast to stock prices, bond prices sagged, thus limiting the rise in assets of bond funds. Assets of all mutual funds, however, rose to a new record high."

The sales of stock mutual funds totaled $7.3 billion. February stock fund sales were $5.9 billion. March sales one year ago were $3.5 billion. In March growth-and-income funds lead all categories with sales of $2.7 billion.

Sales of bond and income mutual funds totaled $6.5 billion, compared to $5.9 billion in February and $5.3 billion in March 1989. Long-term municipal bond funds (including national and single state funds) recorded total sales in March of $2.4 billion, the same as in February. These funds had sales of $2.2 billion in March 1989.

Total redemptions were $8.4 billion in March compared to $7.4 billion in February and $8.4 billion in March 1989.

Net sales for stock and bond funds in March were $5.4 billion compared to $4.4 billion for February. In March 1989, net sales of stock and bond funds were $446.0 million. March net sales for stock funds were $3.2 billion, compared to $2.5 billion in February. In March 1989 net sales of stock funds were $233 million. Bond and income net sales were $2.2 billion in March compared to $1.9 billion in February and $213.0 million in March 1989.

Exchanges into stock funds were $4.4 billion; exchanges out of stock funds were $3.9 billion. Exchanges into bond funds were $1.8 billion; exchanges out of bond funds were $2.0 billion. Exchanges are investments redeemed from one fund and moved to another fund in the same fund complex.

In addition to the sales of open-end mutual funds, new offerings of closed-end funds in March amounted to $1.0 billion.

SOMERS, NY (APRIL 27) PR NEWSWIRE - Pepsi-Cola Company launched the first summer of the '90s in true Pepsi style by introducing dramatic, special package designs called "Cool Cans" for its flagship brand Pepsi. "Cool Cans" are a limited edition, collector's series of four compelling graphic designs created exclusively for Pepsi.

"Never before in the history of Pepsi-Cola, or the entire U.S. soft drink industry, has a company integrated such distinctive artistry into its flagship product's package while maintaining the integrity of its original trademark," said Michael D. Simpson, executive vice president of marketing and national sales at Pepsi-Cola Company. "Cooling off with a cold Pepsi this summer means consumers get the same great Pepsi in a very cool package."

"Cool Cans" are teamed with an exciting consumer sweepstakes featuring millions of dollars in prizes and the cool talent of Grammy Award-winning rap artist Young MC showcased in a special Pepsi television commercial.

The first of the Pepsi "Cool Cans" are now landing on store shelves throughout the Pacific Northwest and will be rolled out nationally by May 1. The debut edition, titled "Surfer," features a surfing action scene in a bold array of red, yellow and blue hues along with the famous Pepsi logo. The other three "Cool Cans" editions, "Pepsi Sunglasses," "Neon" and "Party" (in order of introduction), will be introduced on a staggered basis approximately every two weeks beginning in mid-May. More than 1.2 billion "Cool Cans" will be distributed by Pepsi before the campaign concludes.

"What's really cool is that Pepsi has given consumers and chroniclers of the American pop scene something new to document, and it proves you can successfully sustain the Pepsi image from generation to generation," said John K. Grace, executive vice president of Lippincott & Marguiles Inc., a leading New York-based consulting firm specializing in identity and image management. "Consumers think of Pepsi as a product strongly synonymous with contemporary images of fun and excitement, and these perceptions will enable the brand to successfully execute this bold and imaginative summertime identity."

In addition to the limited edition cans, the distinctive artwork will also be incorporated into colorful 12 and 24 multi-pack wrappers for Pepsi, and special point-of-purchase display items. "Cool Cans" will be available in supermarkets and convenience stores nationwide, as well as select Pepsi vending machines. A 32-ounce "Cool Cup" will also be simultaneously available at participating local restaurants.

"Cool Cans/Cool Cash" is the sweepstakes component to the national promotion and features a printed number on the inside bottom of specially marked cans that instantly alerts winners of prizes ranging from $25 to $20,000. More than $4 million in "Cool Cans/Cool Cash" prize monies are available.

DALLAS (APRIL 27) PR NEWSWIRE - American Airlines said today it is pleased that the Department of Transportation has approved its acquisition of Eastern Airlines' Central and South American route network.

American hopes to begin serving all the Latin American routes by the end of this summer from the airline's new Miami hub.

"Approval of the transaction is good for both American and Eastern," said Robert L. Crandall, American's chairman and president. "It is also good for the United States, since American is committed to expanding air travel between the U.S. and the countries of Central and South America."

The DOT's final order authorized American to acquire routes to 20 destinations in 15 Latin American countries. It also approved the purchase of Eastern's Miami-Madrid route and the Miami-London route served by Continental Airlines.

The DOT did not transfer Eatern's Miami/Tampa-Toronto authority, ordering instead that the route be awarded through a regulatory proceeding.

"We are sorry the DOT refused to approve our acquisition of the Florida-Toronto authority," Crandall said. "The department's action will deny Eastern badly needed funds and will further weaken the U.S. competitive presence in the important U.S.-Canada market."

American will offer employment to Eastern's Central and South American employees. The company has been working with Eastern and its employees for months to assure a smooth transition of service.

Central and South American destinations that American will serve include:

Buenos Aires, Argentina; La Paz, Bolivia; Rio de Janeiro and Sao Paulo, Brazil; Bogota, Barranquilla and Cali, Colombia; Santiago, Chile; Guayaquil and Quito, Ecuador; Asuncion, Paraguay; Lima, Peru; Caracas, Venezuela; Panama City, Panama; Belize City, Belize; San Salvador, El Salvador, and Tegucigalpa and San Pedro Sula, Honduras.

American recently began flying between Miami and two cities Eastern serves in Central America -- Guatemala City, Guatemala, and San Jose, Costa Rica. It will begin serving Guatemala City from Dallas/Fort Worth in June.

Under a related agreement, American and Continental will exchange gates at Dallas/Fort Worth International Airport, permitting American to continue expanding its Texas hub.

The Continental transaction includes slots at Kennedy International Airport, an agreement for American to handle Continental at Washington National Airport, and dismissal of various lawsuits between American and Continental.

SAN FRANCISCO (APRIL 27) PR NEWSWIRE - Transcisco Rail Services Co. today announced the appointment of Timothy P. Carlson as its new president. Carlson has been vice president of finance and chief financial officer at the parent company, Transcisco Industries (AMEX: TNIA, TNIB) since July 1988. In addition, Robert W. Laversin, the controller of Transcisco Industries, becomes vice president of finance of Transcisco Industries. John E. Carroll Jr. has resigned as president of TRS and vice president of Transcisco Industries.

Transcisco Rail Services Co. is one of the largest independent railcar repair and retrofitting companies in the United States, with eight plants and nine mobile maintenance operations scattered throughout the United States. Recently Transcisco Industries announced its intention to acquire Texas Southern Railroad, which owns a passenger car rebuilding facility in San Antonio. Transcisco Industries' other subsidiary, Transcisco Tours, has announced its intention to begin operating private passenger trains in both Northern and Southern California, and expects to grant an order for rebuilding passenger cars to Transcisco Rail Services in the near future. Thus, the mix of Transcisco Rail Services' businesses will change from doing just those of repairing freight cars to also retrofitting and rebuilding passenger equipment.

Transcisco Industries is an industrial services company engaged in the maintenance, manufacturing and retrofitting of railroad car equipment. Transcisco's railcar maintenance operation is the largest non-railroad owned railcar maintenance operation in the United States.

WILMINGTON, DE (APRIL 27) PR NEWSWIRE - ICI Advanced Materials & Electronics announced today that the sale of ICI Array Technology Inc. to Hoetron Inc. lead by Robert E. Zinn, formerly of PCI Inc., has been completed.

The purchase price was not disclosed. Under new management, the company will do business as Array Technology Inc. According to Charles S. Lemak, ICI Electronics' vice president and general manager, the sale is part of ICI Advanced Materials and Electronics' exit from business operations in downstream component activities. In addition to selling ICI Array Technology Inc., ICI previously announced that the sale of its other Electronics units, ICI Wafer Technology Ltd. (Jan. 11, 1990) and the Vanguard(TM) range of high-density interconnects and 3-D molded circuit boards (Feb. 1, 1990) had been completed.

Lemak stated, "ICI is exiting its downstream Electronics business operations for several reasons including a shift in its materials business strategy.

"ICI will increase its resources committed to supply the raw materials, processing technology and design services required by OEMs in the electronics industry. The Applications Laboratory recently opened at Exton, Pa., together with the Wilton Materials Research Center and Japanese Technical Center near Tokyo, will play a central role in achieving our objectives and have facilities devoted specifically to the electronics industry," added Lemak. "We are pleased to see operations continue under the direction of a quality management team and wish all of the employees at the former ICI Electronics' business unit well."

ICI Array Technology Inc. markets and performs contract surface- mount manufacturing and related support services. Manufacturing operations and customer shipments are expected to continue uninterrupted.

ICI Americas Inc. has annual sales of $4.0 billion and is the U.S. operating subsidiary of Imperial Chemical Industries PLC, London. ICI PLC is a $21 billion company with a diverse range of products including engineering thermoplastics, specialty chemicals, pharmaceuticals, fibers, agrichemicals and paints.

The value of this transaction represents less than 1 percent of ICI Group net assets. ICI Advanced Materials is a Business Unit of ICI Americas Inc.

ARLINGTON, VA (APRIL 27) PR NEWSWIRE - USLICO Corporation (NYSE: USC) reported strong first quarter earnings, with net operating results, excluding realized gains, up 9 percent to $6.3 million, or 58 cents per share, for 1990, compared to $5.7 million, or 53 cents per share, for the first quarter of 1989.

Realized investment gains (after taxes) decreased to $200,000 for the 1990 quarter compared to $2.9 million in 1989. As a result, net income fell to $6.5 million, or 60 cents per share, in the first quarter of 1990 compared to $8.6 million, or 79 cents per share, in the 1989 quarter.

Growth in operating results was led by USLICO's life companies, which produced a 33 percent increase in operating income to $6.7 million for 1990 on an after-tax basis. Premiums and investment income increased $9 million, while policy benefits rose only $6 million and general expenses decreased.

USLICO reported that its property and casualty companies had a good first quarter result, despite storm losses in the Midwest that caused the combined ratio to reach 103.9 percent for 1990 compared to 102.1 percent for 1989. Earnings declined only slightly, to $1.2 million (after-tax) in 1990 compared to $1.4 million in the 1989 quarter.

The decrease in total realized gains from all sources was caused by gains of $4.2 million (pre-tax) in 1989 from the sale of two non-insurance subsidiaries. No similar transaction occurred in the first quarter of 1990. Realized gains on sales of securities increased to $300,000 (pre-tax) in the first quarter of 1990 compared to $200,000 in 1989.

An insurance holding company, USLICO Corporation is headquartered in Arlington, Va. Its four life subsidiaries represent 90 percent of its $2.5 billion in assets. The three property and casualty subsidiaries operate in the Midwestern United States.

NEW YORK (APRIL 27) PR NEWSWIRE - Universal Matchbox Group Ltd. (NYSE: UMG) today reported results for the first quarter ended March 31, 1990.

Net sales for the quarter decreased 12.8 percent to $36.5 million from $41.9 million in the first quarter of 1989. Sales of core products increased 2.4 percent from 1989. Promotional products and contract manufacturing volumes declined as planned, down 33.3 percent and 36.8 percent respectively.

Net loss was $4.5 million, unchanged from last year. Gross margin decreased to 38.2 percent of sales, down from 41.0 percent of sales, due mainly to decreased sales of high margin promotional products. Advertising and promotion expenses were reduced to $3.0 million, a decrease of 23.7 percent from $3.9 million in 1989. Other selling, general and administrative expenses were reduced to $14.4 million, down 12.6 percent from $16.4 million in 1989.

The company is following its strategy of increasing the core business, deemphasizing promotional products, and strengthening contract manufacturing. The emphasis on the core area aims at lowering advertising, promotional and administrative cost structures. Despite the short term effect of lowering sales, the company expects that this strategy will help to bring about long term earnings stability.

As of March 31, 1990, $7.5 million of 10 percent convertible notes due December 1992 were offered and accepted for exchange of a like amount of 6-1/4 percent convertible preferred shares, subject to the approval of the shareholders at the May 18, 1990 annual general meeting. This action was taken in order to restore compliance with a debt/equity covenant under the company's syndicated loan agreement.

FORT WORTH, TX (APRIL 27) PR NEWSWIRE - The board of directors of TNP Enterprises Inc., announced today quarterly dividends of $0.4075 per share of common stock.

TNP Enterprises (TNPE) is the Fort Worth-based holding company of Texas-New Mexico Power Co.

Quarterly dividends will be paid on June 15, 1990, to shareholders of record on May 23, 1990. This will be the 218th consecutive dividend paid by TNPE or its predecessor companies.

Prior to the board's meeting, TNPE shareholders held their annual meeting and voted to elected the company's directors. Re-elected were R.D. Woofter R. Denny Alexander, Cass O. Edwards II, John A. Fanning, Robert W. Gerrard, John Justin, Harris L. Kempner Jr., Dr. Thomas S. Mackey and James M. Tarpley.

The company also announced a 62.3 percent decline in consolidated earnings available for common stock for the 12 months ended March 31, 1990, compared to the same period in 1989.

The large decrease in the 12 months earnings was primarily because the previous period included a gain of approximately $20 million realized from the sale of substantially all the assets of a subsidiary company. Texas-New Mexico Power Co.'s contributions to consolidated earnings declined 2.1 percent when compared to the same period last year.

However, Texas-New Mexico Power did have an increase in earnings available for common stock of approximately 11.6 percent for the three month period ending March 31, 1990. The increase is attributable primarily to higher rates being collected since January 1990, and an increase in sales.

A summary of consolidated earnings for the quarter and 12 months ended March 31, 1990, and for the same periods in 1989 is shown below.

FORT WORTH, TX (APRIL 27) PR NEWSWIRE - Pure Sports Inc. of Forth Worth announced today that it is entering a pair of Lotus Esprit Turbo SE's in the nine-round SCCA Escort World Challenge series to be driven by Doc Bundy and Scott Lagasse.

Pure Sports has directed preparation of the cars for the series with technical input from Lotus in Norfolk, England.

Pure Sports is a newly formed specialty division of Texas American Race Teams, Inc., which has fielded highly successful CAT/Can-Am and Corvette Challenge teams. Pure Sports will run exclusively in SCCA competition, according to William H. Strange, president and CEO of Texas American Race Teams.

Indy Anniversary Foster of Lotus added that the SCCA participation would celebrate a special anniversary: "It's exactly 25 years since famed driver Jim Clark won the Indianapolis 500 in Colin Chapman's mid-engined Lotus. That was our first Indy victory and the first mid-engine car ever to win at Indy. We're pleased that Pure Sports has selected Lotus in 1990. It's an ideal year to return to our racing roots."

A Driving Tradition The senior Lotus pilot will be Bundy, a respected world-class driver on both U.S. and international racing circuits. Bundy summarized his involvement: "My inspiration to become a race driver came from the legendary Jim Clark. To see Lotus again active on U.S. tracks and to be part of this tradition fulfills a personal dream. I'm very enthusiastic about the forthcoming season."

A second Lotus is being built for the series and will be driven by Lagasse a three-time national driving champion and top competitor in the Corvette Challenge series. Commented Lagasse: "Lotus is one of the all-time great names in world motorsport. Most race drivers just dream about driving a Lotus in competition; for me, I am truly proud this dream has been realized and am determined to follow in the winning tracks of the great Lotus drivers of the past."

Award-Winning Powerplant The Lotus will come to the starting line with the smallest engine in the series, a Lotus-built 2.2 litre four-cylinder powerplant cited by Popular Science as one of the top 100 technological achievements of 1989. The engine, which has won renown for performance and efficiency, has the highest output per litre of any production powerplant.

DALLAS (APRIL 27) PR NEWSWIRE - At Kimberly-Clark Corp.'s (NYSE: KMB) annual meeting today, Darwin E. Smith, chairman of the board and chief executive officer, said that stockholders re-elected six members of the board of directors to three-year terms expiring in 1993.

The Kimberly-Clark board has 18 members who are divided into three classes each of which has six members serving three-year terms.

Also at today's meeting, Wayne R. Sanders, president of World Consumer, Nonwovens and Service & Industrial Operations, told stockholders that more than 60 percent of the previously reported growth in first quarter revenues came from increased unit sales, especially in North American personal care products.

"Kotex super maxi pads and Kotex Lightdays longs pantiliners are gaining increasing acceptance in the U.S., as are Huggies diapers and Huggies Pull-Ups training pants," Sanders said.

He added that Huggies Pull-Ups training pants are now available in about half of the U.S. and that Huggies for Him and Huggies for Her diapers are being introduced to the West Coast, having been well received in test markets.

He said the record results were achieved despite a continuation of troublesome market conditions in the North American newsprint business and adverse economic and business conditions in the United Kingdom and Brazil.

In other matters, a stockholder's proposal that the company no longer be governed by Delaware's anti-takeover law was defeated, as were stockholder proposals that the company divest its interest in a South African affiliate and that the company discontinue the manufacture of tobacco-related papers and products.

Kimberly-Clark is a manufacturer of household, personal care and health care products, as well as newsprint, printing papers, premium business, correspondence, technical and specialty papers. The company's well-known consumer products include Huggies disposable diapers, Kleenex facial tissue, Kotex and New Freedom feminine products, Hi-Dri household towels and Depend incontinence products.

CHICAGO (APRIL 27) PR NEWSWIRE - At GATX's (NYSE: GMT) annual meeting today, the shareholders approved an amendment to GATX's certificate of incorporation which increases authorized shares of common stock from 30 million to 60 million shares. The board of directors had previously authorized a 2-for-1 stock distribution to shareholders of record on May 10, 1990, contingent upon such approval.

The board of directors of GATX Corporation declared a quarterly dividend of $0.275 per common share, payable June 30, 1990, to shareholders of record June 15. As the record date for this dividend occurs after the record date for the stock split, the dividend is on a post-split basis.

The board also declared a quarterly dividend of 62-1/2 cents per share on the $2.50 preferred stock, payable June 1, 1990, to shareholders of record May 15.

Additionally, the board declared a quarterly dividend of $.96875 per share on $3.875 cumulative convertible preferred stock payable Aug. 1, 1990, to shareholders of record July 16.

GREENWOOD, SC (APRIL 27) PR NEWSWIRE - Kaiser Aluminum & Chemical Corp., a subsidiary of MAXXAM Inc. (ASE: MXM), held a grand opening today for its $12 million Greenwood, S.C., aluminum forgings plant which is now fully operational.

The plant began production late last year, producing aluminum forgings for a variety of applications in domestic and foreign automobiles. These include air bag housings, engine mounts, brackets, driveshaft yokes, and other automotive parts. The 112,800-square-foot facility, with the capacity to produce 4.7 million pounds of aluminum forgings annually, presently employs about 40 people. Employment should reach 70 by year-end.

The plant houses four forge presses. Two are cold impact presses, capable of exerting 1,000 and 2,000 tons of force respectively, and two are hot forge presses. The hot forge presses -- a 2,750-ton and a 3,000-ton -- are each coupled with a preheat furnace, a trim press, and a cooling conveyor to form a self-contained manufacturing cell.

"We are committed to being a top-quality supplier of automotive parts to our customers," said plant manager Ron M. Walls.

"Aluminum forgings, known for their high strength-to-weight ratio, are ideal candidates for use in the transportation industry, where the weight savings they offer are important to fuel conservation."

The forging division of Kaiser Aluminum is one of the largest forgings producers in the U.S. It produces aluminum forgings for customers in the heavy truck, automotive, machinery and equipment, aerospace, and marine markets.

Kaiser Aluminum & Chemical Corp. is headquartered in Oakland, Calif.

PHILADELPHIA (APRIL 27) PR NEWSWIRE - Authorized Distribution Network Inc. (ADN), which does business as Data Access Systems, announced today that it had decided to cease distributing IBM personal computer products, and had entered into an agreement with CompuCom Systems Inc., a Dallas-based reseller of IBM computers with offices in 25 locations, including Cherry Hill, N.J., to sell its customer list of IBM computer, users.

CompuCom also has a 10-day option to acquire ADN's authorization as reseller of IBM computers, which is located at a retail store in Wayne, Pa.

ADN will continue to manufacture and market its proprietary terminal, the DASI AT 1127, which is used primarily in the Unisys market, but which also is compatible with DEC, Hewlett Packard and, on an optional basis, IBM mainframes.

Earlier this year ADN moved its corporate headquarters from Blackwood, N.J., where it still retains a warehouse facility, to 1528 Walnut St. in Philadelphia.

NEW YORK (APRIL 27) PR NEWSWIRE - U.S. District Judge Pierre N. Leval today entered an order declaring invalid the recent amendment to the share rights plan of Avon Products Inc. (NYSE: AVP).

The amendment reduced the threshold at which the rights become non-redeemable by the board to 12.5 percent. Chartwell Associates, a limited partnership that owns about 12.4 percent of Avon's voting stock, had challenged the validity of the amendment.

Except for the amendment, Avon's share rights plan remains effective in all respects, including the 20 percent "flip-in" trigger.

Avon will appeal the decision to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Second MONTVALE, NJ (APRIL 27) PR NEWSWIRE - Mercedes-Benz of North America has initiated the voluntary recall of 1,584 of its 300-class medium-size cars to replace the pre-resistor for the auxiliary engine cooling fan. Under certain operating conditions, when the auxiliary fan is working at low speed, heat from the pre-resistor could cause its protective plastic cover to melt and possibly burn.

Dealers will, at no charge and at minimum customer inconvenience, replace the pre-resistor with one that has a metal cover.

Three incidents of the plastic cover melting have been reported, none involving any accidents or injuries.

The cars being recalled are certain 1990-model 300E 2.6, 300E and 300E 4Matic sedans, 300TE and 300TE 4Matic station wagons and 300CE coupes.

The pre-resistor is a device to reduce the voltage supplied to the auxiliary fan to enable it to run at different speeds, depending on engine coolant temperature. Because current only flows through the pre- resistor when the air conditioning is on , MBNA is suggesting, as a precaution, owners of the involved cars only operate the climate control system in the economy mode until the unit has been replaced.

SYRACUSE, NY (APRIL 27) PR NEWSWIRE - Niagara Mohawk Power Corporation (NYSE: NMK) reported earnings of $81.1 million or $.60 per share for the first quarter of this year compared with $59.4 million or $.44 per share for the first quarter of 1989.

For the 12 months ended March 31, 1990, earnings were $127.2 million or $.93 per share compared with $118.9 million or $.89 per share last year.

Earnings for both 1990 reporting periods were higher due to the impact of an August 1989 regulatory agreement that provides certain expense deferrals and permits recovery of replacement power costs incurred because of the Nine Mile Unit One outage. Included in earnings for the first quarter 1990 are $23 million or $.11 per share of certain expense deferrals provided by the agreement. Earnings for the 12 months ended March 31, 1990, include $37 million or $.18 per share of these expense deferrals. First quarter 1989 earnings reflect approximately $21 million or $.10 per share of Unit One replacement power costs not recovered from ratepayers.

Total electric sales for the quarter increased 1.1 percent, including a 41.9 percent increase in sales to other utilities. Sales to ultimate customers, including residential, commercial and industrial classifications, remained relatively unchanged from the same period last year. Residential and commercial sales increased 1.8 and 1.9 percent, respectively, while industrial sales decreased 3.8 percent for the quarter compared to the same period last year.

Total electric revenues for the three months ended March 31, 1990 increased 13.9 percent to $728.0 million, from $639.0 million for the same period last year.

Total electric sales over the 12-month period increased 1.8 percent, including a 4.3 percent decline in sales to other utilities. Sales to ultimate customers increased 2.1 percent, led by increases in the residential, commercial and industrial sectors of 2.7, 2.5 and 1.3 percent respectively, due to increased usage, customer growth and improved economic conditions.

Total electric revenues for the 12 months ended March 31, 1990 were up 5.6 percent over the previous 12-month period, totalling $2,507.6 million.

Gas sales during the quarter (including transportation of customer- owned gas) declined 1.2 percent. Commercial, industrial and sales to other gas systems increased 12.1, 120.8 and 10.5 percent, respectively, while residential sales and transportation of customer-owned gas decreased 1.1 and 32.6 percent, respectively, from last year. The significant increase in industrial sales and the related decrease in the transportation of customer-owned gas is primarily due to restrictions of direct purchases from gas suppliers.

Total gas revenues for the three months ended March 31, 1990 were $225.5 million, up 7.7 percent from the same period last year.

Gas sales for the 12 months ended March 31, 1990 (including transportation of customer-owned gas) increased 5.4 percent compared to the previous 12-month period, reflecting overall increases in all sectors.

Total gas revenues for the 12 months ended March 31, 1990 were $503.5 million, up 8.5 percent over the previous 12 months.

Dividends were declared at prescribed rates for all series of preferred stock. The second quarter dividend rate per annum for the adjustable rate preferred stock Series A is 7.25 percent; Series B is 9.475 percent; and Series C is 9.25 percent. These rates equate to payments of $.453125 $.592188 and $.578125 per share, respectively.

Preferred dividends are payable June 30 to holders of record May 18, 1990.

Sales for the year 1989 were $28,889,000, up 9 percent from sales of $26,470,000 for the year ended Dec. 31, 1988.

Net loss for the year ended Dec. 31, 1989, was $17,225,000, or $3.68 per share, as compared with net loss of $11,384,000, or $2.43 per share, for the prior year.

Sales for the fourth quarter were $6,883,000, up 36 percent from sales of $5,044,000 for the same period last year.

Net loss for the fourth quarter was $6,125,000, or $1.31 per share, compared with net loss of $5,950,000, or $1.27 per share, last year.

David Meridor, president of Laser Industries, commented that the 1989 losses are primarily a result of the late introduction of the company's new products as well as the expenses incurred in order to insure the smooth completion of the introduction. The loss also includes inventory write-down of $6,231,000 reflecting reassessment of the company's inventory of lasers and related parts, carried out in conjunction with the launch of the new generation of laser systems and accessories.

Meridor pointed out that the introduction of a wide range of new products together with the implementation of stringent streamlining measures at the end of 1989 should substantially improve the 1990 financial results.

Laser Industries Ltd. is a leader in the design, development, manufacture and marketing of medical laser systems and accessories sold under the trade name "SHARPLAN."

LANCASTER, PA (APRIL 27) PR NEWSWIRE - Armstrong World Industries Inc. (NYSE: ACK) will build a manufacturing plant at Dallas, Ga., to make pipe insulation that will serve markets in the Southeast and Southwest.

The new 60,000-square-foot plant, expected to be in production near the beginning of 1991, will be situated on 7.3 acres of land at the Paulding County Industrial Park in Dallas. It will replace Armstrong's existing Atlanta-area pipe insulation plant, housed in two leased buildings at the Fulton County Industrial Park, and this plant will be closed with the opening of the new facility.

"The growth of our business has been such that we need to expand production," said William W. Locke, group vice president for Armstrong's International and Industry Products Operations. "At our current Atlanta plant, we have no room to grow. At the new location at Dallas, we can program the possibility of future expansion into our planning right from the start."

Armstrong's existing Atlanta-area plant employs 15 to 20 people. The plant at Dallas is expected to approximately double this employment when it reaches full production, Locke said.

The insulation products made at the new plant will be sold to contractors, wholesale distributors and original equipment manufacturers for use on chilled or heated pipelines in heating, refrigeration and air-conditioning systems.

Armstrong's plant at Dallas will be one of ten Armstrong plants around the world that manufacture pipe insulation. The others are at Braintree, Mass; Indianapolis, Ind.; Montreal, Quebec, Canada; Oldham, England; Munster, West Germany; Palafrugell, Spain; Trezzano Rosa, Italy; Rothrist, Switzerland, and Braeside, Victoria, Australia.

John J. Weller, who is plant manager at Armstrong's current plant at Atlanta, will become plant manager of the new facility at Dallas.

Armstrong has purchased land for the new plant from the Paulding County Industrial Building Authority, which works in association with the Paulding County Commissioners and with the Paulding Chamber of Commerce. The plant will be constructed by Paulding Commercial Builders Inc., general contractors. The value of the land or of the plant to be constructed there was not disclosed.

The plant will be built across the road from an existing adhesives plant operated by The W.W. Henry Company, an Armstrong subsidiary. The site will be served by State Route 278, a four-lane highway now under construction, which connects with Interstate 20.

#90117p8671 04/27/1990 ~PR Newswire

SAN FRANCISCO (APRIL 27) PR NEWSWIRE - The following report to shareholders was issued today by Pan Pacific Petroleum Inc.

Re: Indonesian Operations, U.S. Operations Dear Shareholders: The last letter dated April 17, 1990 discussed the Tupai discovery and development drilling. This letter is written in response to shareholders' requests for further information on our recent oil discoveries and development drilling.

The drilling rig has now been moved from the Tupai well to a location, Harimau No.2, one mile east of Harimau No.1, a discovery well in the Batu Raja formation. The Harimau No.2 has now been spudded and is below 90 feet. The Batu Raja formation at this location is expected to be 110 feet high to the Harimau No.1.

In order to commercialize the Harimau and Tupai discoveries, a short pipeline needs to be built to Prabumulih. There is an existing pipeline from Prabumulih to a government refinery at Pladju. Proceeds from the sale of oil at Pladju at 5,000 barrels per day will provide sufficient cash flow to finance one drilling rig, fully equipped, with supplies and also administrative overhead. The two discovery wells, Harimau No.1 and Tupai No.1, with combined test rates of about 2,800 barrels per day, have narrowed the gap between monthly expenditures and income.

Ten thousand barrels per day will provide funds to pay for a two-rig operation, one for development and one for exploration.

The pipeline right-of-way to Prabumulih has been acquired. The pipeline will cost about $2,400,000, including tank storage. It is planned that the pipeline will be financed by a Hong Kong bank without shareholder dilution. The Hong Kong bank could possibly accept a higher borrowing level to cover all the company's cash requirements for the next few development wells. Modest private placements of common stock would cover any shortfall in reaching a production level of 5,000 to 10,000 barrels per day. After reaching these levels of production, further development of the Harimau and Tupai discoveries will be self- financing.

At the Tanjung EOR venture in Kalimantan, the organization is fully staffed. An engineering study as to how the pilot should work and the waterflood should proceed is due in May, and is now almost complete. There was a lot of information to gather and organize before the study could be made. PERTAMINA staff at Tanjung have been very helpful. It now appears that we will not have to wait several months to mobilize workover equipment to start the initial pilot wells. PERTAMINA will make available to us suitable equipment already at Tanjung.

As for the U.S., the value of proven reserves in the Kansas properties comprising about 140,000 acres have increased as measured by an independent 1990 appraisal by 130 percent over the original appraisal. Leasing has been completed and a four-well drilling program is planned for this summer on high potential, low cost exploration gas prospects in the Sacramento area of California, near major existing gas fields. The potential in this area for gas discoveries is excellent, up to 100 billion cubic feet.

The company continous to proceed with its objectives of enhancing shareholder values by adding new assets with development and exploration in Indonesia and in the U.S., and is sensitive to shareholder risk and dilution.

ANCHORAGE, ALASKA (APRIL 27) PR NEWSWIRE - Exxon's 1990 Work Program proposes that small, mobile squads of workers clean up the remnants of the Valdez oil spill this summer using techniques of proven effectiveness which are also the least intrusive in terms of the environment, according to Otto Harrison, general manager of Exxon's Alaska Operations.

The program was submitted today for approval to the Federal On Scene Coordinator (FOSC), Coast Guard Rear Admiral David E. Ciancaglini.

Exxon developed the Work Program based on the 1990 General Plan - March Planning Document, results of the Joint Spring Shoreline Survey (JSSS), reviews by a joint Technical Assessment Group (TAG), and knowledge the company gained from its 1989 cleanup program.

Harrison said the shoreline survey, which is being conducted by representatives of the federal government, the State of Alaska, Exxon and others, shows that conditions in Prince William Sound and the Gulf of Alaska have improved dramatically as a result of last year's massive cleanup effort and the natural cleaning effects of harsh winter storms.

As of April 20, 574 miles of shoreline had been inspected. The JSSS results showed no evidence of surface oil on 372 miles (65 percent), very light oiling along sections of 130 miles (22 percent), and a narrow to wide band of weathered crude along sections of 72 miles (13 percent).

"The remaining oil is on generally short lengths of shoreline in scattered locations," Harrison said.

Analysis of JSSS data indicates approximately 16 miles with some subsurface oil. Analyses of subsurface samples have indicated low percentages of oil, averaging one-tenth percent by weight and one percent of the pore space.

Because the JSSS is not complete, the Work Program will be updated after all agreed locations have been surveyed, TAG recommendations have been made, and they are cleared by the FOSC.

The Work Program proposes crews use the following cleanup techniques: -- Bioremediation for both surface and subsurface treatment. -- Manual pickup of oiled debris and tarballs. -- Tarmat removal. -- Spotwashing using hand-held units. -- Tilling and raking of sediments. Harrison said the Work Program notes that more intrusive techniques for subsurface treatment are being evaluated in the event their use is judged to provide a net environmental benefit.

The scope of work detailed in the Work Program was defined by considering the work site assessments already completed and adding a contingency allowance of more than 100 percent for any work yet to be identified.

The Work Program has determined that eight mobile teams supported by eight berthing vessels and 12 landing craft would be the most effective deployment of resources to accomplish the summer program. Six of these squads will conduct manual/mechanical cleanup, while two squads apply bioremediation treatment.

These teams will be further supported by 24 helicopters, 10 other aircraft 20 work boats, eight supply vessels and about 30 smaller boats and skiffs.

By June 1, the total Alaskan cleanup worker level, including field operations and onshore support, is projected to increase from the winter level of 700 to approximately 1,100.

In addition to the cleanup program, Exxon has a large number of scientists and support resources engaged in ongoing studies of the environment and of ways to facilitate restoration.

GREENVILLE, DE (APRIL 27) PR NEWSWIRE - Sears Roebuck Acceptance Corp. ("SRAC"), a wholly owned subsidiary of Sears, Roebuck and Co. ("Sears") (NYSE: S), today reported that net income increased 3.9 percent to $42.8 million for the first quarter of 1990 from $41.2 million for the same quarter of 1989.

Combined earnings on SRAC's investment in the notes and receivable balances of Sears increased 4.6 percent to $324.2 million for the first quarter of 1990 from $309.9 million for the prior-year period. The increase in earnings and net income is attributed to a higher level of combined investment which offset the effect of a lower average yield in the first quarter of 1990.

Interest and related expenses for the 1990 first quarter increased 4.8 percent to $258.9 million from $247.1 million for the comparable 1989 period. Although the interest rates on short-term borrowings declined, interest expense increased as a result of a higher level of short-term borrowings. Earnings covered fixed charges 1.25 times for the first quarter of 1990 and 1989.

PITTSBURGH (APRIL 27) PR NEWSWIRE - National Steel Corp. today reported a net loss of $4.2 million for the first quarter of 1990.

The quarterly loss was the first in three years for the Pittsburgh-based steelmaker and compares with a net profit of $9.8 million in the same 1989 period.

Included in the results for the three-month period ended March 31, 1989, is an extraordinary credit of $2.6 million, which represents the tax benefit of operating loss carryforwards not previously recognized.

Sales were $611.7 million for the quarter, 7 percent less than the $654.5 million in 1989. Steel shipments for the first quarter declined about 4 percent to 1,225,000 tons from 1,281,000 tons in the same 1989 period. The quarter ended on a strong rebound, however. March shipments of 456,700 tons represented the highest monthly total since National was restructured as a joint venture company in 1984.

Raw steel production in this year's first quarter totaled 1,400,000 tons, 10 percent more than the 1,276,000 tons produced in the same 1989 period when one of two blast furnaces at the company's Granite City Division was down for relining and other improvements for about two months.

National Steel Corp. is the nation's sixth largest steelmaker with production facilities in Ecorse, Mich., near Detroit; Portage, Ind., near Chicago; and Granite City, Ill., near St. Louis. The company is headquartered in Pittsburgh and employs about 12,000 people. It operates as a joint venture owned by NKK Corporation of Japan and National Intergroup Inc. (NYSE: NII). As set forth in a press release issued by National Intergroup Inc. on April 25, the parent companies announced they had reached an agreement in principle with respect to future changes in the ownership and capital structures of National Steel.

#90117p8691 04/27/1990 ~PR Newswire

NEW YORK (APRIL 27) PR NEWSWIRE - In the first three months of 1990, Credit Suisse's balance sheet showed strong growth in lendings to customers, which at Sfr. 75 billion were Sfr. 4.5 billion or 6.3 percent higher than at the end of 1989; and further interest-driven shifts in the structure of deposits on the liabilities side. Total assets expanded 5.1 percent to Sfr. 123.7 billion during the period under review.

The overall flow of funds into customer deposits remained unsatisfactory and heavy use had to again be made of interbank funds to finance lendings. Thus monies deposited by other banks with Credit Suisse rose Sfr. 6.4 billion (23.7 percent) to Sfr. 33.4 billion, with the largest increase -- Sfr. 5.7 billion or 26.8 percent -- being posted by time deposits. Customer deposits grew at a slower rate than in the previous quarter (by 1.5 percent as against 3.1 percent, to a total of Sfr 77.7 billion), but high interest-bearing time deposits went up Sfr 2.4 billion (6.3 percent) to Sfr. 40.5 billion. There was a trickle of funds into medium-term notes which grew Sfr 155 million or 1.8 percent; and broad movement out of private, salary and investment accounts, which declined Sfr 406 million (8.8 percent) to Sfr 4.2 billion. By the end of the quarter, savings deposits were down to Sfr. 7.7 billion, a decrease of Sfr 137 million or 1.8 percent from the end-1989 figure.

Turning to lending business, placement with other banks increased slightly. A good part of the strong growth posted by loans to customers was in the form of foreign lendings, while the 22.3 percent rise in bills and money market paper was the result of a further build-up in liquidity.

Margins in interest business were narrower than in the first quarter of 1989, but it was the company's securities trading operations above all that posted unsatisfactory earnings. This was a reflection of the poor performance of prices on the exchanges during the quarter. Gross profit was substantially lower than for the yearback period. Since no improvement in the operating environment is in sight, it is by no means clear that the shortfalls posted in the first quarter will be made up for further on in the year.

WASHINGTON (APRIL 27) PR NEWSWIRE - The Office of Thrift Supervision (OTS) today placed Home Owners Savings Bank F.S.B., Burlington, Mass., under government conservatorship and appointed the Resolution Trust Corporation (RTC) to manage the institution.

The conservatorship did not result in any interruption of Home Owners' day-to-day operations. The institution will remain open for business as usual. Holders of insured accounts are not affected by the action, which was taken by OTS to protect insured depositors and the interests of the thrift insurance fund. Deposits remain insured to the $100,000 legal limit.

OTS initiated the action because Home Owners was operating in an unsafe and unsound condition.

In February 1990 Home Owners consented to a cease and desist order issued by OTS that required the thrift to adopt a comprehensive interest rate risk policy, an asset review and classification policy and a central management information system, as well as detailed operating restrictions.

As of Dec. 31, 1989, Home Owners reported assets of $3.6 billion, liabilities of $3.6 billion and tangible capital of negative $106.3 million, for a tangible capital-to-assets ratio of negative 2.9 percent.

Home Owners common stock is traded on the New York Stock Exchange, and its preferred stock is traded on the National Association of Securities Dealers Automated Quotations (NASDAQ). Home Owners common stock is also traded on the Midwest Stock Exchange. The trading symbol for Home Owners common stock is HFS, and the trading symbol for its preferred stock is HFSLP.

MINNEAPOLIS (APRIL 27) PR NEWSWIRE - Voroba Hearing Systems Inc., a subsidiary of Bausch & Lomb (NYSE: BOL), announced today that it is changing the company name to Bausch & Lomb Hearing Systems Division.

The Minneapolis-based company manufactures and markets the Quantum soft auditory canal hearing aid and the Programmable Auditory Comparator (PAC) diagnostic testing and selection system. Bausch & Lomb acquired an 80 percent stake in the company in 1989.

"Among both healthcare professionals and consumers, the Bausch & Lomb name represents unparalleled commitment to quality and service -- a commitment that we have always shared," said Dr. Barry Voroba, founder and president of Bausch & Lomb Hearing Systems Division. "The new company name reinforces our shared dedication to being first and best in hearing healthcare."

Together, the PAC system and the Quantum comprise a unique and proprietary hearing healthcare system that provides customization and allows patients with hearing loss participate in identifying the frequencies that need amplification and in choosing the hearing aid that fits properly.

The PAC is a paired-comparison diagnostic system similar to that used to prescribe eyeglasses or contact lenses. The Quantum offers a form-fitting shell with a soft covering which precisely conforms to an individual's ear as well as a modular design and microchip technology that minimize vibration and acoustical feedback.

Daniel E. Gill, chairman of Bausch & Lomb, said, "We are pleased that Voroba Hearing Systems is incorporating the Bausch & Lomb name. Hearing healthcare is an area that's virtually unserved. Best estimates suggest there are tens of millions of Americans who need a hearing aid but do not use one. Bausch & Lomb Hearing Systems Division has unique products and technology that can change this startling statistic."

Bausch & Lomb Hearing Systems Division is a Minneapolis-based subsidiary of Bausch & Lomb, a world leader in healthcare and optical products and services.

DRYDEN, MI (APRIL 27) PR NEWSWIRE - Champion Enterprises Inc. (AMEX: CHB) has named Walter R. Young Jr., 45, its new president and chief executive officer.

The board of directors of Champion Enterprises elected Young as the CEO to succeed Joseph J. Morris, 61, who is retiring after 30 years with the company. Young steps into the top management post immediately to begin overseeing all corporate operations. In addition to manufactured homes, Champion is involved nationally in the production and marketing of motor homes and medium-duty buses through its subsidiary Champion Motor Coach Inc.

Stephen E. Summers, 43, will continue to serve as the corporation's executive vice president and chief operating officer. "Steve's in-depth knowledge of our day-to-day operations in manufactured home production and sales, and his experience with our dealer groups, will continue to provide vital direction for Champion's growth," Day said. Summers, with the company for 20 years, was appointed COO in November 1988.

Prior to joining Champion, Young was president of The Wheelabrator Corporation, based in Atlanta, an operation of The Henley Group Inc., where he was responsible for five wholly owned companies and several international joint ventures. Previously, he held top management positions with The Budd Company in Troy, Mich., which is involved in the manufacture and distribution of original equipment and aftermarket parts for the automotive and heavy-duty equipment industries.

Young spent 15 years with BF Goodrich Company, where he served as general manager of the U.S. chain of 200 tire sales outlets, responsible for operations and profit for consumer, commercial accounts and tire dealer sales. He also served as vice president of marketing services for the company's worldwide tire group.

Young earned his M.B.A. degree in management and marketing in 1968 from Pennsylvania State University, State College, Pa. In 1966, he earned his B.A. degree in liberal arts from Muskingum College, New Concord, Ohio.

Champion Enterprises Inc., based in Dryden, is the holding company for Champion Home Builders Co., Champion Motor Coach Inc., as well as Moduline International Inc. and Sun Belt Energy Housing Inc. which also produce manufactured homes. The company has a total of 24 manufacturing plants in 14 states and British Columbia, Canada, and employs a total of 2,700 people.

PITTSBURGH (APRIL 27) PR NEWSWIRE - H.H. Robertson Co. (NYSE: RHH) today announced that for the first quarter of 1990, the company had a net loss of $5,968,000, or $0.95 per share, on revenues of $107,725,000.

This compares to a first quarter 1989 net loss of $4,440,000 or $0.71 per share, on revenues of $109,233,000.

"The seasonality of the non-residential construction business historically results in a loss during the first quarter, with earnings for remaining quarters of the year showing progressive improvement," said Jack Hatcher, chairman and chief executive officer.

Hatcher noted that H.H. Robertson's international operations returned a profit during the first quarter 1990, and income resulting from the restructuring of Norway operations also was recorded for the period.

"With the discontinuation of manufacturing in Norway and Holland, our reorganization in Europe is now complete," said Hatcher. "Robertson's European manufacturing activities are now consolidated in larger, more efficient plants in Ellesmere Port, England, and Barcelona, Spain."

At the end of the first quarter, H.H. Robertson's backlog of uncompleted orders was $258,000,000 compared to a backlog of $282,000,000 at the end of December 1989.

"Our backlog of orders for the quarter is not as high as we would like," Hatcher said. "This is due in part to the banking industry's real estate lending policy, which had an impact on non-residential contract awards during the quarter. However, on a positive note, quotation and estimating activity relating to new projects has been operating at a very high level since the beginning of the year.

"The level of new orders received during the month of April was more in keeping with our projections," Hatcher added. "We expect new orders during the balance of the year to be in line with anticipated results."

BLOOMFIELD HILLS, MI (APRIL 27) PR NEWSWIRE - PHM Corporation (PHM) (NYSE: PHM) Bloomfield Hills, announced today its consolidated revenues, income before income taxes, income taxes and net income, and the declaration of its regular quarterly dividend for the first quarter ended March 31, 1990.

For the quarter ended March 31, 1990, PHM's net income was $12,233,000 ($.46 per share), compared with $10,769,000 ($.41 per share) for the comparable period in 1989.

Sales from for-sale homebuilding operations in the first quarter of 1990 decreased to $144,565,000, from $164,027,000 in 1989. This resulted from a 26-percent decrease in for-sale housing units closed partially offset by a 16-percent increase in the average unit sales price to $139,000. Homebuilding operating income was $1,218,000 in the first quarter of 1990, compared with $4,498,000 in 1989. The decrease was due principally to the decreased sales volume.

During the quarter ended March 31, 1990, net new orders of $249,000,000 (1,667 units) were received, compared with $215,000,000 (1,633 units) during the quarter ended March 31, 1989. Housing unit backlog at March 31, 1990 increased to $318,000,000 (2,074 units) from $258,000,000 (1,908 units) at March 31, 1989.

The Company's financial services subsidiaries (mortgage banking, financing and thrift operations) had operating income of $10,647,000 for the quarter ended March 31, 1990, compared with $2,826,000 for the quarter ended March 31, 1989. The increase in operating income was due principally to a $6,700,000 gain realized from the sale of mortgage servicing rights.

The Board of Directors declared a regular quarterly dividend of $.03 per share on the company's common stock, payable July 2, 1990, to shareholders of record at the close of business on June 15, 1990.

James Grosfeld has announced his retirement as Chairman of the Board and Chief Executive Officer. He will remain a member of the company's Board of Directors and will act as the Co-Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Board of Directors (together with William J. Pulte) and will become a consultant to the company. The company has purchased from Grosfeld 1,770,634 shares of its common stock at approximately market price. Following the sale, Grosfeld will continue to own 3 million shares, which represents approximately 13 percent, of the company's common stock.

HOUSTON (APRIL 27) PR NEWSWIRE - Pennzoil Co. (NYSE: PZL) reported 1990 first quarter net income of $32.7 million, or 85 cents per share, down from 1989 results of $52.5 million, or $1.34 per share.

Revenues for the first quarter of 1990 amounted to $553 million versus $576 million for the comparable 1989 period.

James L. Pate, Pennzoil's president and chief executive officer, said, "Operating income from the company's oil and gas operations was up sharply over 1989 levels, due to higher crude oil and natural gas prices. However, the gain was largely offset by lower sales prices and volumes in the sulphur division.

"Operating income for the motor oil and automotive products segment was somewhat lower due to decreased motor oil volumes and increased cost," he added.

Investment income decreased because of lower reported book income as a result of the conversion of $2.1 billion from short-term marketable securities into a long-term investment in Chevron common stock.

KEY WEST, FL (APRIL 27) PR NEWSWIRE - Barnett Banks, Inc. (NYSE: BBI) today announced that Barnett Bank of the Keys has acquired First Federal Savings and Loan Association of the Florida Keys from the Resolution Trust Corporation (RTC).

With deposits of $144 million and seven offices throughout the Keys, the acquisition of First Federal strengthens Barnett's presence in the area. Before the acquisition, Barnett had seven offices and assets of $255 million.

"We want to assure First Federal customers that we look forward to delivering the same high level of service that Barnett's millions of customers in Florida and Georgia have come to expect," said Charles E. Rice, Barnett's chairman and chief executive officer.

Harry Woolley, president and CEO of Barnett Bank of the Keys, said "This is an excellent strategic fit in our market and a good opportunity to serve additional customers from our already proven network."

Barnett is assuming the deposits of approximately $144 million. In addition, Barnett has an option to acquire about $119 million in mortgage and consumer loans. Barnett's purchase premium in the transaction is $5.6 million.

All seven former First Federal offices will begin offering Barnett products on Monday, April 30. Deposits continue to be insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC). First Federal customers may continue to bank in their usual manner, using First Federal checks.

Barnett is a 113-year-old company with assets of more than $29 billion in Florida and Georgia. Its stock (BBI) is listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

DUNCANVILLE, TX (APRIL 27) PR NEWSWIRE - NCNB Texas today confirmed that it has entered into a purchase and assumption agreement with the Resolution Trust Corp. (RTC) to assume approximately $146.5 million in deposits of the former HeritageBanc Savings Association, headquartered here.

The savings and loan was declared insolvent earlier today and turned over to the RTC as receiver. NCNB Texas will pay the RTC a premium of $101,000 for entering into the transaction.

Under terms of the recent federal thrift legislation, the deposits were first transferred to a newly created interim federal savings association. The institution then immediately transferred the deposits to NCNB Texas.

The deposits represent approximately 18,600 accounts from HeritageBanc Savings.

Cannon said the former HeritageBanc Savings facilities will reopen on the regular schedules beginning Saturday, Apr. 28, as branches of NCNB. The main office is located at 600 Camp Wisdom Rd. Its branches are located at 220 S. Cedar Ridge, 102 S. U.S. Highway 67 in Cedar Hill and 120 Marsh Lane in Dallas.

NCNB Texas reported $33.7 billion in total assets at Dec. 31, 1989. It serves customers through a network of more than 200 banking centers in 68 Texas communities.

GREEN BAY, WI (APRIL 27) PR NEWSWIRE - Fort Howard Corp. today announced financial results for its first quarter ended Mar. 31, 1990.

For the first quarter, Fort Howard's tissue sales increased 7.3 percent to $266,910,000 compared to 1989 first quarter sales of $248,651,000. Operating income improved 16.0 percent in the first quarter of 1990 to $60,344,000.

Fort Howard reported an 18.0 percent decrease in its net loss to $29,242,000 in the first quarter of 1990 compared to a loss of $35,674,000 in the first quarter of 1989. Improved operating results and the divestiture of certain cup operations contributed to the decrease in the net loss.

The reported net loss for the first quarter of 1990 and 1989 resulted from increased interest expense, goodwill amortization and financing costs which arose in connection with Fort Howard's 1988 Leveraged Buyout (LBO). These LBO charges include significant non- cash items which did not impair the company's ability to meet its operating expenses and financial obligations.

In connection with the company's previously announced divestiture of certain cup operations, Fort Howard changed its accounting for the cup operations to the equity method during the third quarter of 1989. Accordingly, the Loss Before Equity Earnings reported in the accompanying financial statements includes only the results of Fort Howard's tissue operations.

In addition, amounts attributable to interest expense are not directly comparable. The company's other income in the first quarter of 1990 includes interest earnings of $7,200,000 on bridge notes received in connection with the transfer of the capital stock of its North American cup operations to Sweetheart Holdings Inc.

PALO ALTO, CA (APRIL 27) PR NEWSWIRE - Lincoln NC Realty Fund Inc. (AMEX: LRF) today announced that its board of directors, at a meeting held on Thursday evening, had considered a proposed letter agreement concerning a possible tender offer from Silverstone Partners and had rejected that proposed agreement based upon advice from its investment bankers, Sutro & Co., that the revised proposal was not fair.

By a letter dated Apr. 25, 1990, Silverstone Partners had offered to purchase up to all of the outstanding common stock and warrants of LNCRF at a cash purchase price of $9.21875 per share of common stock and $.03125 per warrant plus a deferred payment of $1 per share of common stock payable thirty months after the closing. The deferred payment would be subject to an appreciation factor of 12 percent per annum and would be partially secured by junior security interest in an existing loan by LNCRF. The offered purchase price was subject to several adjustments including a reduction for any dividends paid after Apr. 26, a reduction of $50,000 which had been advanced by LNCRF under the original proposal and a further reduction in the event certain costs and expenses of LNCRF exceed $150,000.

The offer was also subject to several conditions including that Silverstone complete its due diligence on LNCRF, that Silverstone complete its negotiations with Lincoln Property Company regarding outstanding loans that the board of directors of LNCRF remove, waive or exempt the proposed transaction from certain restrictions in the Articles and By-Laws of LNCRF and pursuant to Maryland law and that Silverstone obtain financing to complete the proposed transactions. Sutro & Co. advised the board that it had discounted the value of the $1 deferred payment because of various factors, including concerns that the deferred payment would only be partially secured and that the surviving entity would be highly leveraged.

LNCRF also announced that the board at its meeting on Apr. 26, 1990, had declared a dividend of $.15 per share to shareholders of record on May 17, 1990, payable on May 31, 1990, for the first quarter of 1990. William F. Garlock, president of the company, stated that the quarterly dividend had been reduced from $.21 per share to reflect the lower income expectations as a result of the take-back of the Lincoln Wrigley Creek Business Park from the debtor on loans made by the company and secured by this project and the expected take-back of the Lincoln Rancho Bernardo project from the debtor on loans made and secured by that project.

The board at the meeting also set June 21, 1990, as the date for the Annual Meeting of Shareholders. Notice of the Annual Meeting of Shareholders will be mailed to shareholders of record as of May 28, 1990.

The board also amended LNCRF's By-Laws effective as of the 1990 Annual Meeting to reduce the number of directors from seven to three. Garlock stated that the board unanimously agreed to this reduction in order to reduce LNCRF's expenses.

MANAGUA, NICARAGUA (APRIL 27) UPI - The day-old government of President Violeta Chamorro allowed Nicaragua's currency to plummet Thursday to just half its value against the dollar in a move aimed at reining in runaway inflation.

The official rate of exchange remained at 53,800 cordobas to the dollar, but central bank-controlled exchange houses began charging 144,000 cordobas for each dollar they sold and paying 140,000 cordobas for each dollar bought. Before the devaluation, the dollar was worth 70,800 cordobas to buy and 68,730 to sell.

Francisco Mayorga, Chamorro's chief economic adviser and director of the central bank under the new government that was sworn in Wednesday, said the measure was aimed at attacking spiraling prices, which rose 1,700 percent in 1989, down from 33,000 percent in 1988.

Mayorga said Nicaraguans could expect inflation to drop drastically between June and September, although he estimated the rate of inflation at 35 percent in March and said it would reach 40 percent in April. "We will eliminate inflation within 12 weeks," Mayorga said.

Mayorga said the first shipments of a new currency, the gold cordoba, would begin arriving in Nicaragua in July and that the currency would be on a par wih the U.S. dollar.

Chamorro's National Opposition Union has promised to implement a number of economic changes in Nicaragua, including the privatization of nationalized industries and implementation of capitalist-style farming programs.

BOSTON (APRIL 27) UPI - A federal judge found Navy doctors responsible for infecting a Marine and his family with the AIDS virus by giving the officer's wife a blood transfusion contaminated with the deadly disease.

U.S. District Judge Rya Zobel ruled Thursday in a $55 million damage suit filed by Marine Chief Warrant Officer Martin Gaffney, who accuaed doctors of malpractice at the Navy Regional Medical Center in Long Beach, Calif., where his pregnant wife, Mutsuko, was treated six years before she died of AIDS.

Zobel delayed assessing damages in the case pending a separate hearing later this year.

Mutsuko Gaffney passed the virus on to her husband and one of their two children, testimony in the non-jury trial showed. The child also died of AIDS.

Zobel found that doctors treating Mrs. Gaffney at the Long Beach facility in 1981 failed to induce delivery and monitor the fetal condition of the couple's first son, even though the mother was a month past her due date.

Mrs. Gaffney delivered her stillborn son by Caesarean section two days after an emergency room nurse sent her home, claiming her labor contractions were a false alarm.

The operation resulted in an infection, and Mrs. Gaffney required two units of blood. One of the units was infected by the AIDS virus, Gaffney's suit claimed.

''In summary, I find that the defendant was negligent in the treatment of Mutsuko, that she had to be transfused as a direct result of that negligence, and that it was forseeable in 1981 that a communicable disease could be transmitted through a blood transfusion,'' Zobel said in her decision.

''I further find that the government liability extends to the family members to whom the disease was also communicated,'' the judge said.

The Navy Medical Command traced the two units of blood back to their donors, one of whom was discharged from the Marine Corps for homosexual activity, according to trial records.

Gaffney's suit, filed in 1987, stated that the lack of any other risk factors for AIDS in the family's medical and social histories established that the second unit of blood was the source of the infection.

Although there was no routine screening of donated blood at the time of the transfusion, Gaffney claimed his wife would not have needed it if her pregnancy had been handled properly.

The couple's second son died in August 1986, 13 months after his birth, from an AIDS-related infection. Mutsuko Gaffney died the next year.

Gaffney, who lives in the Boston suburb of Weymouth, is a carrier of the AIDS virus, but has shown no symptoms associated with it. His 6-year-old daughter, Maureene, is not infected.

Zobel will set a hearing date to decide the amount of monetary damages the court will award to Gaffney.

Gaffney's lawyer, Robert Canty, said the date depends on the court schedule, but he hopes it will be by late spring.

''(Gaffney) is certainly pleased that this part of the proceeding is completed. It has been long in coming,'' Canty said. ''Now he is emotionally torn between this decision and his loss.''

(APRIL 27) UPI - Seven Chinese peasants who arrived at New York's Kennedy International Airport Thursday to study organic farming were abducted by screaming Asian men who forced them into a car. Detectives now say they're investigating the possibility the peasants staged the kidnapping to enter the country illegally.

A federal judge in Boston ruled Thursday that Navy doctors are responsible for infecting a Marine officer and his family with the AIDS virus. Marine Chief Warrant Officer Martin Gaffney, his wife, and one of their two children became infected after Mrs. Gaffney received a tainted blood transfusion in 1981.

(APRIL 27) UPI - South African black leader Nelson Mandela visited a village near his birthplace Thursday, 18 miles outside the capital of the nominally independent Transkei homeland. He toured family graves and met with tribal leaders who presented him with a plot of land and fed him a traditional meal of oxen. Mandela was born the son of chief councilor to the paramount chief of the area's largest tribe. He was groomed to become a chief but left in the 1940's, partly to avoid an arranged marriage.

The Environmental Protection Agency is warning consumers against using insect repellant containing a pesticide shown to cause harmful side affects in animals. The pesticide is known as Insect Repellant-11 or R-11 and is found in 25 percent of the repellants used in the United States. The two most common brand names that contain the pesticide are Off and Cutter.

A Superior Court judge in San Fernando, California, sentenced a postman to 180 days in jail for fatally shooting a pet dog on his route as the animal bought him a Christmas present. The judge also ordered 34-year-old Floyd Bertran Sterling to seek psychological counseling. Sterling said the dog had bitten him in the past and was attacking him for a second time when he shot the pet. But an autopsy proved the dog was shot while running away from the postman.

NEW YORK (APRIL 27) UPI - Theatrical impresario Joseph Papp has rejected a $50,000 National Endowment of the Arts grant, saying he will not accept restrictions on obscenity the agency has imposed since October, a published report said Friday.

Papp, director of the New York Shakespeare Festival, had been offered the federal grant to help underwrite the Festival Latino, a month-long program of Latin American theater, music and films set for August, The New York Times reported in Friday editions.

Papp's decision to turn down the grant comes at a time of financial struggle for his ventures.

''It's a difficult time for us,'' he told the newspaper. ''We're losing 'A Chorus Line' tomorrow, and we have a deficit of over $2.5 million right now. This is the worst time for me to do this. It's a matter of censorship. How could I produce plays by Vaclav Havel and do that?''

Papp said he rejected the money to protest the agency's rule that grant recipients not spend federal money on works containing ''depictions of sadomasochism, homoeroticism, the sexual exploitation of children or individuals engaged in the sex act, and which, when taken as a whole, do not have serious literary, artistic, political or scientific merit.''

Papp said he wrote to National Endowment of the Arts chairman John Frohnmayer, saying, ''I cannot in all good conscience accept any money from the N.E.A. as long as the (Republican Sen. Jesse) Helms-inspired amendment on obscenity is part of our agreement. I am therefore turning down the recently awarded $50,000 grant for the Latino Festival.''

Papp also told the chairman that if the New York Shakespeare Festival is awarded the $550,000 it has applied for in grants for 1991, and the restrictions remain in effect next year, he will reject those funds as well.

The New York Shakespeare Festival has a $14 million annual budget, with federal arts grants accounting for about $500,000, or 3.9 percent, of the funds, Papp said.

The federal arts agency began applying the obscenity restrictions last October in the wake of a controversial showing at a Washington, D.C. museum of works by the late photographer Robert Mapplethorpe. The show, partly financed with federal money, contained photos criticized by Helms and others for their allegedly homoerotic content.

CHICAGO (APRIL 27) UPI - The Chicago Blackhawks provided all the offense they needed Thursday night during a two-minute, 16-second span of the second period.

Jocelyn Lemieux, Troy Murray and Steve Thomas each scored during the brief surge, lifting the Blackhawks to a 3-2 win over the St. Louis Blues and a 3-2 advantage in the Norris Division final.

''We didn't play with the intensity we wanted to in the first period,'' said Thomas, whose fifth goal of the playoffs turned out to be the game-winner. ''When you come out in the second period and you get a burst of goals like that, it gives you a lot of confidence for the rest of the game.''

The Blackhawks can capture the best-of-seven series with a victory in Game 6, which shifts back to St. Louis Arena Saturday. A seventh game, if necessary, would be at Chicago Stadium Monday night.

Rookie goaltender Ed Belfour started his second straight game for the Blackhawks and faced just 20 shots but made several big saves, including two on Brett Hull in the final period and a Peter Zezel stuff attempt with about a minute left. Both St. Louis goals came on the power play.

''He made a great save on the one glove save - great save,'' Hull said of his bullet from the left circle with 12 minutes to go. ''I got the rebound but he was kind of lucky there because it hit him.''

Despite outshooting the Blues 16-4 in the opening period, Chicago trailed 1-0 on Adam Oates' first goal of the playoffs.

But Lemieux tied it with a brilliant individual effort at 3:56 of the second period. Lemieux, his team's fiercest hitter, broke up Paul Cavallini's shot attempt in his own zone, skated off on a breakaway and beat goalie Vince Riendeau to the stick side for his first goal of the playoffs.

''It was just a reaction play,'' Lemieux said. ''The play happened so fast I don't even really remember it.''

Murray put Chicago ahead 2-1 at 4:59 with a freak goal that Riendeau, outstanding in each of the first four games of the series, never saw. Defenseman Dave Manson flipped the puck toward the net that deflected off Murray, sailed high in the air and over Riendeau's head into the net.

''Nobody on the ice saw it,'' Blues coach Brian Sutter said. ''I don't think even the Chicago players saw it go in the net.''

Thomas then made it 3-1 at 6:12, blasting a slap shot from just inside the blue line that beat Riendeau to the far side. Belfour picked up an assist on the play.

Hull, who has 11 goals in 10 playoff games, cut the Blues' deficit to 3-2 midway through the second period after Thomas was ejected from the game and assessed a five-minute major for hooking. Hull teed up a shot from the slot with teammate Paul MacLean providing a perfect screen.

Hull took off on a breakaway early in the third, but Denis Savard caught him from behind and poked the puck loose.

''We were finally able to get to them with the quick offense in the second period, then were able to defend the lead after that pretty well,'' Blackhawks coach Mike Keenan said. ''They had a couple chances, but Ed Belfour played a real strong and solid game for us.''

The Blackhawks dominated the opening period in shots. They repeatedly pressured Riendeau, but the second-year goaltender was sharp early and thwarted each Chicago opportunity.

St. Louis also killed off a two-man disadvantage for a minute, 32 seconds early in the first period, then connected on their first power play. Referee Kerry Fraser penalized Belfour for delay of game after he shot the puck into the crowd, and Oates connected on a slap shot from the point 11 seconds later, at 14:05.

''Chicago came out jumping, and we were fortunate to come out of that first period up one,'' Sutter said. ''They come out and get those goals in the second - in this building, playing against this team, anything can happen.''

Rookie Rod Brind'Amour, who had a pair of assists for St. Louis, was cut on the forehead during the game and received 10-12 stitches.

(APRIL 27) UPI - The Detroit Pistons served notice Thursday night that defense and a deep bench will again be part of their playoff arsenal in 1990.

Detroit, which allowed playoff opponents to score in triple figures just twice in the postseason last year, defeated Indiana 104-92 Thursday night as it began its drive to defend its title.

Game 2 of the best-of-five opening round series is Saturday.

The Detroit reserves, keyed by John Salley and Vinnie Johnson, helped to keep the Pacers off balance as they tried to overcome a 19-point first-half deficit.

''You might call it the bench, but when I was here we called it two teams '' said Pacers Coach Dick Versace, who left Detroit last year for Indiana.

''When you put (John) Salley, (Dennis) Rodman, Vinnie (Johnson) and either Isiah (Thomas) or (Joe) Dumars on the court, it's one of the quickest teams in the world. It's equal to their first team, but it just plays a different style.''

Salley scored 20 points and pulled down 11 rebounds, while Johnson scored 14 points, including 6 in a row during one stretch in the fourth quarter when Detroit increased its lead from 84-79 to 90-79 with 7:03 remaining.

Johnson said he was aware the Pistons needed some instant offense.

''I'm always conscious of where the game is,'' he said. ''They'd cut us to five points and we had to do something to get the crowd back into it. Indiana was fighting and scratching to get back into it.''

James Edwards, who was the starting center for the Pacers when they qualified for the playoffs after the 1980-81 season, led Detroit with 21 points. Thomas added in 20 for the Pistons.

Detlef Schrempf paced Indiana with 26 points and Rik Smits added 23.

Another factor in the Pistons' victory was their 46-32 edge in rebounding.

''That was the key,'' Smits offered. ''When the Pistons are rebounding the defensive boards, they run and that's where they're the best.''

Reggie Miller's 3-point goal and a jumper by Schrempf cut the Pistons' lead to 78-72 with 1:19 left in the third quarter. A basket by Schrempf cut the Pistons advantage to 82-74 heading into the final period.

Johnson's tip-in with 8:37 to play in the second quarter gave the Pistons a 41-22 advantage, but the Pacers cut into the lead by hitting 14 of 17 attempts from the free throw line in the period.

Indiana scored the last 6 points of the first half to cut the Pistons' lead to 56-45 at halftime.

In other opening-round games, Philadelphia clipped Cleveland 111-106, San Antonio stopped Denver 119-103, and Portland defeated Dallas 109-102.

Sixers 111, Cavaliers 106

At Philadelphia, Charles Barkley scored 38 points and Hersey Hawkins added a career-high 35 for Philadelphia. John Williams led Cleveland with 23 points, Price and Brad Daugherty had 21 apiece and Nance added 20. Game 2 will be played Sunday night at the Spectrum.

Celtics 116, Knicks 105

At Boston, Larry Bird scored 24 points, grabbed 18 rebounds and handed out 10 assists, leading Boston to their 25th consecutive home victory over the New York Knicks. Patrick Ewing led the Knicks with 22 points. Johnny Newman came off the bench to contribute 21 points. Game 2 of the best-of-five series is Saturday.

Spurs 119, Nuggets 103

At San Antonio, Willie Anderson scored 27 points and David Robinson added 26 for San Antonio. Terry Cummings finished with 19 points and Sean Elliott 15 for the Spurs, who ended the season with seven straight victories. Todd Lichti paced Denver with 22 points while Alex English and Blair Rasmussen each finished with 19. Game 2 of the best-of-five series is Saturday in San Antonio.

Blazers 109, Mavericks 102

At Portland, Terry Porter scored 28 points, including 15 of 16 from the free throw line, and Buck Williams added 21 points and 16 rebounds to lead Portland over Dallas in a first-round playoff victory. Dallas was paced by Derek Harper, who scored 24 points. Roy Tarpley added 22 points and 14 rebounds for the Mavericks.

Ryan, 43, will probably still be around long after the Cooperstown shrine is gone.

Ryan is confounding a second generation of batters and making memories for a new generation of fans.

The 43-year-old marvel struck out a club-record 16, recorded the 58th shutout of his 23-year career and threw a one-hitter for the 12th time in bringing the Texas Rangers a 1-0 win over the Chicago White Sox.

''That was a no-hitter as far as I'm concerned,'' said Chicago Manager Jeff Torborg, who caught Ryan's first no-hitter in 1973 when they were with the California Angels.

''The one hit we got was a check swing bloop. From the first inning he had no-hitter stuff. How can you look any better than that. He was awesome. Nolan is a better pitcher today than he was 17 years ago when I caught him. He is pure greatness. I have never been amazed by anything Nolan has done because he is a true champion.''

Ryan won his fourth game in as many outings, equaling his fastest start ever. He reached the 10-strikeout mark in a game for the 200th time and the 15-strikeout plateau for the 24th time. It was his 293rd career victory and he ran his major-league strikeout record total to 5,109.

Ryan, outdueled Melido Perez, 1-2, who gave up just three hits and struck out nine over six innings.

Chicago's lone hit came in the second inning when Ron Kittle hit one off the handle that fell into short right field. Texas first baseman Rafael Palmiero started back on the ball and slipped on grass soaked by day-long rains. He appeared to have little chance, however, of being able to reach the bloop hit.

''This (performance) doesn't make me feel any younger,'' said Ryan, ''but it sure makes me feel better.''

Ryan received a standing ovation from the crowd as he went out to pitch the ninth. He became the first Texas pitcher to go the distance this season. The 16 strikeouts bettered the club record he set April 12, 1989 against Milwaukee.

Of the 128 pitches Ryan threw, more than half were strikes.

''The strikeouts were simply a reflection of the control I had with my pitches,'' he said. ''My curveball was exceptional. I guess I've had better nights with a curveball. But anytime I throw it like I did tonight I am usually in pretty good shape.''

In other AL games, Milwaukee edged Kansas City 3-2, Cleveland beat Toronto 4-3, Seattle pounded New York 6-2, Boston upset California 5-4, and Oakland defeated Baltimore 6-4.

In the NL it was, Chicago 3, San Diego 1; Houston 3, Atlanta 0; Pittsburgh 2, San Francisco 1, and St. Louis 7, Los Angeles 1.

Bluejays 4, Seattle 3

At Toronto, Cory Snyder and Candy Maldonado hit back-to-back homers in the second inning and Tom Candiotti flirted with a no-hitter for six innings. Candiotti, 3-0, took a no-hitter into the seventh, then Jesse Orosco and Doug Jones combined to finish, Jones working two innings for his fifth save. Dave Stieb, 3-1, took the loss.

Brewers 3, Royals 2

At Milwaukee, Rob Deer doubled in two runs and Mark Knudson allowed two runs in 6 2-3 innings, leading Milwaukee to their seventh victory in the last eight games. Knudson, 1-0, allowed two runs on eight hits. Dan Plesac finished for his second save. Kansas City starter Mark Gubicza, 1-3, struck out 10 in his first complete game of this season.

Seattle 6, Yankees 2

At New York, Harold Reynolds hit his first homer in 1,231 career road at-bats, giving Seattle a victory over New York, who are now in last place in the AL East. Reynolds capped a five-run second inning with his seventh career homer, making a winner of Randy Johnson, 2-1. Billy Swift pitched three innings for his first save. Andy Hawkins, 0-2, took the loss as the Yankees lost for the seventh time in their last eight games.

Red Sox 5, Angels 4

At Boston, Jody Reed, who had delivered the go-ahead run with a suicide squeeze in the seventh inning, homered with one out in the bottom of the ninth inning to lift Boston. Lee Smith, 2-1, gained the victory despite allowing a pair of runs in the top of the eighth. Bryan Harvey, 1-1, took the loss.

Athletics 6, Orioles 4

At Baltimore, rookie Felix Jose went 4 for 5 with a home run and drove in four runs, lifting Oakland to a victory over Baltimore and extending their road winning streak to eight games. Jose homered to right field off Jay Tibbs, 0-2, in the seventh after Walt Weiss had reached on an error. Mike Moore, 1-1, earned the victory, allowing seven hits and four runs in six innings. Dennis Eckersley earned his sixth save.

Hours after learning Orel Hershiser would be out for the season, Tim Belcher put on a forgetable performance against the St. Louis Cardinals.

Pedro Guerrero led a 14-hit St. Louis attack with two home runs and added five RBI, guiding the Cardinals to a 7-1 triumph.

''It's obviously very disappointing news, but it is what it is,'' said Los Angeles General Manager Fred Claire said of Hershiser's injury to his right shoulder. ''John Wetteland will take Orel's spot in the rotation. That's the point we will start with.''

Hershiser will undergo arthroscopic surgery Friday to repair damage to his rotator cuff and anterior labrum, a cartilage rim that surrounds the shoulder socket. It's not certain whether the 1988 Cy Young Award winner will require reconstructive surgery.

Team physician Frank Jobe is optimistic Hershiser will return by next season. Hershiser, who sports a 99-65 career record and 2.71 ERA, initially experienced discomfort while throwing during the spring training lockout.

''There was no pain involved until I really had to cut loose. I thought it was a matter of getting into shape,'' he said. ''But what led me to believe (the injury was serious) was that in my last three outings I couldn't get past the fifth or sixth inning. I felt it wouldn't be bad to take a look at it.''

Belcher, 1-2, did a less than adequate job Thursday, giving up 11 hits and six runs while walking two and striking out four before being lifted in the seventh. Jose DeLeon, 2-0, was in command from the start for the Cardinals as he scattered seven hits while striking out seven and allowing one walk and one run in seven innings.

The Cardinals built a 2-0 lead in the first inning. Vince Coleman got the first of his three hits in the first inning and Ozzie Smith followed with a single. Willie McGee drove in Coleman with a single and Guerrero's single drove in Smith.

St. Louis made it 3-0 in the second. Coleman collected a two-out single, took third on Smith's single and came home on Belcher's wild pitch.

Smith and McGee walked in the seventh, followed by Guerrero's fourth homer.

The Dodgers have lost not only Hershiser but reliever Jay Howell who is out for a month following arthroscopic knee surgery. Outfielder Kirk Gibson, third baseman Jeff Hamilton, catcher Rick Dempsey and reliever Jim Gott are also injured.

In other NL games, Chicago downed San Diego 3-1, Pittsburgh nipped San Francisco 2-1, and Houston shut out Atlanta 3-0.

In the AL it was: Cleveland 4, Toronto 3; Milwaukee 3, Kansas City 2; Seattle 6, New York 2; Boston 5, California 4; Oakland 6, Baltimore 4; and Texas 1, Chicago 0.

Cubs 3, Padres 1

At San Diego, Mike Harkey and Mitch Williams combined on a two-hitter, snapping Chicago's six-game losing streak. Harkey, 2-1, held the Padres hitless through seven innings before Phil Stevenson homered to lead off the eighth. Williams allowed one hit in two innings for his fifth save. Bruce Hurst, 0-3, allowed six hits and two runs over 7 2-3 innings.

Pirates 2, Giants 1

At San Francisco, John Smiley pitched a three-hitter and Sid Bream singled in the winning run in the eighth inning. The Giants have dropped all eight of their games at Candlestick Park this season. Mike LaCoss, 3-1, went 7 2-3 innings and was charged with both Pirate runs.

Astros 3, Braves 0

At Atlanta, Craig Biggio belted a two-run home run and Jim Clancy surrendered two hits over seven innings leading Houston to a shutout of Atlanta. Juan Agosto relieved Clancy, 1-0, and hurled a hitless eighth while Dave Smith worked a perfect ninth for his fifth save and the Astros first shutout of the year. Loser Derek Lilliquist, 0-3, allowed seven hits over seven innings.

COLUMBIA, S.C. (APRIL 27) UPI - Convicted murderer Ronald ''Rusty'' Woomer, who killed four people during a 1979 crime spree along the South Carolina coast, was executed early Friday in the state's electric chair.

Woomer, 35, of Huntington, W.Va., closed his eyes and clenched his fists as he was strapped into the electric chair at the Broad River Correctional Center. He was prounounced dead at 1:12 a.m. EDT.

His final words included a statement of his religious faith and a simple apology to the families of his victims.

''I'm sorry,'' Woomer said in a low, shaky voice.

The execution was witnessed by Don Sellers, whose wife, Della, was kidnapped, raped and murdered by Woomer and an accomplice. Sellers said he promised his wife before she died that he would see justice done and her killer executed.

''It was too easy,'' he said, but later added: ''Justice has been served. I'm going to sleep a little better tonight, a lot better than last night.''

About 100 people gathered outside the prison, most of them capital punishment advocates. Only a handful of execution protesters were on hand, but about a dozen held a candlelight vigil outside the governor's mansion.

Woomer was the 122nd person to be executed in the United States, and the third in South Carolina, since capital punishment was reinstated in 1976. The last execution in the state was in 1986.

The condemned man exchanged final words with his relatives Thursday before his walk to the electric chair and said he was ready to die at the appointed hour if that would comfort the families of his victims.

''I just want the pain and suffering to end for them, and if the Lord sees fit to end that by me going in there and sitting down in the electric chair, whatever he says is good enough for me,'' said Woomer, who wept at times during a 30-minute interview at the facility.

Woomer, whose last hope of avoiding execution disappeared late Thursday when the U.S. Supreme Court refused to grant him a stay, said he was sure that God had forgiven him for his sins and that he would be going to heaven to join his mother, who died two years ago.

''It's going to be great, seeing her again,'' Woomer said, choking back tears. ''I hurt because I sit and think of the things that I could have and should have done for her when she was alive.''

The condemned man visited Thursday with two sisters, a brother, his father and other family and friends. He has asked to be buried next to his mother in Kentucky.

Woomer was condemned for the shotgun slaying of Sellers, a Pawleys Island, S.C., convenience store clerk who was kidnapped, raped and murdered by Woomer and his partner, Eugene Skaar of Huntington.

In the hours before that slaying, the men also robbed and killed Cottageville, S.C., coin collector John Turner, then drove into rural Georgetown County, where they shot to death Arnie Lee Richardson and his sister-in-law, Earldean Wright.

Woomer also wounded Richardson's 5-year-old daughter, but the child was able to crawl out from under her father's body and ride nearly 5 miles on her bicycle to an aunt's house seeking help.

The sixth victim of the bloodbath was Wanda Summers, who was abducted along with Sellers from the Pawleys Island store where both women worked. Most of Summers' jaw was blown away by the same shotgun blast that killed her friend, but she recovered to testify against Woomer.

Despite many operations, Summers remains permanently disfigured. She said she hoped nothing would stand in the way of Woomer's execution, and called the years of appeals that repeatedly spared Woomer from execution ''cruel and inhuman and very hard on victims.''

Before the execution, Don Sellers said he would not be satisfied until he saw his wife's killer slumped in the electric chair. ''I feel like I've had my life on hold for 11 years,'' he said.

But Sellers' younger brother, Lee Hewitt, said he has been able to forgive Woomer, who has turned to religion during his 11 years on Death Row.

''At one time I could have killed Rusty, I could have blown his head off '' Hewitt said. ''But through God, I found God can work a miracle on a man.''

According to trial testimony, Woomer and Skaar came to South Carolina from Huntington with a plan to steal Turner's valuable coin collection and kill anyone who got in their way. The two men who masterminded the heist, Fred Whitehead of Myrtle Beach and John Fisher of Huntington, were sent to prison for their roles in the theft.

Woomer and Skaar were cornered on the night of the killings at a Myrtle Beach motel. Skaar turned a gun on himself rather than be captured, but Woomer was apprehended without incident in another room.

CAPE CANAVERAL, FL (APRIL 27) UPI - An astronomer set for launch aboard the shuttle Columbia May 6 after years of training has developed a ''medical condition'' that could force NASA to bar him from the flight, the space agency announced.

Samuel Durrance, 46, an astronomer at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore, flew to the Kennedy Space Center Wednesday night to participate in a practice countdown with his six crewmates Saturday aboard Columbia at launch pad 39A.

But he was ordered to report to the Johnson Space Center in Houston for medical tests and his back-up, Kenneth Nordsieck, was flown in to replace Durrance during the countdown rehearsal Saturday.

''Because of the Privacy Act we cannot say what the medical condition is, that's by the law,'' Crippen said Thursday. ''All of our efforts are on being able to cure him for flight.

''But we are protecting ourselves and the mission by making sure Ken Nordsieck is in a position such that he can get in line and go fly if we need to.''

Durrance, who was the only crew member not present at a brief photo session Thursday with news photographers in Florida, is scheduled to blast off May 16 on a flight to ferry a battery of ultraviolet and X-ray telescopes into orbit for a nine-day mission originally scheduled for 1986.

''Sam has worked very hard, it would be vey disappointing to him and all of us if he couldn't (fly), and we hope that we can solve the problem,'' Crippen said.

Space agency officials released a statement Thursday saying Durrance ''has developed a medical condition that is being evaluated to determine if it will affect his assignment as a payload specialist on the upcoming ... flight.''

''Apparently there were some symptoms that Sam had approached the medical folks about earlier and the results of their tests said ... we did have a problem,'' Crippen said. ''Sam was notified. He was asked to return back to Houston so we could do further evaluation.''

Crippen said a decision on Durrance's flight status would be made by the time the crew enters medical quarantine seven days before launch.

All shuttle crews are medically isolated a week before takeoff to prevent illness. Never before in the history of the shuttle program has a crew member been replaced because of illness.

Durrance was named to the Spacelab astronomy mission in 1984. In a news conference last week from Houston, he said he was thrilled about finally getting his chance to fly in space.

''It is incredibly exciting,'' he said. ''Getting ready to fly in space is a dream I've had for a long time. I guess a lot of people do. And I'm going to be doing astronomy, hands-on kind of astronomy, which I enjoy.''

His crewmates are commander Vance Brand, co-pilot Guy Gardner, John ''Mike'' Lounge, Jeffrey Hoffman, Robert Parker and scientist Ronald Parise.

Durrance and Parise are the first civilians to be assigned to a shuttle flight since school teacher Christa McAuliffe and satellite engineer Gregory Jarvis were launched aboard Challenger in 1986.

Nordsieck ''is fully trained to take over the payload specialist duties on the flight if required,'' said a NASA statement.

''Nordsieck also has received basic orbiter training and will receive additional training ... while awaiting the outcome of the medical decision on Durrance's flight status.''

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (APRIL 27) UPI - President Violeta Chamorro's choice of Sandinista Humberto Ortega as armed forces chief has divided her fledgling administration, but the appointment is only temporary, a Western diplomat said.

The selection of Ortega, a Sandinista leader and brother of former President Daniel Ortega, was announced in Chamorro's inaugural address Wednesday and came despite objections from her 14-party National Opposition Union coalition, also known as the UNO.

UNO members opposed to the appointment of the former Defense Minister said it would give the Sandinistas too much control over the army.

Chamorro's selection as armed forces chief of Ortega, a Sandinista leader and brother of former President Daniel Ortega, was announced in her inaugural address Wednesday and came despite objections from her 14-party National Opposition Union coalition, also known as the UNO.

Chamorro, who defeated Daniel Ortega in the Feb. 25 elections, sought to blunt criticism of the appointment by saying she would be defense minister and Ortega would only have operational control of the military and would take orders from her.

She also pledged that Ortega would oversee a reduction of the armed forces and backed up her promise by ordering an immediate end to mandatory military service. But she did not elaborate on how she would reduce the size of the military.

A Western diplomat told United Press International Thursday that members of Chamorro's government informed him the Ortega appointment was temporary.

''I don't know if it will be in a month or much longer, but they'll move him out,'' said the diplomat, who requested anonymity.

Reduction in the military will take much longer, the diplomat said. ''(Chamorro's forces) don't have the guns and the Sandinistas do,'' he said. ''The major reductions are going to take some years. I don't know if it will be by attrition or what. I don't think they're that far along in their plan yet.''

Despite Chamorro's reassurances, two of her designated Cabinet ministers refused to accept their posts because of the Ortega appointment. The decision by the two appointees forced her to scramble to find two other nominees.

The U.S.-backed Contra rebels, who had agreed to begin disarming Wednesday balked on their commitment, saying they would not start the process of disarmament until they make a final decision on whether to comply with the demobilization agreement signed one week ago.

''We never expected President Violeta Barrios de Chamorro would keep General Ortega as chief of the army. This makes us think about not demobilizing,'' a Contra spokesman said in a telephone interview from Tegucigalpa, Honduras.

The spokesman said the Contras would remain in the security zones where they have gathered for the demobilization process, but that they would not begin to disarm until they make a final decision. Under the agreement signed a week ago, the process is to be completed by June 10.

Contra leader Israel Galeano, known as Commander Franklin, also said the Contra fighters would delay the disarmament.

''We will enter the security zones, but we won't begin the disarmament while Humberto Ortega continues in the army,'' Galeano said. ''We are not declaring war. We are only saying that we are going to stay here in these enclaves observing everything that is happening ... to encourage the fighters to disarm.

''Remember that the disarmament and the demobilization is voluntary and (Chamorro) said that she would assume control of the demobilization. We'll wait and see.''

The world reaction to the appointment appeared curious but favorable.

U.S. officials said it would not jeopardize aid, and a high-ranking foreign diplomat in Managua told United Press International Thursday it appeared to be a ''wise and calculated decision, but we will have to wait and see what the consequences will be.''

''Even a child could see that it would cause a lot of political controversy, and Antonio Lacayo is no child,'' the diplomat said. Lacayo is Chamorro's top aide, and the diplomat said the Ortega appointment was encouraged by him.

TOKYO (APRIL 27) UPI - Japan closed shop Friday in preparation for the annual ''Golden Week'' holidays when the nation's crowded cities empty into the countryside for seven days of equally congested recreation.

Golden Week, a string of four national holidays in late April and early May, is one of three annual vacation seasons in Japan when factories and offices close in unison and workers head to resorts en masse.

Police estimate 60.6 million Japanese will visit tourist attractions during the week, or about half the population of 123 million.

Travel agents predict about 20 million Japanese will spend at least one night away from home and 400,000 will travel overseas.

''Everybody is on the move,'' said Tsuneaki Iki, vice president of the Japan National Tourist Organization.

This year's Golden Week runs from Saturday to May 5. It includes: Green Day, April 29; Children's Day, May 3; Constitution Day, May 5; and an unnamed national holiday May 4.

Traditionally, Japanese workers take vacations only during Golden Week and two other designated holiday seasons - the first week in January and in mid-August.

While this may seem unusual to Westerners, who are usually free to pick when they take their alloted vacation, it fits nicely into the Japanese way of thinking.

For the Japanese, it is not easy to relax on a beach when thinking of co-workers slaving away back at the office, so they prefer to take vacations when the whole staff is on vacation.

''The Japanese like to take holidays when others are taking holidays,'' Iki said. ''If I take a holiday when the staff is working, I feel ashamed. If I leave, my colleagues will have to work harder.''

The tradition of synchronized vacations allows the Japanese to stop working without feeling they are imposing on anyone.

However, this is not without its drawbacks.

With everyone rushing to have fun during Golden Week, it makes it hard for anyone to succeed.

The Japan Traffic Information Center predicts traffic will be backed up 50 miles on Tokyo's outbound highways on the heaviest day of Golden Week, 30 miles on lighter days.

Hotels start taking reservations a year in advance and are often booked solid six months ahead of the holidays.

Amusement parks are jammed.

Visitors to Tokyo Disneyland can expect to wait up to two hours to ride the Space Mountain roller coaster and other popular rides.

Disneyland, which is not in the business of discouraging customers, took the unusual step last summer of running advertisements that listed the most and least crowded days of the mid-August vacation and suggested people not come on the heaviest days.

''Many people who want to avoid congestion stay home,'' Iki said, adding that his family tried that about 10 years ago.

''But after a couple days of seeing so many people travel, we thought we should go somewhere.

''Somehow I felt left out. Why should I stay home and do chores,'' he said.

MOSCOW (APRIL 27) UPI - The Soviet Union's 24-hour telethon on the fourth anniversary of the Chernobyl nuclear accident raised more than $117 million for health care and to evacuate a quarter-million people still in heavily contaminated areas, the official Soviet news agency Tass reported Friday.

The anniversary Thursday was marked with silent observances, rallies, prayers and the tolling of church bells throughout the Soviet Union. The most poignant memorials were in the Ukraine, Byelorussia and southwestern Russia where the worst effects of the nuclear disaster were felt.

In the city of Gomel in Beylorussia, an estimated 35,000 workers took part in a one-day strike Thursday to demand more be done to make the region safe, Tass said.

The telethon, which ended at midnight Thursday, combined haunting footage of the suffering of radiation victims and teary-eyed schoolchildren describing their health problems with music and dance performances and pleas for contributions.

The broadcast said nearly 4 million people still live in areas contaminated by the April 26, 1986, accident and as many as 260,000 should be evacuated urgently from the worst radioactive zones. An estimated 15,000 need medical care, it said.

Tass said Friday the telethon raised more than $112 million from within the Soviet Union. Another $5 million came from outside the country.

A teenage boy was shown donating a diamond ring that he said was a family heirloom. A group of schoolchildren, moved by pictures of the suffering of other youngsters, gave $608 they had collected in a small box.

Foreign donations included an offer by Lufthansa Airlines in Germany to fly 100 children to foreign hospitals for specialized treatment, and $25,000 from the Rev. Robert Shuller, a televangelist and pastor of the Crystal Cathedral in Garden Grove, Calif.

Portions of the broadcast were carried on Cable News Network in the United States and Sky Television in Britain, which also gave telephone numbers for Soviet embassies that would accept donations.

In what was the world's worst nuclear power accident, a turbine test at the Chernobyl nuclear power plant triggered a series of explosions that caused at least 31 deaths and spread radiation nearly around the world.

More than 135,000 people were permanently resettled from a 19-mile zone around the Chernobyl plant in the Ukraine, about 600 miles southwest of Moscow and 80 miles northwest of Kiev.

The damaged reactor was encased in a concrete sarcophagus nearly 50 feet thick and 197 feet high. Other reactors at the plant have continued to function.

Wide areas of the Ukraine, Byelorussia and the Russian republic were contaminated by the fallout, with estimates that one-fifth of the arable land in Byelorussia was rendered unusable.

The Soviet authorities have been criticized recently for not doing enough to help victims of Chernobyl and for allowing so many people to remain in contaminated areas.

In addition to showing abandoned buildings near the damaged nuclear plant, the telethon broadcast pictures from the area showing monitors registering dangerous radiation in front of still occupied schools and homes.

Workers who helped in cleanup and evacuation efforts at the plant in the Ukraine have formed a ''union of the irradiated'' to demand better benefits, and radiation patients held a hunger strike recently to push for better health care.

On Wednesday, the Supreme Soviet, or Parliament, approved a 16 billion ruble, or $25.6 billion, three-year plan to resettle 180,000 to 200,000 people still in the area and increase health care and other benefits for those affected by the accident.

NEW YORK (APRIL 27) UPI - Detectives investigating the airport abduction of seven Chinese peasants said they were weighing the possibility the incident was staged to look like a kidnapping.

''We're treating this as an alleged kidnapping, but also possibly a scheme for this group to enter the country illegally,'' Port Authority Police detective Sgt. Thomas O'Reilly said Thursday.

The seven peasants, part of a group of 16 Chinese nationals who came to the United States to study organic farming, were kidnapped Wednesday night at Kennedy Airport by screaming Asian men who forced them into a car and sped off, said Armando Arrastia, a Port Authority spokesman.

The group had taken Air China Flight 981, a 19-hour flight to New York from Beijing that had stopped in San Francisco, Arrastia said.

Arrastia said Port Authority Police were ''exploring all options and theories. One theory is that the seven who ended up getting into the car had possibly planned it somehow, in order to get out of China and into the United States. In order to carry out a thorough investigation, we need to look at all possibilities.''

The group was met at the John F. Kennedy International Airport by Molly Aitken, president of the World Energy Foundation based in Athol, Mass., which is sponsoring the farming program.

At the arrivals terminal, Aitken said she watched in horror as seven of the peasants were confronted by three or four men, who screamed as they hustled the confused Chinese travelers into a car and ''spirited off'' with ''lightning speed.''

''It was terrible. I never saw anything like it in my life,'' Aitken said.

Arrastia said Aitken told investigators that the men yelled in Chinese to an interpreter, warning him not to get involved.

Aitken said she had been warned by a U.S. consular official in China that Chinese are often abducted and forced to work as ''slave labor'' in New York's Chinatown, but a law enforcement official at JFK expressed skepticism.

''It's never happened here before,'' said Port Authority detective Sgt. Herman McAuley.

McAuley said the seven Chinese peasants abducted were all men, whose ages ranged between 25 and 35.

Before Aitken drove back to Massachusettes with the remaining nine Chinese she gave investigators the license plate number and make of the car.

Arrastia said there were no reported sightings of the group or the car Thursday, described as a dark-colored 1984 four-door Datsun with New Jersey license plates bearing the tag number EVB 79B.

Aitken said the abducted Chinese, whom she described as ''simple peasants '' were to spend 11 months studying organic farming methods in Athol, a rural area of north-central Massachusettes about 50 miles west of Boston.

SAN MATEO, CA (APRIL 27) UPI - Dead pigeons by the dozens were tumbling from the sky around San Mateo and neighboring Foster City and the local humane society was at first puzzled, then upset when it found out why.

After checking around, officials discovered that Bay Meadows Race Track had poisoned the birds in a ''last resort'' effort to protect its stabled race horses from catching pigeon-related diseases.

Officials at the track in San Mateo said about 3,500 pigeons hung around the stables and some expensive horses had become sick with salmonella transmitted by pigeon droppings that got into hay and feed.

About 150 pigeons ate poisoned feed set out by a pest control firm, flew off and started plummeting earthward in San Mateo and Foster City. But the poisoning scared off almost all the other pigeons ''and now there are very few there,'' Steve LeBlanc of the pest control firm said at mid-week.

Track spokesman Romain Roberts said the pigeons ''were roosting above the stalls and their droppings were falling into the hay and the feed.

''More and more horses - some with a value of $100,000 or greater - were getting sick. The horsemen's association and the vet said something had to be done.

LeBlanc said putting out the poisoned corn was a ''last resort.''

''We'd tried everything else,'' he said. ''We'd trap them, tag them and take them a long ways away and let them go. And what they'd do was fly right back to the track because they're pigeons and that's what pigeons do. Loud noises like (blank) gunshots wouldn't work because that would spook the horses more than the birds.''

Humane society director Kim Sturla said her group was ''pretty darned upset about it'' after counting about 150 poisoned pigeons from the operation.

Sturla said the group believed some alternative method of ridding the track of diseased birds would have worked.

''What they did was perfectly legal,'' she said, ''but whether it was right is a whole other issue.''

NEW YORK (APRIL 27) UPI - A Brooklyn cabbie was critically wounded early Friday in a robbery, and a gun-toting passenger in a Bronx livery cab was arrested after wrestling with police in an unrelated incident two hours earlier, police said.

Neither confrontation appeared related to a series of cabbie slayings and robberies in the Bronx over the past six weeks, police said.

In Brooklyn, two suspects - one armed with a gun - yanked open the driver's door of a stopped livery cab about 2:30 a.m., said Sgt. Tina Mohrmann, a police spokeswoman.

''They demanded money, and when the driver refused, he got shot twice,'' Mohrmann said.

The wounded driver, whose name was not immediately released, managed to speed away from the corner, ''and started running red lights, when he was spotted by police and pulled over,'' Mohrmann said.

After the bleeding driver told police what had happened, he was rushed to Kings County Hospital, where he was in critical condition, she said.

Detectives on a special task force investigating cabbie shootings described the gunman as a black man in his early 20s wearing a white T-shirt, white baseball cap and tight white pants.

''The task force will be looking into the incident, but it is vastly different than the previous incidents'' in the Bronx, Mohrmann said.

Meanwhile, at 12:21 a.m., 49th Precinct Officers Nicholas Mazzelli and Anthony Venice - assigned to ''conduct routine checks on livery cabs'' - had a confrontation with a gun-toting passenger, Mohrmann said.

''The passenger appeared suspicious and when he got out of the car, he pulled out a gun,'' Mohrmann said. ''He and Mazzelli struggled, and the gun was knocked to the ground.''

The officers then ran after the fleeing suspect, cornering him just five minutes later on the fire escape of a nearby building, she said.

The suspect, Carlos Rosa, 22, of the Bronx, was charged with attempted murder, criminal possession of a deadly weapon, resisting arrest and assault.

''The task force is looking into the incident, but it appears unlikely at this time that it is related to the previous killings and robberies,'' Mohrmann said.

Four of seven recent cabbie slaying have been linked to a gunman who has preyed upon Bronx drivers. The slayings have all been accompanied by robberies of small amounts of cash.

The incidents have both enraged and frightened drivers in the borough, and sparked a number of protests for a beefed-up police investigation.

JERUSALEM (APRIL 27) UPI - Caretaker Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir accepted a presidential mandate Friday to form Israel's next government, optimistic he would create a Likud-led coalition.

In asking Shamir to forge a coalition, President Chaim Herzog exhorted the Likud Party leader to help end the ''verbal and physical violence'' associated with the latest round of political negotiations.

Shamir received his chance to form a government - his fourth mandate from Herzog since 1983 - after rival Labor Party leader Shimon Peres admitted defeat Thursday following nearly six weeks of coalition bargaining.

Shamir pledged to ''moderate the polarization'' in Israeli politics but told reporters the possibility of forming another Likud-Labor coalition must be carefully considered. Israel's second ''national unity'' government, formed when neither major party received a majority in Parliament during 1988 elections, collapsed March 13 over Shamir's refusal to accept a U.S. plan on Israeli-Palestinian talks.

''In these days, the state is in social and political confusion that I have not known since its founding,'' Herzog said shortly after conferring the mandate upon the 74-year-old Likud Party leader. ''We must all listen to the echo bursting out from the protest voice of the people.

''To my regret, since the crisis and the beginning of the process to form a government, we are witnesses to expressions and phenomenons of verbal and physical violence, which make me fear at the thought of where they might end if they do not stop immediately,'' Herzog said.

Peres's efforts to win a majority in the 120-member Israeli Parliament and Shamir's attempts to block him led to drawn-out political haggling. The frustrations over the back-and-forth deals, defections and influence of ultra-Orthodox rabbis prompted Israelis to compare the process to prostitution and sparked a grassroots initiative for electoral reform.

''I hope that after the experiences that we all had in the last weeks, it will not take me too much time'' to form a government, Shamir told reporters. ''What the state needs today is a stable government.''

Even though Israel's Parliament, the Knesset, is evenly split between Likud and Labor camps, Shamir is expected to try to forge a Likud-led coalition with right-wing and religious parties. To gain a Knesset majority to approve his coalition, Shamir will work to gain the support of religious Knesset members who once backed Labor.

Responding to former Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin's suggestion of another ''national unity'' government, Shamir said he would not direct his efforts toward a Likud-Labor coalition during his 21-day mandate.

But he said, ''I never will say that I totally disregard the possibility of a national unity government. At this moment it is not realistic.''

With Peres's failure to form a government, analysts believe he may lose his position as head of the center-left Labor Party and Rabin may take over.

On Thursday, Rabin, an architect of Israel's peace initiative, indicated his willingness to enter coalition with Likud, even if the right-wing party did not agree to a U.S. plan on Israeli-Palestinian talks. But he said Likud must agree to direct elections of the prime minister within six months.

Shamir's government fell March 15 in a no-confidence vote orchestrated by Labor, two days after the Likud-Labor coalition collapsed. Herzog then asked Peres to form a government, believing he had the best chance while Shamir remained the caretaker prime minister of a transitional government.

BEIJING (APRIL 27) UPI - Britain and China reported no progress Friday on nationality and civil rights issues after four days of talks on Hong Kong's transition to Chinese rule in 1997 and negotiators barely concealed their bitterness at the deadlock.

In separate briefings, officials indicated they remained far apart on China's objections to a plan to grant British nationality to as many as 225,000 Hong Kong residents and on a ''bill of rights'' to guarantee civil liberties under Chinese rule.

A terse official statement released after the four-day session of the Joint Liaison Group, a Sino-British committee negotiating issues related to the handover of the British colony in 1997, referred only to a ''frank exchange of views'' on the two issues.

Guo Fengmin, the chief Chinese negotiator, reiterated criticism that the nationality act and the bill of rights were undertaken without Beijing's participation, saying ''such acts are not conducive to stability and prosperity'' in Hong Kong.

He also warned China would ''reserve the right to take appropriate steps.'' Beijing has threatened not to recognize British passports issued under the measure.

Guo also complained that by following international human rights conventions in formulating the proposed bill of rights for Hong Kong,

''the British authorities have turned Hong Kong into a sovereign state.''

Anthony Galsworthy, the chief British negotiator, said the Chinese ''continued to express concern'' about both issues and acknowledged Beijing's truculence was fueling fears among Hong Kong's nearly 6 million residents.

''Clearly it is unsettling for Hong Kong when China makes these kinds of noises,'' he said. ''It's unhelpful.''

Under the 1984 agreement on returning the British crown colony to Chinese rule, Beijing pledged the territory could retain its capitalist system for 50 years after 1997 as a largely autonomous ''special administrative region.''

But fears in Hong Kong have intensified since the violent crackdown last June on the Chinese pro-democracy movement and the territory has been plagued by an exodus of professionals and the middle class.

The nationality measure would give British citizenship, including the right to live in Britain, to as many as 225,000 selected Hong Kong residents, a move intended to encourage them to stay by guaranteeing an escape route.

The Chinese parliament last month approved the Basic Law, the mini-constitution under which Hong Kong will be governed after 1997, but its provisions for autonomy and greater democracy were criticized as inadequate.

Galsworthy acknowledged China ''could conceivably'' unilaterally overturn the nationality measure after 1997 by refusing to recognize the British passports, but he maintained that neither the act nor the bill of rights violate the 1984 agreement or the Basic Law.

''The joint declaration provides for the continuance of Hong Kong's laws provided they are not inconsistent with the Basic Law,'' he said. ''We are quite clear this is not inconsistent with the Basic Law.''

Galsworthy said he remained optimistic, noting ''we have plenty of opportunity to talk to the Chinese'' before the Joint Liaison Group's next formal meeting in September.

NEW YORK (APRIL 27) UPI - A woman kidnapped last week for an $800,000 ransom slipped a note out of the building where she was held, alerting police who stormed the apartment and rescued her, authorities said Friday.

Ques Queya Jimenez, 23, was abducted from the driveway of her Bronx home late April 21 by three men who forced her into a car and sped away, said Sgt. Tina Mohrmann, a police spokeswoman.

Soon after, the kidnappers contacted Jimenez's husband, Jose Hidalgo, 22, by phoning his beeper, and when he responded, they demanded a ransom, Mohrmann said.

Hidalgo, the owner of two beauty parlors, notified police, who advised him as he negotiated with the kidnappers.

The kidnappers set up eight ''drops'' where Hidalgo was supposed to meet them, but they did not show up at any of them, Mohrmann said.

She said the kidnappers' ransom demands reached $800,000.

At 9 p.m. Thursday, Jimenez dropped a small note attached to a string of pearls out of a window in the apartment where she was being held.

The note was picked up by a building resident who called Hidalgo. He immediately called the police, Mohrmann said.

Officers from the Special Investigations Division stormed the apartment, arresting Homero Pullo Bordas, 31, and Rafel Mendez, 31, without incident. Mendez was carrying a 9mm automatic pistol.

Mohrmann said Bordas and Mendez were charged with first-degree kidnapping, unlawful imprisonment and criminal possession of a deadly weapon.

BEIJING (APRIL 27) UPI - Troops and medical teams dug through the rubble of devastated farming hamlets Friday in remote western China for survivors of a strong earthquake that collapsed hundreds of homes on their occupants killing at least 115 people.

More than 160 other people were injured and nearly 5,000 left homeless by the quake that rumbled through eastern Qinghai Province measuring 6.9 on the Richter scale, officials in Beijing and the provincial capital, Xining reported.

The epicenter of the quake, which struck at 6:37 p.m. Thursday, was between Gonghe and Xinghai counties in the Hainan Tibetan Autonomous Prefecture, a rural area inhabited largely by ethnic Tibetans south of Lake Qinghai.

State-run television reported on its evening newscast that 500 troops of the paramilitary People's Armed Police were sent to the area. The television showed troops and medical teams digging through collapsed buildings for bodies and survivors.

Many of the dead and injured were elderly people and children, the report said. It showed devastated hamlets with nearly all buildings leveled and rescuers pulling out people trapped in the debris.

Lin Musen, a spokesman for the State Seismological Bureau in Beijing, said at least 115 people were reported killed and more than 160 others injured, most hospitalized with serious injuries.

Officials said most of the casualties were struck by falling debris when houses and buildings collapsed on them. At least 1,000 buildings, some of two and three stories, were destroyed or seriously damaged, they said.

Nearly 5,000 people were left homeless, the television report said, showing dozens sleeping in the open air under quilts Thursday night. It said food, medical supplies and tents were being shipped in from surrounding towns.

A team of officials, including a Qinghai Province vice-governor and military leaders, were in the affected area to direct rescue operations along with some 1,000 other officials, the report said.

A spokesman for the public security bureau in Xining denied a report the quake destroyed part of a prison labor farm and that several hundred convicts escaped in the panic. He said there is a camp in the area but it was not damaged.

Many of China's prison camps are in the Qinghai province, a largely barren region of mountains, mountain plateau and desert.

The hardest hit area, about 100 miles southwest of the provincial capital, is a section of farming communities.

The official Xinhua news agency reported all the buildings at one farm were destroyed and houses in another town were damaged. A landslide occurred at the Longyangxia Reservoir but a hydroelectric plant there was not affected.

Lin, the seismological spokesman, said communications in the region were knocked out for a period but were restored, and there were no reported interruptions of electric power.

The quake was felt in other parts of Qinghai Province and as far away as neighboring Gansu Province, Xinhua said.

(APRIL 27) UPI - News from around the world... in space and on the ground... details and developments from the wires of United Press International.

Engineers at the Goddard Space Flight Center in Maryland are scheduled to take another big step today toward activating the Hubble Space Telescope.

Technicians will send radio commands to open the telescope door as it sails over the Indian Ocean... exposing Hubble's 94-point-five-inch mirror and other sophisticated optical equipment to their first glimmers of starlight.

And, to make sure that everything goes according to plan... the shuttle Discovery will be traveling about 40 miles away in case an emergency spacewalk is needed to help open the door, which is similar to a camera lens cap.

Since the telescope was placed in orbit Wednesday... ground controllers have struggled through a variety of problems.

Although the telescope's insulated tube will finally be open to the universe, Hubble will NOT start taking pictures until next week.

Once in operation, the one-point-five-BILLION-dollar space telescope will let astronomers study planets, stars and galaxies with 10 times the clarity of earthbound instruments. The new data is expected to revolutionize our knowledge about the birth, structure, evolution and fate of the universe.

Discovery is to land Sunday at Edwards Air Force Base in California.

Two European leaders are advising Lithuania to back off from its declaration of independence.

West German Chancellor Kohl and French President Mitterrand yesterday urged President Landsbergis to- quote- ''suspend temporarily the effects'' of Lithuania's efforts to leave the Soviet Union.

Their statement in a letter to Landsbergis follows by one day President Bush's own decision to hold off on sanctions against Moscow.

Panic buying and hoarding is reported in Lithuania by people afraid that Moscow will broaden its economic embargo to include basic staples.

Lithuania's only oil refinery has been shut down by the embargo since Monday. The neighboring Baltic republic of Latvia, which receives much of its refined oil from its neighbor... ordered gas stations to stop selling gas to private motorists.

And in Moscow, a Lithuanian man set himself aflame on Revolution Square near the Kremlin. Hospital officials say he later died of his burns.

(APRIL 27) UPI - President Bush won a round in his attempt to obtain congressional approval for emergency aid to Panama.

The Senate stopped a Democratic attempt to further reduce the president's request for emergency aid to Panama and shift the money to domestic uses.

West Virginia Senator Robert Byrd made the attempt. His amendment would've reduced aid to Panama by 120-Million dollars... to 300-Million. He says ''Charity belongs at home.'' Byrd wanted to use the money to clean up Energy Department facilities, improve Indian housing, provide food for poor women and infants, and cope with natural disasters.

Aid for the new U-S-backed governments in Panama and Nicaragua is the centerpiece of a two-BILLION 300-Million-dollar supplemental spending bill being considered by the Senate. It also includes money for domestic emergencies ranging from food stamps to the recovery from Hurricane Hugo.

Like a bill passed earlier this month by the House... the supplemental bill provides the full 300-Million dollars Bush wants for Nicaragua and 420-Million of the 500-Million dollars the president wants for Panama.

Senate Democratic leader George Mitchell of Maine said last night that a vote on the full bill might NOT come until next week because senators plan to offer more than 60 amendments. Debate resumes today.

Israeli President Herzog gave a mandate today to transitional Prime Minister Shamir to form a new government.

Herzog gave Shamir, head of the right-wing Likud Party, 21 days to form a coalition. Shamir must secure a majority in the 120-member Israeli Parliament to win approval for his new government.

Shamir received the mandate less than 12 hours after Labor leader Shimon Peres admitted his inability to create a coalition. Peres admitted defeat after nearly six weeks of negotiations ended with an even split between the Likud and Labor camps in Israel's parliament, the Knesset.

Shortly after Peres acknowledged he was unable to form a coalition, a Likud Knesset member who had changed his loyalties to Labor told Likud officials he was ''coming back home'' to the party. His return may have provided Shamir with the 61 votes needed to secure his coalition.

Shamir's government fell in a NO-confidence motion March 15th... and Herzog picked Peres to form a government because he believed Peres had the best chance of success. During the negotiations, Shamir remained the care-taker prime minister of the transitional government.

DUBLIN, Ireland (APRIL 27) UPI - European Community leaders, called to a 13th century castle to discuss German unification, appeared poised Friday to propel their 12 nations toward a politically united Europe.

The special summit of EC heads of state, slated Saturday at the Dublin Castle, was initially called to respond to the escalating pace of German unification.

German unity was still on the summit agenda, as was the EC's relations with Eastern Europe, but efforts to quicken the pace toward European political union instead emerged as the showcase topic.

''Things have moved quite a bit since the meeting was called back in February,'' says a British diplomat in Brussels.

The leaders were expected to either call for a December constitutional conference on political union, or at least ask foreign ministers to prepare for such a conference. Under the latter option, the conference could be called when the leaders meet again on June 25-26, also in Dublin.

''Either way, political union will be advanced at Saturday's summit,'' said a spokesman for Irish Prime Minister Charles Haughey, the current EC president.

Dreams of a federated Europe were rocketed toward reality last week by French President Francois Mitterrand and West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl, who dramatically called for both monetary and political union by Jan. 1, 1993.

The European Community was already committed to eliminating internal trade borders by the end of 1992, but the Franco-German initiative goes much farther.

''We think the time has come to transform the whole relationship between member states into a European union,'' said Mitterand and Kohl, who want the historically warring nations of the Old World to unite politically, with a common foreign and defense policy.

They reaffirmed their commitment to rapid political union at a meeting on Thursday in Paris.

British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, a champion of ''proud sovereign states'' who disdains the idea of a European federation, quickly dismissed the Mitterrand-Kohl plan as ''esoteric.'' She maintained the special summit should stick to its original agenda, the implications of German unification.

The EC Commission, the executive agency, has recommended a three-phase incorporation of East Germany into the community, with most EC laws applying fully to East German territory as soon as the two Germanys are formally unified.

The commission proposal on incorporation of East Germany, which calls for no changes in the EC's founding document, the 1957 Treaty of Rome, is expected to be adopted with no discord.

Also expected to win easy approval is a commission doctrine on relations with the newly democratized countries of Eastern Europe, which calls for ''association'' agreements with the EC that carry no guarantee of eventual membership. In the past, such association pact implied full membership in the near future.

Also on the agenda Saturday is talks on the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe, which plans a summit for this fall. The international drug trade and the site of the still-homeless European Bank for Reconstruction and Development may also come up.

The statement by Mitterrand and Kohl, issued as the French president flew to Florida for talks with President Bush, capped a surprising turn in European diplomacy over the past six months.

Analysts had expected the fall of the Berlin Wall to bring Britain and France closer together, to balance the strength of a united Germany. But a Paris-Bonn axis emerged instead of a Paris-London connection, and Thatcher appeared more isolated than ever.

Only a majority vote is needed to call a December conference on political union, so the British prime minister could not block it when Haughey found overwhelming support for such a meeting during a pre-summit tour of the community's capitals.

Some diplomats caution, however, that a December conference would likely fall short of establishing a true federal Europe, but would instead strengthen the power of some EC institutions with an eye toward smoother collective decision-making.

A conference on economic and monetary union is slated to begin Dec. 14 in Rome, so the proposed meeting on political union is being billed as a ''parallel'' conference.

Italy holds the rotating EC presidency from July through December, following the January-through-June tenure of Ireland.

OCEANSIDE, NY (APRIL 27) UPI - Three robbers pried open a hotel room door early Friday, held up two jewelry salesmen and robbed them of $500,000 in jewelry, Nassau County police said.

Scott Edwards, 35, and Frederico Martinez, 44, were sleeping in a room at the Diplomat Hotel when three men in black clothing with their faces covered woke them up, police said.

Two of the intruders, armed with handguns, tied up Edwards and Martinez and made them lay face down on their beds while the third ransacked the room until he found the salesmen's jewelry cases, Peter said.

The three men, who had entered the room by prying open the door, fled with two bags containing the jewels, which were estimated to be worth about $500,000.

Police said Edwards freed himself by using a nail clipper he had in his pocket and cutting the cord that bound him. He then called the police.

Neither Edwards nor Martinez was wounded in the robbery, Peter said.

Police said they were investigating but no other details were available.

TOKYO (APRIL 27) UPI - Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu is scheduled to leave Japan Saturday for a nine-day tour of South and Southeast Asia designed to allay fears that Japan is switching its aid dollars to Eastern Europe.

Kaifu heads a long list of Japanese political leaders setting out on diplomatic missions while the rest of Japan celebrates the annual string of spring holidays known as Golden Week.

He will pay official visits to Bangladesh, Pakistan, Sri Lanka, Indonesia and India, where he will make a major policy speech Monday to the Indian Parliament.

Foreign Minister Taro Nakayama will visit South Korea, Czechoslovakia and Yugoslavia, while Finance Minister Ryutaro Hashimoto will travel to India Wednesday for a meeting of the Asian Development Bank.

Minister of International Trade and Industry Kabun Muto will be in San Francisco Wednesday for a session with trade ministers from the United States, Canada and the European Community.

Kaifu hopes to assure Japan's Asian neighbors that Tokyo intends to remain strong in Asian affairs despite its increased interest in Eastern Europe, Foreign Ministry officials said.

''The objective is to show clearly Japan's readiness to support peace and prosperity in the region in view of the changes in the world today,'' said a senior Foreign Ministry official.

His visit to South Asia will be the first of a Japanese prime minister since former Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone visited six years ago. Several of the nations have expressed their concern that Japan may shift its aid priorities from Asia to Eastern Europe.

Japan is the region's largest aid donor, giving more than $1.1 billion in official development assistance and loans to India, Bangladesh, Pakistan and Sri Lanka in 1988. Indonesia, the largest recipient of Japanese aid, received $984 million in 1988. Indonesia is a key trading partner, supplying Japan with much of its oil and gas needs.

Kaifu is not expected to announce any major increases in aid, but could unveil some minor programs, such as an expected $800,000 gift to India to restore cultural relics.

Kaifu's advance team says there are no serious political problems to be dealt with between Japan and any of the nations Kaifu will visit.

Speculation that India and Pakistan may be heading toward war over Kashmir is running high, but Kaifu's aides say he will not take any steps to mediate the conflict when he visits the leaders of the two countries.

He will express Japan's position that the conflict be resolved through dialogue, the officials said.

One issue that may come up in talks in Pakistan and Bangladesh is the flood of unskilled laborers from those countries arriving in Japan to take advantage of the high wages.

Japan does not accept foreign unskilled workers and deports them when they are caught working without the proper visa.

To change the immigration law would be difficult, said a senior Foreign Ministry official, because ''it relates to the basic nature of Japanese society which is so homogenous which contributes to Japan's efficiency.''

''To introduce foreign laborers as residential members might change the basic nature of Japanese society that has been so far existing,'' he said.

after wild fluctuations ranging about 200 points.

The blue-chip Nikkei Average of 225 selected issues, which lost 139.78 points Thursday, gained 160.22 points to end the week at 29,584.80.

The broader-based Tokyo Stock Exchange Index of all listed major shares climbed 5.86 points to 2,205.96.

Turnover was estimated at 480 million shares, down from 562 million shares Thursday.

Advances outpaced declines 503 to 395, with 198 issues unchanged.

Elsewhere in Asia, stock prices ended lower on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange as the key Hang Seng Index sank below the 3,000-point level in a binge of property issue selling and continued worries of rising interest rates.

The key Hang Seng Index, which eased 9.24 points Thursday, fell 23.01 points to 2,986.33. Utilities lost 49.65 points, financials shed 14.74, industrials lost 10.44 and properties dropped 36.21 points.

Prices ended slightly higher in light trading on the Singapore Stock Exchange amid some bargain-hunting following five days of declines.

The key Straits Times Industrial Index, which fell 11.17 points Wednesday, rose 2.60 points to 1,470.44. The narrower All Singapore Index added 1.68 points to 404.26.

The market was closed Thursday for the Hari Raya holiday.

Turnover amounted to 55.61 million shares, compared with 62.06 million shares Wednesday.

(APRIL 27) UPI - River waters kept rising Friday in north Texas, the legacy of severe storms at nine tornadoes that resulted in at least three deaths, the Midwest remained unseasonably warm and the East Coast was clear and summery.

Rising river water in the Pecan Bayou near Brownwood, Tex., 70 miles southeast of Abilene, threatened to add to floodwaters in a town where more than 200 people already had been evacuated from low-lying areas.

The National Weather Service said more than 16 inches of rain fell in the town between Wednesday and Thursday. Hundreds have been evacuated from floodwaters that have swelled rivers and streams across northern Texas.

National Guard troops were sent to Brownwood and nearby Horseshoe Bend, about 50 miles west of Fort Worth, to help evacuate people from flooded homes.

''I can tell you that in Horseshoe Bend everyone has been moved out. There is no one left,'' said Juanette Kaddatz, a spokeswoman for the Parker County emergency management agency.

Two of the storm-related deaths were in Brownwood - one of them a 77-year-old man swept into a drain that he was attempting to clear. The body of another man was found near his home.

A 27-year-old woman drowned when floodwaters washed her car into a ditch near the Panhandle town of Sunray. Searchers were looking for two men who were in her car with her.

The Denton County bridge over Denton Creek on U.S. 377, about 35 miles north of Dallas was declared impassible after a central column snapped when hit by a logjam pushed by floodwaters. The sheriff's department said the bridge will not be repaired for several months.

Debby Ford, 34, of Keller, was one of the last people to drive on the bridge before it was closed about 4 p.m. Thursday ''We had just passed over it,'' she said. ''I'm terrified because I can't swim. I probably would have been dead before I hit the water.''

Ron Ruffennach, of the Army Corps of Engineers, said most lakes in the Dallas-Fort Worth area were above flood stage but there was no great danger.

''There is no reason for alarm,'' he said. ''The bottom line is you're going to see water around the Dallas-Fort Worth area for some time, even if it doesn't rain anymore. My hope is we're getting rain over with early this year. I'd like to get out and enjoy the sun.''

Scattered showers and thunderstorms moved through north Texas, Oklahoma, Louisiana and Arkansas early Friday. Some areas of southcentral Louisiana had received 1.5 inches of rain by Friday morning and heavy rains in east-central Oklahoma pushed the level of several creeks and rivers above flood stage early Friday.

The severe weather even attracted attention in space.

Mission control at the Johnson Space Center in Houston asked the crew of the shuttle Discovery Thursday morning to take some photographs of the weather system pounding Texas.

''We're coming over the Texas coastline there and we saw the big storm system that's causing all the problems there in southeast Texas today,'' said shuttle Commander Loren Shriver. ''It looks pretty extensive.''

The northern West Coast was rainy but it was dry east of the Cascade Mountains. Portland was 50 degrees and the Seattle area also was in the 50s.

In most of California, skies were fair except for patches of coastal fog. Southern California was clear after several days of cool, cloudy weather.

In the Midwest, early morning temperatures were unseasonably high: Milwaukee was 72 degrees, Chicago, 71, and St. Louis, 70. Rain fell in central Iowa, southwestern Wisconsin and western Kansas. Most of Illinois had clear skies, but much of the region was variably cloudy.

In the South, a high-pressure system kept skies fair and temperatures warm. Knoxville, Tenn., was 64 degrees early Thursday; Atlanta was 68.

The mid-Atlantic region was clear early Thursday after a day of high temperatures that reached the upper 90s in Maryland. West Virginia recorded temperatures in the mid-40s in the higher elevations. Temperatures in the 90s were common Thursday in Maryland.

New England was hazy and mild Friday morning, with temperatures topping 50 degrees in most areas, and even above 60 in northern Vermont. Cape Cod was socked in under dense fog, but the rest of the region was clear or partly cloudy.

JERUSALEM (APRIL 27) UPI - Christian leaders closed the Church of the Holy Sepulchre and other holy sites Friday in an unprecedented action to protest the continued presence of militant Jews in Jerusalem's Christian Quarter.

As church bells slowly tolled a funeral peal across the walled Old City, Greek Orthodox Patriarch Diodoros I handed an iron key to a Moslem custodian who locked the large wooden doors of the 800-year-old Crusader church built on the traditional site of Jesus's crucifixion and burial.

''It's a feeling of sorrow and distress that we have to close the Christian sites because of infringement on Christian rights,'' said Anglican Bishop Samir Kafiti shortly before the church was cleared of worshipers and tourists.

Church leaders said the 24-hour closure of Christian holy sites in Jerusalem, Bethlehem and Nazareth was the first in modern times. The holy sites were shut to protest the presence of 150 Jews that moved April 11 into a house owned by the Greek Orthodox Church near the Church of the Holy Sepulchre.

Christians, Moslems and some Jews, including Jerusalem Mayor Teddy Kollek, condemned the action, saying it will endanger the uneasy coexistence of Arabs and Jews in the Old City. Palestinians see any expansion by Jews into Arab areas as a threat.

Kafiti described as ambiguous a ruling by Israel's highest court Thursday to evict most of the settlers. The High Court of Justice ordered the Jewish families to move out by Tuesday but allowed 20 representatives of a Panamanian company that leased the building to remain until the right of occupancy is settled by a lower court.

The Greek Orthodox Church, which seeks to regain control of the 72-room St. John's Hospice, charged the Panamanian company is a front for the settlers.

Patriarch Diodoros I was joined by the Latin Patriarch Michel Sabbah, the Armenian patriarch and the Anglican bishop in a ceremony closing the doors of the chruch.

Outside the church, Kafiti read Psalm 56, which contains the verses, ''Mine enemies would daily swallow me up, for they be many that fight against me, O thou most High. What time I am afraid. I trust in thee.''

The church leaders then briefly visited the Holy Sepulchre inside and sang a hymn as custodians shouted, ''Everybody out. We are closing the church. Everyone is requested to leave immediately.''

Surrounded by clergy and photographers, Wajeeh Nusseibeh climbed a ladder to secure two old-fashioned locks. The Nusseibeh family and one other Moslem family have had custody of the church keys for several hundred years to prevent strife among the Christian sects controlling the site.

Church officials said the protest, which started at 9 a.m., would last at least 24 hours and that church bells would be rung every hour.

Moslem leaders, in solidarity with the Christians, closed to tourists the Dome of the Rock and the Al Aqsa Mosque, the third holiest Islamic site, on the Old City's Temple Mount.

The Rev. Dorothy Curry, an Anglican priest from Richmond, Calif., said she felt sad to see the doors of the church closed to the faithful.

''It's a strange thing. But it's a positive step because everyone is together,'' she said.

After the doors were shut, a nun, apparently unaware of the protest, knelt in front of the locked entrance and prayed briefly. A few hundred yards away on a side street, nine Border Policemen guarding the building occupied by the settlers relaxed in the shade.

Settler spokesman Rabbi Benny Elon said no families had moved out of the house and none would do so until Tuesday. He said the settlers would respect the court's order.

Questioned about a sign in Hebrew inside the doorway welcoming people to ''Hotel Ne'ot David,'' he said the building was a hostel and would begin operating as one as soon as the courts permitted.

It was not clear why the settlers began running a hostel in the building, a purpose never mentioned when they first occupied it. The tenant who sold the lease the Panamanian SBC company once ran a hostel in the building.

GROSSE ILE, MI (APRIL 27) UPI - A 12-year-old boy hacked into the electronic files of TRW Corp., a credit-rating giant, and lifted credit card numbers that were then posted on computer bulletin boards and widely used for purchases and telephone calls, police say.

The youth's mother Thursday said the family was stunned by his arrest.

She said the boy spent four to five hours each weeknight and up to 14 hours a day on weekends at his computer. She said she was pleased her son stayed at home.

''He didn't bother me,'' she said. ''He sat there on his computer. Well, I figured, computers, that's the thing of the day.

''He had numbers, I guess. I don't know where he got the numbers from'' for any hacking, she said.

State and federal authorities said the youth, who was charged under Michigan law with computer fraud and financial transaction fraud, cracked TRW security through a Detroit-area branch and pulled card numbers from personal credit histories. He was released to his family.

Lt. Chris Hogan of the Michigan State Police said more arrests were expected, on fraud and theft charges, but authorities didn't know how many files were tapped, who used the numbers, in which cities and what was stolen.

''TRW's still trying to figure that one out,'' he said.

The state-federal Michigan Computer Crime Task Force said TRW originated the investigation by detecting the entry. Task force members said a tracking system led them to the youth's address.

''Hacking is a common problem and is proliferating as the computer industry improves and home computers are more available,'' said John Britt a special agent with the Secret Service office in Detroit. ''But tapping into TRW is a new twist and pretty sophisticated.''

The youth's mother said her son, a seventh-grader at Grosse Ile Middle School, excels in math and geography.

TOKYO (APRIL 27) UPI - Japan's consumer prices in fiscal 1989 took the biggest leap in eight years but there was no danger of inflation, the government reported Friday.

The Management and Coordination Agency said the nation's consumer prices in the year ended March 31 grew 2.9 percent over a year ago, the sharpest rise since 1981 when a 4.0 percent year-on-year climb was recorded.

The agency said the nationwide consumer price index for fiscal 1989 stood at 104.6 against the 1985 base of 100. The index covers prices of both goods and services. Japan's consumer prices had grown at an annual rate of less than 1.0 percent since 1986.

Agency officials said the sharp rise was attributable mainly to the introduction of the 3.0 percent sales tax on most goods and services in April last year.

The 1989 growth was bigger than the government's forecast of 2.7 percent but it did not mean the danger of inflation is near because the inflationary effects of the sales tax have already been digested, the officials said.

The officials said preliminary data for consumer prices in the Tokyo metropolitan area in April showed that Japan's consumer prices remained stable.

They said the price index for the Tokyo area, which is regarded as a bellwether of nationwide price trends, rose 0.7 percent in April over March and 2.8 percent over a year ago.

The rise compared with a 3.5 percent year-on-year climb in March, 3.8 percent in February and 3.4 percent in January. The officials said costs of entertainment-amusement, tuition, and clothing gained 2.9 percent to 4.5 percent but food prices declined 0.1 percent.

Reflecting robust economic expansion, Japan's seasonally adjusted unemployment rate for fiscal 1989 averaged 2.2 percent, the lowest since 1981 when an identical 2.2 percent was recorded, the agency said.

The agency said the jobless rate for March stood at 2.0 percent, down 0.1 point from February, the lowest in nine and a half years. Japan's work force, including the unemployed, in March totaled 62.94 million, an increase of 2.1 percent over a year ago, the agency said.

The figure included 37.47 million men, up 1.4 percent, and 25.47 million women, up 3.3 percent. Those in work totaled 61.52 million, up 2.6 percent over a year ago, and comprised 36.6 million men and 24.92 million women, the agency said.

The Labor Ministry said the ratio of job openings to job seekers in fiscal 1989 stood at a seasonally adjusted 1.30, down 0.22 points from the year before. The figure means there were 130 job openings for every 100 job seekers.

INDIANAPOLIS (APRIL 27) UPI - Disgruntled Indianapolis Colts running back Eric Dickerson is backtracking on his decision to retire from football.

Daryl Henry, an advisor and confidant to Dickerson, said the tailback was currently considering his options, which he said would not include the Colts.

''I think Eric really wants to play football again,'' Henry said Thursday. ''He just doesn't want to play in Indianapolis. I think Eric has made up his mind on that. He's afraid of being hurt ... he thinks his chance of playing (for the Colts) and being hurt are fairly high.''

Henry said Dickerson was mainly interested in a trade.

''I don't think this thing will be resolved until we sit down with Jim and Bob Irsay and everybody can express his feelings,'' Henry told The Indianapolis Star. Bob Irsay is the Colts' owner and his son Jim is the team's general manager.

Dickerson said repeatedly that he was ready to retire and even had negotiated with a cable television station to become a color announcer for National Football League games. He even suggested that the Colts management should not even try to trade him.

The Colts previously had given Dickerson permission to negotiate with several NFL teams independently about a trade.

Dickerson and other Colts players are scheduled to report next week for a mini-camp. Attendance by veteran players is mandatory.

But Henry said Dickerson would not be present. If he fails to show, the Colts must decide what measures to take.

SAN FRANCISCO (APRIL 27) UPI - A lawsuit alleging a group of stockholders is trying to place a convicted bookmaker on the board of directors at Bay Meadows race track has been filed in U.S. District Court.

The action, brought by Bay Meadows Operating Co. and the California Jockey Club Thursday, charges the insurgent Bay Meadows Stockholders Committee with violations of the federal securities laws.

It seeks to enjoin the Stockholders Committee, which is attempting to elect its members to three seats on each of the board of directors of the Jockey Club and Operating Co., from soliciting proxy ballots.

The suit alleges that the Stockholders Committee has failed to dislcose to shareholders that Louis J. Poletti, one of three insurgent candidates for the Bay Meadows Operating Co. board, is a convicted bookmaker whose felony guilty plea and jail term could cause the California Horse Racing board to refuse to grant Bay Meadows its annual racing license.

The suit said Poletti was arrested in a 1951 police raid on a bookie ring operating in San Mateo and San Francisco counties. He pleaded guilty and was sentenced to a fine and jail term.

Poletti's illegal insider trading in 1989 in violation of the short swing profits provisions of the Securities Exchange Act is similarly concealed from stockholders, the suit said.

The suit also alleged that Robert S. Gunderson, recently ousted as president and chief executive of Bay Meadows, is secretly a major financial backer on the insurgent Stockholders Committee.

An audit committee had found that while Gunderson was in charge, he used Bay Meadows personnel to remodel his personal residence and rental properties without the board's approval and without paying for the services, the suit said.

Gunderson also allegedly suppressed his knowledge of drug abuse and misappropriation of company funds by his son Greg Gunderson, also a member of the board of directors, the suit said.

California Jockey is one of the nation's three publicly-traded real estate investment trusts whose primary asset is a racetrack. Its shares are traded on a paired basis with Bay Meadows Operating Co., which operates Bay Meadows Racetrack, on the American Stock Exchange.

DAYTON, OH (APRIL 27) UPI - The pilot of a USAir Boeing 727 with 55 passengers on board reported a near-collision with a twin-engine aircraft over the Dayton area, the Federal Aviation Administration said Friday.

The near-collision occurred at 8:59 p.m. Thursday, about 20 miles south of Dayton International Airport.

Barbara Dettmer, a spokeswoman for the FAA, said USAir Flight 1288 was at 12,500 feet when its pilot spotted the twin-engine aircraft approaching from about 2 to 3 miles away.

Dettmer said the pilot of the airliner and the unidentified pilot of the private plane both took evasive action.

USAir spokesman John Bronson said the aircraft was six minutes into its flight from Dayton to Tampa, Fla., when the plane's captain spotted the other aircraft at the same altitude. Bronson declined to identify the airline pilot.

The FAA said the closest points between the airplanes were about a quarter-mile horizontally and 300 feet vertically.

The airliner climbed sharply and the twin-engine plane, which was under visual flight rules, made a hard descending left turn. The USAir flight was under the guidance of the FAA's Indianapolis control center.

Dettmer said the incident was under investigation. She said in 1989 the FAA investigated 549 near collisions.

NUCLA, CO (APRIL 27) UPI - Prairie dogs, reviled by farmers and ranchers but adored by some urban-dwellers, will be used as targets for riflemen in southwestern Colorado this summer.

Fifty teams of two riflemen each will participate in the Top Dog First Annual World Championship Prairie Dog Shoot on July 14-15.

Plans for the shoot, announced two weeks ago, drew protests from animal rights activists and Gov. Roy Romer and Rep. Ben Nighthorse Campbell.

Because of the protests, organizers agreed to hold a ''prairie dog plebiscite'' among area residents Thursday night. The prairie dogs came out the big losers.

About 320 residents of the two small towns showed up for a town meeting and just four people voted against the shoot.

''All I can tell Campbell and Romer is, 'Buzz off,''' Nucla Mayor John Vanderpool said after the vote.

Romer, who said the shoot was inhumane and would give Colorado a bad image said before the plebiscite he would abide by the vote. Campbell had suggested that the animals be killed humanely and then organizers hold a prairie dog cook-off.

Mike Mehew, president of the Ten Ring Gun Club and the event's organizer, said it would not be conducted as a circus. He said strict rules would be enforced.

Mehew said the shoot will bring tourists to the remote area and also would help eliminate a pest. Prairie dogs, he said, destroy pasture needed for livestock.

Each shooter will be limited to 50 cartridges a day and the shooting will only be allowed on private land. Mehew said he would be surprised if 500 prairie dogs would be killed.

BRUSSELS, BELGIUM (APRIL 27) UPI - Substantial inflation was registered in the European Community for the third month in a row in March with an average rise in the consumer price index of 0.5 percent, the statistical office Eurostat said Friday.

The March figures followed a 0.6 percent rise in January and another incxrease of 0.5 percent in February. The largest increases were registered in Portugal, up 0.6 percent, Britain up 1.0 percent, and Greece up 3.8 percent.

For the Community as a whole, the inflation rate over 12 months reached 5.3 percent in March, the same it had been in January, and up from 5.2 percent in February, Eurostat said.

Above the Community average on an annual basis were Greece with 17.8 percent, Portugal with 12.8, Britain with 8.1, Spain with 7.0, and Italy with 6.2 percent.

Below the average were the Netherlands with 2.1 percent, West Germany with 2.7, Denmark with 3.0, Belgium and France with 3.4, Luxembourg with 3.5, and Ireland with 4.2.

The 5.3 percent EC average compared with 5.2 percent in the United States and 3.4 percent in Japan, Eurostat said.

PARIS (APRIL 27) UPI - Chad asked France Friday to boost military support for Chadian troops battling Libyan-backed rebels and announced President Hissene Habre's government will hold the first legislatives elections since 1969.

Chadian Foreign Minister Acheikh Ibn Oumar said ''a few dozen'' Chadian troops had been killed and scores wounded in fighting with guerrillas of the Libyan-backed Islamic Legion led by Idriss Deby last month. The rebels captured the towns of Tine and Baha on Chad's eastern border with Sudan.

Oumar denied suggestions that French troops took part in the fighting alongside Chadian forces.

The Chadian army, he said, ''has no lack of men or experience. What is lacking is equipment and air cover.''

A recent reduction in French troops and anti-aircraft installations at the Eastern city of Abeche had ''encouraged Libya'' to sponsor the incursion, which Chadian forces eventually had repulsed, he said.

''A stronger Epervier force would have a more efficacious role in dissuasion'' of Libyan leader Col. Moammar Gadhafi, he told a news conference after holding talks in Paris with French Foreign Minister Roland Dumas.

France deployed troops in Chad known as Epervier on Feb. 15, 1986, in response to a Libyan offensive in the north of the West African country.

But France began cutting back its military commitment in Chad after Libya and Chad reached an agreement in August 1989 to end their war for control of the disputed Aouzou Strip.

Oumar said Chad plans to take Libya to the International Court of Justice in September if Tripoli does not comply with the terms of the peace plan designed to prevent a re-occurrence of war between the neighboring nations.

Dismissing criticism of Chad's human rights record and treatment of Libyan prisoners of war, Oumar said ''our attitude is to refuse to respond.''

He acknowledged the war with Libya had led to ''undesirable practices'' but claimed a list issued by Amnesty International of people missing in Chad included many opposition group members in Libya or people killed in combat.

He said also many Chadians had disappeared or been emprisoned in Libya and said that Libyan troops had fired on Chadians who tried to escape.

In addition, Oumar announced Habre's government would hold legislative elections ''over the next few weeks, most likely in the month of June'' for the first time since 1969.

The elections to be held in Chad would stop short of allowing a multi-party system and would be limited to candidates from a pro-government political movement, he said.

Oumar said Chadian authorities consider that a multi-party system ''is not necessary and even can be dangerous. Everyone is able to produce not only his own party but also his own army.''

He also said Dumas had reassured him France would continue its support for the Habre government in spite of a recent rapprochement between Libya and Paris.

A French hostage, Jacqueline Valente, was released in Beirut April 10 at the request of Gadhafi after apparently being detained in Libya. France returned two Mirage jet fighters to Libya in March in spite of a European Community arms embargo against Tripoli for supporting terrorism.

Oumar said the trade of arms for hostages by president Francois Mitterrand's government was ''rather negative,'' but that he was confident ''France will take the necessary measures'' to protect Chad.

''We have had assurances from the French side that the support to Chad will be maintained whatever the state of relations between France and Libya,'' he said.

LONDON (APRIL 27) UPI - Writer Salman Rushdie, in his first live interview since his execution was ordered by a former Iranian spiritual leader, Friday defended himself against Moslem critics and said he would not be defeated by the row over his novel, ''The Satanic Verses.''

''I am not sure what it is that the Iranians want to hear, but the fact is that I wrote a book quite legitimately that was published quite legitimately, and it is not really, you know, for the person who is the object of an attack to solve the problem,'' Rushdie told the British Broadcasting Corp.'s Radio 4.

''The people who are attacking me have the problem of solving it.''

Rushdie, 42, said he was optimistic there would be a political solution to the dilemma that forced him into seclusion 14 months ago.

The reaction from the British Moslem community listening to the broadcast was swift and negative.

Liaquat Hussain, leader the Bradford Council of Mosques, said, ''We will continue our campaign against the publication of 'The Satanic Verses,' until Mr. Rushdie sees that he is the problem and he is the only one who can solve it if he wants to solve it.''

Moslems want ''The Satanic Verses'' withdrawn from circulation and Rushdie to apologize for insulting their religion.

From an undisclosed hiding spot, Rushdie made an arranged telephone call to Radio 4 to champion the cause of the Charter 88 campaign, which calls for a written constitution in Britain to protect basic rights.

Britain has no written constitution but instead has a system of common law the ancient law of the land evolving from custom and interpreted in court by judges. It has never been precisely defined or codified, but forms the basis of law except when superseded by legislation.

It was Rushdie's first live radio interview since going into hiding, but he has expressed his views in the print media.

Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini on Feb. 14, 1989, ordered all Moslems to attempt to kill Rushdie for his novel's portrayal of the founder of a fictional religion, based on the Prophet Mohammed and Islam, as having human failings. The book also implies Mohammed may have written the Koran himself, rather than as God dictated to him.

In Britain some Moslems have vowed before television cameras to carry out the order. Rushdie expressed frustration that they were not prosecuted.

''I am not a lawyer but it seems to me that people have been prosecuted for incitement in the past on less grounds than this, so it seems to me odd that there has been no prosecution,'' Rushdie said.

''I am told that there is insufficient evidence. I must say I am a little skeptical. I have seen what everyone else has seen on television and I find it hard to believe that there is not sufficient evidence.''

Kalim Siddiqui, director of the Moslem Institute, said, ''If anybody has broken laws in this country he should be prosecuted.'' He said a legal review determined that his remarks against Rushdie did not merit action.

A court recently ruled Rushdie and his publishers, Viking Penguin, were not liable for blasphemy charges because the law applies only to Christianity, not Islam.

Rushdie said he was coping with life in hiding - ''I mean, so far so good. It is amazing what people can get used to. I am doing my work and I suppose that keeps me going.''

He said he is in touch with friends, spends most of his time reading and writing and just finished a book for children.

''The worst about it is not being able to do things that everyone else would take for granted, like walking down a street,'' the Indian-born, British citizen said.

''Writers anyway are, I suppose, fortunate in that the condition of a writer is solitude. But normally at the end of the day of work you can leave the room and go and see other people, and the problem is that when that is withdrawn, well, there is no doubt that it is a difficult situation. But I don't intend to be defeated by it.''

WASHINGTON (APRIL 27) UPI - A combative Defense Secretary Dick Cheney, tossing the budget challenge to Congress, said Friday if legislators who ''pontificate'' want deeper cuts, then they must make the cuts themselves.

Cheney's comments to reporters followed a day of presentations on Capitol Hill in which he detailed $35 billion in long-term budget cuts by scaling back and slowing major aircraft programs such as the B-2 stealth bomber.

Although Cheney has a few more programs left to review that could produce a bit more in budget reductions, his tally so far is just $109 million in actual fiscal 1991 spending reductions and $2.4 billion in long-term spending authority for 1991 and beyond. The most optimistic suggestion on Capitol Hill for cuts that would take advantage of reduced world tensions is $6 billion in actual spending and about $18 billion in long-term budget authority.

Cheney's plan - calling for $303.3 billion in actual spending and almost $307 billion in authority for programs in 1991 and beyond - is the first step in a long-term plan of 2 percent reductions each year in the budget.

''What I have heard consistently from the Congress of the United States is a lot of bold talk about wanting to take down the top line on defense. I have yet to see them deliver in terms of being willing to cut programs, cut bases, reduce force levels to achieve those levels. That's the hard part of this job,'' said Cheney, who served 10 years in the House.

''It's easy to pontificate about what the overall top line ought to be, but as soon as we get down to the real nitty gritty of how we're going to cut the defense budget to meet the lower levels of defense spending that we all anticipate in the future, there's a noticeable lack of any significant substantive plans on Capiotl Hill,'' he said.

''If they've got a better plan, let them put it out there. If they've got the votes to change it and give us a different set fo requirements, produce them,'' said Cheney.

''It's easy to sit on Capitol Hill as an individual member of Congress and make pronouncements about 'Well they've got to produce this or produce that.' That's all talk. Let's vote. Let's see them sit down and start to produce a product. ... It's time for them to get on with the business of trying to pass a budget,'' he said.

Cheney said it was possible that there would be a lame duck session of Congress to thrash out the final fiscal 1991 defense budget, with ''serious bargaining late in the calendar year.''

Cheney acknowledged that his budget is likely to be reduced by Congress but added, ''I don't have any way of knowing what's going to happen next week in Congress. They're just slightly more predictable than the Soviet Union.''

NEW YORK (APRIL 27) UPI - Dealmaker Donald Trump, proclaiming he "wants to be the king of cash," has recently discussed selling Trump Shuttle airline and refinancing many of his other major assets, the Wall Street Journal reported Friday.

The usually acquisitive-minded real estate mogul said he is interested in raising cash so he can scoop up bargains in a sputtering real estate market. "What I want to do is go out and bargain hunt," Trump told the newspaper. "I want to be the king of cash."

Trump's ascension to billionaire status was based on such a strategy when, a decade ago, he developed Manhattan's Trump Tower and Grand Hyatt Hotel in the belief New York's flagging economy would rebound.

The paper said Trump vehemently denied that he may be interested in accumulating cash to deal with any problems that might arise from a heavy debt load. The article also said that Trump threatened a libel suit if any problem about his cash flow situation was suggested.

Except for his three Atlantic City casino properties that were financed with publicly traded junk bonds, most of Trump's holdings are private and their value is the subject of much speculation. Trump said his 1989 net cash flow was $157 million and projected a figure of $171 million this year, the paper said.

A letter from the accounting firm Arthur Andersen & Co. that Trump showed the Wall Street Journal stated that Trump had cash and cash equivalents totaling $384.6 million as of Nov. 30, 1989.

Trump said several airlines have approached him about the Trump Shuttle, which he purchased for $365 million in cash from Eastern Airlines less than a year ago, the paper reported.

A 49 percent stake in another Trump trophy property, the Plaza Hotel, was nearly sold to Japanese investors earlier this year but the deal fell through when the Japanese financial markets buckled, the article said.

WASHINGTON (APRIL 27) UPI - The Senate Agriculture Committee, responding to interest in food safety, tentatively approved language Friday to create the first nationwide rules on what can be called organic food.

Committee Chairman Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., said the provisions would ensure that fruits and vegetables live up to the claim of being organically produced. Proponents say a set of uniform rules would encourage grocery chains to stock organic food, which now often finds only limited outlets.

At present, 22 states have differing definitions of organic food.

The provisions given first-round approval by the Agriculture Committee would be part of the five-year farm policy law being written this year.

The rules would require farmers to go three years without using synthetic chemicals before their crops could qualify for the federal ''organically produced'' label. The products would be subject to periodic testing for residues, and there could be surprise farm inspections to ensure chemicals were not used.

States would be allowed to enact stricter standards but they could not bar the sale of produce from other states if it carries the Agriculture Department label.

Before approving the proposal, senators weeded out some provisions opposed by the administration. The changes included making the certification program run at no cost to the government and deleting a check-off program to promote organic produce.

Instead, there would be a 15-member advisory committee to suggest ways to set up a check-off program.

A recent opinion poll found a sizable number of people have changed their eating habits in some way in the past year because of reports about chemical residues in food. The poll, commissioned by Organic Gardening magazine, said 84 percent of the respondents would buy organic produce if it cost the same as conventionally grown fruits and vegetables.

COLOGNE, WEST GERMANY (APRIL 27) UPI - Investigators have determined that the woman who assaulted opposition leader Oskar Lafontaine had neither political nor terrorist motives and is being checked for mental disorders, officials said Friday.

Hans Bernhard Jansen, a spokesman for the state prosecutor's office in Cologne which is leading investigations, said the attacker, Adelheid Streidel, 42, will not face trial by jury until summer because police still needed to gather evidence on her mental condition.

Jansen said there were neither terrorist nor political motives behind the attack, adding: ''The public is not in any danger.''

Psychiatrists who examined her in 1986 said she suffered from paranoid schizophrenia.

Streidel stabbed Lafontaine in the neck with a large butcher's knife Wednesday during a political rally of the Social Democratic Party near Cologne.

Social Democratic Party officials said it was too early to tell whether Lafontaine will still challenge conservative Chancellor Helmut Kohl in general elections on Dec. 3.

''The question is in bad taste. Right now all we are interested in is seeing Mr. Lafontaine get better,'' a Social Democratic spokesman said.

Heinz Pichelmaier, one of the surgeons who battled for over two hours to save Lafontaine's life, said the politician is recovering ''as well as can be expected, given the type of wound.''

Lafontaine, 46, is the premier of West Germany's state of Saar and a rising star in German national politics.

CLEVELAND (APRIL 27) UPI - An intense fire broke out Friday morning during demolition of an abandoned steel mill, sending thick black smoke into the sky and forcing authorities to close a major bridge because motorists could not see to drive.

The fire was reported at 9:30 a.m. at the old Federal American Wire and Steel Co. mill, which was closed in 1986. The building, in the city's Flats area on the western fringe of downtown, was being demolished and one report, by radio station WERE, said it may have been started by a worker with a cutting torch.

There were no reports of injuries but by late morning the entire structure was in flames, with the top two floors already destroyed. The Fire Department classified it as four alarm, just one step below the highest classification.

Police closed the nearby Bob Hope Memorial Bridge, one of four linking downtown with the city's west side.

Fire officials said they could not guarantee the structural integrity of the bridge in the event of a major expansion of the fire. Another problem was hundreds of sightseers on the bridge and bumper-to-bumper traffic because the smoke was obscuring drivers' vision.

A natural gas main runs the length of the bridge, on a catwalk underneath the bridge deck. A spokeswoman for the East Ohio Gas Co. said crews were standing by, but the gas would not be turned off unless the fire spreads.

For much of the morning, the thick plume of smoke spread east over downtown, blotting out the sun in some areas.

The building is owned by the Forest City Development Co., which is tearing it down to make way for a residential, commercial and retail development on the 55-acre site.

Firefighters were hampered in their initial efforts by a shortage of fire hydrants in the area. They finally began pumping water from the Cuyahoga River, a few blocks away.

WASHINGTON (APRIL 27) UPI - Aeritalia, the Italian aerospace manufacturer, will design and build one of the new fuselage sections of the Airbus Industrie A321 commercial jet, the European consortium Airbus Industrie said Friday.

The program is valued at $100 million over 10 years.

According to Airbus' commercial office in Washington, Aeritalia will build the front fuselage ''plug'' - a piece that will stretch the airplane - at its Naples factory, and will deliver production units to Aerospatiale at Saint-Nazaire, France, which assembles the plane, beginning in early 1992.

The stretched Airbus A321 seats 186 passengers in a two-class layout, 36 more than the A320 on which it is based. It also features wing improvements and an increased maximum take-off weight.

Toulouse, France-based Airbus, has 185 commitments for the Airbus A321 from 10 customers, including firm orders for 44 aircraft, the company said.

VILNIUS, LITHUANIA, USSR (APRIL 27) UPI - Lithuanian President Vytautas Landsbergis said Friday he welcomed a French-German suggestion that the Baltic republic suspend its independence drive in order to get Moscow to negotiate.

''I will carefully study this letter's proposition,'' Landsbergis said of Thursday's appeal by the leaders of the two European countries. He called the proposal ''a step forward'' but offered no explanation of his optimism.

Soviet officials have said they will not hold negotiations with Lithuanian representatives while the republic's March 11 declaration of independence is in effect.

Moscow cut off oil supplies and most natural gas and imposed other economic sanctions in an effort to force the republic to return to the authority of the Soviet Constitution.

West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl and French President Francois Mitterrand urged Landsbergis in a letter Thursday ''to suspend temporarily the effects'' of Lithuania's March 11 declaration of independence.

Their suggestion that Lithuania hold off and seek ''a solution acceptable to all parties'' effectively sounded the death knell for Lithuanian hopes of strong Western support, diplomats in Paris said. It followed President Bush's decision Wednesday to put off imposing sanctions against Moscow for its partial blockade of Lithuania.

While saying he welcomed the proposal, Landsbergis said Moscow should end its nine-day economic blockade of the republic to foster a ''climate of trust'' required for negotiations.

In Vilnius Friday, truck drivers blocked streets leading to the center of town where Parliament is located in a show of support for Moscow. The Soviet news agency Tass said they were jeered by some bystanders who support the drive for independence.

The drivers issued a statement saying the situation in the republic ''gives rise to working people's concern and uncertainty about the future," Tass said.

Official Soviet newspapers were full of stories about Lithuanian consumers lining up at stores and hoarding goods, but a quick walk around Vilnius Friday showed few signs of panic.

Algirdas Brazauskas, head of the republic's independent Communist Party and deputy prime minister in its nationalist-controlled government, said Lithuania has enough food reserves to last two months.

The official Soviet daily Izvestia Thursday reported long lines at Vilnius stores, saying Lithuanians were hoarding cereals, salt, matches and other supplies.

Robchaya Tribuna (Worker's Tribune) said the only shop in Vilnius that sells bicycles has been doing three times as much business because of the fuel shortage and strict rationing.

The paper also said one shop sold two months supply of flour in three days.

Meanwhile, the top U.S. negotiator at U.S.-Soviet trade talks said the superpowers reached tentative agreement on a treaty that would extend major new trade benefits to Moscow.

Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev has insisted that the defiant republic annul its independence declaration and subsequent enabling legislation before negotiations can begin.

In Washington, Assistant Secretary of State Bernard Aronson quoted visiting Venezuelan President Carlos Andres Perez as saying Gorbachev had sent him a note ''asking President Perez to understand the situation (Gorbachev) was in and to try to make that known to other Latin American leaders.''

Moscow cut off all crude oil supplies and most deliveries of natural gas and other raw materials last week to quash Lithuania's independence drive.

''We are dealing with a (Lithuanian) leadership that is demonstrating adventurism and speculating on democracy,'' Gorbachev told workers Wednesday in the Ural industrial hub of Sverdlovsk.

With Lithuania's only oil refinery shut down by the embargo since Monday, the government of Latvia, which receives much of its refined oil from its Baltic neighbor, ordered gas stations to stop filling private motorists' tanks.

The sale of gasoline was limited to vehicles engaged in public transport, emergency health services and industry, Latvian television reported.

The local government imposed the restrictions one week before a session of the Latvian Parliament scheduled to consider its own possible declaration of independence. Latvian nationalists took power in March 18 elections.

ORLANDO, FL (APRIL 27) UPI - Federal anti-drug chief William Bennett said Friday that some neighborhoods are so infested with drugs that children should be removed from them and placed in orphanages.

''No one is a stronger proponent of the family than I am, but when we reach the level of child abuse that we see in some parts of America, we've got to do something,'' Bennett said.

''We may just have to ... find some way to get children out of the environment which they're in, to go to orphanages, to go to Boys Town, to expand institutions like that, where they will be raised and nurtured,'' he said.

''There are communities in America right now where children are not being raised at all. There is no positive input in their lives, no nurturing influence, no discipline,'' Bennett said.

Bennett spoke to about 1,000 members of PRIDE, the nation's oldest and largest drug education organization. The Atlanta group is holding a week-long convention in central Florida.

Bennett said Americans can no longer afford to be casual about drug use.

''I think that among some there is a kind of 'let them eat crack' attitude. 'If they want to die, let them die, and if they want to destroy their children in their process, it's none of my business.' ... That is just offensive, un-American and an unacceptable notion. We are all in this together,'' Bennett said.

Bennett, who is the director of the administration's Office of National Drug Control Policy, said that in the 1970s and early 1980s ''the whole society winked at drugs.'' But Americans now identify drug abuse as the nation's No. 1 problem, he said.

Bennett also said 93 percent of Americans oppose drug decriminalization.

''It is an argument for the dilettante. It is an argument for those who think they are more sophisticated than their neighbors. It is a stupid argument,'' he said.

''This is a tough fight against a very tough enemy,'' Bennett said. ''I believe that if we had strong families, strong churches, strong schools, 80 percent of this problem would be gone.''

SAN ANTONIO, TX (APRIL 27) UPI - David Robinson of San Antonio, the No. 1 pick in the 1987 NBA draft who waited two years to start his career with the Spurs due to a commitment to the U.S. Navy, was named Friday NBA Rookie of the Year.

Robinson, a 7-foot-1 center, is the first unanimous choice for the Eddie Gottlieb Trophy since Ralph Sampson in 1984. He was also named Rookie of the Month all six times this season.

Robinson received 92 votes from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters - three from each league city and 11 national media representatives.

Robinson ranked 10th in the league in scoring, averaging 24.3 points a game. He finished second in rebounding behind Akeem Olajuwon of Houston with a 12.0 average and third in blocked shots with a 3.89 average.

Robinson led the Spurs to the Midwest Division crown with a 56-26 record, which was 35 games better than the previous year and the greatest single-season rise in NBA history.

WASHINGTON (APRIL 27) UPI - President Bush urged tens of millions of forgetful or negligent Americans Friday to finally ''stand up be counted'' by filling out and returning overdue census forms.

As 250,000 Census Bureau workers fanned out across the United States, knocking on the doors of unresponsive households, Bush said, ''We need to get moving on this.'' group of state legislators and business leaders, Bush said: ''I simply want to take this opportunity to urge every American who has not returned the census form to do so.''

Speaking to the American Legislative Exchange Council, a conservative

''Stand up and be counted,'' said Bush, noting the data that the forms provide will help the states and the federal goverment plan for the future.

The Census Bureau had originally hoped that 70 percent of the more than 90 million forms put in the mail at the end of March would be returned by the April 20 deadline. But it got just 63 percent.

Early estimates by the bureau said it expected to count about 250 million Americans living in 106 million housing units in 1990.

The new phase of the count, door-to-door counting by census workers, is expected expected to last through the end of June. The enumerators are expected to visit from 35 million to 37 million homes.

NEW YORK (APRIL 27) UPI - Craig McCaw, the chairman of McCaw Cellular Communications Inc., was the highest-paid U.S. chief executive last year with $53.9 million in salary, bonuses and stock options, BusinessWeek said Friday.

The business magazine, in its May 7 issue, disclosed the money earned by top chief executive officers at the leading U.S. corporations in 1989.

Steven Ross of Time Warner Inc. ranks second with a total pay of $34.2 million, followed by Donald Pels at Lin Broadcasting Corp. with $22.7 million and Jim Manzi at Lotus Development Corp. with $16.3 million.

''The year's biggest money-makers proved once again that there is no business like show business,'' BusinessWeek said. ''Three of the top 10 CEOs hail from the entertainment world, including Ross, Paramount Communications's Martin Davis (ranked No. 7), who got $11.6 million, and Walt Disney's Michael Eisner (No. 9) who carried away $9.6 million.''

Also in the top 10 are Reebok International's Paul Fireman (No. 5) with $14.6 million, Torchmark's Ronald Richey (No. 6) with $12.6 million, Coca-Cola's Roberto Goizueta (No. 8) with $10.7 million, and August Busch III (No. 10) at Anheuser-Busch with $8.8 million.

''Despite those large sums, 1989 was hardly a banner year for most top executives,'' BusinessWeek said. ''With corporate profits in a slump, the average chief executive officer's salary and bonus rose onlu 3.4 percent, to $1.17 million, the smallest increase since 1970.''

Among executives who gave shareholders the most for their pay, BusinessWeek gave the best mark to Albert Ueltschi who collected a mere $737,000. Under Ueltschi's management, shareholders got a 222 percent return on their investment.

At the opposite end of the spectrum, Chrysler's Lee Iacocca who earned $1.9 million, gave shareholders the least for their money - a 10 percent drop in investment value, the magazine said.

WILKES-BARRE, Pa. (APRIL 27) UPI - C-TEC Corp. said Friday it has acquired controlling interest in Iowa City Cellular Telephone Co. and is purchasing permits to contruct cellular systems in two other areas of Iowa.

The Wilkes-Barre company said funding for the Iowa acquistions, approximately $39 million, would come from its commercial banking sources.

President Charles Parente said the expansion represents C-TEC's first cellular move outside Pennsylvania and will contribute to the company's planned growth.

''We are continuing to explore other possible cellular acquisitions in Iowa in order to enhance our strategic position in this market,'' he said.

C-TEC said the Iowa City Cellular transaction included the purchase of 83 percent of the issued and outstanding common stock from United Cellular Master Ltd. Partnership and 3.6 percent from Marnell and Associates Ltd.

The company said it also reached definitive agreements to acquire the permits to construct non-wireline cellular radio systems to serve two other areas of Iowa.

Both transactions were expected to close upon receipt of regulatory approval, C-TEC said.

Through its Cellular Plus subsidiary, C-TEC provides cellular service in Luzerne, Lackawanna, Monroe and Centre counties in northeastern and central Pennsylvania, with plans to expand into Wyoming, Wayne, Pike and Clinton counties.

WASHINGTON (APRIL 27) UPI - In an effort to dramatically demonstrate it has the numbers and the political momementum, leaders of the anti-abortion movement urged hundreds of thousands of Americans to rally in Washington Saturday to demand an end to legal abortions.

To underscore their message, organizers of the day-long rally will bring out two of their top political guns - President Bush and Vice President Dan Quayle, both whom are expected to address the demonstrators.

''This will be the largest event the movement has ever seen,'' said organizer Olivia Gans of the National Right to Life Committee. ''This is a very important day for us, a day for reaffirming the purposes the movement has had at its heart since its beginning.''

It is also, according to organizers, an attempt to re-flex its political muscle, to demonstrate to the media and to politicians that the effort to overturn legal abortion has not lost its drive in the nine months since the Supreme Court's Webster decision giving states more power to limit and regulate abortion.

That decision prompted intense new political energy on the part of supporters of legal abortion.

J.C. Wilkie, president of the NRL, said the rally would be a ''massive witness to the Congress, to the press and to the nation that the pro-life movement is alive and well and growing.''

The rally will also be another attempt on the movement's part to define the language of the bitter and emotional debate over aboprtion, and an attempt to portray opponents of legal abortion as the American mainstream.

''The issue at stake is too important to be shrouded in the language that lacks substantive meaning,'' said Cardinal John O'Connor of New York, head of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops Committee for Pro-Life Activities.

''For too long euphemisms have taken the place of honest discussion and debate. Today we are asked to believe the issue is choice. We must ask: The choice to do what? The cry for choice in this context is meaningless. No one of us has the right to the choice that destroys the right of an innocent human being.''

While refusing to predict absolute numbers, Wilkie, Gans and other organizers do say the rally will be the largest political demonstration the nation's capital has even seen, outstripping last week's Earth Day celebration and the 250,000 people who came to the 1963 March on Washington for Jobs and Freedom.

Most importantly, the movement hopes to draw more than the estimated 300,000 who attended the 1989 rally sponsored by pro-choice groups such as the National Organization for Women.

''This rally gives pro-life Americans the opportunity to stand up and be counted, to show their representatives that there are millions who believe that the human tragedy of abortion has gone on for too long,'' said O'Connor, who will be a featured speaker at the day-long rally.

Other speakers scheduled to address the group include anti-abortion stalwarts Rep. Henry Hyde, R-Ill., credited with suggesting the rally; and a number of other Republican members of the House and Senate, including Sens. Gordon Humphry, R-N.H., and Don Nickles, R-Okla., and Reps. Chris Smith, R-N.J.

Bush is expected to address the crowd by telephone while Quayle is scheduled to appear in person.

Organizers said more than 2,000 buses have been booked to carry demonstrators to Washington, with Pennsylvania sending more than 250 and including at least one from Merced, Calif., which will travel 2,300 miles.

NEW YORK (APRIL 27) UPI - ''Accomplice,'' Rupert Holmes' comedy-thriller which opened at the Richard Rodgers Theater Thursday, is much too clever for its own good.

Basically a spoof on classical whodunits set in English country houses, this new work by the author of ''The Mystery of Edwin Drood'' has enough plot twists to daze its audience and finally douse whatever interest its fine cast has been able to bring to this Chinese puzzle of a play.

It isn't necessary to swear the customers and critics to secrecy about the denouement of this quirky drama, as the playwright does at final curtain. They might not remember how it came out the next day anyhow.

That's what happens when a playwright turns his play into a play-within-a-play midstream so we never know how the original plot was finally resolved. Nor are we ever clearly informed of the motivation of the ''crime'' committed in Act 2, except it has something to do with someone's sister named Crystal who overdosed in Hollywood.

Holmes dedicates this play to his late sister, also named Crystal, which hints at some sort of personal emotional involvement, but what is the playwright doing onstage anyhow? That's a good question and one that is related to listing the cast in the program without indicting their character roles.

As it turns out, everyone is playing double parts, including an understudy who takes over for the leading man, then turns out to be the leading man after all. The Playbill carries a lengthy biography of the standby stating he is a West Coat actor ''more than delighted to swap the white sands of Laguana (sic) Beach for the Great White Way.

This play, which might have been subtitled '' Night of the Laguana,'' has been deftly directed by Art Wolff. He keeps his cast so frantically peripatetic that they seem to be bouncing off the rough-hewn corners of David Jenkins' attractively rustic moorland cottage living room, menacingly lit by Martin Aronstein.

The hi-jinks, often enhanced by witty dialogue, includes an impassioned coupling under a comforter stage center, the electrocution of both male characters, equitably distributed homosexuality, and an attempt to dump the so-called understudy in the maw of a moving mill wheel that serves as the cottage's wine rack.

Michael McKean, a film and TV actor, is making a promising Broadway debut as the debonair male lead, although his British accent in Act 1 is a bit much. Natalia Nogulich, playing two unsympathetic roles, displays an outstanding talent for brittle comedy.

Pamela Brull, also making her bow on Broadway, is hilarious as the bubblehead blonde, especially in a scene that requires her to go topless against her wishes. Jason Alexander, who won a 1989 Tony Award for his starring role in ''Jerome Robbins' Broadway,'' is good as a London stockbroker, not so effective as a theatrical director.

There are a lot of inside jokes about Broadway, show business in general, and the mind set of Hollywood actors. One character even advises another, without much enthusiasm, to go to the theater more often.

''There's life in it yet,'' he observes, but ''Accomplice'' is not so reassuring. Another whodunit as perversely clever as this might might give the genre a bad name.

ATHENS, GREECE (APRIL 27) UPI - Saying ''we do not intend to shut off the country from the outside world,'' a moderate Iranian official Friday proposed direct negotiations between Washington and Tehran, the official Islamic Republic News Agency reported.

''I think that direct talks may be viewed ... so that at least a less troublesome alternative between direct and indirect can be opted for,'' said Vice President Ataollah Mohajarani, one of three vice presidents in the Cabinet of President Akbar Hashemi-Rafsanjani.

An IRNA dispatch monitored in Athens quoted the vice president as saying Syria reaped the benefits of warmer relations with the United States after the release of American hostage Robert Polhill Sunday because its officials dealt directly with Washington.

''Iran's role in this (Polhill's release) ... has been unknown in Washington,'' Mohajarani said, while Syria gained by ''not avoiding direct talks with the United States.''

In a message apparently aimed at hard-liners inside Iran who oppose normalization of Tehran's relations with the West, Mohajarani argued that his country would benefit from such a move.

''If we fail to give preverence to the interests of the country and revolution ... it will result in missed opportunities,'' he said. ''The idea that negotiations do not mean the acceptance of domination should be taken into consideration.''

Mohajarani did not indicate that Iran was ready to resume diplomatic relations with Washington, severed by former President Carter about 10 years ago, saying simply that direct talks would be more convenient for Iran.

''In today's world we do not intend to shut off the country from the outside world by high walls or live in a world of negating relations,'' Mohajarani said.

Iran is reported to have been holding indirect discussions with the United States through friendly third countries over the past two years.

Hard-line Islamic clerics in Iran's fundamentalist regime have strongly opposed resuming diplomatic relations with the United States, severed as a result of the 1979-81 hostage crisis in Tehran.

The newspaper Jomhuri Islami, which reflects the views of those clerics, Thursday said a resolution by the U.S. House of Representatives recognizing Jerusalem as the capital of Israel would delay the release of more Western hostages in Lebanon.

The adoption of the resolution showed ''the Great Satan is the Number One enemy of Islam and the humanity, without commitment to any principle,'' and ''the war between Islam and the world of arrogance would never cool down,'' the newspaper said.

There are 17 Western hostages believed held in Lebanon, including seven Americans.

Without mentioning the hard-liners, Mohajaravi said Iran's ''enemies want to deprive it of such opportunites and to keep us occupied with slogans for years.''

Turkish President Turgut Ozal, during a meeting with President Bush in January, said Western-educated intellectuals were now holding high positions in the Iranian government and wanted to resume diplomatic relations with the United States.

BEIJING (APRIL 27) UPI - Police and troops ringed the government headquarters in the capital of Mongolia Friday when hundreds of pro-democracy activists defied restrictions on unauthorized protests to rally for swifter reforms, foreign diplomats said.

The security forces did not intervene during the peaceful rally. Ut was their first reported heavy deployment in Ulan Bator, the Mongolian capital since a series of pro-democracy demonstrations prompted the communist-ruled government into major political reforms this year.

The foreign diplomats, reached by telephone and telex in Ulan Bator from Beijing, said about 8,000 people, most observers, gathered during the day in the city's central Sukebator Square.

About 800 activists from the leading opposition group, the Mongolian Democratic Union, and its newly formed Mongolian Democratic Party, conducted a sit-down protest to press the government on demands for further reforms.

Several hundred unarmed police and soldiers were dispatched to cordon off the nearby government headquarters. The Soviet news agency Tass, reporting from Ulan Bator, identified them as members of the Border Guards and troops of the Interior Ministry.

Tass said student protesters waved red and blue Mongolian flags and chanted ''youth unite'' as protesters formed picket lines outside the government building. They carried placards, including one that read: ''Where is the equality of the parties?''

But authorities did not intervene with the crowds in the square and the rally broke up during the afternoon, the witnesses said.

''It's all very peaceful,'' one foreign diplomat said. ''The government is apparently hoping to ensure no serious problems arise.''

The demonstrators did not have a permit for the protest and officials had asked them not to hold it, the diplomat said. The government recently announced new restrictions requiring a permit in advance for holding demonstrations.

Diplomats said the government may have been responding to opposition leaflets around Ulan Bator in recent days that accused officials of not negotiating in good faith and demanded that a temporary parliament be formed until national elections are held.

Tass said parliament leader Punsalmagiin Ochirbat broadcast an address on state radio in which he ''called upon working people to resist pressure, remain calm and warned against possible disruptions of production in work collectives and peace and order in the city.''

In a series of reforms, the Mongolian People's Revolutionary Party, the ruling communists, has in recent months replaced its leadership, given up its seven-decade-old constitutional monopoly on power and allowed the formation of opposition parties.

Earlier this month, following a special party congress, the government announced it planned to hold the nation's first multi-party elections in July.

The current Great People's Hural, or parliament, is expected to meet next week to approve constitutional changes and the election plan.

But opposition leaders have demanded the parliament, which was elected in 1986 and includes many old guard communists, be replaced by an interim parliament with the participation of all groups.

''The leaflets indicated they are resolutely determine to receive a positive response to this demand,'' a diplomat said.

Mongolian pro-democracy groups staged a series of protests in Ulan Bator beginning last December. Coupled with urging from Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, the protests helped prompt the communist government to agree to political and economic reforms.

LONDON (APRIL 27) UPI - Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, her popularity plunging and her leadership threatened, is seeking to change the poll tax that led to rioting, news reports said Friday.

The reports of Thatcher's position shift on the unpopular policy come less than a week before local elections, which her ruling Conservative Party fears losing.

The poll tax has sparked riots in London and across the nation.

Demonstrators have burned their poll tax bills in defiance of the government, while others, including opposition Labor Party members of Parliament, have said they will not pay it.

The tax replacing property taxes went into effect April 1 in England and Wales and a year earlier in Scotland. It requires city councils to set a flat sum that must be paid by every Briton who is at least 18 years old, with some exceptions, and does not discriminate according to wealth.

The Independent newspaper said options under consideration for changing the policy range from providing more tax relief, stripping local authorities of powers to set the poll tax, and replacing the tax with a more acceptable alternative.

A spokeswoman for the prime minister played down Thatcher's alleged change of heart, saying, ''It's not at all surprising that a new piece of legislation is being taken under review.''

Conservative critics of the tax and other legislators told the newspaper that highly placed Downing Street sources said Thatcher wants to announce reforms to the poll tax by early June.

The British Broadcasting Corp. said Thatcher's ''eyes and ears'' in the House of Commons, her parliamentary private secretary Mark Lennox-Boyd is believed to be the source of the proposed poll tax amendments.

Thatcher had fiercely defended the poll tax after advocating it as a way of equally spreading the costs of local service, and curbing high spending by opposition Labor Party authorities by making them more accountable to the 34 million people who elect local councils.

Friends of Conservative Member of Parliament Michael Heseltine, a would-be challenger to Thatcher, told The Independent that after the local elections of May 3, Heseltine will consider calling for the poll tax to be abolished outright by August.

An opinion poll published Friday, meanwhile, showed voters favor Labor leader Neil Kinnock as a more suitable prime minister than Thatcher.

Kinnock garnered 5.2 on a scale of one to 10, while Thatcher received a 4.8 score in the poll, which asked voters to rate the suitability of each as prime minister.

Labor's lead widened to 25 points over the Conservatives compared to 18 points in mid-March, according to the survey.

The day before the poll tax went into effect in England, a peaceful protest in central London escalated into a riot in which hooligans looted shops, overturned cars and set buildings on fire. Police arrested 341 people in the riot, which left 58 police officers and 75 civilians injured.

PORTLAND, OR (APRIL 27) UPI - A Japanese manufacturer of a food supplement believed to cause blood disorders has been ordered to face two civil complaints filed in Oregon.

A lawyer suing Showa Denko K-K of Tokyo said Thursday the ruling by Mutlnomah County Circuit Judge Stephen Gallagher Jr. marks the first time the company has been ordered to respond to complaints in America over L-tryptophan.

Gayle Troutwine, who represents two Oregon women who say they were injured by taking L-tryptophan, said Wednesday's ruling could have a ''great, great impetus nationwide'' in lawsuits involving the food supplement.

Gallagher rejected claims by lawyers for Showa Denko, who said the company was not properly served with the legal complaint and that its ties with Oregon are too remote to require it to face the allegations in court.

Federal officials said Thursday that shipments of L-tryptophan believed to be related to a sometimes fatal blood disorder have been traced to a single Japanese manufacturer of the dietary supplement.

But a spokesman for the national Centers for Disease Control said the studies were not conclusive evidence the manufacturer is to blame for the blood disorder known as eosinophilia-myalgia syndrome, blamed for at least 19 deaths.

Food and Drug Administration officials said four other studies still have to be completed before there will be an accurate picture of the problem.

Federal authorities would not name the Japanese manufacturer. But Bill Keane of the Oregon Health Division identified the company as Showa Denko, as did The Washington Post.

The Oregon suits allege the food supplement, sold through Fred Meyer stores until the FDA issued a recall in November, caused the plaintiffs to suffer the rare blood disease.

The two complaints were delivered to the Japanese headquarters of Showa Denko by a private courier. In pre-trial hearings Wednesday, the company claimed the plaintiffs had failed to follow international rules for serving complaints.

The company also contended its business dealings in Oregon did not meet the test of ''substantial activities'' in order to be sued in the state. According to affidavits from company officials, only 2 percent of Showa Denko's worldwide sales involved L-tryptophan.

CAPE TOWN, SOUTH AFRICA (APRIL 27) UPI - Five veteran leaders of the African National Congress, including the architects of the guerrilla war against minority rule, returned home after nearly 30 years in exile Friday for the first official talks with the white government.

The leaders and their senior aides arrived shortly on a Zambian Airways Boeing 737 and were welcomed under tight security by ANC leaders based in South Africa. Their safe passage was assured by President Frederik de Klerk.

The team included Joe Slovo, the white Lithuanian-born South African Communist Party chief, ANC General-Secretary Alfred Nzo; ANC military wing commander Joe Modise, External Affairs Director Thabo Mbeki and former ANC London representative Ruth Mompati.

The white-haired Slovo, wearing a Communist Party badge and an ANC pin on his lapel, told an airport news conference the pilot's announcement of the final approach to D.F. Malan Airport sounded ''like music.''

''For those of us who left by the back door, it's a remarkable feeling,''

Slovo said. ''It will take a little while to sink in.

''We are here with our hearts filled with great hope. We have come in a spirit of reconciliation but not as petitioners,'' said Slovo, once regarded as Public Enemy No. 1 because of his role as chief strategist of the ANC's guerrilla wing.

The five ANC officials are part of an 11-member delegation of white, Indian, black and mixed-race anti-apartheid leaders that will meet for three days of talks beginning Wednesday with a nine-member team of Afrikaners led by de Klerk. The anti-apartheid delegation is headed by Nelson Mandela.

The talks will focus on obstacles standing in the way of formal power-sharing negotiations, including ANC demands for the lifting of a 4-year-old state of emergency, the release of all political prisoners and a general amnesty for thousands of ANC exiles.

''We still maintain that all political prisoners should have been released yesterday already,'' said Mbeki, 49, the youngest of the exiled delegates, who has become the chief spokesman of the ANC's campaign for the isolation of the Pretoria government by the international community.

''Hopefully these talks would be conducive to lift these restrictions and to create a climate conducive to negotiations.''

Before leaving the ANC's exile headquarters in Lusaka, the delegates had a working breakfast with Zambian President Kenneth Kaunda at his official residence. The veteran statesmen urged them to ensure the peace process remains on track.

''You should do everything possible to avoid anything that would throw the whole program off course,'' said Kaunda, who has repeatedly stated a political settlement in South Africa is vital to the development of all southern Africa.

''Zambia wants these talks to succeed,'' Kaunda said.

Next week's preliminary negotiations will be the first formal meeting between the ANC and the white government in more than four decades of rule by the National Party, which enacted the legal system of racial discrimination known as apartheid.

The delegates have no official schedule Saturday but are expected to attend an ANC rally Sunday in the mixed-race township of Mitchells Plain where ANC leaders will outline their negotiation positions.

Potentially the most politically sensitive demands the ANC will make on de Klerk are for the release of all political prisoners and a general amnesty for exiles amid growing resistance among some white circles to his reform initiatives.

De Klerk himself has added to the list of obstacles, condemning both the wave of violence that has swept the country since he unveiled his racial reform program in Feburary and the ANC's continued ''war talk'' and commitment to the armed struggle.

Political analysts believe de Klerk is unlikely to grant a amnesty to exiles or consider releasing all political prisoners until the ANC moderates its position on the armed struggle - despite the introduction earlier this week of legislation that would empower him to do so.

ATHENS, GREECE (APRIL 27) UPI - Conservative Prime Minister Constantine Mitsotakis received a vote of confidence in the Greek Parliament early Friday and he immediately pledged drastic measures to revive the country's economy.

The 152-146 vote on Mitsotakis's government program came after the 300-member Vouli, or Parliament, wound up a three-day debate.

Mitsotakis heads the New Democracy party, which won 150 seats in the April 8 general elections, one seat shy of an overall majority.

He received the support of the small conservative Democratic Renewal party which holds a single seat in Parliament, and the surprise backing of an ethnic Turkish independent.

The Pan-Hellenic Socialist Movement, known as PASOK, joined the communist-led Alliance of the Left to vote against him, along with one independent. There was one abstention and one PASOK member was absent because of illness.

Mitsotakis pledged to begin tackling the country's economic crisis immediately. He told Parliament the crisis was grave and the country was on the brink of bankruptcy after eight years of PASOK rule, which left Greece with a $81 billion public debt.

Greece's credit worthiness was shaken, he said. Among steps he proposed was the privatization of ailing state-owned industries.

Initial steps announced early this week included one to sell off 9,000 of the 10,000 state-owned luxury cars used by high-ranking official.

WARSAW, POLAND (APRIL 27) UPI - The head of the communist-led trade unions said Friday Solidarity leader Lech Walesa had turned down an offer to jointly celebrate May Day and protest unemployment and a falling standard of living.

''I proposed to Mr. Walesa to jointly organize celebrations and present on May Day the dramatic problems of the working people, but his answer was unequivocally negative,'' said Alfred Miodowicz, chairman of the trade union federation OPZZ.

In another development, formal steps were taken in Gdansk to register as a joint stock company the famous shipyard where the Solidarity union was born, the Polish news agency PAP said. The action in effect reverses the decision taken by the previous communist government to dissolve it.

OPZZ was formed after martial law in 1981 to replace Solidarity, which was declared illegal. Now with Solidarity leading the government, the federation has been playing an opposition role.

Miodowicz said despite Walesa's rebuff, his unions will organize a rally on the communist world's biggest holiday.

''It would be strange for the unions not to demonstrate for the working people on May Day when we are faced with unemployment, hardships and a drastic fall in the standard of living,'' he said. ''(But) this doesn't mean we will be calling for a rebellion.''

Solidarity took over the government last fall following a landslide victory in parliamentary elections. It has no plans for May Day, which has been celebrated by the government for 45 years.

The unions headed by Miodowicz count over 6 million members against more than 2 million for Solidarity.

The labor leader said 67 percent of families live below the poverty level. He emphasized that young people will suffer the most from the government austerity program that has produced a recession, and this may breed rebellion.

''When many young people who finish education this year and don't have a chance for a job and don't have a flat to live, then we have a very volatile situation,'' he said. ''I won't be surprised if these young people take the authorities by the throat and ask what that all means.''

The government stabilization program brought down inflation to 6 percent in March from 78 percent in January. But at the same time, industrial output is down by 30 percent from the same time last year.

Housing starts are at their lowest levels in 40 years and the previously unknown unemployment is topping 318,000. The drop in the standard of living is calculated at 35 percent from last automn.

In Gdansk meanwhile, papers were filed for registration with a district court for the Gdansk Shipyard Joint Stock Co., with the state a 100 percent owner.

It is expected the company will function in this form for a year in order to turn around the shipyard, which was under liquidation procedures for more than a year. Then a transformation is envisioned into a company with some shares owned by the employees and foreign investors.

GAZA CITY, ISRAELI-OCCUPIED GAZA STRIP (APRIL 27) UPI - Israeli soldiers shot and wounded seven Arab residents of a refugee camp who defied a curfew to go to Moslem Friday prayers, Palestinian sources and hospital officials said.

At least four other Palestinians were wounded in clashes after noon prayers in Gaza City, the sources said.

A curfew remained on the Jabalia refugee camp, a day after three residents were killed and at least 130 wounded in one of the worst days of violence in several months.

Residents who tried to go to the mosque despite the curfew clashed with troops and Border Police. At least seven Palestinians were wounded in the legs and thighs, doctors at Gaza City's Ahli Hospital said.

Friday prayers at the Al Aqsa Mosque in Jerusalem passed without incident on the second day of the three-day Id Al-Fitr holiday that marks the end of the Moslem holy month of Ramadan.

A general strike was observed in Arab East Jerusalem and the occupied West Bank ''in solidarity with the intifada (uprising) and Jerusalem,'' according to a leaflet circulated by the clandestine leadership of the 28-month-old Palestinian uprising against Israeli occupation.

In the Gaza Strip, slogans painted on walls told residents stores could remain open until noon Friday because of the Moslem holiday.

Curfews remained in force in the West Bank city of Nablus and the villages of Anabta and Kabatiya as well as the Shati refugee camp in the Gaza Strip and the Sheikh Radwan neighborhood of Gaza City.

WASHINGTON (APRIL 27) UPI - Sales of stock, bond, and income mutual funds totaled $13.8 billion in March, up from $11.8 billion in February, the Investment Company Institute said Friday. The national association of the mutual fund industry said that March sales one year ago were $8.8 billion.

Assets of all mutual funds increased to $1.013 trillion in March from $1.007 trillion in February. Assets of stock and bond funds increased to $549.6 billion in March from $542.7 billion in February. Assets of money market funds, including both taxable and tax-free, decreased to $463.6 billion in March from $464 billion in February.

"A combination of strong net sales, positive exchanges and sharply rising stock prices boosted assets of equity funds to a near-record level," Jacob Dreyer, vice president and chief economist at the institute, said.

"Net sales of bond funds in March were also quite strong. But, in contrast to stock prices, bond prices sagged, thus limiting the rise in assets of bond funds," Dreyer noted.

The sales of stock mutual funds totaled $7.3 billion in March, up from 5.9 billion in February. March sales one year ago were $3.5 billion. The institute said that in March growth-and-income funds lead all categories with sales of $2.7 billion.

Sales of bond and income mutual funds totaled $6.5 billion, compared to $5.9 billion in February and $5.3 billion in March 1989. Long-term municipal bond funds recorded sales in March of $2.4 billion, the same as in February. These funds had sales of $2.2 billion in March 1989. Total redemptions were $8.4 billion in March compared to $7.4 billion in February and $8.4 billion in March 1989.

Net sales for stock and bond funds in March were $5.4 billion, compared to $4.4 billion for February. In March 1989, net sales of stock and bond funds were $446 million. March net sales for stock funds were $3.2 billion, compared to $2.5 billion in February. In March 1989 net sales of stock funds were $233 million. Bond and income net sales were $2.2 billion in March compared to $1.9 billion in February and $213 million in March 1989, the institute said.

BELFAST, NORTHERN IRELAND (APRIL 27) UPI - A building contractor died was killed by a booby-trap that exploded under his car Friday in Kilkeel, 45 miles south of Belfast, the Royal Ulster Constabulary said.

The explosion occurred in the center of the quiet fishing village less than 24 hours after police warned that it had received intelligence that the outlawed Irish Republican Army was about to intensify its bombing and killing campaign.

The IRA is attempting to oust British troops from Northern Ireland so it can be united with the Irish Republic.

A police spokesman said the contractor died instantly as the blast ripped away the driver's seat in which he was sitting.

Security sources said the builder had been targeted by the IRA because his company had done construction work at security bases. Nine building contractors and their employees have been killed by the IRA for similar reasons in the past four years.

A high-profile security operation involving 20,000 police and troops is ineffect throughout the province.

In one operation in Newry, 40 miles south of Belfsat, security forces uncovered a bomb factory hidden in the cellar of a house. More than a half-ton of explosives and weapons were found.

The home was a short distance from where Irish Peoples Liberation Organization member Oin Morley was killed by the IRA at Easter.

In Londonderry, 80 miles northwest of Belfast, a car was destroyed when a bomb exploded prematurely early Friday. No one was injured, police said.

LANCASTER, Pa. (APRIL 27) UPI - Gov. Robert P. Casey signed into law Friday the nation's toughest anti-takeover measure, which was immediately challenged in federal court.

''The bill says we care about our workers and our community and we're interested in long-term investment,'' Casey said at a bill-signing ceremony in Lancaster, where Armstrong World Industries Inc. - target of a possible takeover battle - has its headquarters.

''We're not interested in corporate raiders who seize short-term profits for narrow interests,'' Casey said.

The bill, backed by both the Pennsylvania Chamber of Business and Industry and the state AFL-CIO, easily passed Pennsylvania's legislature this week.

Armstrong, a manufacturer of floor coverings, has been fighting a threatened attempt by a Canadian family to take over the company since last July.

Two Armstrong shareholders filed suit in U.S. District Court in Philadelphia charging that the law is unconstitutional. They were not immediately identified.

''It is truly regrettable that the well-intentioned legislators and Gov. Casey were stampeded into enacting this new law, which is an abomination '' read a statement from Richard Greenfield, a Haverford, Pa., lawyer specializing in shareholder interests.

Greenfield said the bill ''emasculates'' the rights of potential acquirers of Pennsylvania corporations and ''amounts to a taking of valuable property rights which have traditionally been an inherent part of stock ownership.''

He said his clients are prepared to take the case all the way to the Supreme Court.

As defendants, the suit names members of the board of directors of Armstrong and two Pennsylvania officials, Secretary of State James Haggery and Attorney General Ernie Preate Jr.

Among those sharing the platform at the bill signing with Casey was Sen. Noah Wenger, R-Lancaster, who introduced the legislation last October after the Belzberg family of Vancouver, which owns about 11 percent of Armstrong, notified the Securities and Exchange Commission that it viewed Armstrong as a possible acquisition target.

The Belzbergs have not made a tender offer for the company's stock.

Under the law, corporate raiders must ''disgorge,'' or return, profits taken on stock sales within 18 months of initiating a hostile takeover attempt. The provision is the first of its kind in the nation.

The law also denies voting rights to shareholders owning 20 percent or more of a corporation's shares if they attempt to change management control, unless the rights are restored by a majority of disinterested shareholders.

A third provision tightens existing state law to require corporations' boards of directors to consider the potential impact of a change of ownership on employees, suppliers and the community.

An opt-out provision let corporations that decide they do not want to be protected by the law to declare themselves exempt from it within the next 90 days.

Pennsylvania has about 300 corporations that would be affected by the law.

Also speaking in favor of the bill was Julius Uehlein, president of the state AFL-CIO, who said it would adversely affect corporate raiders but not the long-term health of Pennsylvania's economy.

He noted the bill includes a provision requested by labor organizations mandating 26 weeks of severance pay and benefits for workers laid off due to a hostile takeover.

MEMPHIS, TN (APRIL 27) UPI - Prosecutors asked a judge to interrupt jury deliberations Friday in the corruption trial of Rep. Harold Ford, D-Tenn., to determine whether a juror had discussed the case outside the jury room.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Dan Clancy also told federal Judge Odell Horton that the juror may have failed to disclose three possible prior criminal convictions on a questionnaire during jury selection.

The jury, meanwhile, continued its fourth day of deliberations over whether Ford, Tennessee's first black congressman, traded political influence for $1.5 million in payoffs disguised as loans.

Jurors reported themselves ''hopelessly deadlocked'' Wednesday but the judge refused to declare a mistrial.

Clancy did not demand a mistrial Friday but asked Horton to stop jury deliberations to question the juror, who he did not name. The judge did not say what action he might take as defense lawyers left the courtroom to confer privately.

''It has come to my attention that one of the jurors was not completely candid in their jury questionnaire and may have had three prior convictions, including one for grand larceny,'' Clancy told the judge. ''This same juror may have also talked to at least one other person about the trial, including jury deliberations.''

Ford's lawyer, William McDaniels, urged the judge to let deliberations continue without interruption.

''Your honor, I don't think it would be proper at this time to interrupt jury deliberations when they have been going for four days. It might put the juror in a bad light among his other jury members. I think it would be improper for us to call him out before deliberations are finished,'' McDaniels said.

During closing arguments, one juror was kicked off the panel after he was arrested for traffic violations and prosecutors discovered he had been charged with passing bad checks.

Friday, Clancy also complained to the judge that the juror, Reginald Tucker, was spotted in the courtroom with Ford supporters and near the courthouse exit as jurors went to lunch during deliberations.

''I don't think it's proper for this juror to be hanging around where the other jurors can see him,'' Clancy said. ''He shouldn't even be up here.''

Ford, 44, is charged with 19 counts of bank fraud, mail fraud and conspiracy to defraud the government. Prosecutors contend that, between 1976 and 1983, he took $1.5 million in fraudulent loans from banks controlled by brothers Jake and C.H. Butcher Jr.

In return, Ford, an eight-term Democrat who runs a powerful political machine in Memphis, delivered the votes of Tennessee's biggest city to Jake Butcher in the banker's unsuccessful race for governor in 1978.

Three Butcher associates - Karl Schledwitz, David Crabtree and Douglas Beaty - stood trial with Ford on charges of funneling loans to him through bogus channels.

Ford, who says his prosecution is a racial and political vendetta, contends the loans from the Butchers were for his legitimate business interests.

Prosecutors said the loans to Ford actually were bribes and the congressman did not repay them until 1983 under pressure from federal regulators who were closing the Butcher banks.

The Butchers controlled a billion-dollar network of 20 banks in Tennessee and Kentucky until it collapsed because of bad loans in 1983. The Butchers are serving 20-year federal prison sentences for funneling millions of dollars in fraudulent loans to themselves. C.H. Butcher also pleaded guilty to two counts in the Ford indictment.

LONDON (APRIL 27) UPI - Stock prices closed broadly lower Friday on the London International stock exchange amid political and economic worries.

The blue-chip Financial Times 100-stock index, which fell 9.5 points Thursday, fell 27.0 points to 2,106.6.

For the week, the key index, which measures the value of Britain's largest 100 companies in terms of market capitalization, posted a loss of 80.5 points.

The narrower top 30 industrial average lost 17.4 points to 1,658.7 and tumbled 53.9 points for the week.

Volume amounted to around 537 million shares, compared with 511 million shares Thursday.

Analysts said investors continued to brood over Britain's poor trade deficit figures and the dwindling chances that the ruling Conservative Party, increasingly unpopular in opinion polls, would win in next Thursday's local elections.

A dull Wall Street opening and more company profits warnings also helped to send prices lower, analysts said.

Brewering stocks were depressed after Britain's Trade Secretary Nicholas Ridley announced he was referring a pubs-swap deal between Grand Metropolitan PLC and Elders IXL to the Monopolies and Mergers Commission.

Grand Metropolitan lost 22 cents to $8.89 while Allied Lyons lost 14 cents to $6.54.

Bass remained buoyant amid hopes of a Crest Hotels sale, gaining 14 cents to $14.65.

Imperial Chemical Industries lost 16 cents to $16.96 in anticipation of higher first quarter financial results next week.

Elsewhere in Europe, prices on the Frankfurt Stock Exchange ended little changed in moderate trading.

The closely watched German Stock Index, which fell 16.24 points Thursday, eased 1.55 points to 1,825.52.

For the week, the key index lost 58.81 points.

LOD, ISRAEL (APRIL 27) UPI - Czechoslovakian President Vaclav Havel said Friday he wanted guarantees that Soviet Jews immigrating to Israel would not be settled in occupied territories before allowing Prague to be used as a transit point.

Ending his three-day trip as the first East European leader to visit Israel, Havel also said he believed that ''sooner or later Israel will achieve peaceful coexistence'' with all its neighbors, but he declined to comment on the specific role Czechoslovakia could play in resolving the Middle East conflict.

During his visit, Havel met with caretaker Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir, Labor leader Shimon Peres and other Israeli officials as well as prominent Palestinians. Earlier this month, Havel met in Prague with Palestine Liberation Organization Chairman Yasser Arafat.

''Mr. Arafat asked me to say here in Israel that he is now ready to start negotiations with any Israeli representative on the basis of the five-point plan of (U.S. Secretary of State James) Baker,'' Havel told reporters before his departure from Ben-Gurion Airport. ''Mr. Shamir hasn't asked me to take a message to Mr. Arafat.''

The PLO, Palestinians in the Israeli-occupied territories and the Arab nations have urged the Soviet Union to stop the wave of Jewish immigrants to Israel, fearing they would settle outside Israel's pre-1967 borders.

Since Czechoslovakia renewed relations with Israel in February after a 23-year lapse, Israeli officials have hoped Prague could become another transit point for Soviet Jews.

Palestinians who met with the dissident Czech playwright turned president Thursday told Havel the Soviet Jewish newcomers would become ''an obstacle to peace'' if they settled in the disputed lands.

Havel told reporters Friday Czechoslovakia and Israel were nearing the signing of an agreement on direct air links between the two countries. He said he did not fear threats recently made by Islamic fundamentalists against countries allowing Soviet Jews to pass through on their way to Israel.

''As far as the transit of Soviet Jews through Czechoslovakia is concerned we base our policy on the principle that every man has the right to leave any country and come back to it,'' Havel said, speaking through an interpreter. ''In the spirit of this idea we are ready to negotiate about the possibilities as such a transit.

''However, we would welcome some sort of political guarantees or at least hope that the Soviet Jews going to Israel will not be settled on occupied territories,'' Havel said.

Havel has indicated his readiness to help mediate in the Israeli-Arab conflict, and Friday he told reporters Czechoslovakia's policy is based on the principle that ''peace and freedom are indivisible.''

''That's why we are concerned all about the problems and tension around the world,'' Havel said. ''It is not a kind of megalomania that we would like to have all the fingers in all the pies. It's a normal principle of our policy.''

KALAPANA, HI (APRIL 27) UPI - Lava slowly burying a remote housing area on the island of Hawaii sent four more houses up in flames early Friday to bring the total in Kilauea Volcano's 7-year-old eruption to 108.

''Kilauea has now destroyed 32 homes in Kalapana Gardens since Apr. 4,'' said Bernie Butts, assistant administrator of the Hawaii County Civil Defense.

The lava spread out from behind the flow front, covering land between four streets in the center of the rural settlement on the southeast side of the island some 200 miles from Honolulu.

The molten rock ignited the homes at 3:51 a.m., 3:55 a.m., 4:15 a.m. and 5:45 a.m. Thursday, the lava claimed six houses between 5:50 a.m. and 11:40 p.m.

''We're on our last 48 hours for Kalapana Gardens. We're telling people straight out that Kalapana Gardens is being buried,'' Civil Defense Administrator Harry Kim said late Thursday.

The lateral lava movement spread the front of the flow out over about 500 yards, said Butts, who estimated about 30 homes remained in the settlement.

One house was located about 20-25 yards from the most active section of the lava flow, he said.

''Since most of the movement was lateral, the flow front remains about a quarter mile from Kalapana Store and the historic Painted Church,'' Butts said.

Lava was also moving slowly along the southwest border of Kalapana Gardens.

Since Kilauea began erupting in January 1983, it has destroyed 108 structures and caused more than $25 million in damage to homes, land and roads. The damage figure rises daily, civil defense officials said.

Hawaii County Mayor Larry Tanimoto has issued a state of emergency proclamation for the area and has asked Gov. John Waihee to declare Kalapana a disaster area.

A preliminary disaster assessment team will be formed Monday to survey the damage. The findings will determine whether or not the state requests federal disaster assistance.

State Insurance Commissioner Robin Campaniano said he had received assurances from companies that they will continue to provide home insurance coverage to their customers in Kalapana Gardens and allow them to rewnew their policies.

One man whose policy expired last week and was not renewed had a crew dismantle his home and truck it away to another site far from the destruction.

KATMANDU (APRIL 27) UPI - King Birendra, responding to further pressure for political freedom in Nepal, announced Friday he would disband his partyless form of government on the district and village levels.

Seven weeks of pro-democracy demonstrations led to the fall of Birendra's ''panchayet'' partyless system of government on the national level two weeks ago, and the creation of an interim government led by the Nepali Congress Party allied with seven Communist Parties.

Leaders of the newly legalized Nepali Congress Party voted Friday to concentrate on improving the country's badly strained relations with India.

Interim Prime Minister Krishna Prasad Bhattarai, a leader of the Congress Party, sent a letter this past week to Indian Prime Minister V.P. Singh asking for negotiations on a 14-month-old trade and transit boycott that is causing widespread economic hardship in its much smaller Himalayan neighbor.

Following pressure from the opposition, King Birendra Friday said he would disband the panchayat system of government on the district and village levels.

A nine-hour curfew was extended for its fifth day in Katmandu and its third day in nearby Patan as police concentrated on defending themselves against attacks apparently due to their role in countering the movement.

Dozens of protesters were shot to death by police during the movement, and eight policemen were killed Monday by vigilante bands.

The police, who are demanding to be armed to protect themselves against further mob violence, patrolled the streets of Katmandu Friday in increasingly larger numbers.

The Nepal military Friday raided an armory at a police station in Katmandu and seized an unknown quantity of arms, a source close to the Home Ministry said. No other details were given.

SEOUL, SOUTH KOREA (APRIL 27) UPI - The South Korean governmment proposed Friday a renewal of talks with North Korea aimed at arranging a meeting of their prime ministers to discuss a wide range of mutual concerns.

North Korea broke off the talks in February to protest South Korea participation in joint military exercises with the United States.

The proposal to resume talks next month came in a telephone message sent through the truce village of Panmunjom, 35 miles north of Seoul, a government spokesman said.

Song Han-ho, chief Seoul delegate to South-North negotiations on arranging the prime ministers' meeting, suggested to his North Korean counterpart Paek Nam-jun that the two sides get together May 22 at Panmunjom, the spokesman said.

''South-North dialogue must continue under any circumstances,'' Song was quoted by the spokesman as saying. ''I hope that the proposed prime ministers meeting can take place by Aug. 15, the 45th anniversary of Korea's liberation (from 36 years of Japanese colonial rule).''

South and North Korea began talks in February of last year aimed at holding an inter-Korean prime ministers meeting that would discuss all pending issues between the two nations.

In February this year, after six rounds of preparatory talks, North Korea cut off the dialogue to protest an annual military exercise involving South Korean and U.S. forces.

The government spokesman said that with the exercise over, Seoul is hopeful the North will agree to reopening all channels of communication.

WASHINGTON (APRIL 27) UPI - Warning of a ''stable full of Trojan horses'' in Managua, Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., objected Friday to U.S. aid for Nicaragua as long as former Sandinista leaders remain in that country's new government.

His comments followed new Nicaraguan President Violeta Chamorro's decision to retain Humberto Ortega - a member of the Sandinista directorate and brother of former President Daniel Ortega - as chief of the armed forces.

Chamorro defeated Daniel Ortega in Feb. 25 elections and President Bush asked Congress to send her government $300 million in emergency aid.

During Senate debate on the aid bill Friday, Helms offered an amendment that would have barred U.S. aid to Nicaragua as long as any person who was a member of the Sandinista directorate on Feb. 25 ''holds any non-elected civilian or military post in the government.''

However, Helms quickly withdrew the proposal, saying he had made his point.

''The communist Ortega brothers should not be in a position to get one dime of the American taxpyers' money,'' he said.

Helms, a vocal supporter of the Contra rebels who fought to topple the Sandinista government, warned that Chamorro risks becoming a ''figure head'' unless she ends Sandinista control of the military.

''For whatever reason President Chamorro took this action, she sure did disappoint a lot of people in Nicaragua,'' said Helms. ''The last thing she needs is a stable full of Trojan horses.''

Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., said he agreed with Helms that Humberto Ortega's appointment was a troubling sign. But he said Charmorro needed U.S. aid to consolidate her position.

Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., said it was U.S. policy to encourage elections in Nicaragua. Now that they have been conducted, he said, it is not proper for the United States to question the decisions of Nicaragua's elected officials.

(APRIL 27) UPI - The goverment's preliminary report on the nation's output of goods and services for the first quarter 1990 shows a two-point-one percent rise, or 21-point-seven-BILLION dollars. In the fourth quarter last year, the gross national product rose one-point-one percent, or 11-point-two-BILLION dollars.

The government says after-tax corporate profits sank in the fourth quarter by a revised nine-point-three-BILLION dollars, to a seasonally adjusted 285-point-nine BILLION dollars.

MEXICO CITY (APRIL 27) UPI - Mexico, seeking to globally boost its foreign trade, will soon urge Latin American countries to open up their economies and reduce tariff barriers, Mexican Commerce Minister Jamie Serra Puche said.

Puche told a group of foreign correspondents Thursday night that Mexico will call on them to open their eceonomic systems during next week's meeting of the 11-nation Association of Latin American Integration, or ALADI. ALADI, formed in 1980, aims for both the integration of Latin America and, in the long run, the establishment of a Latin American common market.

"Mexico is going to propose that we should open our economies more," Serra Puche said, adding this would indicate nations in the region "mean business."

Foreign Ministers of Argentina, Bolivia, Brazil, Colombia, Chile, Ecuador, Mexico, Paraguay, Peru, Uruguay, and Venezuela are scheduled to meet Monday and Tuesday in Mexico City to discuss ways of enhancing regional economic integration.

"Mexico wants to see major trade with Latin America," Serra Puche said, noting "less than four percent" of Mexico's trade is with Latin America. He said Latin American countries, which have up to 100 percent tariffs, must reduce those barriers.

"Maximum tariffs in Mexico are only 20 percent. ... We have little barriers, almost nothing," Serra Puche said. "We are looking forward to less tariffs in Latin America."

Mexican officials say that Argentina, Brazil, Colombia, Mexico, Peru and Venezuela are interested in continuing the regional integration process mainly through the elimination of non-tariff restrictions and the gradual lowering of tariffs.

Serra Puche blamed high tariffs in the region for having a negative impact on Mexican-Latin American trade. In 1988, Mexican exports to Latin America were reported at $1.45 billion and imports from the region at $681 million, leaving Mexico with a trade surplus of $768 million. "There has never been an intense economic relation with Latin America," Serra Puche said.

Mexico, which has opened up its economy to foreign goods and investments over the past three years and recently accelerated this process, carries out 68 percent of its total foreign trade with the United States. Serra Puche said, however, that Mexico is trying to diversify its trade with other regions, especially Europe, the Pacific Basin and Latin America.

President Carlos Salinas de Gortari, who has stepped up the pace of the procees of opening the Mexican economy since assuming office in December 1988, is expected to visit several South American countries by the end of this year to press for greater economic ties. Mexico ran a trade deficit of about $523 million in 1989, a reversal from the$1.7 billion overall surplus registered in 1988.

"Mexico has opened up its economy so much that now it faces the risk of a trade deficit. We must enhance our exports and explore new markets," said a Mexican Commerce Ministry official, who asked not to be identified. "Latin America offers a great potential."

NEW YORK (APRIL 27) UPI - ''A Chorus Line'' will dance into history Saturday after 6,137 performances with a final benefit blast attended by the original 1975 cast.

The final curtain will fall on Broadway's longest running show ever at a benefit performance at the Shubert Theater for the New York Shakespeare Festival which originally produced it. Tickets range from $80 to $500.

The entire original cast of 31 ''gypsies,'' headed by star Donna McKechnie will be in attendance and will join festival founder Joseph Papp on stage along with stage crew and orchestra. There have been 479 actors and actresses in the successive casts of ''A Chorus Line,'' some of whom also will be in the audience.

The show outlived its director and choreographer Michael Bennett and the co-author of its book, James Kirkwood. Otherwise, almost everyone connected with the show will be in attendance including designer Theoni V. Aldridge. Others in the audience will be Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., and City Council President Andrew Stein.

Some 800 celebrity guests headed by Papp and actress Colleen Dewhurst will go on to dinner and improvised entertainment at Mamma Leone's restaurant for the largest closing party ever given a Broadway show. Mamma's major domo, Joe Montalbano, promised plenty of Italian food and wine.

Broadway's ''One Singular Sensation'' began as a workshop production at Papp's Public Theater and was given an off-Broadway production before moving to the Shubert Theater July 25, 1975. Its net proceeds has been the major financial support of the Shakespeare Festival, which runs five theaters at the Public Theater and gives summer performances in Central Park.

Announcement in February that the musical would close March 31 resulted in such a rush of ticket sales that the closing date was re-set for April 28.

''We've been selling out ever since the closing was announced,'' said show spokesman Merle Debuskey, ''It's been extraordinary.

''We took in $500,000 at the box office this week, compared to the take of $128,000 the week before the closing was announced. I would say that in the past eight weeks the show has made close to $2 million for the Shakespeare Festival.''

Papp said Thursday that the festival is more than $2.5 million in debt at present and the closing of ''A Chorus Line'' came at a very bad time.

''You can never raise enough money, but this show has been our chief support for years,'' Papp said. ''It has been like having a state subsidy. We have been self-supporting and didn't have to go to government sources for funds. It's the end of an era.''

WASHINGTON (APRIL 27) UPI - The wife of freed American hostage Robert Polhill, giving a thumbs-up gesture, said Friday that her husband is ''physically weak but mentally very strong'' as he recovers from more than three years of captivity in Lebanon.

''I think he has emerged mentally stronger,'' Feryal Polhill told reporters at a news conference at Walter Reed Army Medical Center, where her husband arrived Thursday after spending three days in an Air Force hospital in Wiesbaden, West Germany.

''I have waited three long years for this moment, and now that it's here, I am both happy and sad,'' Polhill's wife said, referring to the joy of seeing her husband and the sadness when she thinks of the remaining hostages in Lebanon.

Speaking haltingly, the dark-haired Lebanese woman read a short statement from her husband, and at one point raised her left thumb in the same gesture he gave Thursday when he stepped off an Air Force jet at Andrews Air Force Base near Washington.

Mrs. Polhill quoted her husband as saying he would make himself available to reporters ''very soon.''

''I regret that at the moment, I am unable to thank you more directly and personally,'' Polhill's statement said. ''But my voice decided to go on vacation before I did.

''However, I do want you to know how very much I appreciate the warmth and sincerity of your welcome and the support you've given my wife and family, who join me in hoping that this is the beginning of the end to the hostage situation.''

Polhill's statement said he is ''now free to join you in your continued support for the loved ones of those who remain in capitiviy and in welcoming the hostages home in the very near future.

''Let's show the world that we, the American people, want to leave the past behind us, look positively to the future and, once and for all, close the file on the hostage issue.''

During a question-and-answer session, Mrs. Polhill ducked most queries about her husband's ordeal, but told reporters only her husband was in a position to say if he brought any message from the kidnappers back to the United States with him.

''He is physically weak but mentally very strong,'' she said. ''I feel good to have him back.''

She said her husband has maintained his sense of humor and ''he has had people laughing all the way from Damascus to the United States.''

Dr. Russ Zajtchuk, deputy commander of clinical services at the hospital, also spoke with reporters and said Polhill, in addition to suffering from diabetes, weight loss and malnutrition, ''has a growth on his left vocal chord.''

But he said doctors attending Polhill do not yet have a diagnosis because they have not yet taken a biopsy on the growth.

''It could be a tumor, or it could be infectious in nature,'' Zajtchuk said, adding that if the growth is infectious it might be related to his captivity but that if it's a tumor, it probably is not.

He said doctors ''did not want to subject him to general anesthesia'' in his weakend condition, and said the biopsy might be performed ''in about a week.''

''He apprears to be in reasonably good spirits,'' Zajtchuk said. ''There was no evidence that he was beaten. He indicated to some other physicians that he was not beaten.''

Zajtchuk also said that Polhill has suffered a slight vision loss from being kept in the dark during most of his captivity.

The doctor said Polhill's treatment ''may be prolonged'' and could last up to a month.

Polhill, 55, a former accountant and business professor at Beirut University, was released in Lebanon Sunday after being held for 39 months by members of the Islamic Jihad for the Liberation of Palestine.

Polhill himself has said virtually nothing publicly since being freed. He has been examined by doctors and has talked with State Department officials about details of his captivity and the fate of the other American hostages in Lebanon.

He lost about 25 pounds as well as significant muscle mass while in captivity and doctors said he was malnourished and dehydrated at the time of his release. Doctors in Germany earlier this week said he was very hungry, eating four big meals a day, and very angry about his ordeal.

CHICAGO (APRIL 27) UPI - People's Energy Corp. Friday reported second-quarter earnings of $39.6 million, or $1.22 a share, down 23 percent compared with $51.7 million, or $1.59 a share, in the year-ago quarter. Revenues for the quarter ended March 31 totaled $457.1 million versus $530.3 million in the second quarter of 1989.

The company, parent of two natural gas utilities providing gas to nearly a million customers, attributed the decline in earnings and revenues to mild winter weather.

For the first six months of fiscal 1990, People's Energy reported earnings of $78.2 million, or $2.40 a share, down 16 percent compared with $93.1 million, or $2.86 a share, in the year-earlier period. Revenues for the first six months totaled $1.18 billion versus $1.19 billion a year ago.

CAPE CANAVERAL, FL (APRIL 27) UPI - The balky Hubble Space Telescope opened its cosmic eye Friday, allowing starlight to fall on its near-perfect mirror for the first time and freeing the Discovery astronauts from a possible orbital repair job.

''Hubble is open for business,'' astronaut Story Musgrave radioed the shuttle crew from Houston after the telescope's lens cap was successfully ordered to rotate open.

''That's outstanding!'' replied Discovery astronaut Steven Hawley, who launched the revolutionary satellite Wednesday. Later, he said: ''Story, there's handshakes and smiles all around up here.''

Crewmate Bruce McCandless thanked the thousands of scientists and engineers responsible for building the space telescope and giving the crew a chance to participate in ''its historic voyage of exploration and discovery.''

But because of technical problems and trouble maintaining radio contact, the first historic picture from the $1.5 billion telescope, originally scheduled to be taken early next week, probably will be delayed, officials said.

With Discovery trailing the telescope by about 40 miles, commands to open the telescope's ''aperture door'' were radioed to the satellite around 9:45 a.m. EDT, causing the protective lens cap over the end of the intrument's 14-foot-wide tube to open, allowing starlight to fall on its 94.5-inch mirror.

But the motion of the lens cap as it moved up and out of the way apparently caused more vibration than expected and two of the telescope's four primary stabilization gyroscopes were taken ''off line'' by the satellite's on-board computer.

The gyroscopes are required to keep the 12-ton satellite precisely pointed in space. Believing that only two of its four gyros were up and running properly, the telescope's computer put the craft into a dormant ''safe mode,'' giving engineers time to figure out what went wrong.

The telescope already was in a more relaxed safe mode following problems earlier in the day with a motor needed to aim one of the satellite's two science antennas. That, in turn, prevented ground control from establishing contact with the spacecraft and delayed the door opening procedure.

Engineers later determined the gyroscopes were operating properly, however and they worked to bring the satellite out of the safe mode to continue its interrupted activation.

''They (safe modes) are like hibernations,'' said NASA astronomer Steve Maran. ''We're in one now that sort of like just a nap. But there are deeper safe modes when you have more serious problems detected on board where it's like the bear retreating into his cave.''

Hawley, 38, McCandless, 52, commander Loren Shriver, 45, co-pilot Charles Bolden, 43, and Kathryn Sullivan, 38, had been standing by to catch up and rendezvous with the observatory to conduct an emergency spacewalk in the event of problems with the aperture door.

Once it was open, they were cleared to break away and to proceed with their own on-board experiments before gliding to a 6:38 a.m. PDT touchdown Sunday at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif.

''The long-range weather forecast for Sunday is ... marginal,'' said shuttle flight director William Reeves. ''Whether we land on Sunday or Monday is totally dependent on whether (a) front gets through Edwards or not. The predictions at this time are that Sunday will be acceptable for landing.''

While the telescope's insulated tube is finally open to the universe, Hubble will not start taking pictures until next week. The target is a cluster of stars called NGC 3532 in the Southern Hemisphere constellation Carina.

While other, more spectacular targets could have been picked for the historic ''first light'' picture, NASA officials stuck with the star cluster for a critical focusing test of the telescope's optical system.

''The ground rule here is that we're not ... going to divert any effort to public affairs activities and so forth,'' NASA astrophysicist Charles Pellerin said before launch. ''This field was picked for a focus test, and it's nothing but a focus test.''

Once fully checked out and in operation, the Hubble Space Telescope will let astronomers study planets, stars and galaxies with 10 times the clarity of ground-based instruments, revolutionizing knowledge about the birth, structure, evolution and fate of the universe.

The telescope's odyssey began Wednesday with release from Discovery after ground controllers managed to free a stuck solar array. Since then, engineers at Goddard have struggled through a variety of communications problems and other glitches in a rocky start for the telescope's eight-month checkout procedure.

WASHINGTON (APRIL 27) UPI - President Bush presented volunteer awards Friday to 19 recipients, including a retired school teacher who created a library for the poor, the coach of a wheelchair basketball team and a teenage crime-fighter.

''Thank you, all of you, and God bless everyone of you,'' Bush said at a White House ceremony.

The President's Volunteer Action Awards were created by Ronald Reagan in 1982 to draw attention to the nation's estimated 80 million volunteers and to show what can be accomplished through community service.

Lucia Rede Madrid, the retired school teacher who established a library in Redford, Texas, was selected as the top volunteer of 1990, and as such also received the Ronald Reagan Award for Volunteer Excellence.

Bush said, ''I've often noted that from now on any definition of a successful life must include serving others. Today, it is my special honor to present the President's Volunteer Action Awards to 19 of those 'points of light' who embody that definition of success.''

In addition to Madrid, other winners - some individuals, others organizations - were:

-Harry Vines of North Little Rock, Ark., who is coach of the Rollin' Razorbacks, a state champion wheelchair basketball team.

-Clarence Wilson, 17, St. Louis, who helped develop a community anti-crime watch program.

-Northwest Pilot Project Access to the Arts Program of Portland, Ore.

-Agnes Louise Windsor, who helped develop a library and a black history program in her hometown of Slocomb, Ala.

-Henry Jesse and Mary Ann Gaskins of Washington, D.C., who founded the Freedom Youth Academy.

-Department of Transportation Volunteer Committee.

-Brenda Canada and Kathy Seltzer of Port Orange, Fla., who helped develop a children's playground.

-Volunteers of Courage Center, Golden Valley, Minn.

-League Against Cancer of Miami, Fla.

-INTERACT, The Volunteer Program of Jobs For Youth, Chicago.

-Providence House, New Rochelle, N.Y., which provides shelter to women and children in ''crisis situations.''

-Dr. and Mrs. William Magee of Norfolk, Va., who founded Operation Smile in 1982 to correct facial deformities in people in developing countries.

-Lions Club International, the world's largest service organization.

-Michelle Powell Harvey of Salt Lake City, who worked with the local fire department to create a three-act play on safety that is presented to school children.

-Suitland High School Community Service Group, Forestville, Md.

-Apple Computer, Inc. Earthquake Database Project, Cupertino, Calif.

-Coors Volunteers in Community Enrichment, Golden, Colo.

-The United Mine Workers of America Hugo Relief Project, Lebanon, Va.

WASHINGTON (APRIL 27) UPI - Conductor Mstislav Rostropovich, who fled the Soviet Union for the freedom to express his art, warned Congress Friday against betraying ''the soul of its people'' by imposing censorship on the National Endowment for the Arts.

Saying it was ''censorship that led me to the United States,'' the director of the National Symphony Orchestra told a Senate panel that introducing censorship into the funding decisions of the NEA would reduce American art to the mediocrity of its censors.

''Art is the soul of its people,'' Rostropovich said. ''Especially the United States, with its great number of diverse ethnic and relgious groups must preserve in an untouchable state the right of each person to express himself.''

The maestro's testimony to the Subcommittee on Education, Arts and Humanities came as the panel considers reauthorization of the NEA, which finances a broad range of arts programs.

The agency has recently been embroiled in controversy over its sponsorship of works, such as the controversial Robert Mapplethorpe homoerotic photography exhibit and a picture of a crucifix immersed in a bottle of urine, that critics have called obscene or offensive.

John Buchanan, chairman for People for the American Way, told the panel a national poll commissioned by his group showed that 93 percent of Americans ''overwhelmingly oppose censorship of artists' work ... even if they find it personally offensive.''

Leaders of several arts organizations from around the country who argued any censorship of NEA decisions would be a violation of First Amendment rights to free expression.

But two conservative groups represented at the hearing argued the agency should be killed outright.

Phyllis Schlafly, head of the conservative Eagle Forum, complained that NEA grants had been used for ''items of alleged art (that) include materials which deliberately insult people of certain religions and the God they worship or deliberatley display obscenity and even child pornography.''

''Having proved its irresponsibility in spending the taxpayers' money,'' Schlafly said, ''the National Endowment for the Arts should be completely defunded.''

Republicans on the subcommitee stopped short of defunding, but argued federal funding of NEA gives Congress a responsibility to restrict the content of the art it promotes.

''With federal funds there are always strings attached,'' said Rep. Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kans., adding Congress should ''explore ways that we perhaps can restructure the NEA.''

But Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., argued Congress should not cave into the recent controversy and ''walk away from our essential public commitment to the arts and free expression.''

''Sometimes art shocks our sensibilities,'' Kennedy said. ''But that is no justification for the unwarranted intrusions of the extremists and know-nothings.''

TALLAHASSEE, FL (APRIL 27) UPI - The Florida House Friday joined a number of groups in protesting the slaughter of thousands of dolphins by the tuna fishing industry.

The House unanimously passed a resolution condemning the controversial tuna fishing practice known as ''setting on dolphins,'' whereby tuna fishing boats deliberately set their nets on top of dolphin herds in order to catch the yellowfin tuna that swim underneath them.

More than 6 million dolphins have died in the 30 years that tuna fishing boats in the eastern tropical Pacific have been using the method, the environmental group Greenpeace has said.

''In the decade of the earth, the necessity of going the extra yard to protect all life has finally come to the forefront,'' said Rep. Mike Friedman, D-Surfside, the resolution's sponsor.

The resolution also supports passage by Congress of the Dolphin Protection Consumer Information Act. The bill has more than 140 sponsors in Congress and would require that tuna products be labeled so consumers know whether they were harvested using methods that kill dolphins.

The measure also would require that an observer from the National Marine Fisheries Commission be present on all commercial tuna fishing boats to monitor harvesting methods.

''This resolution sends a message to our nation's capital from the state most closely associated with dolphins,'' said Craig Sinclair of Greenpeace.

On April 12, the Heinz Corp. announced on behalf of its subsidiary, Starkist, that it would no longer purchase, process, can or sell tuna that was caught using methods that killed dolphins.

PARIS (APRIL 27) UPI - Soviet and U.S. negotiators held a final session Friday in an effort to work out remaining differences on a trade pact for presidents George Bush and Mikhail Gorbachev to sign at their next summit.

Deputy U.S. Trade Representative Julius Katz, who headed the American delegation, refused to identify the issues that still divide the two sides.

A spokesman for the U.S. Embassy in Paris said Friday that the two sides will keep in contact through normal diplomatic channels during the next several weeks to finalize work on the document.

No further formal negotiating sessions are scheduled.

Katz, who returned to the United States Friday, said on Thursday that tentative agreement on the treaty had been reached, and that the agreement should be ready for signature by Bush and Gorbachev at their May 30 to June 3 summit in Washington.

The three-year agreement, which would be automatically renewable for periods of three years if neither side protests, is also likely to lead to a sharp increase in trade between the two superpowers.

Obtaining most favored nation status is of crucial importance to Gorbachev who is trying to modernize his country's troubled economy.

Diplomatic analysts said that the serious atmosphere at the talks testified to the importance Washington and Moscow attach to maintaining a good relationship despite the tension caused by the Lithuanian crisis.

It had been widely expected that Bush would postpone the Paris talks as part of U.S. sanctions against Moscow for its economic measures against Lithuania, which declared independence from the Soviet Union on March 11. But Bush decided against immediate action in order not to endanger the upcoming summit.

The trade treaty is an essential first step in granting the Soviet Union most favored nation trading status.

But even if the accord is signed at the summit, Bush must wave an amendment on emigration before he can submit it for congressional approval.

Bush has linked granting most favored nation status, which would result in a reduction of U.S. duties on Soviet imports, to a liberalization of Soviet emigration policies.

In addition to addressing the issue of most favored nation status, the nearly completed treaty deals with the establishment of commercial offices in each country and facilitating travel for American and Soviet businessmen.

Negotiators also agreed on the protection of intellectual property, including copyrights, patents and sound recordings.

The treaty includes provisions for the repatriation of profits in hard currency, but Katz said it was not very different from agreements the United States has reached with other favored nations.

Attached to the treaty are a number of letters dealing with tourism and financial relations.

UNITED NATIONS (APRIL 27) UPI - Two Iranian dissidents threw raw eggs at Iranian Foreign Minister Ali Akbar Velayati Friday and called him ''a bloody torturer'' as he entered a conference room at U.N. headquarters.

The eggs missed and U.N. and American security officers shielded Velayati from the would-be attackers. Velayati, smiling after the incident, held a news conference in the conference room as scheduled.

''He's a bloody torturer. He doesn't represent the Iranian people. Just two weeks ago he killed my brother,'' one Iranian screamed as he was immediately seized by security guards. The guards also wrestled his colleague to the ground.

U.N. spokeswoman Nadia Younes said the guards arrested a third suspect. She said an investigation was being carried out and Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar ''deeply regrets'' the incident.

Foreign ministers visiting New York and the U.N. headquarters are routinely protected by security officers provided by the State Department. The protection is augmented by U.N. guards inside the U.N. complex.

''They tried to attack me, but the guards prevented them,'' he told reporters.

Velayati denied charges by the Iranian opposition group, the Baghdad-based Mojahedin Khalq organization, that the Tehran government was behind the assassination of Kazem Rajavi, the brother of Mojahedin leader Massoud Rajavi.

Kazem Rajavi was killed by unidentified gunmen in Geneva last weekend.

Velayati said the murder was apparently carried out by Mojahedin members.

''I can guess because there had been infighting among themselves inside the organization,'' Velayati said, calling the charges against his government ''ridiculous.''

Turning to the U.N.-sponsored peace talks with Iraq, Velayati accused his counterpart in Iraq of torpedoing the negotiations scheduled for May. Velayati said Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz canceled his trip to New York this week and consultations with Perez de Cuellar for the coming talks.

Velayati blamed Iraq's ''expansionist illusions'' for the current deadlock in negotiations. He called on the international community to pressure Iraq to return to the negotiating table.

''The recent provocations by Iraq which certainly exacerbate tension, gives added urgency to this international responsibility,'' Velayati said.

The two ministers have engaged in 15 rounds of talks since a cease-fire was imposed August 20, 1988. The cease-fire was part of a Security Council resolution that called for peace negotiations to settle differences between the two countries.

WASHINGTON (APRIL 27) UPI - A dispute over abortion stymied Senate efforts Friday to finish legislation providing nearly all of the emergency aid President Bush has sought for Nicaragua and Panama.

The $720 million in aid is contained in a $2.3 billion supplemental spending bill approved by the Senate Appropriations Committee with an amendment allowing the District of Columbia to use local tax money to finance abortions.

Bush vetoed the district's appropriations bill last year because it contained the same provision, and is virtually certain to veto the spending bill if it includes the abortion language.

The Senate bill provides the full $300 million sought by Bush for Nicaragua and $420 million of the $500 million he wants for Panama. The House earlier approved the same aid totals, which Bush finds acceptable, but did not include the abortion provision.

The Senate three times Friday voted against removing the language. However the Senate still faced a final vote on the question, threatening further delays in aid that Bush had hoped to have in time for Nicaraguan President Violeta Chamorro's inauguration Wednesday.

Adding to the delay was the collapse of an agreement among Senate leaders to limit the number of amendments that could be proposed. Democratic leader George Mitchell of Maine said a final vote might not occur until next week.

''Mrs. Chamorro's first term may expire before we get the aid down there '' Senate Republican leader Robert Dole of Kansas joked Thursday night.

Democrats attempted unsuccessfully Thursday to shift $120 million of the aid from Panama to domestic programs. On Friday, the aid to Nicaragua came under attack from a conservative Republican, Jesse Helms of North Carolina.

Helms offered an amendment that would have barred U.S. aid as long as Chamorro keeps Humberto Ortega, brother of former Sandinista President Daniel Ortega, as chief of the armed forces.

Helms quickly withdrew the proposal, saying his point had been made. But he warned that Chamorro risks becoming a ''figure head'' if she allows top Sandinistas to hold key positions in the military.

''The last thing she needs is a stable full of Trojan horses,'' Helms said. ''The communist Ortega brothers should not be in a position to get one dime of the American taxpayers' money.''

In all, the supplemental bill, under debate since Wednesday, provides $865 million in foreign aid, not including $400 million in housing loan guarantees for Soviet Jews settling in Israel.

It also provides money for domestic emergencies ranging from recovery from Hurricane Hugo to preparations for an expected grasshopper outbreak in the northern Plains this summer.

Most of the new appropriations would be offset by cuts in military spending.

WASHINGTON (APRIL 27) UPI - A tentative U.S.-Soviet agreement on trade came under fire Friday from members of the Senate who said the administration should not reward the Soviets while they are imposing an economic blockade on Lithuania.

''We shouldn't be doing the Kremlin any favors right now, not with Lithuania in a Soviet vise,'' said Senate Republican leader Robert Dole of Kansas.

An agreement to normalize trade relations and grant the Soviet Union trade benefits would have to be approved by Congress, but Dole and others indicated such a pact would face heavy opposition unless Lithuania's bid for independence is satisfactorily resolved.

Sen. Alfonse D'Amato, R-N.Y., said he was prepared to launch a filibuster to bock the legislation.

U.S. and Soviet negotiators meeting in Paris reached tentative agreement on a bilateral trade pact Thursday, but additional meetings were scheduled to resolve final details. The pact could be ready for signing when President Bush and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev hold their summit in Washington in late May.

D'Amato, at a news conference with nine other senators, said announcement of the agreement ''comes exactly at the wrong time (and) Mr. Gorbachev should not be rewarded ... for suppressing the people of Lithuania with most favored nation'' trade status, which would mean a reduction in U.S. duties on Soviet imports.

Sen. Gordon Humphrey, R-N.H., said he was ''appalled at the lack of sensitivity by the White House towards the Lithuanian people as they desperately struggle to reassert independence.''

Humphrey said he favors more trade with the Soviets, but ''will do all I can to resist it until the blockade is lifted and the Soviet bullying ceases.''

Dole said the Soviets ''desperately want to normalize trade relations, but notwithstanding any agreement that might be reached, this is no time for business as usual.''

Dole said Congress should ''slow walk'' any trade pact until the Lithuania situation is resolved.

Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-N.M., called on Bush to suspend the trade talks and ''not to follow through on the proposed trade agreement with the Soviets until Moscow lifts the economic embargo against Lithuania.''

CHICAGO (APRIL 27) UPI - Professional buying rallied soybeans and soybean meal to contract highs Friday on the Chicago Board of Trade, but some of the gains were eroded during the final minutes.

It was the second consecutive day that professional firms were aggressive buyers of beans and meal. Commercial buying also contributed to the rally in meal Friday.

November soybeans reached a contract high of $6.67 per bushel in active trading, eclipsing the previous high by 7 cents. The volume in soybeans was very heavy and came on the heels of the 428 million bushels traded Thursday. A record 55,000 contracts were traded in soymeal Thursday, and officials expected Friday's volume to equal that number.

Trading was choppy in soybeans and meal. The market overcame its early weakness and turned higher, then drifted lower until late in the day when aggressive buying rallied prices again. Soybean oil futures were virtually unchanged.

Grain futures were mostly higher in active trading and relatively heavy volume.

Profit-taking and positioning ahead of the weekend kept the grains on the defensive. Nearby corn and wheat were fractionally lower on liquidation.

Wheat was pressured by the likelihood of favorable growing conditions through the weekend.

An increase in country movement and widespread cash protection limited gains across the floor.

Delivery notices for May soybeans are expected to be heavy on Monday, the first notice day, while grain deliveries will be light.

At the close, corn was off 3/4 to up 1 1/2, soybeans up 6 3/4 to 10 3/4, wheat unchanged to up 5 3/4 and oats up 1 to 2.

BOGOTA, Colombia (APRIL 27) UPI - Hundreds of mourners paid their last respects Friday to presidential candidate Carlos Pizarro, the former rebel chief who survived a guerrilla war only to be slain by a drug cartel hit man just weeks after abandoning the gun for the ballot box.

The assassination Thursday morning aboard an Avianca airliner drew a sharp reaction from the other presidential candidates, prompting them to temporarily suspend campaigning for the May 27 election and criticize President Virgilio Barco for failing to ensure public safety.

Alvaro Gomez, candidate of the National Salvation Party, assailed Barco's lack of action and urged him to appoint a three-person panel to deal with public order until a new president takes office. He said the panel was needed ''so the anarchy is not prolonged.''

Cesar Gaviria, the candidate of the ruling Liberal Party who is virtually assured being elected, said he would consult other political parties ''with the purpose of examining the profound crisis of our institutions and to guarantee the continuation of our democracy.''

Pizarro was fatally wounded when a lone gunman opened fire aboard an Avianca airliner carrying 98 passengers and crew. The gunman was killed in a hail of bullets from Pizarro's bodyguards. A caller to Radio Caracol later claimed responsibility for the assassination on behalf of the Medellin cocaine cartel.

The charismatic former commander of the M-19 guerrilla group, which gave up its war and became a legitimate political group two months ago, was the third presidential candidate slain in less than a year.

Leading Liberal Party candidate Sen. Luis Carlos Galan was gunned down Aug. 18, 1989, at a Bogota rally by cocaine cartel hit men. His assassination prompted Barco to declare war on the cocaine cartels and resume extradition of wanted drug traffickers to the United States.

Another gunman assassinated Bernardo Jaramillo Ossa, candidate of the leftist Patriotic Union, March 22 in the Bogota airport.

Presidential candidates sharply curtailed public campaigning after Galan's assassination, and the government has provided the candidates with extensive television time to help curtail public appearances.

Following Pizarro's slaying, the other major candidates suspended their campaigns at least through the weekend.

Hundreds of people Friday filed past Pizarro's body, which was lying in state in an open plaza between the two houses of congress until burial Saturday. His casket was draped with an M-19 flag and mourners shouted, ''Pizarro, the people are with you.''

Residents reacted with shock to the death of the 39-year-old presidential contender. One of Bogota's leading newspapers, El Tiempo, headlined the story of his assassination: ''Pizarro: the nightmare repeats itself.''

Also Friday, security was beefed up around Cardinal Alfonso Lopez Trujillo of Medellin after Catholic Church officials said they frustrated an assassination attempt. Hit men posing as security agents Thursday infiltrated the offices of Lopez Trujillo, the highest ranking Catholic official in Colombia, the church said in a statement.

But the plot was discovered and the hit men fled, the statement said.

''I lament that these threats have extended to the church but I have faith in God,'' Lopez Trujillo told a Bogota radio station Friday.

(APRIL 27) UPI - The Hubble Space Telescope now has its cosmic eye trained on the universe. European Community leaders may be on the verge of propelling their 12 nations toward a politically united Europe. E-C leaders initially were summoned to a 13th-century castle near Dublin, Ireland, to discuss German unification. But a British diplomat says efforts to speed up the pace toward European political union is emerging as the central topic.

Christian leaders closed the Church of the Holy Sepulchre in Jerusalem's Old City in an unprecedented protest against the continued presence of militant Jews in the city's Christian Quarter. Church bells tolled a funeral peal when the doors were locked at the 800-year-old Crusader church built on the traditional site of the crucifixion of Jesus Christ and his burial.

The Senate killed a Democratic bid to further cut the president's request for emergency aid to Panama and shift the money to domestic projects. (APRIL 27) UPI - The Federal Aviation Administration is checking into a near-collision between a U-S Air Boeing 747 and a twin-engine aircraft

In Colombia, followers are mourning the death of leftist presidential candidate Carlos Pizarro as his body lay in state in the capitol building in Bogota. The former M-19 guerrilla cammander was assassinated yesterday on a commercial airline flight over Bogota. The hitman was killed by Pizarro's bodyguards.

Convicted murderer Ronald Woomer was executed early this morning in South Carolina's electric chair. Woomer spent 10 years on death row after being convicted of killing four people during a 1979 crime spree along the eastern seaboard. He made a final apology to the families of the victims before he died.

DETROIT (APRIL 27) UPI - Mercedes-Benz of North America said Friday it is recalling 1,584 of its 300 series sedans and wagons from the 1990-model year to replace a pre-resistor device for the engine fan.

The West German carmaker said from its U.S. headquarters in Montvale, N.J. that it was aware of three incidents in which a plastic cover on the resistor melted but caused no extensive damage. Mercedes will replace the pre-resistor with one that has a metal cover.

Cars affected by the voluntary recall include the 300E 2.6, 300E, 300E 4Matic sedans, 300TE and 300TE 4Matic wagons, and 300CE coupes. Those cars range in price from $39,950 to $56,250, a company spokesman said. Owners are being notified by mail to have the device replaced free of charge.

DETROIT (APRIL 27) UPI - Fitch Investors Service said Friday it has raised the senior and subordinated debt ratings of Ford Motor Co. and Ford Motor Credit Co., and removed them from general review after nearly a year.

The Wall Street credit rating firm raised the senior debt rating of Ford and Ford Motor Credit to AA- from A+, and raised Ford Credit's subordinated debt to A+ from A-. Ford Credit is the nation's second largest non-bank financial institution in the United States. Ford is the nation's second largest automaker.

Fitch said the higher ratings are in recognition of the automaker's improved operating and financial performance relative to its major competition, despite its large cash outlays last year for British carmaker Jaguar PLC and the Associates, a Dallas finance and insurance company.

Fitch also noted that Ford's strong market shares globally support the substantial cash flows necessary to implement ambitious product development programs needed to keep its business momentum going.

Ford bought the Associates from Paramount Communications for $3.4 billion, and paid $2.5 billion for Jaguar. However Ford's annual report to shareholders issued last month disclosed it paid a $2 billion premium for Jaguar, or five times the company's net worth, and paid a $1 billion premium for the Associates.

"These are somewhat aggressive measures for Ford, but we understand the rationale for them," Fitch analyst Nancy Stroker said. "We know they paid a big premium for them, but they will fit in well, especially on Ford's financial services side."

Stroker said that while the performance of Ford's financial services group has been disappointing, it is expected to improve and provide a good source of income to counterbalance the cyclical nature of automotive sales.

"The really big drag has been by its First Nationwide banks," she said, noting that the Associates acquisition will smooth the overall performace of Ford's financial operations.

The new ratings apply to about $843 million in Ford Motor debt, about $2.8 billion in senior Ford Credit debt, and about $400 million in subordinated Ford Credit debt, Fitch said.

All issues had been under general review since May 11, 1989, which is not the same as the Fitch Alert, which is similar to Standard & Poor's Creditwatch list.

"Fitch's new management just said they were not comfortable with some of our ratings, so we put them under general review," Stroker said. "As we have had the opportunity to review them, we have removed them from the list."

NEW YORK (APRIL 27) UPI - A neighborhood buddy of Joseph Fama with a history of hallucinating testified Friday he saw the accused triggerman fire a pistol four times, killing a black teenager during a racial melee in the Bensonhurst section of Brooklyn.

Frank Tighe, 20, one of the prosecution's top witnesses who has a history of mental problems, recounted the day of the shooting, trying to avoid looking toward the steady stare of Fama, 19, who he has known since kindergarden.

''He just lied there - lying down on the floor (street),'' said Tighe, of 16-year-old Yusuf Hawkins, who had ventured into the neighborhood last Aug. 23 to look at a used car.

Instead, Hawkins and three friends stumbled onto a mob of white youths working themselves into a frenzy over rumors that blacks and Hispanics were coming to a party in the predominantly white neighborhood.

In an attempt to discredit Tighe's story, Fama's lawyer, David DePetris, questioned him mercilessly about his mental problems.

Tighe admitted he had experienced hallucinations, including seeing Jesus Christ, as well as rats with green faces and crawling spiders. But despite the grilling, and repeated pleadings with the judge to end the questioning the young man stuck to his story.

Fama is on trial with Keith Mondello, 19, the accused leader of the white mob.

Fama and Mondello, 19, are charged with second-degree murder in the slaying. The two were being tried before separate juries, because Mondello has allegedly implicated Fama as the gunman. Under questioning by Assistant District Attorney Paul Burns, Tighe testified that before the slaying he heard Fama begging Joseph Serrano, also accused in the killing, ''Give it to me, give it to me, give it to me'' in an apparent reference to a gun.

He said at first Serrano said no, but Fama persisted, saying, ''Please, I just want to shoot one of them.''

Serrano passed something to Fama, Tighe testified, adding he did not see what it was.

Tighe, a husky man with neat, close-cropped hair, said there was a mob of about 35 young men who had gathered during the previous hour, most of them armed with baseball bats.

He said everybody, including himself, began running down the street after Hawkins and his friends.

When the crowd stopped, ''Fama was standing next to me. He pulled something in front of him.''

''What was it?'' Burns asked.

''It was a shiny, silver metal gun.''

''Then what happened?''

''Four shots were fired.''

''By whom?''

''Mr. Fama,'' Tighe replied.

''Where were the shots fired?''

''Towards the black youth.''

Asked if he saw Hawkins, Tighe replied, ''He just lied there - lying down on the floor.'' In his cross-examination, DePetris ripped into Tighe.

''Did you tell the hospital staff that you were being controlled by helicopters and submarines?'' DePetris demanded.

''No, just helicopters,'' Tighe said with a straight face.

Judge Thaddeus Owens broke in to ask, ''On the evening of Aug. 23rd - were you hallucinating then?''

''No, I wasn't,'' Tighe replied.

The prosecution rested its case against Mondello Thursday. The two young men are the first of eight to be tried in the case.

Tighe told Burns he has been hospitalized three times for mental illness, the first in 1987 when he was treated at New York University Hospital for ''chemical imbalance.''

Asked what that meant, he replied, ''It means if I'm not feeling well, I will start hallucinating.''

He said he was hospitalized twice more in 1988 and 1989 - the last time just two days before Hawkins's slaying.

He said the two treatments were for manic-depression, not hallucination. He added he was presently taking medication, ''So I won't have the problem I had in 1987.''

Asked if he was on medication the day of the slaying, he answered ''yes.''

SIDON, LEBANON (APRIL 27) UPI - The spiritual mentor of the Iranian-backed Hezbollah group bitterly assailed the United States Friday for demanding the release of Western hostages while failing to seek the release of a Moslem fundamentalist leader kidnapped by Israeli commandos.

''American officials have recently said that they were not ready to exert pressures on Israel to release Sheikh (Abdel Karim) Obeid and other Lebanese and Palestinian prisoners held in Israel,'' Sheikh Mohammed Hussein Fadlallah told a Shiite crowd at a mosque in southern Beirut.

''But at the same time, the Americans put pressure on the whole world for the sake of the U.S. and European hostages,'' he said.

Obeid, a key Hezbollah figure, was abducted by an Israeli commando team in southern Lebanon last July. Israeli officials said the sheikh was taken prisoner as part of the country's war against terrorism. A Shiite group later claimed it hanged U.S. hostage Lt. Col. William Higgins in retaliation.

''The abduction of Sheikh Obeid falls within the framework of all kidnappings in the world which were denounced by the United States,'' Fadlallah told the crowd. ''It's illegal and inhuman.''

The spiritual leader's remarks appeared to be part of a growing campaign by Iran's allies in Lebanon to obtain the release of Obeid and about 400 other Arabs held by Israel.

Seyyed Hussein Musawi, a fundamentalist leader who heads the pro-Iranian Islamic Amal, said earlier this week the remaining seven Americans and 10 foreigners could not be freed unless Israel freed Obeid and Kuwait released 16 Shiites imprisoned for a wave of attacks in that country.

In August 1989, Hezbollah rejected a prisoner swap proposed by Israel and demanded that Obeid be freed unconditionally. Israel had offered to exchange the cleric and more than 200 Shiites in its jails for three Israeli soldiers held by Shiite militiamen and all Western captives.

Two of the Israeli soldiers were captured in a firefight in southern Lebanon in February 1986 and the third, an air force navigator, was captured in October 1986 when his F-4 Phantom jet was shot down over Sidon.

Fadlallah's comments came amid continuing delays in the expected release of two Red Cross workers and less than a week after the release Sunday of American hostage Robert Polhill. Polhill returned to the United States Thursday for the first time since being taken hostage 39 months ago.

In Sidon, 24 miles south of the capital, security sources said rivalries between competing groups had delayed the expected release of Emmanuel Christen and Elio Erriquez, two orthopedic technicians with the International Committee for the Red Cross.

Christen, 32, and Erriquez, 23, were kidnapped Oct. 6 near the Ein El Hilweh refugee camp on the outskirts of Sidon. No group has claimed responsibility for their abduction, but analysts believe they are being held by Abu Nidal's Fatah Revolutionary Council.

''Quarrels among local forces competing over taking credit in freeing the Swiss obstructed the release process,'' said a source close to the negotiations. ''But the efforts aimed at releasing them haven't stopped.''

Sidon is controlled by Mustafa Saad's predominantly Sunni militia and various Palestinian factions loyal to Syria and Yasser Arafat, chief of the Palestine Liberation Organization. The Abu Nidal group thought to hold the hostages is a breakaway Palestinian faction that opposes Arafat's leadership of the PLO.

Saad, who was blinded by a bomb blast in 1983, has played a a major role in the negotiations. Dozens of journalists have crowded his house since Wednesday awaiting the release of the two Swiss captives.

Marjolane Martin, the Red Cross press attache arrived Wednesday on a mission believed related to the release of the two hostages, said Friday that Red Cross officials were ''still optimistic'' about gaining freedom for Christen and Erriquez.

In Belgium Friday, the Libyan Embassy denied that Tripoli was involved in negotiations to obtain the freedom of four Belgian hostages in exchange for trade agreements with Brussels and the release of a Palestinian terrorist serving a life sentence in Belgium.

The embassy, reacting to news reports in Beirut, sent a communique to the Belgian news agency Belga saying Libya ''is not involved in negotiations between the Belgian government and any other party concerned by the hostages."

The four Belgians are being held by the Fatah Revolutionary Council. They are Emmanuel Houtekins, his wife, Godelieve Kets, and their two teenage children, Laurent and Valerie.

ORLANDO, FL (APRIL 27) UPI - A bus carrying schoolchildren back to class after a field trip to the symphony Friday crashed into the rear of another bus on the same outing, sending at least 57 people to area hospitals, officials said.

Most of the injuries were minor, Florida Highway Patrol Lt. Randy Harper said.

The accident at an intersection on U.S. Highway 441 backed up traffic for about two hours, said Audrey Catrillo, dispatch supervisor for the Orange County Fire Department.

''The first bus stopped here at the light on Rose Avenue. The second didn't stop in time, ran into the back of the first,'' Harper said.

''Driver error is what we're looking at now. No faulty equipment. The brakes were working good,'' he said. ''Charges are pending.''

About 100 third and fourth graders were on the two buses. They were on their way back to Zellwood Elementary School from a performance of the Florida Symphony in Orlando when the crash occurred about 1 p.m. just north of Orlando, Harper said.

At least 57 people were taken to area hospitals. Twenty-seven were taken to Florida Hospital Apopka, 13 to AMI Medical Center Orlando, 10 to Florida Hospital Orlando, three to Orlando Regional Medical Center, two to Florida Hospital Altamonte Springs and two to Winter Park Memorial Hospital, officials said.

Hospital officials reported the injuries were mostly bumps and bruises, however, one woman taken to AMI Medical center was thought to have suffered broken ribs, said hospital spokeswoman Brenda de Treville.

One driver suffered back and neck injuries, Harper said.

ARLINGTON, VA (APRIL 27) UPI - The remains of 10 airmen who died in a plane crash in New Guinea during World War II were buried Friday with full military honors at Arlington National Cemetery.

Several members of the men's families attended the late morning ceremony at the final resting place for thousands of U.S. veterans and two presidents.

The airmen were aboard a B-24D Liberator bomber on an armed reconnaissance mission over Japanese-held bases on Dec. 20, 1942. The bomber slammed into a mountain when attempting to return to Jackson Field, Port Moresby, Papua New Guinea.

The crash site was discovered in May 1984 and a recovery mission was arranged. A records problem delayed the identification of the plane and it's crew.

During the group burial at Arlington National Cemetery, the soldiers were honored with several medals, including the Purple Heart.

Those interred Friday were:

2nd Lt. John M. Rafferty of Ambridge, Pa.
2nd Lt. Eric J. Day of Columbus, Ohio.
2nd Lt. Clarence B. O'Beirne Jr. of Dallas.

WASHINGTON (APRIL 27) UPI - Meatpackers scored a 3 percent increase last year in their ''captive supplies'' of livestock - cattle that they fed themselves or controlled prior to slaughter, the government reported Friday.

The Agriculture Department said 22.4 percent of the 26.2 million head of steers and heifers slaughtered in 1989 fell into the ''captive'' category. The figure was 19.3 percent in the preceding year.

A National Cattlemen's Association task force has recommended all packers and feedlot operators should regularly report captive fed cattle inventories. The Agriculture Department report was based on special reports filed by the 15 largest packers.

Chuck Lambert, an NCA economist, said regular reporting of captive supplies would give producers more information about the cattle market and one factor behind prices being offered on the cash market.

The Agriculture Department report said the 15 largest firms contracted with producers for 17.2 percent of the cattle they slaughtered and fed 5.2 percent.

In 1988, the 15 largest firms contracted for 14.3 percent and fed 5 percent for a total of 19.3 percent.

The nation's four largest packers accounted for 72 percent of the cattle slaughter in 1989. They got 24.9 percent of their cattle from captive supplies, including 19.3 percent produced under contract and 5.6 percent they fed themselves.

In 1988, the four largest firms got 20.5 percent of their kill from captive supplies.

The four largest packers are Cargill Inc. of Minneapolis, ConAgra of Omaha Neb., IBP of Dakota City, Neb., and National of Liberal, Kan.

On a monthly basis last year, captive supplies ranged from a high of 30.1 percent in June to a low of 18.6 percent in November.

The NCA task force said captive supplies of cattle were likely to increase at both the feedlot and the packer level due to more contractual arrangements, marketing agreements and packer feeding. However, it said packer ownership of cattle may not increase much further.

In its report, the Agriculture Department said the supply of slaughter livestock has declined in recent years.

''Increased capacity for processing, along with reduced cattle numbers, force packers to actively seek the available cattle,'' the report said.

The captive supplies of cattle have been one facet of concern among some livestock producers with the trend toward fewer, but larger, packers. Industry concentration has led to questions about assuring fair prices.

ATLANTA (APRIL 27) UPI - The mayor of one of the most crime-infested cities urged local lawmakers Friday to encourge waiting periods for handgun purchases in the wake of several shooting deaths in the area.

''The issue here is not handgun control,'' Atlanta Mayor Maynard Jackson said. ''No one is trying to prohibit the use of handguns. What we're talking about is a sane and civilized system where somebody crazy can't go in, buy a handgun and blow a person's brains out.''

Jackson called the meeting with government officials of nearby cities and counties just days after a man was killed by a recently released mental patient who went on a rampage in a suburban mall, and after a 4-year-old girl died when teenagers shot up an apartment where she was sleeping. Both incidents occurred in the last several days.

Kennesaw Mayor J.O. Stephenson, who did not attend the meeting, called such waiting periods useless. Kennesaw, about 30 miles northwest of Atlanta, passed a city ordinance in 1982 requiring all residents to own handguns in a largely symbolic measure to appease gun control advocates.

''I think it's just a smokescreen to hide all the crime Mayor Jackson's got in Atlanta,'' Stephenson said.

Atlanta recently was ranked as the most crime-ridden city in the nation by the FBI.

Atlanta and Fulton County are the only two metropolitan jurisdictions that regulate gun sales. Both have 15-day waiting periods for handgun purchases and bans on the sale of assault weapons.

''The city has a pretty stringent permit application process and has had it for a number of years,'' said Angelo Fuster, Jackson's spokesman. ''If that existed uniformly in the metro area, that would help.''

The state legislature has refused repeatedly to enact gun control legislation.

Mike Williams, Georgia liaison for the National Rifle Association, said the NRA believes waiting periods for handgun purchases do not prevent shooting incidents.

''Any kind of background check will not work because the criminal record system in the United States is terrible,'' Williams said. ''The problem is actually a societal problem brought on by poverty in urban areas.''

(APRIL 27) UPI - Lithuania's president says he welcomes a French-German plan that calls for the Baltic republic to suspend its independence drive in order to get Moscow to negotiate. President Vytautas Landsbergis vows to study the appeal by the leaders of the two European countries. He called the proposal ''a step forward'' but offered NO explanation of his optimism. Soviet leaders refuse to negotiate with Lithuania until the Baltic state rescinds its independence laws.

A glitch developed in the Hubble Space Telescope's operation. The satellite opened its cosmic eye today, allowing starlight to hit it's near-perfect mirror. But scientists believe the motion of the lens cap as it moved up and out of the way on radio command orders from Earth may have caused two of the telescope's gyroscopes to be taken ''off line'' by the observatory's electronic brain. The gyroscopes keep the telescope precisely pointed in space.

The Commerce Department has some good and bad news. The good news is that the nation's first-quarter gross national product is up two-point-one percent, or about 21-point-seven-BILLION dollars. But, unfortunately, higher food and energy prices have led to the strongest showing of inflation since 1981... a rate of six-point-five percent. Economists say unusually cold weather triggered the acceleration.

Defense Secretary Cheney says that if lawmakers want deeper budget cuts, they should make the cuts themselves. Cheney made the comments to Capitol Hill reporters one day after he detailed 35-BILLION dollars in long-term reductions that include scaling back and slowing major aircraft programs. Cheney's plan is the first step in a long-term plan of two percent reductions each year in defense spending.

VIRGINIA BEACH, VA (APRIL 27) UPI - A letter bomb sent by ''some deranged individuals'' to 1988 Republican presidential candidate Pat Robertson exploded in a mail room at the Christian Broadcasting Network complex Friday, injuring a security guard, officials said.

Robertson, a minister who was in a meeting at the time of the blast and escaped injury, said the package was addressed to him and that he considers it an attempt to kill him.

''The tragedy was that this young father the security guard was injured by a man or an individual who seems to be deranged, that had intended to kill or maim me,'' Robertson said.

''This is evidence of extreme hatred by some deranged individuals who want to silence the Christian voice in this country,'' he said.

Robertson, whose radio and television network often is used as a platform against abortion, said the mail bomb may be part of a wider pattern of violence against Christian evangelists.

He referred to an incident a few months ago where the daughter of the Rev. John Osteen of Houston was injured by a mail bomb. He also mentioned an arsonist torching the Indiana recording studio of Christian singer Sandi Patti.

Virginia Beach police spokesman Lou Thurston said the injured man was taken to Sentara Norfolk General Hospital shortly after the 12:34 p.m. EDT blast.

William ''Scott'' Scheepers, 33, was listed in stable condition at Norfolk Sentara General Hospital, with shrapnel wounds to his left leg and abdomen. All things considered, ''he's doing fine,'' said spokeswoman Debbie Myers.

Scheepers, a security officer at CBN, was called to the mailroom where all mail is routinely scanned by X-ray machines. A package 5 to 6 inches long had been labeled suspicious and Scheepers had been called in to check it.

Agents from the FBI, the U.S. Postal Service and the federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms were helping state and local police with the investigation.

No extensive damage was reported to the building, which is part of a support center for the religious network and its affiliated Regent University, formerly CBN University. Robertson has turned more toward mainstream broadcasting with his cable network The Family Channel since his failed 1988 GOP presidential bid.

Robertson called the device a ''crudely fashioned bomb'' and added: ''If it had been a bit more sophisticated, Mr. Scheepers would be dead now.''

Authorities said the package had a North Carolina postmark.

WASHINGTON (APRIL 27) UPI - Senate and House child care bills awaiting compromise by a conference committee would set up a ''Swedish-style socialism'' and deny families individual freedoms, conservatives said Friday.

Both bills, while different in their approaches, share the same anticipated fate: a presidential veto.

''The choice is between going forward into the '90s as a free people, with stronger families paying lower taxes, or regressing into Swedish-style socialism, starting with babes in the cradle,'' said Eagle Forum President Phyllis Schlafly at a Capitol Hill seminar on child care.

She complained the House bill places child-care decisions in the hands of government and would set up a ''federal babysitting bureaucracy.'' The conservatives' version, rejected by the House, ''keeps it in the hands of the parents,'' she said.

Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, asked the conservative Eagle Forum audience if they wanted more government or more freedom.

''Give people more opportunity and more freedom and use the peace dividend in families, not more government,'' Gramm said.

Gramm acknowledged there exists a child care problem. ''It's not due to an absence of alternatives ... it exists because government takes so much of your money.''

The House bill, passed March 29, provides about $27 billion for child care assistance, while the Senate bill, passed in June 1989, provides about $17 billion.

Both bills allow parents to use federal money at church-run day care centers, provide for before- and after-school programs for ''latchkey children'' and require states to set child-care standards.

However, differences involve the handling of income tax credits for low-income families and the structure of grants to states.

The Senate has appointed 17 members to a conference committee to sort out the differences. The House is expected to appoint about 40 members in the next week.

BOSTON (APRIL 27) UPI - The Bank of New England Corp., whose staggering real estate losses last year threaten its survival, reported Friday a first-quarter loss of $46.6 million compared with a profit of $42.3 million, or 60 cents a share, in the year-ago period.

The struggling banking company is working with regulators "on a possible recapitalization to meet the new capital standards" required by federal law, Chairman Lawrence K. Fish said in a statement. A company spokesman, James Dorsey, declined to disclose details of the plan or to describe a possible source of funds.

Stockholders' equity, the bank's cushion against insolvency, continued to erode. It fell to $411 million, down from $458 million at the end of 1989 and $1.66 billion at the end of last year's first quarter.

The company said it posted a $20 million operating loss in the first quarter, took a $151 million provision for loan losses, and set aside $48 million in reserves for real estate owned.

Those charges were partially offset by a $173 million gain the company said it took on "the planned sale of the corporation's assets as part of its recovery and rebuilding plan."

The company is "on the road to becoming a smaller, well-reserved, profitable regional bank," Fish said. Bank of New England has sold about $4.5 billion of "nonstrategic" assets in the quarter and reported assets of $25 billion, down from $29.8 billion on Dec. 31 and $32.6 billion a year ago.

Fish said the company had reviewed 85 percent of its loans and all of its real estate loans and the company believes "the loan loss provison is appropriate given the current uncertainties about the economic environment."

(APRIL 27) UPI - President Bush announced changes in the status of some major U-S trading partners. Bush yanked Japan and Brazil from the list of nations engaging in unfair trade practices... but cited India again for possible retaliation under a 1988 trade law. The president says he is acting on recommendations from U-S Trade Representative Carla Hills, who indicated that Japan should NOT be cited again because of recent progress in trade negotiations.

A glimmer of hope in the deadlock between Moscow and Vilnius . Lithuanian President Vytautas Landsbergis vows to carefully study a French-German suggestion calling for the Baltic state to suspend independence to get Moscow to the negotiating table. He called the proposal a ''step forward '' but offered NO explanation for his optimism. The Soviet Union cut off oil supplies and imposed economic sanctions to force Lithuania to return to Soviet authority.

North Texas continues sandbagging efforts to hold back deadly floodwaters. At least three people have been killed so far in flood-related incidents in the area. And police continue to search for the bodies of at least two other men believed drowned near Sunray, Texas. Two days of fierce rains and tornadoes downed power lines and trees and forced the evacuation of at least 200 people.

It looks like two gyroscopes on the Hubble Space Telescope have failed and earth-bound scientists are trying to decide what to do. The gyroscopes are part of a set of four that keep the BILLION-dollar observatory trained precisely in space. The satellite moved into an automatic ''safe mode'' when the pair of gyroscopes failed as the telescope's lens cap opened this morning on radio commands from Earth. Controllers at Goddard Space Flight Center in Maryland expect to correct the problem later today.

SPOKANE, WA (APRIL 27) UPI - An AIDS carrier was sentenced Friday to 5 1/2 years in prison for raping an 8-year-old boy, exposing him to the disease.

Thomas Williams Jr., 29, a former pornography actor, pleaded guilty to rape and assault in March for the attack last September on the son of a friend.

Williams said he was under the influence of alcohol and cocaine when he raped the boy. Williams said he had been sexually abused as a child.

County Deputy Prosecutor Pat Thompson said she agreed not to seek an exceptional sentence in part because of Williams' short life expectancy. The standard sentence for rape ranges from four to six years.

The victim has tested negative for the HIV virus that causes AIDS, but will have to be tested for years and suffers emotional problems because of the attack, prosecutors said.

HURLBURT FIELD, FL (APRIL 27) UPI - The Military Airlift Command's 23rd Air Force will become a separate command next month, the first new one set up by the Air Force in eight years, military officials said Friday.

The 23rd Air Force, which moved from Illinois to northwest Florida several years ago, will become the Air Force Special Operations Command, military officials said. The Air Force has set May 22 as a target date for activation.

Capt. George Sillia, an Air Force spokesman in Washington, said the 23rd's personnel, equipment and facilities will be absorbed into the command, which will have broader powers, status and authority.

By making it a command, it will answer to the Air Force chief of staff.

It would be the first new Air Force command since formation of the Air Force Space Command near Colorado Springs, Colo., in 1982, said Don Little historian for the 23rd Air Force.

(APRIL 27) UPI - The oil market ended the week in a boring, shortened day of trading Friday, technically poised for further declines after prices failed during the week to bounce back as much as traders expected.

The New York Mercantile Exchange, which starts crude trading at 9:45 a.m. EST, stopped at 11:20 a.m. EST Friday after communications problems prevented the transmission and display of prices. Closing prices were arrived at during a five-minute trading period ending 2:00 p.m. EST.

The benchmark West Texas Intermediate for June delivery edged up 7 cents to $18.54, down 28 cents on the week.

On the U.S. Gulf Coast cash market, prompt-delivery WTI was unchanged at $18.50 a barrel but finished up 55 cents on the week..

Unleaded gasoline for May delivery skidded 0.39 cent to 60.95 cents a gallon on the Merc, bringing the total loss over the last three days to 3.45 centsafter having gained 2.46 cents Monday and Tuesday.

On the New York Harbor spot market, unleaded gasoline for prompt delivery slipped 0.35 cent to 60.70 cents a gallon, 1.1 cents less than last Friday.

''It was a boring day before the Merc closed down and that sort of institutionalized the boredom,'' said John O'Connell, assistant vice president of Refco Inc. in New York.

Unless the Geneva meeting Wednesday of the 13-nation Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries does something ''dynamic'' to curb the world crude oil glut, the market is technically set for further price declines, the trader said.

Crude lost 14 percent of its value during a 10-day trading stretch earlier this month.

Last week, after selling failed twice to drive prices down through a $16.25-a-barrel support level, O'Connell said, crude was expected to bounce back to a range of $20.25-$20.50 a barrel.

However, crude this week was unable to follow through'' and on two separate days was turned back at a $19.50-a-barrel resistance level.

The market should have been more dynamic in bouncing back from last week's ''double bottom,'' O'Connell said. ''The turnback at $19.50 was a signal the market couldn't follow through.''

So, ''barring a dynamic solution from the OPEC meeting, prices should go down,'' he predicted.

OPEC pumps more than a third of the world's crude and tries to control world prices by limiting its production. The cartel set a ceiling for members' output of 22 million barrels a day for the first six months of 1990.

But because Kuwait and the United Arab Emirates have flagrantly violated their assigned quotas, production has averaged about 24 million barrels daily, creating a glut that has storage tanks flowing over.

The respected OPEC Listener publication said Friday that as a result of the glut, cartel production in April eased off about 700,000 barrels a day.

''The reductions so far are purely commercial, pegged to lack of sales, and not policy-guided,'' the publication said.

O'Connell saw significance in the fact that OPEC has ''already cut production and (the oil market) is not responding to that.''

Persian Gulf sources have told United Press International that Saudi Arabia, OPEC's largest producer and main quota enforcer, has tentatively agreed to cut its daily output 600,000 barrels if Kuwait and the UAE would each cut theirs by 200,000 barrels.

Kuwait has agreed, the sources said, but the UAE has yet to match its gesture.

On the European cash market, Britain's widely traded North Sea Brent crude was quoted at $16.52 a barrel, up 9 cents on the day but down 5 cents on the week.

The UAE's Dubai light - the key OPEC crude from the Middle East shipped mainly to the Far East - remained unchanged for the third consecutive day at $14.50 a barrel, 55 cents higher than a week ago.

On the Merc, heating oil finished at 53.74 cents a gallon, up 0.67 cent on the day and 0.80 cent on the week.

Prompt delivery heating oil in the New York spot market fell 0.10 cent to 56.75 cents a gallon, 0.70 cent less than last Friday.

VALLEY FORGE, PA (APRIL 27) UPI - GE Aerospace Friday said the company will eliminate 4,200 jobs at five plants in New York and southern New Jersey within the next 30 months.

Company officials said the job cuts are part of a ''major restructuring'' made necessary by anticipated reductions in federal defense spending.

''We're entering a decade that will provide a difficult challenge for defense companies,'' said GE senior Vice President Jon Rittenhouse. ''The world's changing political outlook will result in a smaller, more intensely competitive worldwide defense market.''

About 1,900 jobs will be phased out over 2 1/2 years at GE plants in Camden and Moorestown, N.J., officials said. The rest of the cuts will be from GE facilities in Binghamton, Syracuse and Utica, N.Y.

No cuts are planned for GE plants in Valley Forge and Philadelphia.

The company said about 2,000 of the jobs will be eliminated through attrition and retirement.

GE also announced plans to consolidate its electronic components operations, currently carried out at several plants, into two new manufacturing centers scheduled to open next spring. Each is expected to employ about 500 people.

One of the new plants will be located in Conklin, N.Y., near Binghamton, and will serve six GE Aerospace plants in New York and New England.

The second center is tentatively planned for an industrial park in Logan Township, N.J., but other sites are still being considered. That center will serve six GE plants in New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

New Jersey Gov. Jim Florio said Thursday he would try to convice GE to resconsider the job cuts.

''Whenever you talk about a loss of jobs, that's not a pleasant thing,'' Florio said. ''We're going to try to cushion any adverse impact.''

Florio said he planned to have Labor Commissioner Raymond Bramucci and other state officials speak with GE executives to learn why they decided to leave and what the state could have done - or could still do - to keep the jobs.

The state will provide retraining programs for any workers who do eventually lose their jobs, the governor said.

GE officials said the company will try to help employees who lose their jobs find new positions.

GE Aerospace, which currently has about 40,000 employees, produces radar and sonar equipment, among other products.

WASHINGTON (APRIL 27) UPI - School districts in 16 states will share in $3 million in federal grants to help start school breakfast programs, the Agriculture Department said Friday.

The grants are part of a five-year program to provide start-up funds for new breakfast programs. The government is expected to spend $564 million on the school breakfast program this fiscal year, with nearly 671 million meals served.

The grants ranged in size from $3,948 for Missouri to $864,980 for California.

Officials said the grants were awarded on the basis of need, number of children to be served and the feasibility and cost-effectiveness of each state's proposal. The grants will supplement state funding.

The states and the amount they received are:

Arizona, $19,140.
California, $864,980.

NEW YORK (APRIL 27) UPI - Stocks found it hard to compete with long-term interest rates at their highest levels in almost a year, posting a loss for the week as the surge in rates showed no signs of letting up.

The Dow Jones industrial average tumbled 31.53 Friday to close at 2645.05, fueling a loss of 50.90 points, or about 1.9 percent, for the week.

Among broader market averages, the New York Stock Exchange composite index fell 3.32 points to close the week at 180.74. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index lost 6.01 to 329.11.

Declines pummeled advances 1,347-535 among the 2,160 issues traded this week. Big Board volume totaled 679,044,060 shares, compared with 745,166,830 a week earlier and 803,152,700 a year ago.

For the first time since May 1989, the yield on the Treasury's bellwether 30-year bond topped 9 percent. In late trading Friday, the yield was at 9.02 percent.

The jump in rates shook up both the stock and bond markets. The Dow industrials posted gains only Wednesday and Thursday, and analysts for the most part called the advance a technical bounce.

Wednesday's rise broke a string of five-session losing streak. The Dow industrials had not posted a gain since April 17, and the market had not rung up a broad-based gain since April 12.

Analysts said it was hard to build a case for buying equities when long Treasury bonds were yielding 9 percent and added that the outlook for interest rates was not good, since rates in other countries were on the rise. To attract capital here, rates would have to remain competitive, they said.

''We've moved in a week in the bond market from guarded optimism, to apprehension, to demoralization,'' said Hugh Johnson, chief economist at First Albany Corp., ''and that spilled over into stocks. Interest rates are too high to allow the market to do anything but go down.

''There are fears now that investors will abandon stocks and move to bonds where yields are high, competitive and attractive, and it looks like it will stay that way,'' he said.

''Rates are high in Germany and Japan. It doesn't look like they can come down over there, and ours will have to stay high to compete.''

Johnson said U.S. rates are being ''held hostage'' by overseas rates, a factor interfering with the typical relationship between the economy and interest rates.

''In the old days, you could say, 'If the economy slows and inflation goes down the bond market will rise and rates will decline.' That was the traditional way of looking at things,'' he said.

''But now investors are recognizing that even if the economy slows and inflation comes down, bonds may not go up and rates may not come down.''

The markets Friday got news of only modest growth in the economy - but of a possible sharp rise in inflation.

First-quarter growth in gross national product, the total output of the nation's goods and services, was reported up 2.1 percent. A rise of 2.7 percent has been expected. The two measures of inflation contained in the report rose sharply, however, and above expectations.

Despite easier growth, lower rates did not seem to be on the horizon, analysts said, because of the inflation news.

''It appears that inflation problems are still out there and the Fed is going to be hesistant to ease anytime soon,'' said Ricky Harrington, technical analyst with Interstate-Johnson Lane Corp. in Charlotte, N.C.

''I look for lower prices as we head into May,'' said Harrington. ''May is usually a poor month for the market and I don't think 1990 is going to be any exception.''

On the trading floor this week, Norton was the most active issue, surging 11 1/8 to 88 5/8 after agreeing to sell out to French industrial giant Compagnie de Saint-Gobain for about $1.9 billion.

Philip Morris followed, up 1/2 to 41 1/2. Ames Department Stores was third off 1/4 to 1 3/4 after filing for bankruptcy protection.

Among other blue chips, AT&T lost 1 1/8 to 39 7/8, IBM fell 2 to 107 3/8, General Electric fell 1 5/8 to 63 7/8, and Du Pont was up 1/2 to 37 1/8.

On the American Stock Exchange, the Amex Market Value index lost 5.32 to close Friday at 342.64. Declines led advances 516-297 among the 994 issues traded.

Amex volume totaled 67,825,330 shares, compared with 74,522,645 traded a week earlier and 54,580,440 traded in the same week a year ago.

Hillhaven led the Amex actives, up 1/8 to 1 1/8.

The National Association of Securities Dealers index fell 7.81 to end the week at 417.99.

ANCHORAGE, AK (APRIL 27) UPI - A Soviet fishing vessel was in American custody Friday under a Coast Guard escort to an Alaska port where it was to be detained on federal charges of fishing in the 200-mile U.S. zone without permission.

Coast Guard surveillance flights earlier this week detected illegal fishing by Japanese, Polish and South Korean vessels in U.S. Bering Sea waters, but when an enforcement vessel arrived on the scene Thursday, the first ship it came upon was a Soviet trawler, Coast Guard spokesman Greg Robinson said from Juneau.

The 328-foot Ilya Ilyin fled the Coast Guard cutter Yocona and a 90-minute chase ensued into international waters before the Soviets gave up and permitted a Coast Guard law enforcement team to board and search the ship.

The search turned up nearly 500 tons of pollock and fish product allegedly caught in U.S. waters, Robinson said.

When the Coast Guard came upon the Ilya Ilyin just over 1 mile inside U.S. waters, Soviet fishermen ''had trawl gear in the water and at one point during the chase they were seen hauling gear in,'' Robinson said.

During the high-speed chase, the Yocona flashed signal lights, hoisted international signal flags and called the Soviets by radio, but fired no shots, Robinson said.

''There was a lot of conversation between the two vessels,'' he said, but he declined to reveal what the Soviets said.

In the holds of the Soviet ship, the Coast Guard found 425 metric tons of pollock and 25 metric tons of fish meal, equal to 495 regular tons or 990,000 pounds of fish allegedly caught in America's 200-mile exclusive economic zone, where foreign fishing is prohibited.

The Yocona encountered the Soviets when it was sent to check on illegal fishing by other vessels spotted during Coast Guard C-130 surveillance flights, Robinson said.

The recent flights found six other foreign fishing vessels just inside the U.S. zone, Coast Guard spokesman Chris Haley said. The Coast Guard identified three Japanese trawlers, one Polish trawler and one South Korean trawler and said the sixth vessel was Japanese but was not identified by name. Information was turned over to federal fisheries lawyers.

Charges that the Soviet vessel Ilya Ilyin violated American fishing laws were expected to be filed next week in U.S. District Court in Anchorage, said Assistant U.S. Attorney Tim Burgess.

Burgess said he won a settlement last month in another Soviet fishing violation case in which the Soviets paid $275,000 to the U.S. government. Last May 10 the Novoelnya was seized 4 miles inside the U.S. fishing zone.

The Ilya Ilyin, from the Sakhalin island port of Korsakov just north of Japan, was due Monday at a Coast Guard facility on Kodiak Island, Robinson and Burgess said.

The seizure comes at a time when U.S. and Soviet authorities are working on managing the Bering Sea fishery, especially in the so-called ''doughnut hole,'' an area of international waters surrounded by the U.S. and Soviet fishing zones where various fleets have fished for years without regulation.

When the Yocona reached the western U.S. zone of the Bering Sea, the Ilya Ilyin fled into doughnut hole waters, Robinson said.

Some American fishermen and authorities have charged that foreign fleets use the doughnut hole as a staging area for illegal fishing raids in U.S. waters.

NEW YORK (APRIL 27) UPI - A lower-than-anticipated government estimate of the nation's first-quarter economic expansion sent the dollar mostly lower Friday in heavy New York foreign exchange trading.

Currency market participants were looking for a stronger increase in the U.S. gross national product for January, February and March than the 2.1 percent gain the Commerce Department announced.

Better results than that might have given the Federal Reserve leeway to raise short-term U.S. interest rates to check inflation, rendering U.S. investments more attractive worldwide and thereby increasing dollar demand.

''There was initially some disappointment,'' said David Jaques, a trader on the Barclays Bank corporate desk. ''The feeling was that GNP would be at the upper end of expectations,'' at around 2.5 percent, he said.

''Quite honestly, we didn't get any direction out of that number,'' he added.

In late New York trading, the dollar was quoted at 1.6775 West German marks, down from 1.68 marks late Thursday. Against the Japanese unit, the dollar fetched 159.20 yen, off slightly from 159.25.

After the release of the GNP data, the dollar slipped to a low around 1.6730 German marks before retracing about half its losses. Working against the dollar was the mark's advance against the yen in cross-trading of those units.

Friday's economic data did little to resolve market hesitation as to whether the dollar's next move would be up or down. The GNP number ''still leaves us looking for signals from other currencies,'' said Jaques.

Other dollar rates: 1.4540 Swiss francs, down from 1.4570; 5.6300 French francs, off from 5.6350; and 1,230 Italian lire, down from 1,231.75.

The British pound declined to $1.6315 from $1.6335.

In Europe, the dollar mainly rose on technical factors despite disappointment at the U.S. estimate of first-quarter GNP.

Dollar-wise, the data ''didn't give people any signals,'' said economist Tim Fox of Midland Bank in London. ''In the absence of any fresh ideas, the technical influences came home to roost.''

In Frankfurt, the dollar rose to 1.6815 deutsche marks against 1.6780 the day before but was unchanged in Zurich at 1.4605 Swiss francs.

''There had been potential for the dollar to go up and it did rise to 1.4670 Swiss francs at one point,'' a Zurich currency trader said.

But the dollar slipped back when U.S. GNP came in below expectations, he said.

The pound sterling climbed in London to $1.6365 from $1.6330.

The dollar moved higher in Paris, Milan and Brussels, to 5.6515 French francs from 5.6205, to 1234.50 Italian lire from 1,228.75 and tp 34.7250 Belgian francs from 34.70 the day before.

Earlier in Tokyo, the dollar climbed against Japan's yen as importers settled dollar-priced invoices ahead of the so-called ''Golden Week'' of holidays. The U.S. unit finished at 159.08 yen, up from 158.77 yen.

Trading between the yen and European currencies, especially the West

German mark and the Swiss franc, continued to dominate the market, leading to an increase in purchases of dollars for yen, dealers said.

Japanese financial markets were to be closed Monday, when Greenery Day Sunday is to be observed in the first of several national days off. Relatively little business is transacted during Golden Week.

Republic National Bank in New York closed cash gold at $371.50 an ounce, up from $371 Thursday. The New York Commodity Exchange settled May spot gold at $371.10 an ounce, up from $370.90. In Zurich, gold slipped to $371 an ounce from $373.50. London gold fell to $370.50 an ounce from $372.75.

Republic closed cash silver at $4.935 an ounce, off from $4.94. Comex May spot silver closed at $4.917, up from $4.914. Silver closed lower in Zurich at $4.95 an ounce against $5.00 and fell in London trading to $4.95 an ounce from the previous day's $4.97.

WASHINGTON (APRIL 30) UPI - Stock markets in many developing countries outperformed those of the major industrial countries in 1989, the International Finance Corporation said in a report for release Monday.

The IFC's ''Emerging Stock Markets Factbook 1990'' showed that four of the best performing markets in the world last year were in developing countries.

Turkey's stock market was the world's 1989 champion performer, with a 300 percent gain, followed by Argentina, up 136 percent; Taiwan, up 95 percent; and Thailand, up 85 percent.

The only stock market in an industrialized country among the 1989 top five world performers was Austria, rising 101 percent.

The IFC Composite Index of 19 emerging stock markets registered a gain of 47 percent in 1989, exceeding by far the performances of markets in the United States, up 27 percent; Britain, up 21 percent; and Japan, up 12 percent.

Four of the five worst performing stock markets in the world last year also were in developing countries: South Korea and Pakistan, both down 2 percent; Jordan, down 4 percent; and Venezuela, down 35 percent. Finland's market lost 11 percent, the IFC said.

The IFC is the World Bank's affiliate that supports developing countries' private sectors with loans, investments and technical assistance.

Emerging stock markets not only offer high rates of return, but show little correlation in their ups and downs with those of the industrial markets, and even among themselves, said William S. Ryrie, IFC executive vice president.

''That makes them a good hedging tool'' for investors, Ryrie said.

Emerging stock markets can be volatile, Ryrie noted.

In contrast with 1989, in the first quarter of 1990, Venezuela's stocks rose a world record of 56 percent, while Argentina's lost 39 percent of their value, and Brazil's dropped 51 percent.

The first quarter offered other great profits in emerging stock markets - Greece's stocks rose 45 percent; Turkey's advanced 24 percent and Chile's gained 20 percent. Austria's market had another banner period, with a 45 percent hike.

Despite their volatility, emerging stock markets chalked up an impressive performance over the 1984-1989 period, the IFC said.

The IFC Asia index rose 339 percent in 1984-89, a gain exceeded only by the 504 percent advance in Japan's Nikkei index, and above the hike in the Morgan Stanley Capital International Europe, Australia and the Far East index of 335 percent.

''Taking into account the fall in the Japanese stock market in the first quarter of 1990, the two figures become comparable,'' Ryrie said.

Japan's stock market lost 32 percent of its dollar value in the first quarter.

The IFC's Composite Index of emerging markets gained 206 percent in 1984-89, more than the British market's 174 percent gain, and substantially above the 111 percent advance in the U.S. Standard and Poor's 500.

Despite the region's burden of debt, the IFC' index for Latin American stock markets grew by 131 percent, also above U.S. figures.

The IFC also said there has been a great increase in foreign portfolio investments in the 1980s, especially through country funds, and an improvement in the access of foreign investors to markets and company information.

SAN JOSE, CA (APRIL 27) UPI - A boy told police he was splattered with blood and watched in horror as his father robbed and murdered a woman three years ago, investigators said Friday.

An arrest warrant for the boy's father, Erik Sanford Chatman, 25, was issued this week after a tipster prompted detectives to interview the tot.

''We feel the information the child gave is accurate,'' Police Chief Joseph McNamara said at a news conference Friday. ''The details he gave fit the crime.''

Chatman was seen recently in the south San Francisco Bay area and is ''considered armed and dangerous. He is a known drug abuser,'' McNamara said.

Chapman was suspected of stabbing to death Rosellina LoBue, 18, during an Oct. 7, 1987 robbery of a downtown Photo Drive-Up.

His wife, Yvonne Chatman, also was an employee at the photo stand but was off duty at the time of the murder, McNamara said. It was not clear whether the killer knew the victim personally.

A 211-page police report in support of Chatman's arrest warrant was obtained by the San Jose Mercury News hours before a Municipal Court judge ordered the file sealed.

The newspaper reported the boy's eyewitness account of the slaying in its Friday editions.

The boy, Mario Chatman, who is now 4, ''said he went with daddy, Erik, to a place where mommy worked,'' police Sgt. Steve Ronco said in the report. ''Then Mario said he saw his daddy with a knife, and his daddy stabbed his mom's friend at mom's work.

''Mario remarked how the blood got all over, including onto him. Mario said after that thing happened to the lady, he and his dad went home,'' Ronco said in the report.

Yvonne Chatman, who McNamara said was currently in the Santa Clara County jail on a misdemeanor drug charge, then told investigators her son still suffers from nightmares because of what he saw.

''I asked Mario if he saw his dad do anything to his mom's friend with that knife,'' Ronco said in the report. ''Mario said that he saw his dad stick the knife into the woman's stomach, and she yelled very loud.''

McNamara also said that Yvonne Chatman was aware her husband committed the killing and had talked openly about it to her friends.

''The sad thing thing is, we believe people knew about it and never told the police,'' he said.

Police said Yvonne Chatman finally told investigators, who visited her in jail last week, that when her son and husband came home on the day of the murder she found them in the bathroom washing off blood.

A $10,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of Erik Chatman has been offered through the city's Crimestopper program, McNamara said.

MEMPHIS, TN (APRIL 27) UPI - A judge declared a mistrial Friday in the corruption case against Rep. Harold Ford, D-Tenn., after the jury reported itself deadlocked and one juror admitted she is a convicted thief.

U.S. District Judge Odell Horton ended the trial on the fourth day of jury deliberations on charges that Tennessee's first black congressman traded political influence for $1.5 million in bribes disguised as bank loans.

''Ladies and gentlemen, I have no choice but to declare this case a mistrial and release you from your service,'' Horton told the jury.

Ford, 44, was charged with 19 counts of bank fraud, mail fraud and conspiracy to defraud the government. He waged a bitter battle for vindication since his 1987 indictment, accusing prosecutors of political and racist motivations.

''I am deeply disappointed that the jury did not deliberate to a full verdict,'' said Ford, who had predicted his quick acquittal and would have faced 95 years in prison if convicted of all charges.

Three bank executives - Karl Schledwitz, David Crabtree and Douglas Beaty - stood trial with the eight-term congressman on charges of funneling bank loans to him through bogus channels.

Prosecutors said they had not decided whether to place Ford or his three co-defendants on trial again.

The jury of eight blacks and four whites declared itself ''hopelessly deadlocked'' Wednesday. Horton refused to declare a mistrial then and ordered the jury to continue meeting.

After the start of deliberations Friday, Assistant U.S. Attorney Dan Clancy told the judge he had learned of possible misconduct by one juror.

Under questioning by Horton, the juror, Juanita Ruffin, admitted she had been convicted once for stealing $160 and twice for shoplifting in the 1970s. Ruffin said she did not disclose her convictions during jury selection because she misunderstood the question about whether she had a criminal record.

The judge then dismissed Ruffin from the jury and called in the panel for a report on its deliberations. Jury foreman H.O. Robinson said the jury had voted 9-3 that it could not reach a verdict.

''No question about it? Horton asked Robinson.

''No question about it,'' he replied.

''Would I be wasting your time to ask you to deliberate further?''

''Yes sir,'' Robinson replied.

Ruffin had been allowed onto the jury even though prosecutors knew she contributed to the Trust Ford Campaign, which helped raise $1 million for the congressman's defense.

Two other jurors had ties to Ford. One had worked in Ford's political campaigns and another's relatives had been buried by his family's funeral home.

Clancy told Horton that Ruffin might have discussed deliberations outside the jury room against the judge's orders, but she denied that. The jury was not sequestered.

Another juror was kicked off the panel during closing arguments after he was arrested for traffic violations. Prosecutors learned then that juror Reginald Tucker had been convicted on bad-check charges and he was replaced by an alternate.

Clancy told the judge Friday that Tucker had been spotted since then in the courtroom with Ford supporters and near the courthouse exit as the jury went to lunch during deliberations.

''I don't think it's proper for this juror to be hanging around where the other jurors can see him,'' Clancy said. ''He shouldn't even be up here.''

In the 10-week trial, the government contended Ford took $1.5 million in fraudulent loans from banks controlled by brothers Jake and C.H. Butcher Jr. in 18 payments between 1976 and 1983.

In return, Ford, who runs a powerful Memphis political machine and never has faced a serious re-election challenge, delivered the votes of Tennessee's biggest city to Jake Butcher in the banker's unsuccessful race for governor in 1978, prosecutors charged.

The Butchers ran a billion-dollar network of 20 banks in Tennessee and Kentucky until it collapsed because of bad loans in 1983. The Butchers are serving 20-year sentences for funneling millions of dollars in bank money to themselves. C.H. Butcher pleaded guilty to two counts in the Ford indictment.

In his final argument, Clancy acknowledged Ford's popularity but likened him to a bank robber and urged the jury to ''make everybody play by the same rules.''

''Is it the popular people who don't have to live by the rules?'' Clancy asked. ''Do you punish bank robbers but not punish these people ... who robbed the banks with a .38-caliber pencil?''

Prosecutors said the loans to Ford actually were bribes and the congressman did not repay them until 1983 under pressure from federal regulators who were closing the Butcher banks.

Ford allegedly used the loans to live extravagantly, buying a Mercedes-Benz, two homes and a $10,000 Oriental rug while telling the government he was nearly bankrupt.

Ford presented no witnesses in his defense. His lawyer, William McDaniels, maintained the loans were for Ford's legitimate business interests and denounced the prosecution as ''falling woefully short.''

NORTH MIAMI BEACH, FL (APRIL 28) UPI - A Metro-Dade County police officer was shot in the throat and killed before dawn Friday during a shootout with one of three men stopped by the officer and his partner, authorities said.

The officer, identified as Joseph Martin, 28, was airlifted to Jackson Memorial Hospital, where he was pronounced dead.

Police identified the alleged gunman as Michael Allen Griffin, 20, of North Miami Beach. Griffin, who was injured in the incident and hospitalized in good condition, was charged with first-degree murder and attempted first-degree murder, police said.

Two other suspects, Samuel Geraldo Velez, 20, and Jonathan Nicholas, 20, both of Miami Beach, were arrested and charged with felony first-degree murder.

Martin was the second law enforcement officer shot in the line of duty in as many days in the Miami area. On Thursday, FBI Special Agent John Richard Davis, 39, was grazed by a bullet during a shootout with drug suspects. Davis was treated and released from a local hospital.

The fatal shooting occurred shortly after 4 a.m. EDT when Martin and his partner, Juan Crespo, made a routine traffic stop, Metro-Dade Police Director Fred Taylor said.

Police said the car had been stolen earlier this week and was used by the suspects who committed an armed burglary at a home earlier Friday morning. But the officers did not know about the burglary when they pulled over the car, investigators said.

''As they approached the car, one of the subjects in the car jumped out and started firing at officer Martin. He was struck twice, once in his (bullet-proof) vest, in the chest. The second shot hit him in the throat '' Taylor said.

The officers returned fire. A suspect, wounded in the shoulder, jumped back in the car and fled. He later abandoned the car and was tracked by police dogs and captured, Taylor said.

The two other suspects surrendered immediately.

''We believe they had been involved in a crime just prior to that, so they apparently thought that we knew that. At that time, we did not know it,'' he said.

Griffin, Velez and Nicholas also were all charged with armed burglary, use of a firearm during a criminal offense and grand theft.

A police spokeswoman said the officers pulled the car over because it appeared suspicious.

Taylor said Martin, a four-year veteran of the force, was married with two children.

''He had no chance from the start. He was probably dead on the scene, as far as we know,'' Taylor said. ''This was a fine young man and he was doing a great job. It is a danger we all face.''

Martin is the first Metro-Dade officer to be killed in the line of duty since November 1988, officials said.

DALLAS (APRIL 27) UPI - Texas Utilities Co. reported Friday first-quarter earnings of $188.8 million, or $1 a share, up from $131.4 million, or 77 cents a share, earned in the same period last year.

Revenues totaled $938.3 million, down from $983.5 million in the first quarter of last year.

The company said earnings increased primarily as a result of resumption of the accrual of allowance for funds of about $17 million a month used for the construction of Comanche Peak nuclear plant's No. 2 unit near Glen Rose, Texas.

Mild winter weather was blamed for the 2.2 percent decrease in revenues during the quarter.

SANTA MONICA, CA (APRIL 27) UPI - Elizabeth Taylor, recovering from a near-fatal bout of viral pneumonia, was ''doing very well'' Friday and has been moved out of intensive care and into a private hospital suite, a spokeswoman said.

Taylor, transferred out of ICU at St. John's Hospital and Health Center Thursday evening, was in stable condition and being cared for by nurses tending strictly to the actress's needs, the hospital spokeswoman said.

''She's doing very well. She's a great fighter,'' the spokeswoman said.

''We're very encouraged by the fact that she's left intensive care,'' Taylor's spokeswoman, Lisa Del Favero, said from New York. She added, however, that doctors have not decided when Taylor might be sent home.

Taylor, 58, was placed in intensive care last Friday when her condition worsened after being admitted to St. John's April 16. She had initially checked into another local hospital April 9 with what was described as a sinus infection and high fever.

Dr. Bernard Weintraub, Taylor's pulmonary specialist, said Wednesday that her life was in jeopardy last weekend, but that by midweek her condition and spirits had improved markedly.

Results of a lung biopsy to determine the cause of the pneumonia have not been released.

The Academy Award-winning actress's four children - Maria Burton-Carson, Liza Todd-Tivey, and Christopher and Michael Wilding - have been with her through the week.

Taylor, who has admitted a long dependence on drugs such as Demerol and Valium as well as alcohol, has experienced other serious health problems. She nearly died of pneumonia in the early 1960s, and back injuries she suffered when filming her first picture, ''National Velvet,'' in 1945 have caused her severe pain over the years.

After becoming dependent on prescription painkillers, she admitted herself into a drug treatment program at the Betty Ford Center in Rancho Mirage, Calif., in 1983 and again in 1988.

She also missed numerous performances of the 1981 Broadway revival of ''The Little Foxes'' and the 1983 nationwide tour of ''Private Lives'' because of bronchitis and laryngitis.

With her latest hospitalization, rumors flew that Taylor was infected with the AIDS virus, possibly because she has been active in fund-raising and public education efforts on behalf of AIDS.

Last week, Taylor issued a statement denying she has AIDS, and her doctors confirmed Wednesday that she has undergone tests for the disease and the results were negative.

The violet-eyed actress, married seven times - twice to the late Richard Burton - won best actress Oscars for her performances in ''Butterfield 8'' and ''Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?''

VIRGINIA BEACH, VA (APRIL 27) UPI - A letter bomb sent to 1988 Republican presidential candidate and televangelist Pat Robertson exploded ''like a shotgun blast'' in a mail room at the Christian Broadcasting Network complex Friday, injuring a security guard.

Robertson, a minister who was in a meeting at the time of the explosion and escaped injury, said the ''crudely fashioned bomb'' was from North Carolina and addressed to him. The CBN founder said the package, which did not include a note, was sent to kill him.

''This is evidence of extreme hatred by some deranged individuals who want to silence the Christian voice in this country,'' Robertson said. ''They should realize that devices sent through the mail will never reach those for whom they are intended.''

The injured guard was taken to Sentara Norfolk General Hospital shortly after the 12:34 p.m. blast, police said.

William Scheepers, 33, of Poquoson was in ''fair to good'' condition Friday night with five shrapnel fragments in his left leg. A piece of metal about the size of a dime was removed, and the guard suffered superficial damage to his abdomen, said Dr. L.D. Britt, director of the hospital's shock trauma unit.

Scheepers, a full-time guard at CBN, told reporters from his hospital bed that the package was about 6 inches long and 2 inches high, wrapped in brown paper. It was addressed to Pat Robertson, CBN Center, with a North Carolina return address, he said.

It was unclear why a return address would be on such a package.

After another worker indicated the package was suspicious, Scheepers said he ran it through an X-ray machine two times and shook it, then placed it on a desk and proceeded to unwrap it.

''I never saw what was inside the box,'' Scheepers said, noting he opened the box about an inch before the explosion occurred. ''The next thing I knew I was laying on the floor.''

Scheepers, known to his friends as Scott, said he had no idea what came out of the package, saying it blew around like confetti. ''It smelled like a shotgun blast or something. You could smell the powder in the air.''

''I just thank the Lord that he's OK,'' said Darlene Scheepers, the guard's wife. The couple has a 3-year-old daughter.

Robertson, whose radio and television network often is used as a platform against abortion, said the mail bomb may be part of a wider pattern of violence against Christian evangelists.

He referred to an incident a few months ago where the daughter of the Rev. John Osteen of Houston was injured by a mail bomb. He also mentioned the arsonist torching last week of the Indiana recording studio of Christian singer Sandi Patti.

''The tragedy was that this young father (the security guard) was injured by a man or an individual who seems to be deranged, that had intended to kill or maim me,'' Robertson said.

Agents from the FBI, the U.S. Postal Service and the federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms were helping state and local police with the investigation. The contents of the package were sent to a lab for testing.

No extensive damage was reported to the building, which is part of a support center for the religious network and its affiliated Regent University, formerly CBN University. About 600 people work in the building said CBN spokeswoman Frankie Abourjilie.

Scheepers is expected to be released from the hospital in three to four days, doctors said.

The ministry and its operations in Virginia Beach receive upwards of 10,000 pieces of mail each day, Robertson said.

Robertson has turned more toward mainstream broadcasting with his cable network The Family Channel since his failed 1988 GOP presidential bid.

LOS ANGELES (APRIL 27) UPI - A flower rancher and five others were charged with slavery Friday for allegedly forcing illegal aliens to work 16-hour days for little or no pay and housing them in squalid conditions, authorities said.

The six are accused of imprisoning as many as 150 workers, most of whom were smuggled into the United States, behind a locked 7-foot barbed-wire fence on a ranch in Ventura County owned by Edwin Mitchel Ives, 53, of Los Angeles, the main defendant in the case, prosecutors said.

The case is rare because employers in violation of labor codes are typically prosecuted under civil laws, and is the first of its type in the United States to allege slavery in at least 10 years, Assistant U.S. Attorney Carol Gillam said.

The workers were lured to Ives' 50-acre ranch in Somis, 55 miles northwest of Los Angeles, by promises of good wages but once there, were allowed to leave only when escorted by ranch foremen, the government complaint in the case said.

''Their heads were shaved and they were charged for the haircuts,'' Gillam said of the workers.

''They weren't allowed to bring anything with them, then they were forced to buy blankets, food, tools, pots and pans, even toilet paper at a company-owned store'' at three times the cost to the ranch, Gillam said.

Moreover, those workers who wanted to send cashier's checks to family members in Mexico were charged a $40 fee, the complaint said.

A $435 smuggling fee was paid by each of the workers to one of the defendants, Mauro Casades-Padilla, and they were charged $80 monthly as rent for ''squalid, unheated and dark'' rooms where they lived in cramped quarters with up to 15 other illegal aliens, the complaint said.

The fees for sending the checks and other ''kickbacks'' were deducted from the workers' paychecks, so that they often received net pay of less than $150 for more than 160 hours of work in 15 days, the complaint said.

''In some cases, the smuggled aliens actually received no pay, because the kickbacks exceeded the amount of the paycheck,'' the complaint said.

Ives' attorney, Robert M. Talcott, said the charges are ''totally unfounded.''

''None of the allegations have an iota of support other than the creative imaginations of those making the allegations,'' he said.

Along with Ives and Casades-Padilla, the other defendants are four men who are said to have been foremen at the ranch: Pedro Pinzon-Juarez, Josue David Pinzon-Juarez, Alvaro Ruiz-Santiago and Rony Havive, who is Ives' nephew. In addition, Ives' family-owed business, Griffith-Ives Co., was charged.

All except Ives - who turned himself in - were arrested during an early-morning raid at the ranch Friday. Pinzon-Juarez was in Guatemala and not arrested.

The men were accused of slavery - or conspiring to violate the workers' constitutional right not to be enslaved - under a law dating to the post Civil War-era.

The conditions at the ranch were discovered last November, when two of the workers were punished for not awakening at a 3 a.m. call, Gillam said. When the men were forced to sleep outside as punishment, they scaled the fence and went to the Mexican Consulate, Gillam said.

Their reports of the brutal working conditions, long hours, kickbacks, and of physical abuse prompted authorities to begin investigating the ranch. When Ives suspected that immigration authorities might be closing in, he ''dumped'' them and cleared out the ranch in December, said Gillam.

Ives, who owns a second ranch in the San Bernardino County community of Upland and another in Moorpark in Ventura County, has operated Somis ranch since 1979, where he grows and processes ornamental flowers.

Authorities believe that workers at the ranch suffered slave conditions there for at least three years.

At a hearing Friday, U.S. Magistrate Venetta S. Tassopulos set Ives' bail at $150,000, and at $25,000 each for the four other men in custody. All were expected to be released on bail by Friday night, except Ruiz-Santiago whose bail hearing was continued until Monday.

Gillam said she expected the men to be indicted within 10 days.

The prosecutor said she also expects to file additional charges against the men, including harboring and transporting fugitives, violation of civil rights and labor charges, and charges related to supplying false documents.

VANCOUVER, WA (APRIL 27) UPI - Nearly 10 years after a cataclysmic eruption that killed 57 people, Mount St. Helens is still alive.

Steve Malone of the University of Washington Seismic Center said Friday that scientists recorded what they believe was a steam venting episode in the volcano's crater on Wednesday.

Malone said the event was the first activity since January when a similar steam explosion sent a plume of ash drifting over Yakima, Wash., 80 miles to the east of the mountain.

''The latest seismic event has the characteristics of steam explosions in the past, but it was a bit smaller,'' he said.

Malone said bad weather had prevented scientists from entering the crater to investigate the activity and snowfall may have covered up any evidence of new ash.

The seismologists said the activity was probably caused by water from the snow which seeped into the lava dome and came into contact with hot rocks, turning into steam. When the steam pressure builds it can cause small explosions, he said.

Malone said there has been no evidence of lava flows in the crater since 1986.

The north side of the volcano collapsed May 18, 1980, after an earthquake. The collapse triggered a sideways eruption, flattening hundreds of square miles of forest land and killing 57 people.

(APRIL 27) UPI - Japan and Brazil are dropped from the U-S unfair trade practices list... Lithuania welcomes French-German proposal to hold off on independence... And Texans are still reeling from two days of heavy rains... U-P-I details these top stories and more, next.

The Bush administration today took Japan and Brazil off its hit list of nations subject to retaliation for unfair trade practices. India wasn't so lucky.

President Bush cited recent reforms by Brazil and Japan as reason to take them off a list of nations using unfair trade practices.

U-S Trade Representative Carla Hills had urged that Japan NOT be cited again because of recent progress in trade negotiations.

Critics have objected to the idea of dropping Japan from the list. They say it was possible sanctions that made Tokyo give ground on trading communications gear, lumber and satellites, as well improving U-S access to Japan.

Bush said some commercial differences with Japan are ''inevitable.''

The hit list is part of the so-called Super 301 section of the 1988 Trade Act, which calls for nations to be identified for possible trade sanctions.

India remains on the list. Administration officials say its suspect practices involve trade-related investment measures and insurance market barriers.

Soviet and U-S negotiators held a final session today to work out differences on a trade pact to sign at the coming super-power summit.

NO further formal negotiating sessions are scheduled.

But a spokesman for the U-S Embassy in Paris said the two sides will keep in contact through diplomatic channels during the next few weeks to finish work on the document.

Deputy U-S Trade Representative Julius Katz... who headed the American delegation... returned to the United States today.

Katz said yesterday that tentative agreement on the treaty had been reached, and it should be ready for Presidents Bush and Gorbachev to sign at their May 30th to June 3rd summit in Washington.

The three-year agreement is likely to lead to a sharp increase in trade between the super-powers. Obtaining most-favored-nation status is of crucial importance to Gorbachev to modernize his country's troubled economy.

(APRIL 27) UPI - NASA engineers are working today to get the Hubble Space Telescope activated after another problem that had the observatory computer put the satellite into a dormant ''safe mode.''

The delayed command to open the aperture door on the telescope came this morning, succeeding and putting the observatory into business... star light streaming for the first time into the Hubble's mirror.

But vibrations from the cap swinging open apparently were more violent than expected. An on-board computer put the telescope into a dormant ''safe mode'' when it apparently sensed that two of four gyroscopes were NOT functioning.

The gyroscopes are required to keep the 12-ton satellite precisely pointed in space. Engineers determined, however, that the two gyros were working properly, and they immediately went back to work activating the observatory.

Officials also say the series of snafus will likely set back Hubble's picture-taking operations, orginally scheduled to begin early next week.

In China's remote far west, troops and medical teams continue to dig through what's left of fragile farming hamlets that were devastated by a powerful earthquake last night.

The Qinghai Province quake, which registered six-point-nine on the Richter scale, has killed at least 115 people and has left scores more injured and thousands homeless.

State-run T-V reports that 500 troops of the People's Army have been sent to the area to search for survivors. Officials say most of the casualties were struck by falling debris when houses and buildings collapsed on them. At least one-thousand buildings... some two and three stories high... were destroyed or seriously damaged.

The report also says many of the dead and injured are elderly people and children and that neighboring towns are organizing relief efforts for the estimated five-thousand left homeless.

SAN DIEGO (APRIL 27) UPI - Navy Secretary Lawrence Garrett, warning Soviet submarine production is at an all-time high, said Friday deeper congressional cuts in the Navy's proposed $100 billion budget would mean a ''significant risk'' to national security.

While the Soviet threat to U.S. land-based forces in Europe has decreased, the Soviets are more dangerous than ever beneath the seas, Garrett said in a speech at the University of San Diego.

''The capabilities of the Soviet Navy - especially in its submarine forces - have not diminished. And from all indications, the Soviets have no intention of reducing them,'' Garrett said.

''In fact, they have recently been conducting impressive, simultaneous, worldwide exercises of their latest fleet ships and missiles,'' he said.

''The Soviets are scrapping older, obsolescent units at an unprecedented rate. But to date, the Soviet Navy is drawing down on body fat, not muscle. And in this manner they are improving their overall efficiency and becoming a more - not less - formidable opponent,'' he added.

Last year, the Soviets built nine submarines, three times more than the United States. ''For our Navy, this means anti-submarine warfare must continue to be our top priority,'' Garrett said.

Garrett, an alumnus of the USD Law School, said the Navy's budget must be protected if the United States is to remain a superpower.

''In past years, we could make light of the remarks attributed to Everett Dirksen, 'A billion here, a billion there, and pretty soon you're talking about real money.'

''Today that remark seems less humorous because a billion here or a billion there will cut into the flesh and bone of our Navy. There's no fat left to be removed by budgetary lyposuction,'' he said.

The Navy secretary criticized those who would cut the Navy budget without spelling out how the Navy should reduce its global commitments.

''We can build whatever-size Navy the American people want, but we cannot make further cuts without significant risk,'' he said.

Garrett singled out the Carter Administration for reducing the Navy to what he called a ''hollow force'' in the late 1970s.

''To save money, we thinned manpower. And for the men and women who remained, we scrimped on housing, pay and medical benefits. We reduced training time and didn't stock adequate parts,'' he said.

''In short, our Navy's ability to protect America's national interests was clearly in doubt. And it took nearly a decade to bring the Navy up to its present strength and readiness,'' Garrett said.

Despite the recent political upheavals in Eastern Europe, Garrett warned against prematurely dismantling America's defense apparatus.

''One of the greatest mistakes Americans could make is to forget how difficult it is - and how many years it takes - to restore military capabilities, especially naval capability,'' Garrett said.

''If we miscalculate, we will not have years or months to rebuild our fleet as we did prior to World War One and Two. The essential truth remains: the next war will be 'come as you are,''' he warned.

(APRIL 27) UPI - Lithuania is showing sings of compromise in its struggle with the Soviet Union.

Lithuanian President Vytautas Landsbergis today welcomed a French-German suggestion that the Baltic republic suspend its independence drive in order to get Moscow to negotiate.

Landsbergis said he will carefully study the proposition and called it ''a step forward.''

Soviet officials have said they will NOT hold negotiations until Lithuania's parliament rescinds or freezes its March declaration of independence.

Moscow cut off oil supplies and most natural gas and imposed other economic sanctions to try to force the republic to return to the authority of the Soviet Constitution.

West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl and French President Francois Mitterrand urged Landsbergis in a letter yesterday to temporarily suspend the effects of the declaration of independence.

Diplomats in Paris said the call for compromise effectively sounded the death knell for Lithuanian hopes of strong Western support.

Five veteran leaders of the African National Congress are back home in South Africa after nearly 30 years in exile. The group includes key figures in the guerrilla war against apartheid.

The leaders have arrived in Cape Town, where they were met by officials of Nelson Mandela's so-called ''Rainbow Delegation.'' The delegation is scheduled to discuss glitches in the proposed power-sharing policy with President Frederik de Klerk.

The team included Joe Slovo, the white Lithuanian-born South African Communist Party chief, who was once considered public enemy number-one for his role as chief strategist of the A-N-C's guerrilla wing. Slovo says he's come home in a spirit of reconciliation, NOT as a trouble-maker.

(APRIL 27) UPI - The nation's output rose strongly in the first quarter, but inflation rose along with it.

The Commerce Department reported today that the U-S gross national product rose two-point-one percent in the first three months of the year.

Inflation accelerated during the quarter to an annual rate of six-point-five percent on the G-N-P fixed-weights price index.

That rise is the most since a seven-point-seven percent gain in 1981.

Unusually cold winter weather in parts of the nation caused much of the gain through higher food and energy prices.

Chief Commerce Department economist Antonio Villamil says inflationary pressures are expected to ease slowly during the rest of the year.

Many private economists agree that the upturn is likely the result of the weather and does NOT indicate a long-term period of higher prices.

But the chief economist at Northern Trust Company in Chicago says the numbers show that the economy has NOT slowed sufficiently to bend the back of inflation.

River waters continue to rise in north Texas, where there have been at least three flood-related deaths.

Rising river waters in the Pecan Bayou near Brownwood, Texas, are threatening to add to floodwaters in a town where more than 200 people have already been evacuated.

HARTFORD, CT (APRIL 28) UPI - The state Senate gave final approval Friday to a bill affirming a woman's right to choose to have an abortion and sent the measure to Gov. William A. O'Neill, who has pledged to sign it.

The Senate voted 32-3 to approve the bill, which some supporters have called the strongest pro-choice bill approved by any state that has taken up the issue since the Supreme Court last year gave states more power to regulate abortion.

Sen. Richard Blumenthal, D-Stamford, called the vote a ''historic moment

... for today we reaffirm the right to choice and the right to privacy and its very critical role in the lives of everyone in this state.

''The product that we have before us puts Connecticut in forefront on this very difficult issue,'' Blumenthal said.

The bill, which had passed the House by a 136-12 vote, now goes to O'Neill who has said he would sign it.

The bill would repeal existing laws that make it a crime to have or perform an abortion or to counsel a woman to have an abortion. Court orders have prevented enforcement of those laws for years.

The bill also would leave the decision to terminate a pregnancy before a fetus was deemed viable to live outside the womb to the woman in consultation with her doctor.

It would allow abortions after a fetus was deemed viable only to protect the health or life of the mother.

The bill also would require girls under 16 to undergo counseling before they could have an abortion.

The Senate approved the bill after rejecting attempts to extend the counseling requirement up to age 18 and to require notification of the parents or guardian before a female under 18 could have an abortion.

The Senate also rejected an attempt to require that all possible side effects were explained to any woman seeking an abortion.

(APRIL 27) UPI - Glitches plague the Hubble Space Telescope... a letter bomb explodes at the Christian Broadcasting Network... a mistrial for Tennessee Representative Harold Ford... and the Alaskan oil spill cleanup. U-P-I has it all, next:

Some NASA officials say engineers are meeting more obstacles than they expected in getting the Hubble Space Telescope up and running.

But others say the problems are bound to happen with the most complicated spacecraft NASA has ever put in Earth orbit.

After a series of problems, NASA technicians rotated open the telescope's lens cap today, giving its near-perfect mirror a first glimpse of the starlight it was built to capture.

But the vibrations of the moving lens cap caused a safety system to shut the on-board computer down. Engineers are working to fix that before Hubble can be operated.

The problems put start-up days behind schedule. But NASA says the snafus are NOT really significant.

It's expected to be eight months before the orbiting observatory is fully operational. Then Hubble will truly begin its 15-year mission giving astronomers their clearest view ever of the universe.

Exxon today unveiled its plan for completing its cleanup of Alaska's coastline damaged by last year's Exxon Valdez oil spill.

The world's largest oil company said it will put 11-hundred people to work

(APRIL 27) UPI - West Germany's opposition party is saying ''hold the celebration'' over reunification.

The party also demanded a plan for an equitable division of costs.

But Rudolf Seiters... a senior aide in the governing Christian Democratic Union... insisted West Germany will NOT have to raise taxes.

He predicted ''an economic miracle'' and a tax boon because of expanded business in East German markets. But he did warn the government may have to reduce spending in some areas.

The argument came as officials UNveiled plans for the West German central bank to open 15 offices in East Germany. The Bundesbank is charged with facilitating unification of the two German currencies this summer.

Prime Minister Thatcher may be planning a hasty retreat from England's much-hated poll tax.

A report in a London newspaper says Thatcher wants to change the poll tax. The story comes less than one week before local elections, which Thatcher's ruling Conservative Party fears losing.

The tax replacing property taxes went into effect April 1st in England and Wales and a year earlier in Scotland. It requires city councils to set a flat sum that must be paid by Britons age 18 and over, and does NOT discriminate according to wealth.

The report said changes under consideration include more tax relief, stripping local authorities of powers to set the poll tax, and replacing the tax with an alternative.

A spokeswoman for the prime minister played down the alleged change of heart, saying it's NOT surprising that new legislation is being reviewed.

(APRIL 27) UPI - NASA officials are confident the Hubble Space Telescope is safe and stable despite a series of start-up problems. The telescope is shut down because its computer detected too much vibration when the lens cap opened today. NASA says the opening caused more vibration than tests on Earth had indicated. Most of the problems involve the telescope's safety systems, which are very sensitive.

Panamanian President Guillermo Endara is preparing for his first visit to the United States since being installed during the U-S invasion last December. Endara will leave Panama Sunday for talks with President Bush and officials of the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund, making stops in New York, Washington, D-C, and Miami.

Endara also will get a chance to use some leverage on Congress, which is debating a 720-Million-dollar aid package for Panama and Nicaragua. The aid bill is bogged down over amendments allowing Washington, D-C, to use city money to pay for abortions and giving the district the right to the death penalty. The Senate gave up trying to reach a compromise today and will return to the bill Monday.

RIYADH, APRIL 28 - Saudi Arabia on Saturday denied Israeli press reports that it was letting Iraq use a supercomputer, leased from the United States, for its missile development program.

"The computer in question is being used in Saudi Arabia for civilian purposes, namely in the oil industry," a Saudi government spokesman quoted by the official SPA news agency said.

The Israeli press reported Thursday that Iraq was using the Saudi supercomputer for calculations for its missile development program.

U.S. officials Friday were unable to confirm the report, but said Washington had leased two supercomputers to the Saudi Arabian Oil Computer Centre -- a Cray-2 and an IBM -- for complicated calculations and simulations related to oil prospecting.

The Saudi company leased the Cray-2 with government-to-government pledges that it will be used only for peaceful purposes, a spokeswoman for Cray Research of Minneapolis, Minnesota, said.

The U.S. officials, who declined to be identified, said Washington was blocking the sale of four Cray-2s and an IBM supercomputer to Israel due to concern they might be put to military use.

They noted that Saudi Arabia had signed the international nuclear non-proliferation treaty, while Israel had not.

Santiago (APRIL 29) EFE - More than 1,000 Chilean prisoners jailed for common crimes began a hunger strike to press the government to widen an amnesty, prison officials said Saturday.

The prisoners went on strike in three different jails across the country to push for inclusion in an amnesty law Congress passed this week that is to release 3,000 prisoners out of Chile's total 26,000 prison population.

The government said the pardon was designed to ease overcrowding as the first step in a plan to reform the country's penal system.

It will exclude prisoners awaiting sentencing as well as those convicted of serious offences such as rape, kidnapping and murder.

Only first time offenders will be included.

The strikers called for the amnesty to be amplified and many awaiting sentencing demanded that their cases be processed.

Prisoners often wait for years to be sentenced due to the slowness of the Chilean judicial system.

Prison officials said the situation in the jails was calm and announced that one-day releases and other measures normally used to reward good behaviour would be granted to ease tension among the prisoners.

Earlier this month more than 100 prisoners jailed for violent political crimes under the 16-year military regime of Gen. Augusto Pinochet ended a three-week hunger strike to be included in a pardon of non-violent political offenders.

President Patricio Aylwin, who replaced Pinochet last month, has freed 46 prisoners jailed for non-violent political crimes and proposed a series of law reforms to speed the trials of common criminals.

NEW YORK (APRIL 28) PR NEWSWIRE - Ford Motor Company (NYSE: F), which is constructing a $120 million electronics plant near Lisbon, Portugal, today received the 1990 Award for Excellence in Portuguese- American Trade.

The award was presented by Sr. Antonio Alfaiate, chairman of the Institute of Foreign Trade for Portugal; and Sr. Joseph Fernandes, president of the Portugal-U.S. Chamber of Commerce, to Frank E. Macher, general manager of the Ford Electronics Division, at a dinner hosted by the Portugal-U.S. Chamber of Commerce at the Plaza Hotel.

Ford was cited in the award for "outstanding achievement in the development of closer economic relations between Portugal and the United States."

Macher told the gathering of business and government leaders that about 95 percent of the production of the new Ford plant, which will manufacture high-quality radios, compact disc players and other audio components, will be shipped to Germany, England, Belgium and Spain.

"We envision that Ford Electronica Portuguesa will make a sizable contribution to Portugal's balance of trade when it begins operations in 1992," Macher said.

"We at Ford are proud to receive the Award for Excellence in Portuguese-American Trade. Ford has been committed to trade between the two countries since the formation of Ford Lusitania in 1932 and the enormous growth potential of the electronics industry makes me optimistic that significant gains will be realized in the future."

The Ford Electronics Division is the company's most rapidly expanding major operation. Sales doubled between 1985 and 1989 and are expected to double again by 1997. It is a worldwide organization with five manufacturing plants and three engineering centers. Three new plants, including the facility at Palmela, Portugal, are under construction. The Ford Electronics Division is responsible for 68 major vehicle components, including audio systems, computerized powertrain and vehicle control systems and instruments for driver information systems.

NEW YORK (APRIL 28) UPI - The state Department of Health Friday clamped down on five Manhattan sperm banks after allegations that two of the facilities mixed up deposits and impregnated two women with the wrong semen, officials said.

The department ordered the sperm banks to stop accepting semen deposits until the laboratories submit state-required applications, an agency spokesman said.

Two of the laboratories named in the order, Advanced Fertility Service and University Fertility Center, have been sued for medical malpractice by female customers who allege they were impregnated with semen deposited by men other than their husbands, said Peter Slocum, a spokesman for the New York State Department of Health.

Principals at the five banks could not be reached for comment.

The order does not force the laboratories, all of which are affiliated with private medical practices, to shut their doors, Slocum said.

''We have evidence that all are operating without the applications,'' Slocum said. ''What they all have to do is submit applications to collect sperm deposits,'' he said.

''The requirement went into effect last October and was designed to safeguard the public against sperm mix-ups, genetic problems, and diseases such as the (AIDS-causing) HIV virus,'' he said. ''Previously, New York sperm banks had not been subject to any regulations.''

Additionally, a department probe found that Advanced Fertility Services had failed to conduct required tests on donated semen and observe a required six-month quarantine period, Slocum said.

On Thursday, Lee Goldsmith, an attorney for a New York City couple identified only as John and Jane Doe, confirmed that in March his clients filed a medical malpractice suit in Manhattan State Supreme Court against University Fertility Center, also known as Cryo-Life.

The couple alleged that blood tests showed a baby girl the woman delivered in late 1988 could not have been fathered by the plaintiff, Goldsmith said.

The suit echoes an action filed in 1989 against the Idant sperm bank of Queens and Advance Fertility Services in Manhattan by Julia Skolnick of Queens, a white woman who gave birth to a black baby.

Skolnick had sought to become pregant with sperm left by her late husband, who also was white. She claimed that Idant artifically impregnated her with sperm from an unidentified black man.

DALLAS (APRIL 28) UPI - An all-white jury Friday convicted a former Houston police officer of gunning down a black female motorist during an off-duty confrontation on a southeast Texas freeway.

Former officer Alex Gonzales, 25, was convicted of voluntary manslaughter and faces up to 20 years in prison. The jury will begin the punishment phase of the trial on Monday.

State District Judge Ted Poe had instructed the jury to convict Gonzales of murder or voluntary manslaughter or acquit him on all charges.

Gonzales was charged in the shooting death of Ida Delaney, 50, a custodian at The Houston Post. The jury began deliberations late Wednesday.

Gonzales showed no reaction when the verdict was read. Outside the courtroom, supporters of the Delaney family applauded the verdict.

Ada Edwards, co-chairperson fo the Ida Delaney Justice Committee, said, ''It shows that when people make it work the process works, and we have to keep making it work.''

Mark Clark, president of the Houston Police Officers Association said he was surprised at the verdict.

''As a police officer, anytime anybody shoots at me or shoots me, I have the right to return fire. I'm not privy to all the details, but that is a very basic detail we can't get beyond. It's not a good message at all but, at the same time, it's part of the justice system.''

Prosecutors said Delaney was driving to work in her pickup when she cut in front of a car carrying Gonzales and two other off-duty officers before dawn Oct. 31, 1989. The officers - who had been drinking - chased her for 20 minutes and then confronted her on the shoulder of the road.

The officers claimed Delaney fired at them from her car during the chase, but the state said the men were drunk and harassed her by tailgating her and flashing their lights and playing a ''cat and mouse'' game.

Delaney pulled off to seek help from what she thought was a parked police car, but it turned out to be a highway department truck.

Gonzales, holding a gun, dashed over to her after she stopped and tried to keep her from re-entering her truck, and hit her in the head with his fist according to testimony.

She leaned into the car, got a gun and shot Gonzales, wounding him in the chest. He shot eight times, hitting her four times and killing her.

(APRIL 28) UPI - Michael Jordan scored 38 points and Scottie Pippen recorded his first playoff triple-double for the Chicago Bulls, but Milwaukee Coach Del Harris preferred to credit the NHL Blackhawks for the Bucks' loss Friday night.

The Bucks dropped a 111-97 decision in Game 1 of their Eastern Conference playoff series, their 17th defeat in their last 19 meetings against the Bulls. But Harris was more concerned about the health of his players.

The Milwaukee coach said he would protest the game because of the playing conditions.

The Bucks lost guard Jay Humphries when he fell on a slippery court caused by melting ice underneath. Because the Blackhawks remain alive in the Stanley Cup playoffs, the Chicago Stadium ice remains in place.

''It's not playoff, it's not professional basketball conditions. It's not even YMCA conditions,'' Harris said of the surface, slick in several spots as the ice melted in the warm spring weather.

Humphries took a spill in the second quarter, pulled a groin muscle and was limited to 14 minutes the rest of the way.

''Hopefully, it's not serious,'' Harris said. ''It could be Michael Jordan next time. I know Chicago thinks its kind of funny because my players were the only ones that went down. But it could be anyone.

''You don't expect to see a professional (basketball) game, particularly a playoff game, a nationally televised game, with guys out there playing on skates. They're supposed to have sticks in their hands.''

Chicago, which led by two points at halftime, opened the third quarter with a 13-5 run to take the largest lead of the game up to that point. Bill Cartwright had 6 of his 13 points during the surge, and John Paxson's free throws made the score 67-57 with 6:34 left in the quarter.

Milwaukee, behind 11 points from Ricky Pierce in the final five minutes, cut its deficit to 79-74 after three quarters.

The Bucks twice came within three points early in the final quarter, the last time at 83-80 with 10 minutes to play. Jordan followed with a driving baseline layup, was fouled and hit the free throw to ingite a 13-2 run that put the game away.

''We finally started to penetrate, getting the easy baskets,'' Jordan said. ''We started to work our transition game and certainly turned up our defense a notch.''

Horace Grant added 19 points and 9 rebounds for Chicago, while Pippen had 17 points, 13 assists and 10 rebounds for his second career triple double and first in the postseason. The Bucks were led by Pierce's 28 points, while Alvin Robertson added 22.

In other playoff action Monday night, Utah ripped Phoenix 113-96 and the Los Angeles Lakers thrashed Houston 101-89.

Jazz 113, Suns 96

At Salt Lake City, Karl Malone scored 17 of his 21 points in the second half and John Stockton added 17 assists to lead Utah in Game 1 of their Western Conference series. Malone, held to just one basket in both the first and second periods, posted 10 points in the third quarter and 7 in the fourth. Reserve Dan Majerle led Phoenix with 23 points, while Jeff Hornacek added 20.

Lakers 101, Rockets 89

At Inglewood, Calif., James Worthy scored 34 points and Houston center Akeem Olajuwon was held to just 13, in Los Angeles' Game 1 victory. The Lakers, who committed 16 turnovers in the first half and trailed by as many as 13 points in the second quarter, have won all 19 of its first-round games since 1984.

WALNUT CREEK, CA (APRIL 28) UPI - A pair of earthquakes registering 4.6 and 4.3 on the Richter scale jiggled the Bay area Friday night, reportedly causing lights to go out in one area but no injuries were reported.

The quakes were centered near Walnut Creek on the southern end of the Concord Fault and were a continuation of the swarm of temblors that rumbled in the same area several days ago, a U.S. Geological Survey spokesman said.

The 4.6 temblor occurred at 9:41 p.m. and was followed at 9:47 by another that registered 4.3 on the Richter scale, according to USGS spokeswoman Lu Page in Menlo Park.

''They were in the same area as the Danville swarm of several days ago,'' Page said. ''They are a continuation of that swarm.''

A caller to a radio station said the lights went out in his residence in Alamo, apparently as a result of the temblors, but there were no other immediate reports of damage.

The temblors were felt in some areas of San Francisco, a few miles west across San Francisco Bay.

(APRIL 28) UPI - The Washington Capitals and Boston Bruins each exorcised demons from their past Friday night in the Stanley Cup quarter-finals by winning their playoff battles with the New York Rangers and Montreal Canadiens.

The Capitals erased a reputation for choking in post-season play with a dramatic 2-1 overtime victory, giving Washington its first Patrick Division playoff championship and eliminating the Rangers, who last won the Stanley Cup 50 years ago.

The Bruins used a 3-1 victory to eliminate the Montreal Canadiens and take the Adams Division championship. It was only the fourth time Boston beat Montreal in 25 playoff series between the two teams.

The Capitals and Bruins will meet in the best-of-seven Wales Conference finals, with Game 1 scheduled for May 3 in Boston.

At New York, John Druce scored his 12th goal of the playoffs at 6:48 of overtime to give the Capitals the victory, and goaltender Mike Liut made a spectacular save earlier in the overtime to save the game for the Capitals.

Washington had been branded as a team that chokes in the clutch after repeatedly blowing playoff leads. In 1985 they won the first two games in the best-of-five series against the Islanders, then lost the last three games; in 1986 they were up 2-1 against the Rangers and dropped three straight to lose that series; and in 1987 they were ahead of the Islanders 3-1 and lost the last three games to be eliminated.

This year, though, they're heading to the conference finals.

''You've got to lose before you learn how to win,'' said Rod Langway, who scored an overtime goal in Game 3 to put the Capitals in a position to eliminate the Rangers. ''You've got to feel the loss, you have to feel the upset point before you really enjoy when you win, and right now I'm enjoying every minute of it.''

The goal was Druce's 12th in 11 playoff games, giving him the NHL lead.

''The puck turned over at the blue line, and Geoff picked it up on the far side and shot,'' Druce said. ''I stuck my stick out and it went in.''

The Capitals were thought to be a major underdog in the series after losing Game 1 and losing sniper Ciccarelli in a Game 2 victory with a severely sprained knee.

But Druce, who scored only eight goals during the regular season, came to the rescue.

''I have never been on a roll like this and this is the Stanley Cup playoffs,'' Druce said. ''It's a dream come true. The feeling is unexplainable but I don't want to lose it.''

The Rangers never found a way to stop Druce.

''Everything Druce touched went in for him,'' Rangers Coach Roger Neilson said. ''He had one of those rolls you hear about. We talked a lot about Druce today and what to do to stop him, but every time the puck hit his stick it went into the net.''

Shortly before the winning goal Liut made a phenomenal, game-saving stop of a shot by John Ogrodnick that landed on Liut's shoulder, bounced off and rolled across the goal crease.

''Ogrodnick shot the puck and it kind of rolled up my arm,'' said Liut. ''You just try to angle your body away from the net and hope it bounces off in the right direction. The one thing you can't do is panic and lunge at the puck. Most of the time it won't go in under those circumstances unless you knock it in yourself.''

At Boston, Glen Wesley scored the game-winner on a 25-foot slap shot with 1:13 left to play. Montreal had won 21 of its 24 previous post-season series with Boston, but the Bruins have now won two of the last three.

''It was sweet two years ago and it's sweet now,'' said Boston's Ray Bourque, referring to the Bruins 1988 victory over the Canadiens. ''To score with over a minute left is just so thrilling.''

On the game-winning goal, Craig Janney had the puck behind Montreal's net and passed to Garry Galley, whose point shot hit the glass behind the goal and ricocheted towards the left circle.

Brian Propp was 10 feet from the Canadiens' goal, but fanned on the rebounding puck. Wesley was in the circle when he fired the puck inside the near post for his second goal of the postseason.

''It took a funny bounce off the plexiglass,'' said Wesley, who said he aimed his slap shot high. ''I saw two guys (Montreal defenders) sliding at me and I had to go upstairs.''

Roy said he ''didn't see the first shot. I heard it hit the glass behind me. Wesley had the puck and took a big blast. I saw it just before he (Wesley) got it.''

The Campbell Conference playoffs resume Saturday with the Chicago Blackhawks at the St. Louis Blues. Chicago is leading that series 3-2, and the teams will play Game 7 Monday in Chicago if necessary. The winner of that series will face the Edmonton Oilers in the Campbell Conference finals beginning Wednesday in Edmonton.

(APRIL 28) UPI - Lithuania's president appears to be receptive to a suggestion from French President Mitterrand and West German Chancellor Kohl. The two leaders say Lithuania should suspend its independence declaration to get Moscow to the bargaining table. Vytautas Landsbergis says he'll ''carefully study'' that option. Also, the State Department says Landsbergis has been given a business visa with a ''diplomatic stamp'' to visit the United States next week.

American and Soviet trade negotiators wrapped up a meeting in Paris Friday. There still are differences there's hope a trade pact will be completed in time for the super-power summit at the end of May. Diplomatic analysts say the serious tone of the talks underlines the importance Washington and Moscow attach to maintaining good relations despite tension caused by the Lithuanian crisis.

Federal anti-drug chief William Bennett says some neighborhoods are so infested with drugs that children should be removed and placed in orphanages. Bennett made the comments in Orlando, Florida, while speaking to members of PRIDE- the nation's oldest and largest drug education organization. Florida Governor Bob Martinez says some children have been taken away from drug-abusing parents who often also are child abusers.

A mail bomb exploded Friday at the Christian Broadcasting Network complex in Virginia Beach, Virginia, injuring one security guard. The guard, Scott Scheepers, says the package was sent the television evangelist and former Republican presidential candidate Pat Robertson. Scheepers also says the package carried a North Carolina return address. Quoting Robertson- ''This is evidence of extreme hatred by some deranged individuals who want to silence the Christian voice in this country.''

(APRIL 28) UPI - The Florida House joined a number of groups Friday in protesting the slaughter of thousands of dolphins by the tuna industry. The resolution also supports congressional passage of the Dolphin Protection Consumer Information Act. The bill would require tuna products be labeled so consumers know whether they were harvested using methods that kill dolphins.

The Top Dog First Annual World Championship Prairie Dog Shoot will take place this summer in southwestern Colorado, despite protests by Governor Roy Romer and Congressman Ben Nighthorse Campbell. Prairie dogs are hated by farmers who say the little creatures destroy pasture needed for livestock. A plebiscite was held Thursday night, but the prairie dog came out the big loser with only four out of 320 people voting against the shooting contest.

(APRIL 28) UPI - It had to end sometime. The Oakland Athletics tasted dust on the road for the first time this season Friday night after posting a perfect road record.

Before losing 7-6 to the Boston Red Sox, the A's were 8-0 away from home. They were 10-0 counting games three and four of the 1989 World Series.

The loss came on the same night the A's opponents in last year's Series, the San Francisco Giants, won at Candlestick Park for the first time since before the two teams met in postseason play.

The A's didn't go down without a fight. Boston rallied in the ninth to post its come-from-behind victory. Ellis Burks lofted a two-out, two-run single off Gene Nelson, 1-1, to cap a three-run rally that lifted Boston and made a winner of reliever Jeff Reardon, 1-0.

The Red Sox belted multiple home runs for the first time this year, and Tony Pena matched the longest hitting steak in the major leagues at 15 games.

In other AL games, New York edged California 5-4, Milwaukee defeated Detroit 9-6, Cleveland pounded Minnesota 7-2, Seattle stopped Baltimore 4-3, Chicago trounced Toronto 6-1, and Texas outscored Kansas City 7-6.

In the NL it was Cincinnati 3, Montreal 2; Atlanta 7, Philadelphia 1; New York 1, Houston 0; San Francisco 12, St. Louis 3; Los Angeles 5, Chicago 0; and Pittsburgh 9, SanDiego 4.

Yankees 5, Angels 4

At New York, Roberto Kelly scored on pinch hitter Deion Sanders' infield out in the eighth inning, lifting the Yankees. Kelly opened the eighth with a single off reliever Willie Frazier, 0-1, and moved to third on Rick Cerone's single. Sanders, batting for Mike Blowers, tapped a slow grounder to shortstop that enabled Kelly to score. Lee Guetterman, 1-1, pitched two innings of one-hit relief to earn the victory. Dave Righetti picked up his fourth save by allowing one hit in the ninth.

Brewers 9, Tigers 6

At Detroit, rookie Greg Vaughn hit a game-tying two-run double and scored on a single by Glenn Braggs to cap a five-run sixth inning that carried Milwaukee to their eighth win in nine games. Braggs turned starter Jack Morris, 2-2, into the losing pitcher. Bill Krueger, 1-0, won it with three innings of one-run relief.

Indians 7, Twins 2

At Cleveland, Joey Belle, Candy Maldonado and Carlos Baerga each hit two-run homers, leading the Indians to a victory over Minnesota. Bud Black 2-0, pitched eight shutout innings before giving up back-to-back solo homers to Fred Manrique and Kirby Puckett. However, the Indians rallied and made a loser of David West, 1-3. Twins left fielder Dan Gladden extended his hitting streak to 12 games with a single in his first at-bat.

Mariners 4, Orioles 3

At Baltimore, Seattle catcher Dave Valle hit a two-run home run and Ken Griffey Jr. added an RBI double to power the Mariners. Erik Hanson, 2-0, outdueled Jeff Ballard, 0-3, as the Mariners won their third straight game and the fifth of their last seven. Hanson pitched a three-hitter over eight innings. Mike Schooler pitched the ninth inning to pick up his fourth save of the year and the 52nd of his career, tying a club record set by Bill Caudill. The Orioles lost their fourth straight.

White Sox 6, Blue Jays 1

At Chicago, Greg Hibbard threw a two-hitter over eight innings and Ivan Calderon homered and drove home three runs, lifting the White Sox. Hibbard 2-1, posted his longest outing of the season. John Cerutti, 1-3, took the loss as the White Sox ended their seven-game losing streak to the Blue Jays, dating back to May 28, 1989. Carlton Fisk went 2-for-2 in his 13th straight start behind the plate, his sixth multi-hit game. The consecutive starts is one shy of the 43-year-old catcher's longest string of 14 games set in 1978 when he played for Boston.

Rangers 7, Royals 6

At Kansas City, Mo., Ruben Sierra belted a two-run double as part of a four-run ninth inning, giving Texas the triumph. Julio Franco and Geno Petralli both added RBI singles in the ninth to make a winner of Jeff Russell, 1-1, who pitched 1 1-3 innings. The Rangers rocked Mark Davis, 0-1, for four runs and four hits in the ninth, the only inning he pitched.

(APRIL 28) UPI - If New York pitcher Frank Viola can win games while in physical distress, the opposition must dread facing him when he's healthy.

Only muscle spasms, not the Houston Astros, plagued Viola during the Mets' 1-0 victory Friday night. The former Cy Young award-winner allowed just two bunt singles in five innings before a pain in his right side forced him to leave the game.

''It just got progressively worse as the game went on,'' said Viola, who felt the pains while warming up before the game. ''It hurts coming out of a game, but with our bullpen, I don't worry.''

Viola, 4-0, allowed only Eric Yelding to reach base in the third and fifth innings before being relieved by Wally Whitehurst. While striking out five and walking no one, Viola lowered his ERA to 1.32, guiding New York to its fifth straight victory,

''He puts the ball right where he wants to'' said Houston catcher Craig Biggio, ''and it's never where you can get a really good hack at it. He's got great arm deception and he moves the ball in and out. He's undoubtedly one of the best in the game.''

In the fourth inning, Mark Carreon belted the first pitch from Mark Portugal, 1-3, over the left field fence for his third homer of the season.

''When you go against a guy like Viola, you can't afford to give up too many runs,'' Portugal said. ''Unfortunately, I gave up one too many.''

Houston, who suffered their third shutout in five games, only had three runners to reach second base.

Elsewhere in the National League, Cincinnati nipped Montreal 3-2, Philadelphia pummeled Atlanta 7-1, San Francisco slaughtered St. Louis 12-3, Pittsburgh defeated San Diego 9-4 and Los Angeles blanked Chicago 5-0.

In the AL, it was: New York 5, California 4; Milwaukee 9, Detroit 6; Cleveland 7, Minnesota 2; Seattle 4, Baltimore 3; Boston 7, Oakland 6; Chicago 6, Toronto 1 and Texas 7, Kansas City 6.

Reds 3, Expos 2

At Cincinnati, Chris Sabo's two-out single drove home Mariano Duncan with the winning run in the ninth inning. Duncan opened the inning with a walk off Drew Hall, 1-2, and stole second before coming home on Sabo's hit. Rob Dibble pitched the final 1 2-3 innings for the victory.

Phillies 7, Braves 1

At Atlanta, Carmelo Martinez broke a tie with his third career grand slam and Dennis Cook scattered four hits over seven innings. Cook, 3-0, walked two and struck out two and Jeff Parrett allowed two hits over the final two innings. Mike Stanton, 0-3, took the loss.

Giants 12, Cardinals 3

At San Francisco, Matt Williams and Kevin Bass homered to power San Francisco to their first home victory this season in nine games. Atlee Hammaker, 2-1, gave up eight hits and Greg Matthews, 0-3, was shelled for five earned runs and eight hits in 3 2-3 innings.

Pirates 9, Padres 4

At San Diego, Wally Backman went 6-for-6 and Barry Bonds rapped four hits including two home runs to pace Pittsburgh to their fourth straight win. Neal Heaton, 4-0, went 5 2-3 innings to win his eighth in a row dating back to 1989. Loser Eric Show, 0-3, allowed six hits in 3 2-3 innings.

Dodgers 5, Cubs 0

At Los Angeles, Fernando Valenzuela fired a four-hitter and Mike Scioscia drove in a run and scored three times to guide Los Angeles. Valenzuela, 1-2, struck out four and walked none while Cubs starter Jose Nunez, 1-2, gave up four hits over 5 1-3 innings.

SEATTLE (APRIL 28) UPI - Athletes from Lithuania and other Soviet republics will be allowed to carry the flags of their own republics at the welcoming ceremonies for this summer's Goodwill Games, officials said.

The athletes - many of them Olympic medalists for the Soviets - also will be allowed to wear flag patches or national emblems of their home republic on their Soviet team uniforms, Goodwill Games spokesman Jarlath Hume said Friday.

The suggestion by officials of Goskomsport, the Soviet State Committee for Physical Culture and Sport, might help ease some tensions expected to surface at the sports, cultural and trade spectacle, Hume said. Goskomsport has been a key partner in planning the Games.

Ina Bray, a leader of the Lithuanian community in Seattle, said she was stunned by the Soviet decision.

''I am pleased there is some recognition that there is this diversity and that the people of Lithuania want to be recognized as Lithuanian,'' she said.

Alexander Kozlovsky, deputy chairman of Goskomsport, proposed the solution during a meeting in Moscow Friday with Bob Walsh, president of the organizing committee and Walsh's special assistant, Bernard Russi, Hume said.

''They will be able to wear a patch on their Soviet uniform indicating they are from Lithuania, if they choose to do so,'' Hume said Russi told him by telephone.

''In opening ceremonies, while the Soviet team as a whole will enter behind the Soviet flag, if an athlete from Lithuania or any other republic wants to carry the flag of their republic, that would be acceptable,'' Hume said.

''It is something that the Soviets themselves came to,'' Hume said. ''The Soviets are seeking ways to accomodate a changing situation in that country.''

CAPE CANAVERAL, FL (APRIL 28) UPI - The Discovery astronauts monitored the weather Saturday at their Mojave Desert landing site and readied the shuttle for Sunday's return to Earth amid work to test the Hubble Space Telescope's balky antenna system.

Discovery's four-man, one-woman crew was scheduled to glide to a touchdown at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., at 6:49 a.m. PDT Sunday to close out a successful mission highlighted by the difficult launch of the $1.5 billion space telescope.

NASA managers were trying to assess the impact of high winds expected in the Edwards area at landing time.

''We'll just have to see how those winds develop and whether or not we can bring you home tomorrow,'' astronaut Steven Oswald radioed Discovery from Houston. ''But we're still planning on heading down that direction to land tomorrow on the first opportunity.''

Commander Loren Shriver, 45, and co-pilot Charles Bolden, 43, switched on one of Discovery's hydraulic power units Saturday and test-fired the ship's maneuvering jets to make sure its steering system will be ready for action Sunday.

Crewmates Steven Hawley, 38, Bruce McCandless, 52, and Kathryn Sullivan, 38, meanwhile, worked to wrap up a series of experiments and Earth photography before packing up loose gear for the fiery re-entry.

Telescope controllers, meanwhile, succeeded in bringing the Hubble out of a 20-hour computer-induced state of hibernation at 5:42 a.m. that was triggered Friday by a series of technical glitches. They planned to spend the next several hours testing the satellite's balky antenna system.

The astronauts began their fifth day in space at 1:24 a.m. with grinning mission controllers beaming up a song called ''Cosmos,'' dedicated to the telescope and featuring the line, ''I'm looking for the nothing in the void where the bang caused the hole in the middle of it all,'' a reference to the big bang theory of the birth of the universe about 15 billion years ago.

''Thanks for the wakeup music,'' Shriver radioed. ''It's pretty appropriate for today.''

All five astronauts were to answer questions from reporters at the Johnson Space Center in Houston during an orbital news conference to discuss the progress of the 35th shuttle mission, the third of nine flights planned for 1990.

The shuttle Columbia is scheduled to blast off May 16 and the ship's crew was scheduled to participate in a practice countdown Saturday as Discovery sailed overhead. NASA managers considered attempting a rare shuttle-to-shuttle radio linkup but later decided it would be more trouble than it was worth.

The primary goal of the mission was accomplished Wednesday with the successful, although delayed, deployment of the Hubble Space Telescope.

The complex orbital observatory is expected to revolutionize astronomy once it is fully operational, beaming back pictures of planets, stars and galaxies that are 10 times sharper than is possible using ground-based instruments.

But the telescope's activation, a time-consuming procedure expected to last eight months, has proceeded in fits and starts since deployment Wednesday because of communications problems and technical difficulties.

While controllers were able to open the telescope's ''lens cap'' Friday, allowing starlight to enter the instrument for the first time, the historic first photo from the satellite will not be taken until late next week at the earliest, several days behind schedule.

Astronomer-astronaut Jeffrey Hoffman, scheduled to blast off aboard the shuttle Columbia May 16 on a Spacelab astronomy mission, said the problems activating the space telescope are not unusual for instruments of such complexity.

With Discovery trailing the telescope by about 40 miles Friday, commands to open the telescope's ''aperture door'' were radioed to the satellite, causing the protective lens cap over the end of the intrument's 14-foot-wide tube to open, allowing light to hit its 94.5-inch mirror.

But the motion of the door apparently caused more vibration than expected and two of the telescope's four primary stabilization gyroscopes were taken ''off line'' by the Hubble's on-board computer.

The gyroscopes are required to keep the 12-ton satellite precisely pointed in space. Believing that only two of its four gyros were up and running properly, the telescope's computer put the craft into a dormant state called a ''safe mode.''

The gyroscopes, working properly all along, were put back in action and engineers began the task of getting the telescope out of its safe mode and back on schedule.

The telescope also encountered problems moving one of its two science antennas through its full range of motion. The motion of the antenna may have to be restricted in the future, which could have a minor impact on science observations.

NEW YORK (APRIL 28) UPI - A pipe bomb hidden in a metal garbage can exploded in a crowded Greenwich Village bar early Saturday, injuring three people, authorities said.

The bomb filled with M-80 firecrackers exploded in the back room of Uncle Charlie's Downtown Bar in the West Village at 12:13 a.m., said Sgt. Tina Mohrmann, a police spokeswoman.

The blast injured three people standing near the metal garbage can, which was ruptured by the force of the explosion.

The three bar patrons were taken to nearby St. Vincent's Hospital, where they were treated for minor injuries, said Dina Gabriel, a hospital spokeswoman.

Gabriel said doctors expected to release the three people later Saturday morning.

The explosion caused minor damage to the bar, which was filled with about 200 patrons at the time of the blast, Mohrmann said.

The police bomb squad and emergency services officers were at the scene investigating the blast, Mohrmann said.

A Fire Department spokesman said the blast did not ignite a fire. He said firefighters were at the scene assisting in the investigation.

Mohrmann said the bar would remain closed Saturday.

The explosion shocked the bar's patrons, sending them rushing out to the street. But people who live and work near the bar said they did not hear any noise.

GREENBELT, MD (APRIL 28) UPI - NASA engineers successfully brought the Hubble Space Telescope out of a computer-induced state of hibernation Saturday and worked to test the giant satellite's balky antenna system.

Technicians managed Friday to open the 12-ton telescope's lens cap, a critical step allowing the first starlight to hit the instrument's 94-inch near-perfect mirror.

But the ''aperture door'' opening was delayed more than two hours after yet another snag with the telescope's communication system, and the opening itself caused enough vibration that the satellite's computer thought a malfunction had occurred with two of its four positioning gyroscopes.

The problem sent the telescope into a ''safe mode,'' a hibernation state designed to protect the craft while problems are fixed.

The gyroscopes were working properly, as it turned out, and were quickly put back in operation. But it took ground controllers at the Goddard Space Flight Center in Greenbelt, Md., 19 hours and 56 minutes to get the telescope out of its protective safe mode and back in action.

''All systems on the Hubble Space Telescope are (normal) at this time,'' said NASA commentator John Dumoulin. ''They officially came out of that safe mode at 5:58 a.m. today.''

One of the first items on the agenda Saturday was to test the operation of the telescope's two ''high gain antennas.''

One of the critical antennas, needed to beam science data back to Earth, failed to work properly Friday and engineers planned to conduct a series of tests Saturday to pin down the trouble.

Telescope engineer Steve Terry said Friday the telescope was experiencing more problems than he anticipated, but officials were confident the costly satellite can be safely brought to life and operated.

''It's really not significant in the grand scheme of things,'' said Jean Olivier, NASA's deputy project manager.

The $1.5 billion telescope, ferried into space by the space shuttle Discovery, is expected to unveil fundamental secrets of the universe by peering more deeply into space and with greater clarity than ever before.

But before the telescope can begin its 15-year study of stars, planets and galaxies, engineers must painstakingly start and check the craft's systems and instruments, including two cameras, two light-splitting spectrographs, three guidance sensors and a high-tech light meter called a photometer.

''The precision steps of Hubble Space Telescope verification could be compared to those required for cutting a fine diamond,'' a NASA information sheet says. ''Each step is important. Each must be completed correctly.''

A test image from the telescope may be available late next week but it will be some eight months before the complicated calibration is complete and full-scale research can begin.

Since work began after the telescope was deployed Wednesday, engineers have been slowed by a series of glitches, mostly with the antennae used to command the telescope and retrieve the huge amount of information it will collect.

Astronaut Jeffrey Hoffman, who is scheduled to blast off May 16 aboard the space shuttle Columbia, was not surprised at the problems.

''I think maybe for the first time people in the astronomical community are approaching some of the complexity we've been dealing with in manned spaceflight for two decades now,'' said Hoffman at the Kennedy Space Center in Florida. ''They're finding you have some teething problems at the beginning.''

The first days of operation are the most difficult because engineers have to learn how best to solve problems and operate the telescope in orbit, Terry said. Although the telescope was tested extensively on Earth, conditions in space are much different, he said.

''You can design so much, you can only analyze so much on the ground. You eventually have to take it up into space and let it work there and find out what happens. You can only do so much on Earth,'' said Terry.

The gyroscopes, for example, were knocked out because the door opening caused more vibration than tests on Earth had indicated, he said.

Most of the problems have involved the telescope's safety systems, which are unusually sensitive and complex because the long-awaited telescope is so valuable.

''The spacecraft is doing exactly what it is supposed to day - it's keeping itself safe,'' said Douglas Broome, chief of NASA's observatories development branch.

Some of the safety limits, however, may be relaxed as NASA gains more experience and confidence with the telescope, officials said.

''When we get more mature in our operations ... we'll be able to say, 'Hey the limit really should be this way instead of this way,''' Terry said.

SEOUL, SOUTH KOREA (APRIL 28) UPI - Riot police broke up a four-day strike at Hyundai Heavy Industries in a dawn raid Saturday but other workers burned government cars and beat up police officers in sympathy with strikers angry at the arrest of union leaders.

About 10,000 police stormed the Hyundai Heavy Industries in Ulsan, 190 miles southeast of Seoul, at 6 a.m. and took control of most facilities in half an hour.

Police arrested 499 workers on the scene, officials at National Police headquarters in Seoul said. About 30 people, including 14 policemen, were injured.

Hours after the police raid, more than 100 radical workers continued a protest sit-in atop a 262-foot high Goliath crane at the shipyard, according to the domestic Yonhap News Agency and radio and television reports from the scene.

Later, about 4,000 workers of Hyundai Motor Co., affiliated with Hyundai Heavy Industries, staged street demonstrations of their own to protest the police storming.

The Hyundai Motor protesters burned two police buses with firebombs and destroyed nine other police vehicles. They cornered and assaulted 250 policemen, the reports said. Nine police officers and six workers were reportedly hurt in the clash.

Hyundai Group management closed nine affiliated establishments in Ulsan for the day to deter the sympathy protests from spreading, the reports said.

Hyundai Heavy Industries workers began their strike Wednesday demanding the release of union leaders arrested for masterminding illegal labor protests.

Authorities ordered police to take the action to block labor unrest from spreading as May Day approached.

A total of 26 primary and high schools in the industrial city were closed as the police raid and its aftermath paralysed traffic, the reports said.

Riot squads led by tear gas-firing vehicles invaded the Hyundai shipyard through five gates and by sea after bulldozers removed barricades erected by workers.

About 1,500 workers who had staged an overnight sit-in resisted fiercely throwing firebombs and nuts but were soon overpowered, the reports said.

BEIRUT, LEBANON (APRIL 28) UPI - Rival Christian militias fighting since January for control of strategic hills north of Beirut agreed Saturday to a 48-hour truce to allow civilians to inspect their damaged homes.

The cease-fire was about the 20th since troops loyal to dissident Christian Gen. Michel Aoun began a bloody battle for control of the Kesrouwane hills north of the capital with the Lebanese Forces militia commanded by Samir Geaga.

Gen. Fuad Malek, a senior officer in the Lebanese Forces militia, said Friday 700 fighters and 2,000 cilivians have been killed in the inter-Christian battles.

Before the cease-fire took effect at 9 a.m. Saturday, intermittent clashes broke out on the Qlaiat-Daraya front, 12 miles northeast of Beirut.

Police said the two sides exchanged heavy machine-gun and artillery fire along the 4-mile Qlaiat-Daraya front and shells slammed into a number of residential areas in east Beirut.

The cease-fire was arranged by the Rev. Boulos Naaman, a Maronite monk and member of a three-man committee that tried unsuccessfully to reconcile Aoun and Geagea.

Both the militia and radio stations loyal to Aoun called on the inhabitants of Qlaiat and Daraya to consult militia commanders and army officers manning checkpoints in the embattled region in order to avoid mines while inspecting their homes.

Geagea's militiamen control two thirds of the war-demolished village of Qlaiat while Aoun's troops dominate most of the nearby village of Daraya. The rivals face each other along a four-mile front between the two villages.

Troops loyal to Aoun and Geagea's militiamen have been fighting for control of the 310-square-mile Christian enclave since Jan. 31.

Both sides have used past cease-fires to rest their troops and rearm. With no sign of a political settlement, observers predicted renewed fighting after the truce ends.

A Christian committee including Naaman and Shaker Abu Suleiman and Bishop Khalil Abi Nader tried with backing from the Vatican and the Maronnite Church to arrange an end to the Aoun-Geaga feud, but gave up last month after several failed efforts.

TOKYO (APRIL 28) UPI - Japan, despite the pleas of human rights groups, extradited a Chinese hijacker Saturday who said he commandeered a passenger jet to escape persecution for his role in Beijing's pro-democracy demonstrations last year.

Zhang Zhenhai, a self-described leader of the Tiananmen Square demonstrations, left Japan at 3 p.m. in the custody of Chinese authorities. He is to stand trial in China for hijacking an Air China Boeing 747 with 233 people aboard on Dec. 16.

The hijacker landed in Beijing early in the evening and was hustled into waiting police cars at the airport. He was driven into town in a seven-car police motorcade with red lights flashing.

The official Xinhua news agency said, ''Chinese judicial organs will handle the case according to law.''

Zhang, 36, maintained throughout his 133 days in Japan that he fled China to escape torture and possible execution for his role in the pro-democracy demonstrations that ended when Chinese troops entered Tiananmen Square June 3-4, killing hundreds of protesters.

Zhang's plea for political asylum was supported by Amnesty International and last week the U.S. Congressional Human Rights Caucus urged Japan not to extradite him.

The Japanese goverment said it would not tolerate hijacking for any reason and on April 20 the Tokyo High Court turned down Zhang's request for political asylum.

''The Japanese government hopes to continue to cooperate with China to prevent future hijackings,'' said Justice Minister Shin Hasegawa.

Zhang's supporters said Japan's action shows Tokyo clearly favors political expediency over human rights in foreign policy and suggested the real reason for the extradition was a desire to maintain close economic and diplomatic ties with China.

Zhang, his wife and 10-year-old son hijacked the Air China jet on the Beijing-to-Shanghai leg of a flight for New York and threatened to blow it up.

The plane landed at the Fukuoka airport in southwestern Japan. No one was hurt and it was later found that the hijackers had no explosives or weapons.

The hijacking came to an end when a crewman shoved Zhang out an open door to the Tarmac. Zhang broke his pelvis and both legs in the fall and was hospitalized while his wife and son were returned to China aboard the hijacked jet.

Hasegawa said he hopes Zhang ''will be given a fair trial'' and that Japanese authorities will monitor the case closely.

China has assured Japan that Zhang will not be tried for his political activities and will not be executed for the hijacking, Hasegawa said.

Diplomats in Beijing confirmed that Chinese authorities have secretly assured Japan that Zhang will be prosecuted only on air piracy charges and face a maximum of ten years in prison.

''Any government is going to say they will give their criminals fair trials,'' said Yaeko Takeoka, one of Zhang's attorneys. ''The problem is when you look at what the Chinese did in Tiananmen Square, you can no longer believe them. There is no due process in China.''

''Zhang's right to a fair trial and personal security canot be guaranteed in China,'' said U.S. Reps. Tom Lantos and John Porter, co-chairmen of the 185-member Congressional Human Rights Caucus, in an April 20 letter to the Japanese ambassador to the United States.

''Although we do not condone hijacking, we fear that he will be subjected to brutal and unreasonable punishment if tried in China,'' the letter said.

Zhang had his hands bound and concealed under a black cloth as he was loaded onto an Air China jet at Tokyo's New International Airport at Narita by two Chinese authorities.

Zhang had said he expected to be severely punished for his political activities as soon as he is returned to China.

Zhang testified he led a group of laborers in the pro-democracy demonstrations in May and June and battled the Chinese tanks in Tiananmen Square in early June.

Zhang said he feared for his life and that of his family's after the military crackdown and resorted to hijacking after several attempts to escape China overland failed.

He said he had hoped to carry on the fight for China's democracy outside the country.

BEIJING (APRIL 28) UPI - Powerful aftershocks rocked a devastated farming area of western China again Saturday as rescue crews struggled to aid victims of a major earthquake in which at least 126 people have died, officials said.

Officials said at least 126 people were confirmed dead and rescue crews were continuing to search for victims and survivors in the debris of fallen structures.

The death toll in the quake in Qinghai Province was expected to rise further as some of the more than 160 people seriously injured were in grave condition in local hospitals, said officials in Beijing and in the Qinghai Province capital, Xining.

The quake struck Thursday evening and measured 6.9 on the Richter scale. It collapsed hundreds of homes on their occupants and leveled farm hamlets in the Hainan Tibetan Autonomous Prefecture about 100 miles southwest of the provincial capital.

The government sent in paramilitary troops, medical teams and supplies to help in the rescue effort. Some of the victims were trapped in the rubble of collapsed homes and buildings.

A spokesman for the State Seismological Bureau in Beijing said at least 1,024 aftershocks were recorded in the area by Saturday, the highest 5.1 on the Richter scale, and that the powerful tremors had knocked down hundreds more buildings.

About 3,000 dwellings and other buildings were seriously damaged or destroyed by the quake and aftershocks by Saturday, the spokesman said.

State television Saturday evening showed rescue workers still digging through the wreckage of timbers and brick. Troops distributed chunks of bread to survivors helping in the effort.

The television report also showed dozens of white tents sent into the area had been set up in fields near the quake site as temporary shelters. Nearly 5,000 people were left homeless and many spent Thursday night sleeping in the open air.

The hardest hit areas were farm communities to the south of Lake Qinghai. Qinghai Province is a largely remote region of mountains, mountain plateau and desert inhabited by peasants and herdsmen, many of them ethnic Tibetans.

The State Council, China's Cabinet, held a meeting Saturday to discuss coordination of relief efforts for the quake-hit areas, the official Xinhua news agency reported.

A delegation of officials from 15 ministries and commissions was to be dispatched to Qinghai to determine further assistance needs, Xinhua said.

The Communist Party Central Committee and the State Council also sent a message to the province calling on all party members and officials to ''fight against the disaster and minimize the losses caused the quake,'' Xinhua reported.

MOSCOW (APRIL 28) UPI - Syrian President Hafez Assad met with Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev Saturday for talks expected to include the Middle East peace process and Soviet military aid to Damascus.

The meeting came less than a week after President Bush thanked Assad for helping to secure the release of Robert Polhill, held hostage in Lebanon for 39 months by pro-Iranian Moslem extremists.

The Soviet news agency Tass said Assad and Gorbachev held a one-to-one working lunch before being joined by other officials on both sides for further talks.

Details of the discussions were not immediately released, but Soviet military aid to Syria was likely to be high on the agenda. In September the Soviet Union announced that it was considering cutting arms shipments.

''Major changes have taken place in the world since Assad's last visit here and perestroika in the Soviet Union has prompted the need to discuss new aspects of international development,'' Tass said of the visit.

Tass said the Assad-Gorbachev meeting ''is likely to become an important stage in the coordination of the two countries' efforts to settle the conflict and establish fair peace in the Middle East.''

Assad was accompanied to Moscow by Syrian Foreign Minister Farouk Sharaa, who was to meet with his Soviet counterpart Eduard Shevardnadze.

Syria has been the Soviet Union's closest ally in the Arab world, and for years Moscow sent Damascus sophisticated weapons to allow Assad to pursue ''strategic parity'' with Israel.

The Soviet Union has recently stepped up its efforts to take a key role in the Middle East peace process, with Shevardnadze touring five Middle Eastern countries last year to urge support for an international peace conference.

SOUTHFIELD, MI (APRIL 28) UPI - A helicopter apparently lost power while removing a satellite dish and crashed Saturday on top of the IBM Building, killing the pilot and sending workers on the roof scrambling for safety.

The crash, which occurred about 8:30 a.m. in suburban Detroit, sent huge clouds of smoke billowing into the air.

Southfield Police Lt. Floyd Raths said the pilot was killed. Four workers on the roof of the 14-floor building escaped injury, he added.

''It appeared that in the process of lifting some equipment from the building's roof that it lost power and crashed,'' Raths said.

The building, located on Nine Mile Road just east of the Southfield Freeway, forced police to temporarily close Nine Mile in the immediate area and caused a backup of traffic on the freeway.

Raths said the building was evacuated following the crash.

NEW YORK (APRIL 28) UPI - Journalist and playwright Bella Spewack, who co-wrote the Tony Award-winning musical, ''Kiss Me Kate,'' and invented the Girl Scout cookie, died in her Manhattan home, a longtime friend said Saturday. She was 91.

Spewack, who rose to fame as a reporter with her exclusive interview of the woman who claimed to be Anastasia Romanov, the only surviving child of the executed czar of Russia, died of natural causes in her Upper West Side home Friday night, said her friend, Lois Elias.

Spewack, who was born Bella Cohen in Hungary and brought as an infant to New York, began her writing career as a journalist for the socialist New York Call, the New York Evening Mail, the New York World and the New York Evening World.

She later became a feature writer for the New York Herald Tribune and The New York Times.

Elias said during her career as a journalist, Spewack ''found the woman who claimed to be Anastasia and broke the story.''

Anastasia Nikolayevna was the youngest daughter of Emperor Nicholas II who was believed to have been executed in 1918 with the rest of her family following the October Revolution.

In 1922, she married Samuel Spewack and in their nearly 50 years of marriage, the couple wrote many plays for Hollywood and Broadway, Elias said.

Among them were ''Kiss Me Kate,'' which won the Tony Award for the 1948-1949 season and ''Leave It Two Me'' - two musicials which boasted scores by Cole Porter.

Other plays the Spewacks wrote included, ''Boy Meets Girl'' and ''My Three Angels.'' Among the movie scripts they wrote together were, ''Weekend at the Waldorf,'' and ''My Favorite Wife,'' which was remade into the 1963 film, ''Move Over Darling,'' starring Doris Day.

Elias said Spewack also worked as a publicist for the Girl Scouts and came up with the idea of the Girl Scout cookie as a way to ''help the Girl Scouts make money and get into the newspapers.''

Spewack, whose husband died in 1971, had no children and no known survivors, she said.

Elias said Spewack will be cremated and a memorial service was to be held at a later date.

WASHINGTON (APRIL 28) UPI - The battle over the 1991 defense budget has begun in earnest with a declaration from Defense Secretary Dick Cheney that it is Congress's turn to come up with Pentagon cuts.

Cheney's blunt put-up-or-shut-up langauge - delivered after cutting back on six different aircraft programs - signals the start of the difficult days of budget writing that ultimately, Cheney said, could drag into a lame duck session in November.

Cheney's budget shows a two percent reduction in defense spending for the fiscal year that starts Oct. 1, and forecasts similar reductions in the future. He asked for $303 billion in actual cash and proposed $307 billion in budget authority, or permission to spend for programs both in 1991 and into the future.

But even one of his kindest supporters on Capitol Hill, Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., head of the Senate Armed Services Committee, wants far deeper cuts: an extra $18 billion in budget authority and $6 billion in cash outlays. In political terms, once the influential Georgian set out figures, they became a ceiling on the amount Cheney is likely to get.

The days ahead will not be easy for either Cheney or Congress. Cheney has a few more potential budget cuts to come up with - several other key programs are under review, but they do not hold enough in the way of immediate savings to reach the target laid out by Nunn.

Unless Congress decides on its own to start canceling programs, that leaves only force structure and operations - the size of the armed forces, the number of ships kept at sea and the length of their trips, and the number of flying hours - for Congress to use to save money.

Canceling programs or closing bases will put members on the spot, and even while Cheney talked about saving money with cutbacks in aviation programs, some were scrambling to preserve canceled programs.

For instance, Cheney said that in 1991 Congress should buy just two, not six, of the new C-17 transport plane being developed and built by McDonell Douglas.

Sen. Alan Dixon, D-Ill., who has some constituents employed by the aerospace firm, asked Cheney: ''Could you live with a larger beginning?''

Cheney knows Congress is certain to cut his budget further and told Nunn's committee that if that is the case, ''You ain't seen nothing yet. I'm going to be back up here with some cuts that will knock your socks off.''

But for the moment, Cheney wants Congress to take on the task for itself.

''If they've got a better plan, let them put it out there. If they've got the votes to change it and give us a different set of requirements, produce them,'' said Cheney in a session with reporters after presenting his cuts to Congress.

''It's easy to sit on Capitol Hill as an individual member of Congress and make pronouncements about 'Well they've got to produce this or produce that.' That's all talk. Let's vote. Let's see them sit down and start to produce a product. ... It's time for them to get on with the business of trying to pass a budget,'' he said.

One area Congress may be especially anxious to examine is the controversial B-2 stealth bomber. Cheney already has cut it from $75 billion and 132 planes to 75 planes for $61 billion, but there is still considerable anti-stealth sentiment.

While Cheney was arguing for retention of 75 planes, opponents were claiming they had 200 of the 218 votes needed in the House to halt the project at 16 planes developed and built for about $27 billion.

Even conservatives were edgy about Cheney's cutback of the B-2. Although he said it was in response to a lessened threat, some thought he was just trying to get out ahead of Congress, or at least keep even with calls for reductions.

''What is different on the B-2 now than three months ago that we had to have 132 three months ago and now 75 will do the job? Is it because you think Congress is going to do it anyway. I think maybe that if we can go from 132 to 75, I may start saying, 'Well, 16 is fine,''' said Sen. Trent Lott, R-Miss.

MEMPHIS, TN (APRIL 28) UPI - Democratic Rep. Harold Ford, Tennessee's first black congressman, will likely be retried on corruption charges following a mistrial in which jurors said voting was split along racial lines, a federal prosecutor said Saturday.

U.S. District Judge Odell Horton declared a mistrial Friday in the case against Ford and three other men after the jury reported itself deadlocked following four days of deliberations.

U.S. Attorney John Gill in Knoxville, who brought the charges against Ford called the turn of events in the three-month trial ''very bizarre'' and said the government would retry the case.

''We generally retry cases,'' Gill said. ''We felt like we had a case that had to be brought.''

Ford, 44, was charged with 19 counts of bank fraud, mail fraud and conspiracy to defraud the government. He has waged a bitter battle for vindication since his 1987 indictment, accusing prosecutors of political and racist motivations.

Three bank executives - Karl Schledwitz, David Crabtree and Douglas Beaty - stood trial with the eight-term Democratic congressman on charges of funneling bank loans to him through bogus channels.

Despite the possibility of a retrial, Ford called Friday's decision a victory.

''I cannot express in words how pleased I am that the jury decided that the government did not have sufficient evidence to sustain the charges that were brought against me some three years ago,'' said Ford, who had predicted a quick acquittal and would have faced 95 years in prison if convicted of all charges.

''I never believed such evidence existed and now I am confident of that,'' he said. ''The government has spent millions of dollars and my co-defendants and I have spent millions on our defense. The pain for the community and my family has been tremendous as well.''

Ford's lawyer, William McDaniels, said: ''If the consequence is a retrial, we'll be ready. But I think it would be very much wiser if the government could review what happened in this case, look at the evidence and decide that this should be the end of it. But that's a decision they'll have to make.''

The jury of eight blacks and four whites declared itself ''hopelessly deadlocked'' Wednesday, one day after deliberations began. Horton refused to declare a mistrial at that time and ordered the jury to continue meeting.

Few jurors chose to talk about the trial after their release Friday, but two who did said the voting was split along racial lines.

''I'm afraid to say this, but it was along racial lines,'' said Carolyn Hyman, who works for the Memphis city schools.

John Selmon, 66, a retiree who served on the panel, said, ''The four white jurors voted for guilty and we didn't. I voted not guilty for all of them.''

In the 10-week trial, the government contended Ford took $1.5 million in fraudulent loans from banks controlled by brothers Jake and C.H. Butcher Jr. of Knoxville in 18 payments between 1976 and 1983.

In return, Ford, who runs a powerful Memphis political machine and never has faced a serious re-election challenge, delivered the votes of Tennessee's biggest city to Jake Butcher in the banker's unsuccessful race for governor in 1978, prosecutors charged.

The Butchers ran a billion-dollar network of 20 banks in Tennessee and Kentucky until it collapsed because of bad loans in 1983. The Butchers are serving 20-year sentences for funneling millions of dollars in bank money to themselves. C.H. Butcher pleaded guilty to two counts in the Ford indictment.

ORLANDO, FL (APRIL 28) UPI - Health and Human Services Secretary Louis Sullivan called on Americans Saturday to create a new ''culture of character'' to win the war against illicit drugs, alcohol and cigarettes.

''We must return to our fundamental cultural values and traditional beliefs, recapture the spirit of family and rebuild a sense of community among Americans,'' Sullivan told several thousand adults and children at the 13th annual PRIDE conference.

About 8,000 parents, educators and teens attended the Atlanta organization's week-long conference, which concluded Saturday.

Sullivan said surveys of high school seniors show progress in the fight against drugs but he said he is very disturbed that the surveys show continuing high levels of alcohol and tobacco use.

The administrator pointed to a Health and Human Services study that showed about 10,000 Americans between 16 and 24 die each year in alcohol-related accidents and suicides.

He called alcohol ''America's biggest drug problem among youth.''

Part of the answer to these problems is for Americans to watch over each other and themselves, Sullivan said.

''Besides alcohol and drug abuse, so many other problems before us - a high infant mortality rate, teen pregnancy, violence, diseases like AIDS - result in part from the erosion of values like family, community and personal responsibility,'' he said.

Sullivan said when he was growing up adults in his neighborhood acted as substitute parents when he was out of sight of his own parents.

The administrator said he chafed at the supervision at the time but now realizes he owes much of his success to his neighbors and the values they helped him learn.

''In short, my neighborhood built around me a culture of character,'' he said.

That kind of culture and team work will help create a better future for America and its youth, Sullivan said.

ONE OFF THE BLOCK: The five teen heartthrobs, New Kids on the Block, are down to four for the remainder of their first European tour. Danny Wood stepped on a stuffed animal that a fan threw onstage during Thursday night's show in Manchester, England, and the result was a twisted ankle with severely strained ligaments. The group's management wants him 100 percent healthy for the summer tour that starts in mid-June so Wood is returning home to Boston.

DIZZY ABROAD: Ellington may have been a duke but Gillespie is an ambassador. Jazz legend Dizzy Gillespie, who recently returned from performing at the inauguration of Namibian President Sam Nujoma, embarks next month on an East bloc tour that will include concerts before Vaclav Havel in Czechoslavakia, Lech Walesa in Poland, Raisa Gorbachev in Moscow and Willy Brandt in Berlin. ''With everything coming together in Eastern and Western Europe, I thought it would be nice if music got involved too '' Gillespie said. ''They go crazy for jazz over there. They collect your records. I've signed records over there I've never seen before.'' He's 72 years old but Gillespie says he can handle a touring pace that will have him playing four countries in four days. ''I'm fortunate that I can sleep standing up,'' he said. ''I can sleep anywhere. I step into an airplane and sometimes I don't even hear the guy say, 'Fasten your seatbelt.''' Gillespie's show will include his song ''Brother K,'' a tribute to slain civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr.

COMO CLASSIC: Crooner Perry Como works every year to promote the Duke

Children's Classic, a celebrity golf tournament that benefits the Duke Children's Hospital in Durham, N.C., nicknamed the City of Medicine. So last week Como was named a ''City of Medicine ambassador'' but played down his contribution. ''I sing a verse of ''Carolina Moon'' and that's all I do for the classic anymore,'' he said. This year's tournament will be held on May 18.

MUSICAL SUITS: Milan Williams, one of the original seven members of the Commodores singing group, is suing three current members for allegedly plotting to expel him last year and deny him his share of the group's profits. Williams, who filed the suit Friday in Los Angeles against Walter Orange, William King and J.D. Nicholas, wants $150,000 in compensatory damages and unspecified punitive and exemplary damages. Trouble had started within the group when Williams said he wouldn't go along with the group's plans to play in South Africa ... Irving Music Co. is suing the production company that made ''Summer Dreams,'' the movie about the Beach Boys airing Sunday night, alleging it lied to win permission to use Beach Boys songs.

GLIMPSES: Last weekend Sylvester Stallone unveiled a painting - his interpretation of the Berlin Wall - at a private Los Angeles nightclub and signed it with a felt-tipped marker. He will have a bigger exhibit at a Los Angeles gallery in August ... Animal rights looks like the hot celebrity cause for June. A group says a slew of stars are endorsing its March for the Animals set for June 10 in Washington, D.C. The group says it has endorsements from Kim Basinger, Melanie Griffith, Candice Bergen, Milton Berle, Ed McMahon, Bea Arthur, Ali MacGraw, Christopher Reeve, River Phoenix, Mel Torme, Sid Caesar and others ... Timothy Busfield will spend his vacation from ''thirtysomething'' on Broadway. Starting May 12, he will replace Tom Hulce in ''A Few Good Men.''

WASHINGTON (APRIL 28) UPI - Thousands of anti-abortion activists, hoping to mount the largest ever political rally in the nation's capital, gathered Saturday at the Washington Monument to prove their movement is stronger than ever.

With an unusually warm April day and sunny skies shining down on them, demonstrators - many wearing shorts and sporting picnic baskets along with placards demanding abortion be outlawed - streamed from subways and buses onto the monument grounds for a daylong rally featuring an appearance by Vice President Dan Quayle and a telephone address by President Bush.

''This will be the largest event the movement has ever seen,'' said Olivia Gans of the National Right to Life Committee, an organizer of the rally. ''This is a very important day for us, a day for reaffirming the purposes the movement has had at its heart since its beginning.''

At 1:30 P.M. EDT, U.S. Park Police gave an initial estimate of 60,000 people gathered on the monument grounds.

The mood of the demonstrators ranged from the festive to the religious.

Near the White House, a small group of demonstrators held a prayer vigil. Others, carrying placards demanding ''stop abortion,'' spread blankets and enjoyed picnic lunches as entertainers, such as Christian pop singer Sandi Patti, played and sang from the stage.

Supporters of legal abortion and the 1973 Supreme Court decision that made most abortions legal, however, dismissed the rally as unrepresentative of the nation's mood on the volatile abortion issue.

''A one-day show of strength cannot match the growing political power of America's pro-choice majority,'' said Kate Michelman, executive director of the National Abortion Rights Action League in a brief statement.

Even before National Right to Life's ''celebration of life'' rally began, about 100 supporters of the militant Operation Rescue, which seeks to shut down abortion clinics and women's health facilities, staged an early morning protest and pray-in at a Planned Parenthood clinic in northwest Washington.

But District of Columbia police said the protest was without incident and clinic director Mary Vandenbroucke said, ''We had all the staff and patients in as early as possible. We didn't have any problem and we were able to deliver services normally.''

According to organizers of the rally, the demonstration was to be upbeat, a non-confrontational effort to remind politicians and the news media that the movement to end legal abortion was stronger and bigger than ever following the Supreme Court's decision in July 1989 that gave states more power to limit and regulate abortion.

Both sides of the debate have claimed the political momentum since the court ruling but in some of the most well-publicized legislative and political cases, supporters of legal abortion have beaten back efforts to narrow the abortion rights. On Friday, Connecticut passed a state-level measure enshrining the federal right to abortion in state law.

NEW YORK (APRIL 28) UPI - ''A Chorus Line,'' Broadway's longest running show ever, was set to dance into history Saturday night after 6,137 performances with a final benefit blast attended by the original 1975 cast.

The final curtain was expected to fall at a benefit performance at the Shubert Theater for the New York Shakespeare Festival, which originally produced it. Ticket prices ranged from $80 to $500.

The entire original cast of 31 ''gypsies,'' headed by star Donna McKechnie was scheduled to be in attendance and join festival founder Joseph Papp on stage along with stage crew and orchestra. There have been 479 actors and actresses in the successive casts of ''A Chorus Line,'' some of whom also will be in the audience.

The show outlived its director and choreographer Michael Bennett and the co-author of its book, James Kirkwood. Otherwise, almost everyone connected with the show was expected to be in attendance including designer Theoni V. Aldridge. Others invited to the show were Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., and City Council President Andrew Stein.

Some 800 celebrity guests headed by Papp and actress Colleen Dewhurst were to go on to dinner and improvised entertainment at Mamma Leone's restaurant for the largest closing party ever given a Broadway show. Mamma's major domo, Joe Montalbano, promised plenty of Italian food and wine.

Broadway's ''One Singular Sensation'' began as a workshop production at Papp's Public Theater and was given an off-Broadway production before moving to the Shubert Theater July 25, 1975. Its net proceeds has been the major financial support of the Shakespeare Festival, which runs five theaters at the Public Theater and gives summer performances in Central Park.

Announcement in February that the musical would close March 31 resulted in such a rush of ticket sales that the closing date was re-set for April 28.

''We've been selling out ever since the closing was announced,'' said show spokesman Merle Debuskey, ''It's been extraordinary.

''We took in $500,000 at the box office this week, compared to the take of $128,000 the week before the closing was announced. I would say that in the past eight weeks the show has made close to $2 million for the Shakespeare Festival.''

Papp said Thursday that the festival is more than $2.5 million in debt at present and the closing of ''A Chorus Line'' came at a very bad time.

''You can never raise enough money, but this show has been our chief support for years,'' Papp said. ''It has been like having a state subsidy. We have been self-supporting and didn't have to go to government sources for funds. It's the end of an era.''

SEATTLE (APRIL 28) UPI - A Soviet helicopter pilot who suffered radiation poisoning while dropping sealant on the leaking Chernobyl nuclear plant in 1986 was in stable condition Saturday after a seven-hour bone marrow transplant, doctors said.

Anatoly Grischenko ''handled the transplant process very well,'' said Susan Edmonds, spokeswoman for the Fred Hutchinson Cancer Research Center where the Soviet helicopter pilot arrived earlier this month for treatment.

''He accepted the marrow without major problems. Now we'll be waiting and watching to see that no complications develop,'' she said.

Grischenko, 53, suffering from a ''pre-leukemia-type condition,'' began the seven-hour transplant procedure at 6:53 p.m. Friday, only minutes after Dr. Patricia Stewart arrived from Europe with bone marrow ''harvested'' from a French woman. The surgery ended at about 1 a.m.

The operation involves transfusing marrow cells into the heart to make their way through the bloodstream and into the patient's bone marrow. There they begin producing new blood cells to replace cells killed or harmed by the disease.

The first 100 days are crucial as doctors monitor the patient for signs of organ rejection. Doctors say Grischenko has a 25 percent to 75 percent chance of survival.

Grischenko's condition is ''not a classic case,'' said Alice Burgess, another center spokeswoman. ''No one's done a transplant like this before. It's rare that anyone gets a look at a patient with his kind of radiation exposure.''

The veteran helicopter pilot, who is regarded as a hero in the Soviet Union, was exposed to high amounts of radiation while hovering over the burning Chernobyl nuclear reactor, which exploded in 1986 and sent clouds of radiation over Soviet Georgia and western Europe.

Grischenko and other pilots maneuvered their choppers above the burning reactor to drop concrete and wet sand to stem the spread of radiation. Doctors believe Grischenko's incipient blood cancer is a direct result of his radiation exposure.

Radiation and chemotherapy were used to kill diseased blood cells before the transplant and earlier this month he underwent studies to calculate how much radiation he could tolerate.

Grischenko and his wife were brought to the Hutchinson center largely through the effort of Cap Parlier, a U.S. pilot who heard at the Paris Air Show last year that the Soviet aviator was ill. He urged medical, political and corporate officials in the United States and Soviet Union to bring Grischenko to the center in Seattle, which is known for its bone marrow transplants.

Stewart had watched as physicians in the French village of Bresancon ''harvested'' the marrow from a 42-year-old woman, one of more than 170,000 people on registries of marrow donors in France, the United States the Netherlands and Canada.

Stewart took the marrow in insulated containers aboard a helicopter flight to Geneva, then to London and Seattle. Upon arrival she was taken directly to the center and the marrow transfusion began.

(APRIL 28) UPI - 10-thousand South Korean riot police followed a path plowed by bulldozers today as they stormed the shipbuilding complex of Hyundai Heavy Industries.

The police ousted 15-hundred workers who staged an over-night sit-in at the facility to demand the release of detained union leaders.

Today marked the fourth day of a strike by workers at Hyundai Heavy Industries. Police say nearly 250 workers were arrested.

South Korea's news agency and radio stations at the scene say it took police about 30 minutes to gain control of most of the facility- despite fierce resistance from the strikers. News reports say there are many injured workers.

But the heavy show of force and the forcible tactics authorities employed to quell the labor unrest may NOT produce the result officials desired. Authorities had hoped that by storming the facility, the government could block labor unrest from spreading toward May Day.

However, labor unions at 13 other companies of the Hyundai Group have threatened to go on strike in support of the workers at Hyundai Heavy Industries.

(APRIL 28) UPI - The National Weather Service predicts skies will clear up over Texas today following two days of severe weather that pummeled the Lone Star State.

Authorities say the initial death toll following the heavy rain-produced flooding is at least four, a figure that could rise as flood waters recede.

Before passing out of other parts of Texas, the front produced a flurry of funnel clouds.

Authorities do NOT have an exact count of the number of tornadoes spawned by the vicious system. However, a preliminary count indicates seven twisters touched down last night.

The tornadoes and accompanying winds and rain have knocked down power lines and caused a spate of accidents on slickened roadways.

Despite the slackening of precipitation, flooding continues as runoff caused already fomenting rivers and streams in the north-central and western regions of the state to flow over their banks.

(APRIL 28) UPI - Nicaragua's private economic sector is reacting with skepticism to a plan by newly inaugurated President Chamorro to introduce capitalist-style reforms.

Chamorro's plan is designed to curb inflation by cutting the value of Nicaragua's currency in half against the dollar.

The president of the Central Bank and Chamorro's chief economic planner promises that once a new currency is introduced in July, the high inflation that Nicaragua is accustomed to will be gone.

The annual inflation rate in Nicaragua was 33-thousand percent in 1988... but by last year, it had dropped to 17-hundred percent.

Officials say the devaluation against the dollar is part of an effort to do away with the black market and create a single value for the cordoba.

(APRIL 28) UPI - Tempers remain raw but it's quiet this morning at the St. Regis Indian Reservation in upstate New York.

The pro-gambling Warrior Society opened fire on the reservation's police headquarters yesterday, engaging 11 officers in a half-hour gunbattle. NO injuries are reported.

But the gunfight resulted in about 300 Mohawks fleeing the reservation. They crossed the St. Lawrence River and sought refuge in the Canadian city of Cornwall. Police in Cornwall say they're trying to find temporary shelter for the escapees from the increasingly violent situation.

St. Regis authorities have requested intervention by both Canadian and New York authorities to resolve the simmering dispute.

Tempers have been on edge in St. Regis since July... when state police and F-B-I agents raided gambling casinos on the reervation. Pro-gambling forces contend the closure of casinos violated the reservation's sovereignty.

(APRIL 28) UPI - A blackout occurred in the East Bay area of San Francisco last night during two earthquakes and a smaller temblor.

NO injuries are reported. And there are NO reports of quake damage- except for the power outage. About 13-hundred homes and businesses in Concord were blacked out.

A Pacific Gas and Electric Company spokesman says the quake apparently shook some equipment, which shut itself off.

Officials at the U-S Geological Survey say the quakes were centered around Walnut Creek and were a continuation of a swarm of temblors that jiggled the San Francisco area several days ago. Last night's quakes registered four-point-six and four-point-three on the Richter scale.

The quakes caused several seconds of rolling, shuddering motions that many people described as ''strong.'' But the temblors were only lightly felt, if at all, in San Francisco a few miles to the west.

WASHINGTON (APRIL 28) UPI - Amid the roar of jets and the sight of floating debris, President Bush, accompanied by an armada of Coast Guard and police boats, went fishing Saturday in the Potomac River.

''What do you think?'' boasted Bush, showing off two of the ''14 to 15'' large-mouthed bass that he said his party pulled from the waters during their five-hour expedition. ''That was great.''

The presidential fishing trip also was somewhat of a monumental event.

It began at shortly past dawn on the waters' edge in southeast Washington, went down Potomac, past National Airport and beyond the Woodrow Wilson Bridge in Alexandria, Va.

Officially, Bush had just two fishing partners, Jim Vance, an anchorman for WRC-TV in Washington, and Agnus Phillips, an outdoors writer with The Washington Post.

But the president's small boat also was accompanied by a half dozen Coast Guard and police boats carrying sharpshooters and Secret Service agents, and a Coast Guard tug, packed with about two dozen reporters and photographers.

Overhead a helicopter hovered.

When the 12-mile, round-trip was over, a smiling Bush would only talk about his day on the river and waved off questions about Lithuania.

Asked about all the garbage in the river, ranging from old tires and tennis balls to bottles and plastic containers, Bush noted that the Potomac is much cleaner now than a decade ago.

''I'm delighted it has come back as far as it has,'' he said.

Then, Bush climbed back into his limousine and returned to the White House.

DELAWARE CITY, DE (APRIL 28) UPI - More than 1 million pounds of carbon monoxide from the Star Enterprise Oil Refinery has been leaking into the air for days, but company officials Saturday said there is no cause for concern.

The carbon monoxide apparently has been leaking since Thursday night, and the leak is allowing 80,000 pounds carbon monoxide to escape per hour.

A company spokeswoman said the leak is due to breakdown of pollution control equipment on the main petroleum cracker. The cracker takes raw crude oil and turns it into gas and other petroleum products.

When functioning properly, the equipment would allow for the escape of carbon dioxide, officials said.

Company officials said they had to wait until the unit had sufficiently cooled before allowing workers to begin taking a look at the problem Saturday afternoon.

Star and state environmental officials said carbon monoxide quickly rises into the atmosphere and should not pose a health risk to the general public.

Reports in the Wilmington News-Journal earlier in the week indicated the state has not kept pace with inspections of refinery crackers, because of staffing shortages.

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (APRIL 28) UPI - Exiled African National Congress officials given safe passage to South Africa met Saturday with internal ANC leaders in advance of talks with the government, but a radical breakaway movement denounced the peace effort as a sell-out.

The racially exclusive Pan Africanist Congress, which split with the ANC in 1959 and is said to be actively recruiting new members, turned a funeral for founding member Japhta ''Tiger'' Masemola into a rally against next week's preliminary round of peace talks.

''He did not believe in appeasement and that word did not exist in his vocabulary,'' PAC President Zeph Mothopeng said of the 59-year-old Masemola, one of the country's longest serving political prisoners who was released last year and died in a car crash a week ago.

''Slaves have nothing to gain from negotiating with their masters,'' Mothopeng said, speaking in the black township of Atteridgeville near Pretoria to a crowd of 1,500, many carrying banners of the PAC and its military arm, the Azanian People's Liberation Army.

Activists occasionally jeered at white journalists covering the event, saying ''one bullet, one settler.''

The PAC, which was unbanned by President Frederik de Klerk at the same time he lifted sanctions against the ANC, has rejected the proposed talks with the ruling National Party and accused de Klerk of trying to pack the negotiating table with ''collaborators.''

Cunningham Nqcukana, the assistant general secretary of the pro-PAC National Council of Trade Unions, attacked the ANC Saturday for agreeing to exploratory talks with the government and said the PAC's only recourse was to escalate its own limited guerrilla campaign.

The backlash came a day after five exiled ANC leaders flew to Cape Town from their headquarters in Lusaka, returning home for the first time in nearly 30 years to participate in next week's talks with de Klerk and eight other senior government officials.

The five exiles, including chief architects of the ANC's armed struggle, were given temporary safe passage to South Africa to attend the talks.

The three-day meeting - the first official talks between the ANC and the government in South Africa's history - are expected to address obstacles standing in the way of the ANC's participation in formal power-sharing negotiations.

Three South African-based members of the ANC's 11-member delegation, including white anti-apartheid Afrikaner Cleri Beyers Naude, flew to Cape Town Saturday to rendezvous with the exiles.

Nelson Mandela, who leads the delegation, was scheduled to fly to chilly Cape Town late Saturday night in advance of a rain-threatened rally Sunday in the mixed-race township of Mitchell's Plain. City officials were called in Saturday to drain water from the athletic field where the rally is scheduled to be held.

When the two delegations meet Wednesday the pressure will be on both sides to keep the prospects for formal negotiations on track.

The ANC, backed by a declaration approved in Harare by South Africa's black-ruled neighboring states, insists de Klerk must lift a 4-year-old state of emergency, release all political prisoners and grant amnesty to exiles before power-sharing negotiations begin.

At the same time de Klerk has insisted on an unequivocal statement by the ANC for a suspension of the limited armed struggle it has waged since 1961 - a demand the ANC has said it is unwilling to meet until the path toward an apartheid-free South Africa is irreversible.

WASHINGTON (APRIL 28) UPI - Text of President Bush's remarks Saturday to the anti-abortion rally:

Thank you for the introduction, and thank you as well for your commitment to life. Incidentally, this magnificent rally looks very very good on television. How do I know? Because I've seen some of it.

I want to pay my respects to our able vice president, Dan Quayle, thank him for his commitment, to other members of Congress that are there, to Dr. (J.C.) Wilkie, to Dr. (James) Dobson, and a special greeting to my friend, Your Eminences, Cardinal (John) O'Connor and Cardinal (James) Hickey, and others that might be in attendance.

I'm very pleased to have this opportunity to express to you my deeply held views about abortion on demand. In January of this year I addressed the March for Life on this very issue. And I said then, and reaffirm now, that your presence on the Mall today reminds all of us in government that Americans from all walks from life are committed to preserving the sanctity and dignity of human life.

Like you, I realize that the widespread prevalence of abortion in America is a tragedy, not only in terms of lives destroyed, but because it is so fundamentally contradicts the values that we as a nation hold dear. And when I look at adopted children I give thanks that their parents chose life.

Today, as a nation of faith and compassion, our mission must be to help more and more Americans make the right choice - the choice for life.

One day, your life saving message will have reached and influenced every American. And until then continue to work for the day when respect for human life is sacrosanct and beyond question.

I know from your devotion and selflessness that this day cannot be far away.

God bless you, and God bless life.

Thank you very very much.

LEADVILLE, CO (APRIL 28) UPI - Searchers located the wreckage Saturday of a small plane that crashed in the rugged Colorado mountains during a snowstorm a day earlier, apparently killing all aboard, authorities said.

A television news helicopter spotted the plane Saturday about 10 miles northwest of Leadville. More than a foot of new snow was reported, and the plane crash triggered an avalanche, a Pitkin County sheriff's dispatcher said.

Six people were believed on board the plane, and KUSA-TV pilot Peter Peelgrane reported there were no survivors.

The single-engine plane was reported missing Friday after being overdue on a flight from Salt Lake City to Colorado Springs, said Capt. Dieter Hantschel of the Colorado Civil Air Patrol.

A storm and steep terrain hampered efforts by rescue teams to reach the crash site, authorities said.

After spotting the plane, Peelgrane said he ''went back to Leadville and picked up one of the search and rescue people and carried him up there and landed reasonably close to where the wreck was.''

''He went in and confirmed there was no one alive,'' Peelgrane said.

Air Patrol personnel were dispatched but fog and snow prevented them from searching for the plane Friday and Saturday, officials said.

NEW YORK (APRIL 28) UPI - A top official in the city's Department of Buildings resigned from his job two days after a body was found outside his Manhattan apartment building, officials said Saturday.

Police refused to comment on a report in the New York Post that quoted an unnamed police source saying Peter Franconeri had ''panicked'' when he woke up to find a woman dead, then wrapped her body in a blanket and ''put her out front with the garbage in front of his house.''

But they said Franconeri was not a suspect in the death of the woman, identified as Sue Laurie Rosenthal, 29, whose body was found Thursday morning in front of an apartment in Manhattan.

Rosenthal's body had no apparent signs of trauma, police said. The medical examiner was to conduct an autopsy to determine the cause of death, officials said.

''The police spoke to him, and spoke to other people in the building,'' said Sgt. Norris Hollomon, a police spokesman. ''That's the extent of what we have.''

Hollomon said the case was being investigated by the Manhattan district attorney's office.

Vahe Tiryakian, a buildings department spokesman, said Franconeri had turned in his letter of resignation Thursday or Friday, saying he would leave the $83,459-a-year post as of Friday.

He asserted there was no connection between the discovery of the body and Franconeri's departure.

''I don't know what his private motives were, but it was definitely in connection with the restructuring and reorganization that took place some weeks ago,'' Tiryakian said.

''We had no knowledge whatsoever of his personal life,'' he said. ''The incident that's reported came as much a surprise to us as it did to everyone else.''

Franconeri, said by Tiryakian to be in his mid-40s, worked at the Department of Buildings for 10 months supervising inspectors of elevators and boilers.

WASHINGTON (APRIL 28) UPI - President Bush praised the work of the anti-abortion movement Saturday, promising 200,000 demonstrators that one day their ''life saving message will have reached every American.''

Bush called abortion ''a human tragedy'' that ''so fundamentally contradicts the values we as Americans hold dear.''

''One day, your life saving message will have reached and influenced every American,'' Bush told the crowd through a telephone hook-up from the White House. ''And until then, continue to work for the day when respect for human life is sacrosanct and beyond question.''

The president was approvingly and warmly cheered by the festive, religious crowd, gathered at the foot of the Washignton Monument as if for a big, national church picnic.

But National Right to Life's hope to mount the largest political rally in the nation's capital appeared to founder, with U.S. Park Police estimating the crowd at 200,000 at 4:00 p.m. EDT.

Organizers had hoped to rally more than 300,000 people - the number who attended a pro-choice rally a year ago.

The demonstration's smaller-than-expected size is likely to fuel the contention of abortion rights' supporters that the political momentum on the volatile issue has switched and is with those who support the Supreme Court's 1973 decision legalizing most abortions.

''The central question in the abortion debate is, 'who decides,''' said Kate Michelman, head of the National Abortion Rights Action League, ''and Americans have answered that it is women and their families who must make these intensely personal decisions.''

Still, the tens of thousands of participants at ''the rally for life'' were upbeat and determined to continue their 17-year-old drive to reverse the Supreme Court decision and end legal abortion.

''We are not losing, we are winning, despite what (National Organization for Women president) Molly Yard has to say,'' Cynthia Gans, a National Right to Life official told the cheering crowd. ''And who listens to Molly Yard anyway.''

Rep. Henry Hyde, R-Ill., brought the cheering crowd to their feet by invoking a litany of liberal feminist villains:

''We just want to show America that Jane Fonda, Molly Yard, Betty Friedan and Whoopi Goldberg don't speak for all of America.''

The demonstrators came from across the nation, some riding buses for as many as 12-to-15 hours. They carried placards identifying themselves as members of the Knights of Columbus and United Methodists for Life, as Presbyterians, evangelicals and fundamentalists.

At one point, some demonstrators lofted a huge, 15-foot transparent balloon with a model fetus floating inside.

They gave some of their loudest cheers for Vice President Dan Quayle, who called the rally ''a powerful demonstration of your commitment and your caring.''

''Today, we confront a national tragedy,'' Quayle said. ''An infant can be aborted for almost any reason up to the time of birth. The great majority of Americans in poll after poll object to that. They may disagree about how best to turn the situation around, but a great majority stand together against the terrible reality of unlimited abortion on demand.''

The vice president also made a reference to the dispute within his own party in which some Republicans leaders claim the GOP ''tent'' is large enough to include people with both views.

Quayle, however, said abortion opponents were the ''overwhelming majority'' in the nation and ''constitutes the largest coalition - I might add - the biggest tent - in American politics.''

The crowd gave the vice president a standing ovation.

With an unusually warm April day and sunny skies shining down on them, demonstrators - many wearing shorts and sporting picnic baskets along with placards demanding abortion be outlawed - streamed from subways and buses onto the monument grounds for the daylong rally.

Indeed, it was the heat that caused most of the problems. Red Cross volunteers at one of three medical tents said they had sent five people to area hospitals and treated another 300 for various heat-related problems.

Particpants, many of them families with small children, teenagers and college students, chanted ''pro-life, pro-life, pro-life'' between speakers, and ''tell the truth, tell the truth'' as speakers such as Roman Catholic Cardinal John O'Connor of New York made points with which they agreed.

WASHINGTON (APRIL 29) UPI - About 500 people rallied Saturday in support of communism, denouncing the Soviet Union and Mikhail Gorbachev as traitors and insisting worldwide movements favoring capitalism eventually will be reversed.

The May Day rally was followed by a two-hour march that passed by the Soviet Embassy, where flag-waving protesters made obscene gestures toward the building and chanted, ''traitors,'' and, ''Gorbachev you liar, we'll set your ass on fire.''

''The old communist movement built around the Soviet Union is dead, and we're in the process of building a new movement,'' said one marcher, about 40 years old, who walked with a loudspeaker atop a pole blaring out the shouts of rally leaders.

The man, who declined to be identified because he said communist leaders should take no action to elevate themselves personally, refused to express any discouragement over recent world events.

''We did this to make the point that unlike what is said in the bourgeois press, communism is alive and well,'' the man said as the march concluded across the street from the White House.

The annual May Day rally was organized by the Progressive Labor Party and attended by supporters bused in from northeastern U.S. cities and as far west as Detroit. A companion rally was scheduled in Los Angeles.

About 600 people planning to travel from New York City elected to remain behind after an independent bus contractor hired by the party showed up with 14 buses from Greyhound, whose unionized workers went on strike March 2, organizers said.

An organizer who identified himself only as Jed from Boston said some older demonstrators were long-time Communist Party members, but that many were much younger.

The march began at predominantly black Howard University, with many of the younger participants holding signs protesting racism and linking it to capitalism.

The man carrying the pole and loudspeaker said the Soviet leadership turned its back on the spirit of communism as early as the 1950s, when it began allowing itself special privileges and introducing wage incentives.

He said he holds his optimism for communism by remembering a longer view of history, in which he said people being oppressed, as far back as the Egyptian pharoahs, eventually rise up in revolution.

WASHINGTON (APRIL 28) UPI - Three journalists were cited Saturday for outstanding reporting on stories ranging from the export of U.S. garbage to a series on the budget crisis in the Veterans Department health care.

The awards for excellence in reporting were to be presented at the annual White House Correspondents Association dinner.

Norman D. Sandler, 36, a United Press International reporter for the past 14 years, was named winner of the Merriman Smith award for deadline reporting. Smith was a longtime UPI White House reporter.

Sandler, a native of Des Moines, Iowa, has been a UPI White House reporter for the past seven years.

Bill Lambrecht of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch was named the winner of the Raymond Clapper Memorial Award and Christopher Scanlon of Knight-Ridder was selected as the winner of the Barnet Nover Memorial Award.

Lambrecht won the Clapper award and its $1,500 first prize for his series on the export of U.S. garbage. Second place and $500 went to John Hall of Media General for his series on the Navy's investigation of the explosion of the USS Iowa.

Scanlan won the Nover award and $1,500 for a series of articles on the budget crisis in the Veterans Department health care. Second prize and $500 was won by Andrew Melnykovych of the Casper, Wyo., Star-Tribune for his series on federal oil and gas royalty audits and the nomination of James Cason to be assistant secretary of agriculture.

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (APRIL 28) UPI - Candidates representing nearly two dozen political parties vying for 250 seats in Czechoslovakia's new legislature began campaigning Saturday for the first free elections in 42 years.

The scheduled national elections on June 8 are widely seen as a plebiscite against the Czechoslovak Communist Party and its catastrophic 41-year hold on power, but the competition is stiff among the new parties.

''It's difficult to see a difference between the parties, because we are all on the same side of the barricades against the Communists,'' said Jiri Horak, chairman of the Social Democratic Party.

''The real differences will appear in the elections two years hence,'' said Horak, who was a professor of political science at Manhattan College in New York until the Communist Party was ousted at home.

Candidates from 23 registered parties covering a broad political spectrum are competing for a two-year term in the 250-seat new Federal Assembly.

The leading parties are the Civic Forum, which led the pro-democracy movement that overthrew the Communist leadership, and its sister group in Slovakia, People Against Violence, along with the center-right coalition of Christian parties, the Social Democrats, the Green Party, and the Communists.

Lesser known parties include the Gypsy Party, parties of farmers, of former dissidents, of Slovak protestants and the reformist communist Czechoslovak Democratic Forum. There is even a Party of the Friends of Beer.

The major parties agree that improving the economy with market reforms is the most important task, but differ primarily on how far and how quickly to move.

Five months after Prime Minister Marian Calfa's government took office, backed by Civic Forum, dismay at the slow pace of economic reform, and other problems has soured the voters.

Many have been concerned that the Federal Assembly wasted valuable time on Slovak separatist issues, including the struggle over finding a new name for the former Czechoslovak Socialist Republic.

Slovak demands for equal status with Czechs has finally given the country the name the Czech and Slovak Federative Republic.

Amid worries that competition among the new parties could play in the hands of the Communists, the major parties have agreed to a clean campaign code of behavior.

The director of Czechslovak Television, Jiri Kanturek, took to the airwaves in a public admonition to journalists to report the campaign objectively.

President Vaclav Havel, the man who founded Civic Forum and led the revolution, is the great enigma of the campaign.

He is widely seen as Forum's trump card, but he has not yet taken an active role in supporting the party's campaign, saying he wants to remain a national referee, above party politics.

Most of the major parties have rejected potential Communist Party membership in a governing coalition, fearful that the party has not reformed at all, but is merely biding its time and consolidating power.

MOSCOW (APRIL 29) UPI - East German Prime Minister Lothar de Maiziere arrived in Moscow Saturday night for talks with President Mikhail Gorbachev on the new relationship between the two countries and the role of a united Germany in Europe.

De Maiziere, who heads a conservative-led coalition government, will hold two days of talks with Soviet officials in his first foreign trip since taking office three weeks ago.

He was scheduled to meet with Gorbachev, Prime Minister Nikolai Ryzhkov, Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze and Defense Minister Dmitry Yazov. In the East German delegation are Foreign Minister Markus Meckel, Economy Minister Gerhard Pohl and Disarmament and Defense Minister Rainer Eppelmann.

Discussions were likely to focus on the rapid moves toward a unified Germany and the changes in the Soviet-East German relationship since the Communists were swept from power in Berlin.

De Maiziere told the Soviet news agency Tass before leaving Berlin the two countries would still enjoy close ties.

''The Soviet Union is our largest foreign trade partner, and the German Democratic Republic is the major partner of the U.S.S.R.,'' de Maiziere said. ''There are very close relations in many fields. We hope to improve them even further.''

The Soviet-East German talks come a week before the start of ''two plus four'' talks on German reunification involving the two Germanys and the four World War II allies: the United States, Britain, France and the Soviet Union.

The Kremlin is expected to use the de Maiziere visit to Moscow to press East Germany not to drift too close to the NATO alliance. Soviet officials have said it would be unacceptable for unified Germany to be a member of NATO.

Shevardnadze proposed the idea of a German double membership in both NATO and the Warsaw Pact.

''This would allow the territory of Germany to become a test bed for cooperation between the blocs,'' Shevardnadze said in an interview with the Irish Times.

Meckel told the East German Parliament Thursday that the question of NATO membership was the most hotly debated issue in his ministry.

De Maiziere said the question would need to be answered within a complete new framework for European security.

''It is necessary to work out a transitional model for European security structures until the establishment of an all-European security order,'' de Maiziere told Tass.

He said both alliances should move away from their status as military blocs and focus instead on political alliances.

NEW YORK (APRIL 29) UPI - Eleven Brooklyn firefighters used axes and crowbars to beat back a mob of angry youths who was trying to ''finish off'' a teenager who had slashed the throat of one youth and was then stabbed himself, officials said Saturday.

The wild Friday night melee left four firefighters with minor injuries and shattered the plate glass window of a nearby McDonald's restaurant, but resulted in no arrests, said Sgt. Mary Wrensen, a police spokeswoman.

The violence erupted at 11:21 p.m., as Engine Co. 255 and Ladder Co. 157, returning from a false alarm, saw a group of youths milling about the intersection of Flatbush and Nostrand Avenues in the Midwood section.

The youths fled as the firefighters arrived, leaving Rubin Ramos, 25, lying on his face in a puddle of blood.

A 4-inch switchblade was buried up to its hilt in Ramos' lower back, said Lt. John Pritchard of Ladder Co. 157, whose engine was one of the two first on the scene.

''We saw one kid lying on the sidewalk with a knife sticking out of his back,'' Pritchard said. ''So we pursued this group and when we caught up to them, we found a second youth with his throat slashed.

''I think the only reason they stopped was that he couldn't go on any further.''

Pritchard speculated that Ramos managed to slash the throat of one of his attackers, later identified as Gregory Alford, 20, before being stabbed himself, possibly with his own knife. He was uncertain what sparked the violence.

Alford, bleeding from his throat wound, kicked in a McDonald's window as medical workers tried to treat him, he said.

Meanwhile, the mob of teens noticed that Ramos was being treated by firefighters and was apparently still alive.

''When the youths saw the guy with the knife in his back was still alive, they ran back and tried to finish him off,'' Pritchard said. ''That's when the trouble really started.''

Four firefighters formed a protective circle around Ramos, as his attackers, now armed with pipes, clubs, and knives, tried to reach the unconscious youth.

Pritchard said firefighters called for assistance, and armed themselves with hacksaws, axes, and crowbars, which they used to beat back the mob, who were lunging at the firefighters in an attempt to reach Ramos.

''They were going to kill this guy,'' Pritchard said. ''Our guys were still trying to work on him.... We grabbed a couple of them, and then things just started to get worse.''

''It just seemed like the whole thing took forever,'' he said.

Backup firefighters, police, and emergency medical technicians arrived 15 minutes later and the youths again fled, leaving the firefighters bruised and shaken but otherwise unhurt.

Ramos and Alford were taken to Kings County Hospital, where a hospital spokesman said both men were in fair condition.

Some of the clubs left at the scene were stained with blood, Pritchard said.

EL DESTINO, Nicaragua (APRIL 28) UPI - The top leader of the Contra rebels said Saturday his forces would not fulfill promises to set down their arms until the government of Violeta Chamorro begins to restructure the Sandinista army.

''The problem is not one man,'' said Israel Galeano, known as Commander Franklin, referring to the Sandinista military chief, Humberto Ortega, who Chamorro has retained to lead Nicaragua's armed forces.

Franklin and hundreds of other Contras who had concentrated at a camp at El Destino said Thursday they would reconsider an agreement to lay down their arms because of Chamorro's controversial decision.

''We are waiting to see what's going to happen in the war of words in Managua,'' Franklin told United Press International. He would not say whether the removal of Ortega is a necessary part of the restructuring the Contras are demanding, but his failure to mention the Sandinista leader by name indicated he might be softening his stance on the appointment.

''We wish that tomorrow they would guarantee us that the (restructuring) process has begun, and at the same time they would be guaranteeing the turnover of our weapons,'' he said.

''(The Chamorro government) has big problems. How are they going to reconcile the nation if they can't even reconcile themselves?'' Franklin said, referring to splits over the Ortega appointment within Chamorro's party, the National Opposition Union (UNO).

Chamorro assumed the presidency Wednesday from Daniel Ortega, Humberto's brother, after more than a decade of Sandinista rule. In her inauguration speech, she said Humberto Ortega would remain as chief of the army but she also indicated his appointment would be temporary and promised a reduction of the armed forces.

Since then, an anti-Sandinista faction of the UNO led by Vice President Virgilio Godoy has condemned the Ortega appointment. Lack of confidence in the stability of the government has also jeopardized the economic recovery plan the new government is trying to initiate.

Under an agreement signed April 19 by the rebels, the Sandinistas and the Chamorro government, the Contras were to move into specified security zones to disarm under U.N. supervision between April 25 and June 10, which is when the complete demobilization of the Contras is supposed to be completed.

Rebel commanders at El Destino, about 120 miles north of Managua, said some 4,000 rebels had entered security zone No. 1 in Esteli province by Saturday.

Uniformed and armed, the rebels are camped out at farmhouses along a 10-mile stretch of rough gravel road that winds through the mountainous terrain between the towns of Yali and La Rica.

From his command post, a farm on a lush green mountain top, Franklin said almost all of the Contras have reached their designated security zones. But he added that conditions are not yet ripe for the rebels to start turning in their weapons, mostly Soviet-designed AK-47 assault rifles that they captured from the Sandinistas.

Franklin said the rebels were holding out for a restructuring of the Sandinista Popular Army, known by its Spanish initials as the EPS.

''The first problem of the government is to restructure the system of authorities in this country,'' Franklin said. ''A public security force would give the citizenry confidence.

''Whether the EPS (Spanish acronym for the Sandinista Popular Army) is big or small, it is not going to create confidence. They are really of just one party, and they are illegal because they lost (the elections) on Feb. 25.''

Franklin implied the military should take the form of a non-partisan, police-style force.

Rebel leaders also complained that the United Nations and Organization of American States, which are monitoring the cease-fire and disarmament agreement, were not living up to a commitment to provide the Contras with donated food once they reached the security zones.

Luis Armando Sovalbarro, known as ''Commander Johnny,'' said food was arriving but in small quantities. He accused U.N. workers of trying to condition turning over food on the rebels first turning over weapons.

Franklin said Contra leaders had been invited to hold discussions with members of the Chamorro administration aimed at resolving problems surrounding the demobilization process, but he added, ''We are going to wait until they have put their emotions in order so that we can hold serious talks.''

MIAMI (APRIL 29) UPI - Former President Reagan, appearing before thousands of cheering Cuban exiles whose hopes have been lifted by changes in the communist world, Saturday called on Cuban leader Fidel Castro to hold free elections.

''Test yourself in a vote, Castro,'' Reagan said in a speech broadcast live to the Caribbean island. ''Let the voice of the Cuban people be heard.''

An estimated 17,000 Cuban exiles and their supporters gathered in Miami's Orange Bowl stadium to listen to Reagan. The former president, who spoke for about 15 minutes, was greeted by chants of ''Reagan, Reagan.''

''In police states, people do not speak freely or openly about their hopes, wishes and desires for the future,'' Reagan told the crowd. ''In the sanctity of the secret polling booth, however, the voice of freedom triumphs.''

Reagan said Radio Marti and the TV Marti - government-operated radio and television stations established to beam news and entertainment programming into Cuba - were helping to spread freedom to the island nation.

''So we can understand why Fidel Castro is so hysterical in his denunciation of TV Marti. What is he afraid of?'' Reagan said. ''He is afraid of the truth.''

A portion of the rally, including Reagan's speech, was broadcast live to Cuba via Radio Marti, which was created during the Reagan administration.

The station enjoys strong exile support, as does TV Marti, which Washington began testing last month.

''This is an authentic breakthrough in U.S. information programs because it is television that holds such promise and potential - the power of pictures, the visual images of freedom that are sweeping the world,'' Reagan said.

The Cuban government has responded to the television programming by jamming transmissions of both TV Marti and Radio Marti.

Reagan, noting this week's change of government in Nicaragua, described Castro as a ''fossil'' isolated by ideology.

''You are the only one left - isolated, rejected, beleaguered,'' Reagan said.

With the world around Castro changing, ''the anachronistic fossil Marxist lurches from one bad day to the next, alone, solo,'' Reagan said.

Reagan basked in the adoration of the crowd and other leaders gathered for the rally. Florida Gov. Bob Martinez, who called Reagan the grand champion in the fight against communism, presented him with a pair of boxer trunks with the word's ''world champ'' on them.

One exile, Renaldo Cruz-Pino of Miami, said Reagan ''has always had the image of being a great champion of the fight against oppression, the fight for freedom and human rights, and the fight against communism. He had a great message of hope for the Cuban exiles.''

The politically influential Cuban American National Foundation sponsored the rally. Jorge Mas Canosa, chairman of the group, said it was the first time Reagan's words had been broadcast live to Cuba.

Officials said Reagan did not receive an honorarium for his appearance.

Foundation Director Domingo Moreira said the rally was intended to unite south Florida's large Cuban community behind the effort to bring reform to Cuba, and to let Cubans still living on the island know about the campaign.

While waiting for Reagan to speak, those in the crowd listened to several hours of music and speeches. Many waved Cuban flags or hand-lettered signs calling for the ouster of Castro.

Pedro Jose Gonzalez, Dade County's community project coordinator for Latin affairs, said the rally will bring additional pressure to bear on Castro.

Although Miami's exile community has sought for years to oust the longtime leader, Gonzalez said many exiles have a fresh sense of hope.

''We're excited. We feel that Castro's days are numbered. Acts such as this bring additional pressure in what we believe are the final days,'' he said.

Noel Santana, who arrived in Miami in the 1980 Mariel boatlift, said it is important for all Cubans to work for freedom in their homeland.

''All the world knows Castro. All the world knows he is a monster. We don't have any liberties (in Cuba),'' he said. ''This is the end for Castro. I think this is the last year for Castro in Cuba.''

Auto Racing

Jeff Andretti became the third driver Saturday to pass all four phases of rookie orientation for the Indianapolis 500, making him eligible to join his father, brother and cousin in qualifying for the May 27 race.

Golf

Australian Peter Fowler, Steve Bowman of the United States and Spain's Jose Maria Olazabal were in a three-way tie for the lead after three rounds of the $495,000 Spanish Open in Madrid. They finished play Saturday at 7-under-par 209, one stroke ahead of second-round leader Roger Chapman of England, Scotland's Stephen McAllister, Bernhard Langer of West Germany and Spain's Miguel Martin.

Hockey

Czechoslovakia defeated Canada 3-2 and the Soviet Union shut out Sweden 3-0 in medal-round matches of the World Hockey Championships in Bern, Switzerland.

Tennis

Soviet Andrei Chesnokov will face Austrian Thomas Muster in the final of the $1 million Monte Carlo Open in Monaco. Chesnokov outlasted Emilio Sanchez of Spain 4-6, 6-1, 7-6 (7-2), while Muster needed 72 minutes to defeat Frenchman Henri Leconte 6-2, 6-3. Sunday's final will be the second meeting between the two players, with Muster winning the first. ... Top seed and hometown favorite Arantxa Sanchez reached Sunday's final of the $150,000 Seat Open in Barcelona, Spain after defeating Austrian Judith Wiesner 6-2, 6-1. Sanchez will meet West German Isabel Cueto, who beat Mary Joe Fernandez of Miami 7-5, 4-6, 6-4 in the other semifinal.

Yachting

The Mercury Bay Boating Club of New Zealand, two days after losing its last fight in court for the 1988 America's Cup, announced it will compete for yachting's most prestigious trophy in 1992. The New York Court of Appeals upheld Thursday a lower-court decision that ordered New Zealand to return the trophy to the San Diego Yacht Club, which it won in September 1988. New Zealand had been awarded temporary possession of the trophy after New York State Supreme Court ruled that San Diego sailed an unfair race against New Zealand by competing with a twin-hulled catamaran, an inherently faster boat than a monohull.

MOSCOW (APRIL 29) UPI - Syrian President Hafez Assad held four hours of talks on the Middle East with President Mikhail Gorbachev Saturday, and Tass said they both blamed the United States for slowing peace efforts.

The official Soviet news agency said Assad and Gorbachev held a one-on-one working lunch before being joined by other officials on both sides for further talks.

''Naturally, the sides paid much attention to the situation in the Middle East,'' Tass said. ''They agreed that the process of a general settlement and the convocation of a Middle East peace conference were being impeded by the United States.

''Its present stance on the Middle East is even worse than that of the previous administration,'' Tass said. ''As a result, Israeli leaders have no incentive to search for a real way out of the deadlock.''

The Soviet Union recently improved relations with Israel as the Kremlin stepped up efforts to play a key role in the Middle East peace process, and Saturday's criticism of the United States and Israel was harsh compared to other recent Soviet statements.

Syria has long been the Soviet Union's closest ally in the Arab world and for years Moscow sent Damascus sophisticated weapons to allow Assad to pursue ''strategic parity'' with Israel. Soviet military aid was also high on the agenda for the talks.

''The sides also discussed questions of further cooperation in modernizing the Syrian armed forces,'' Tass said without giving details. In September the Soviet Union announced it was considering cutting arms shipments to Syria.

The two leaders expressed concern that Israel had nuclear weapons, Tass said.

Assad told Gorbachev the Arab world was also concerned about the increasing numbers of Soviet Jews immigrating to Israel, particularly those settling in Israeli-occupied territories.

Gorbachev denied what Tass said were allegations of ''collusion'' with the United States on the immigration issue and said a U.S. policy limiting immigration was to blame for the increasing number of Soviet Jews moving to Israel.

Assad was accompanied to Moscow by Syrian Foreign Minister Farouk Sharaa, who signed an agreement with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze for future consultations between the two countries.

''Major changes have taken place in the world since Assad's last visit here and perestroika in the Soviet Union has prompted the need to discuss new aspects of international development,'' Tass said, referring to Gorbachev's policy of reconstruction.

VERNON, VT (APRIL 29) UPI - About 20 anti-nuclear demonstrators scrambled onto the grounds of the Vermont Yankee nuclear power plant Saturday, and several climbed a utility smokestack during the protest, officials said.

''This is the first time they've actually entered the grounds,'' said Vernon Police Chief Herbert Meyer.

Meyer said up to seven people climbed part of the 318-foot smokestack during the protest, which started around 3:30 p.m.

''They went up the stack to the second tier. They did not climb to the top '' said Mary Schneider, a Vermont Yankee spokeswoman.

Police said two protesters remained on the stack Saturday evening.

Schneider said the smokestack, which had rungs attached to it, is not part of the nuclear cooling tower.

Daniel Sicken, 48, who also participated with more than 50 other anti-nuclear protesters in a 5-mile march from nearby Brattleboro to Vernon, said the demonstration was held in observance of the nuclear disaster in the Soviet city of Chernobyl four years ago.

Sicken said some of the demonstrators entered Vermont Yankee grounds by boat.

The 18-year-old Vermont Yankee plant, the only nuclear utility in the state, sits alongside the Connecticut River near the Massachusetts and New Hampshire borders.

''The police were very laid back. There was no violence,'' said Sicken. ''We did manage to get into the plant area, which is the first time this has happened.''

Schneider called the protest ''low-key'' and said no Vermont Yankee property had been damaged.

''They did not get into the protected area,'' she said.

Police said about 20 protesters had been apprehended and were charged with unlawful trespassing.

(APRIL 28) UPI - The high-flying Discovery astronauts are packing up their bags in preparation for tomorrow's return to Earth. The crew also is keeping an eye out for blustery winds that could force a one-day landing delay. NASA officials say the shuttle is sailing through space in excellent condition. Discovery's pilot and co-pilot today tested the orbiter's maneuvering jets to make sure all systems are ''go'' for re-entry and touchdown in California's Mojave Desert northeast of Los Angeles tomorrow.

Thousands of anti-abortion demonstrators are converging on the nation's capital for a day-long rally to show that their effort to overturn legal abortion has NOT lost its drive. Organizers predict it will be the ''largest event'' in their movement's history... bringing out top politicians like President Bush and Vice President Quayle. Bush is expected to address the crowd by telephone. Quayle is scheduled to make a personal appearance at the rally at the Washington Monument.

Chinese officials say the death toll in Thursday's earthquake in remote Qinghai Province has reached at least 126 and is expected to climb. Authorities say many of the more than 160 people seriously injured in the powerful quake are in grave condition in local hospitals. Rescuers are continuing to search the rubble of collapsed homes and buildings for more quake victims as well as survivors. Officials also say powerful after-shocks rocked the area again today... knocking down hundreds more buildings.

(APRIL 28) UPI - Tensions between India and Pakistan are rising again. India today warned Moslem separatists allegedly armed by Pakistan to stay on their side of the long-disputed Kashmir region. India claims Pakistan is fueling the uprising to finally win the territory, which the two countries have been fighting over since 1948.

About 30 people are hurt following the latest street violence in Seoul, South Korea. Early today, riot police broke up a four-day strike at Hyundai Heavy Industries. The company's workers burned at least 10 police cars in a protest to demand the release of union leaders arrested for planning illegal labor protests.

A federal prosecutor said today that Democratic Representative Harold Ford of Tennessee will likely be re-tried on corruption charges. A judge in Memphis yesterday declared a mistrial. Jurors said they were deadlocked along racial lines in the case against the state's first and only black congressman.

Health Secretary Sullivan today called on Americans to return to what he called ''fundamental cultural values'' to win the war against illicit drugs, alcohol and cigarettes. Lithuanian President Vytautas Landsbergis today apparently reversed himself by saying his republic ''canNOT suspend'' its declaration of independence.

Moscow raised the stakes of Lithuania's rebellion today, cutting off coal supplies to the republic. That comes on top of a cut-off of oil and most natural gas.

A Soviet official said the coal was cut off because Lithuania has NOT paid for large coal reserves imported from Poland in Soviet deals. A Lithuanian government spokesman confirmed that the republic does have reserves and can avoid immediate shortages.

The spokesman said the Soviets also were stopping supplies of rubber, plastic, coffee, tea, cooking oil, newsprint, tractors, automobiles and spare parts.

(APRIL 28) UPI - The Hubble Space Telescope is still having problems, but the shuttle Discovery is in good shape for its return to Earth tomorrow.

Ground controllers at the Goddard Space Flight Center in Greenbelt, Maryland, revived the telescope early today from a computer-induced shutdown. The hibernation was triggered yesterday by one in a series of technical glitches.

As a result, the telescope's historic first photo will be delayed until after early next week. Controllers must now resolve problems with a Hubble antenna.

The Discovery crew is getting ready for re-entry and landing tomorrow morning on a dry lake bed at Edwards Air Force Base in California.

Forecasters are calling for a 50-50 chance of high winds that could force a one-day landing delay.

In a news conference from orbit today, the astronauts said they felt a special pride in launching the space telescope. Co-pilot Charles Bolden said the mission makes kids want to study science and seems to have excited the world.

(APRIL 28) UPI - Thousands of protesters at the Washington Monument today are trying to mount the biggest showing ever against abortion.

Vice President Quayle plans to appear at the demonstration.

President Bush told the crowd in a telephone address that the rally looks good on television, and thanked them for working for respect for human life.

The mood of the rally ranged from festive to religious. Demonstrators enjoyed picnic lunches in the warm sunshine, as entertainers such as Christian pop singer Sandi Patti played and sang.

The rally is in part meant to show that sentiment against abortion is higher than ever following last year's Supreme Court decision allowing states to limit access to abortions.

U-S Park Police gave an initial estimate of 60-thousand at the rally.

But National Abortion Rights Action League executive director Kate Michelman said a one-day show of strength canNOT match the growing political power of what she called ''America's pro-choice majority.''

(APRIL 28) UPI - Seismologists are warning that last night's series of earthquakes in the East Bay area of northern California may NOT be the last.

The latest round of quakes ranged from four-point-four to four-point-six on the Richter scale. The quakes knocked out power to about 13-hundred homes around Walnut Creek. And although residents describe the tremors as strong, apparently the shaking wasn't even felt in San Francisco, just across the bay.

The quakes centered on the southern end of the Concord fault and were a continuation of tremors that jiggled the area several days ago.

Scientists say the they are NOT related to the big quake that hit San Francisco last October, killing 61 people. But they say that residents should expect similiar rocking and rolling along the Concord Fault for another month or two.

In China, powerful after-shocks rocked a devastated western farming region again today as rescue crews continued the search for victims of a major earthquake that killed at least 126 people on Thursday.

The 12 heads of state also approved plans for a three-stage incorporation of East Germany into the European Community. The leaders further called for closer relations between their countries and newly democratized Eastern Europe.

Irish Prime Minister and E-C President Charles Haughey said the summit in Dublin ''decisively'' committed the 12 countries to make the historic move toward political union.

British Prime Minister Thatcher maintains her opposition to further European integration. In a concession to Thatcher, the leaders deferred a decision on whether to hold a December conference on political union until their June meeting in Dublin.

Yet Haughey stressed that the conference on political union will be held alongside a conference on economic and monetary union, slated to begin in December.

Two policemen were killed today when a bomb exploded as their vehicle passed near the village of Trado, about 85 miles southwest of Bogota. Police are blaming the attack on the Revolutionary Armed Forces of Colombia, a communist guerrilla group.

In Bogota, another victim has been buried. Hundreds of heavily armed police and soldiers guarded the funeral today of Colombia's slain presidential candidate, Carlos Pizarro.

The coffin of the guerrilla leader-turned-politician was carried from a religious service at the city's main Catholic cathedral near Congress and the presidential palace through the streets of Bogota to a cemetery for burial.

An estimated 35-thousand people accompanied Pizarro's body through a strong rain, with a band playing solemn music and the crowd chanting and carrying flags and posters from his presidential campaign.

Pizarro was assassinated on Thursday while aboard an Avianca jetliner. He was the third Colombian presidential candidate killed in less than a year.

A University of Michigan study suggests that women experience more stress than men if a couple is infertile... no matter which spouse has the physical problem.

U-M researchers say many women have been socialized to feel that bearing children is central to their identity or cultural role, so they feel personally inadequate and unfulfilled if they can't have children.

The study found that people typically assume infertility is the woman's fault and this adds to the social stigma of being childless. It suggested that men may NOT suffer as much because they may be tied up in their jobs and earnings.

The study examined about 275 white, middle-class couples over three years. About 60 percent sought treatment for infertility.

And, Moscow tightens the screws on Lithuania...

These stories... and more... next, from United Press International:

President Bush and Vice President Quayle today delivered strong anti-abortion messages today to a throng of 200-thousand supportive demonstrators at the Washington Monument.

In a telephone hookup from the White House, the president called the frequency of abortion ''a tragedy'' that contradicts American values. Bush also thanked parents who had chosen to give up their children for adoption rather than abortion.

The crowd gave a standing ovation to Quayle, who personally appeared at the demonstration to say that abortion opponents are the ''overwhelming majority'' in the nation.

The mood was both festive and religious. Some ate picnic lunches in the warm sunshine while Christian entertainers performed.

The rally's theme was ''abortion stops a beating heart.'' Demonstrators lofted a 15-foot transparent balloon with a model fetus floating inside.

Organizers had hoped the rally would attract more than 300-thousand people... the number who attended a pro-choice rally a year ago.

National Abortion Rights Action League President Kate Michelman issued a statement, saying Americans feel women and their families must make their own decisions about abortion.

The troublesome Hubble Space Telescope is already behind schedule on its 15-year mission to probe the depths of space.

NASA engineers say the technical headaches will delay the orbiting station's first picture-taking session, originally set for early next week.

Earlier today, engineers successfully revived the scope from a computer-induced state of hibernation. But they continue to have problems with one of two critical antennas needed to relay data back to Earth.

The engineers are now trying to figure out how to isolate the stuck antenna for repair. If they fail, Hubble data transmissions could be crippled.

Hubble will be left alone in orbit when the shuttle Discovery returns to Earth tomorrow. But possible high winds at the touchdown site at California's Edwards Air Force Base could force a one-day delay.

(APRIL 28) UPI - Lithuania's president today balked at a possible compromise, while the Soviet Union tightened its economic headlock on the rebellious republic.

Lithuanian President Vytautas Landsbergis says the republic canNOT suspend its declaration of independence because it is linked with other laws.

Yesterday, Landsbergis said he was studying a Franco-West German suggestion that the March declaration be suspended to allow negotiations with Moscow.

Yet, Landbergis said today that the Lithuanian parliament is ready to discuss the dispute. He asked France and West Germany to mediate.

Also today, the Soviet Union cut off coal shipments to the Baltic republic for NON-payment.

The Lithuanian government spokesman says the republic has coal reserves. But the spokesman said Moscow is also stopping supplies of rubber, plastic coffee, newsprint, tractors, automobiles and other supplies.

Moscow wants to force Lithuania into secession talks based on the Soviet Constitution. Landsbergis has said that would amount to recognizing Soviet authority.

Syrian President Hafez Assad and Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev are both blaming the United States for slowing Middle East peace efforts.

The Soviet news agency Tass says Assad and Gorbachev held a one-on-one working lunch today in Moscow... and both leaders pointed fingers at the United States for being a spoiler of any Middle East settlement.

Tass also said that President Bush's policy is even worse than that of President Reagan, because it gives Israel NO incentive to search for a solution to the deadlock.

The talks highlight recent efforts by the Soviet Union to play a key role in the Middle East peace process.

Syria has long been the Soviet Union's closest ally in the Arab world. For years, Moscow has sent Damascus sophisticated weapons to allow Assad to pursue ''strategic parity'' with Israel. Soviet military aid was also high on the agenda for today's talks.

(APRIL 28) UPI - The final curtain will close tonight on Broadway's longest-running show ever.

''A Chorus Line'' will hold its six-thousand-137th performance at New York's Shubert Theater and some 800 celebrity guests are expected to attend. Among those will be the original 1975 cast from the Tony Award-winning show.

The musical began in workshop and off-Broadway before moving uptown to the Shubert.

Announcement in February that the musical would close March 31st resulted in such a rush of ticket sales that the closing date was reset for tonight.

The box office reports the show has made close to two-Million dollars in the last eight weeks.

The show has outlived its director and choreographer Michael Bennett, as well as co-author of the book, James Kirkwood.

(APRIL 28) UPI - An estimated 200-thousand abortion foes gathered in Washington, D-C, today. During a telephone message, President Bush urged the crowd to keep the faith and continue working against abortion. The demonstration was smaller than expected.

Forecasters say there's a 50-50 chance high winds will postpone tomorrow's scheduled landing of the Discovery shuttle by one day. The astronauts spent the day packing up their equipment while NASA engineers worked on activating the Hubble Space Telescope.

The Soviet Union stopped coal shipments to Lithuania today as part of the escalating dispute concerning independence for the republic. The Lithuanian prime minister leaves for Canada and the United States tomorrow in an effort to get help.

Independent Latvian farmers took steps today to make the family farmer dominant again and restore the republic's agricultural might. The farmers formed a union and vowed to end the Soviet system of centralized farming.

Hundreds of heavily armed Colombian police and soldiers guarded today's funeral of assassinated presidential candidate Carlos Pizarro. Police say about 35-thousand people accompanied Pizarro's body from Bogota's cathedral to a cemetery.

(APRIL 28) UPI - Several earthquakes rumbled through San Francisco's East Bay last night. The strongest quake measured four-point-six on the Richter scale. 13-hundred people were left without power, but authorities report NO injuries or damage.

Authorities say police in San Luis Obispo, California, used tear gas and water hoses to quell rampaging college students who bombarded them with rocks and bottles. Last night's disturbance erupted during a student festival at California Polytechnic State University and left 12 officers injured.

New York police say a pipe bomb exploded early today at a crowded Greenwich Village bar popular with homosexuals. Police say three men were slightly injured when the device blew up in the back room of Uncle Charlie's Downtown Bar.

About 500 communist supporters rallied in Washington, D-C, today. One marcher said the ''old communist system built around the Soviet Union is dead and communists are building a new movement.'' The crowd called Soviet President Gorbachev a traitor.

Health and Human Services Secretary Louis Sullivan today called on Americans to create a new ''culture of character'' to fight the drug war, alcohol and cigarettes. He urged people to- quote- ''recapture the spirit of family and rebuild a sense of community.''

(APRIL 28) UPI - An estimated 200-thousand people gathered at the foot of the Washington Monument today in a show of strength for the anti-abortion movement. President Bush telephoned the gathering and said one day soon ''respect for human life'' will be beyond question. Republican Congressman Henry Hyde of Illinois evoked cheers when he declared that liberal feminists Jane Fonda, Molly Yard, Betty Friedan and Whoopi Goldberg ''don't speak for all of America.''

NASA is monitoring high winds while preparing for Discovery's morning landing at California's Edwards Air Force base. Syrian President Hafez Assad was in Moscow today and met with President

Gorbachev. The Soviet news agency Tass reports the two leaders agreed the United States is impeding the Middle East peace process by NOT offering Israel any incentives to settle the deadlock. Syria has long been the Soviet Union's closest ally in the Arab world.

Lithuanian President Vytautas Landsbergis today said there's NO way the Baltic republic can rescind its declaration of independence. But yesterday Landsbergis seemed to welcome a proposal from France and West Germany that called for a suspension of the declaration to allow negotiations with Moscow. The Soviet Union today added coal to the list of items embargoed from the republic.

(APRIL 28) UPI - A top leader of the Contra rebels say his forces will NOT surrender until Nicaragua's new president, Violeta Chamorro, restructures the army. The announcement follows Chamorro's controversial announcement during her inaugural speech Wednesday that she will retain Humberto Ortega as head of the country's army. Ortega is the brother of former Sandinista President Daniel Ortega.

Governor John Waihee today declared parts of the island of Hawaii major disaster areas due to lava flowing from Kilauea Volcano's seven-year-long eruption. Waihee says the situation does NOT fit the typical definition of an emergency, instead terming it a ''slow-moving crisis.'' This morning, lava from the volcano destroyed its 112th home and threatened to completely cut off a rural housing area.

Officials in New York City say Brooklyn firefighters used axes and crowbars last night to beat back a mob of angry youths trying to ''finish off'' a victim. KATHMANDU (APRIL 29) - Nepal's far-left communist coalition has vowed to continue its campaign for radical political reform despite recent democratic changes in the Himalayan kingdom, which it says were not enough.

The United National People's Movement (UNPM), which joins six communist factions, is viewed as the most extreme opponent of Nepal's monarchical system.

But the group does not stop there. The UNPM is highly critical of what it sees as Indian expansionism, Soviet hegemonism, U.S. imperialism and Chinese modern revisionism.

"We are the followers of late Mao Zedong's Cultural Revolution, and we want our own politics to safeguard peoples' political rights and freedom," Mohan Bickman Singh, head of the UNPM, said in an interview here Saturday.

King Birendra lifted a 30-year ban on political parties and named an interim coalition government earlier this month following eight weeks of pro-democracy protests.

Mr. M.B. Singh, also head of the far-left communist group Male ("flaming torch bearer"), said the king's concessions were insufficient. His group has issued a 10-point list of demands, including a new constitution to safeguard human rights and multiparty democracy.

Meanwhile, the Nepali Congress and the United Leftist Front (ULF), the two leading parties in Nepal, have called for vigilance against reactionaries and counter-revolutionaries in the country.

The UNPM leader criticised negotiations early this month between the king and the Nepali Congress and the ULF, an alliance of seven communist factions, for excluding the UNPM.

The king dissolved parliament April 16. The government on Thursday disbanded the country's network of local councils, or panchayats, thus completing the dissolution of Nepal's partyless system, in force since 1960.

Under threat of strong UNPM opposition, the Nepali Congress central committee ended a three-day meeting -- chaired by party leader and Prime Minister Krishna Prasad Bhattarai -- by adopting a number of political, economic and foreign policy resolutions.

BEIJING (APRIL 29) - China disclosed this weekend that its prosecutors are investigating cases of torture and illegal detention, nearly a year after its massive crackdown on dissent.

It was the one of the very few admissions by China of human rights violations since last year's bloody suppression of democracy protests in Beijing's Tiananmen square.

Since January, prosecutors at all levels have given priority to "cases of perverting justice for bribes, extorting confessions by torture, illegal detention and neglect of duty," the official New China News Agency said.

More than 9,500 cases dealing with "dereliction of duty and infringing upon citizens' rights" were received in January-March alone, it said, quoting Liang Guoqing, deputy chief of the Supreme People's Procuratorate.

Out of 2,900 cases investigated, more than 490 involved deaths and injuries, the agency said without elaborating.

International human rights groups have alleged the widespread use of torture and illegal detention during the crackdown on dissent that followed the Tiananmen square massacre on June 4, when the army crushed the pro-democracy protests.

The U.S.-based Asia Watch group said in a February report that at least 6,000 people, and perhaps as many as 30,000, had been arrested and that secret proceedings were held, with presumed guilt being the standard.

Though students led the democracy protests, Asia Watch said that workers were "most likely to be subjected to torture and other forms of gross ill-treatment during police interrogation."

Before June, China's official press periodically exposed cases of torture. Its criminal law also sets prison terms of up to three years -- or in serious cases 10 years -- for torture or corporal punishment.

But such reports have virtually disappeared since then.

AMMAN (APRIL 29) - Jordanian security sources confirmed Sunday that a small firebomb was hurled Saturday night at the premises of the Jordanian-Soviet Friendship Society without causing any damage.

An unknown caller, claiming to be a member of the Islamic Struggle Front, contacted local news agencies after the attack to claim responsibility.

The caller said the attack was in retaliation against Moscow's action to facilitate the immigration of Soviet Jews to Israel and the Israeli-occupied Arab territories.

Security sources said the attacker threw the home-made bomb at the gate of the society's offices at 9.30 local time (0630 Gmt), while the office was closed.

The attack was the first of its kind against Soviet interests in Jordan. In the past, such attacks were directed against American targets.

During recent weeks, several Islamic extremist groups have vowed to attack Soviet interests in the Middle East if Moscow did not act to stop the flow of thousands of Soviet Jewish immigrants to Israel and the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip.

The Islamic Resistance Movement (Hamas) in Jordan has condemned the Soviet Union for allowing Soviet Jewish immigrants to leave for Israel with the possibility of their settling in the occupied territories in place of Palestinian citizens.

The Jordanian government has not commented on the bomb attack except for saying that an investigation was underway to identify the perpetrators.

MOSCOW (APRIL 29) - East German Prime Minister Lothar de Maiziere said here on Sunday that he disagreed with Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev's rejection of NATO membership for a unified Germany.

Speaking after talks with Mr. Gorbachev and other Soviet officials, Mr. de Maiziere said German membership of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization after East and West Germany unite "was a point of disagreement today, and we'll be talking about that again".

The East German leader said he favored NATO membership for a unified Germany if the Western alliance changed its "structures and strategies".

But the Soviet side had reaffirmed its opposition to German membership of NATO, calling it "unacceptable".

Mr. de Maiziere, answering questions about the kind of changes he had in mind for NATO, said: "Europe is moving toward disarmament, and it must adopt new structures and strategies. We think NATO will have a military role to an ever smaller extent, and that stress will have to be put on the economic and political role (of NATO). But above all, it is necessary to change strategy. These issues are already being discussed in NATO itself."

Mr. de Maiziere rejected the idea of German neutrality. "Neutrality cannot be a solution. It is vital today to go beyond a view of the world as divided into blocs -- and neutrality presupposes the existence of blocs".

TRAPANI, Sicily (APRIL 29) - Six people died and seven others were missing after a ferry with 52 passengers aboard sank Sunday off this Sicilian port, harbour sources said.

Thirty-nine people were rescued and hospitalised at Trapani, the sources said.

The vessel, the Livorno Espresso, was operating between the mainland Italian port of Leghorn and Trapani when it suddenly listed and sank for so far unexplained reasons. Weather was good at the time, the sources in the harbour master's office said.

The ferry's crew were able to put out an SOS radio call and rescue units set out for the scene immediately, they said.

One theory for the cause of the disaster was the sudden shifting of a heavy truck aboard the ferry.

MOSCOW (APRIL 29) - Confusion reigned Sunday about possible re-establishment of supplies of Soviet natural gas for a Lithuanian factory, following a denial of such a move by Lithuanian authorities who viewed the reported resumption as a "Moscow maneuver".

A Lithuanian government representative contacted by telephone by Agence France-Presse said Sunday that the announcement by the Soviet Petroleum and Gas Ministry Saturday evening of resumed gas supplies for the Ionava nitrogen fertilizer plant in central Lithuania "was only a promise".

No authorized Soviet ministry sources were available Sunday to explain the content and origin of the announcement.

The Lithuanian representative, Vytautas Benedictavicius, said that it was not known just who at the Soviet ministry made the announcement, "which was not followed by any effect, and at 1600 GMT (Sunday), the Azotas factory was still receiving half a million cubic meters of gas a day, as it has since the start of the blockade".

The plant usually receives 3.4 million cubic meters of Soviet natural gas a day, but, like other Lithuanian businesses, the factory has been affected for the last 10 days by a Soviet reduction of energy supplies -- a consequence of the Baltic republic's declaration of independence from the Soviet Union.

The majority of the Azotas plant's 3,000 workers have been laid off since Moscow decided to reduce gas supplies to Lithuania by 85 per cent on April 19.

Notification of a partial resumption of deliveries would be an important gesture by Moscow with an eye on a compromise on the Lithuanian issue.

A spokesman for Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev, Arkadi Maslennikov, said on Saturday that Soviet authorities were demanding a "freeze or moratorium" on Lithuanian independence, and no longer outright cancellation of the declaration.

But nationalists said Sunday evening that Moscow was trying a new maneuver with the gas episode, aiming primarily at "trying to influence the population" affected by the Soviet partial blockade.

Sunday noon, an AFP correspondent watched as a thousand cyclists left the Lithuanian parliament building for a demonstration-jaunt in and around Vilnius. The independence-minded riders, with Lithuanian flags on their handlebars under a sunny sky, wanted to show Moscow that the fuel shortage had not immobilized them.

Early Sunday evening, Beethoven's Ninth Symphony ("Choral Symphony") was performed on the square in front of Vilnius Cathedral. Thousands of people attended, including President Vytautas Landsbergis, and the concert was broadcast live on radio.

The president, a musicologist by training, considers the symphony a symbol of freedom and of "victory over evil", as he puts it.

"I'm here to support Lithuanian independence", said one young soldier in uniform.

HARARE (APRIL 29) - A parcel bomb sent to an anti-apartheid Anglican pastor seen as close to the African National Congress, the Reverend Michael Lapsley, blew his hands blown off and injured another person, it was announced here Sunday.

Rev. Lapsley also lost an eye in the explosion late Saturday, Interior Minister Moven Mahachi said, without revealing the identity of the second victim.

Sources close to the pastor said he was taken to hospital in the Zimbabwean capital, where he was in intensive care Sunday after being operated on.

They said the bomb blew out the windows and caused part of the ceiling to collapse in the reverend's home here.

An anti-apartheid Christian group, the Liberation Support Committee, accused the South African government Sunday of organising the attack.

"Despite the attempts by the South African regime to portray itself as good-willed, humane and seeking peaceful change, it is in events such as this attack that it shows its true colours", the group said in a communique.

Max Mlonyeni, the ANC's chief representative in Zimbabwe, said Sunday that the pastor "was strongly allied to the ANC", and denounced the attack -- "irrespective of who is the perpetrator".

The pastor was expelled from South Africa during the 1970s, leaving first for Lesotho and later Zimbabwe. He is also the author of a book, Neutrality or Co-option?, which accused the Anglican church in pre-independence Zimbabwe (Rhodesia) of supporting the white minority regime.

In Cape Town, Anglican Archbishop Desmond Tutu said Sunday he suspected South African rightwingers were responsible for the bomb.

"I deplore acts of violence from whatever source they come," Archbishop Tutu said in the statement.

He renewed his call for the disbanding of the Civil Co-operation Bureau (CCB), a South African Defence Force unit alleged responsible for the deliberate killing and maiming opponents of the Pretoria government in terrorist attacks.

WASHINGTON (APRIL 29) - President George Bush refused comment Sunday on reports that a clandestine organization would free an American hostage in the next 48 hours.

Mr. Bush, asked about the report while playing golf at Andrews Air Force Base outside Washington, said, "I just won't say anything. If that proves to be true, that's wonderful."

Earlier Sunday, an unsigned statement delivered to a west Beirut newspaper said U.S. hostage Frank Reed, 57, would be freed in the next 48 hours.

A White House spokesman said the Bush administration had no independent confirmation of an imminent hostage release.

The spokesman said a U.S. hostage release team that received Robert Polhill, who was freed last Sunday in Beirut, had been stood down. The team took charge of Mr. Polhill at a U.S. military base in Wiesbaden, West Germany.

Sunday's communique, accompanied by a photograph of Mr. Reed, said the freed hostage would be carrying "a message to the American administration."

Mr. Reed was working as the director of the Lebanese International School in in west Beirut when he was kidnapped September 9, 1986.

His abduction had been claimed in a telephone call, which was not authenticated, from a group calling itself The Arab Revolutionary Cells-Force Omar al-Mouktar.

Mexico City (APRIL 29) EFE - Mexico has said future collaboration with U.S. authorities to combat drug trafficking will depend on Mexican agents being allowed to operate in the United States and a mutual respect for each country's laws.

The Foreign Ministry said Saturday that such an accord would determine the number of agents allowed to operate in each country and that these would be obliged to report periodically to local authorities.

"Only on a reciprocal basis, and via a thorough definition of the new rules, will continued cooperation be possible," the statement read.

Hours earlier, Mexico's State Prosecutor Enrique Alvarez del Castillo formally accused U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA) agents of organizing the kidnapping and illegal transfer to the United States of a Mexican doctor implicated in the 1985 murder of a DEA official.

Alvarez del Castillo said the doctor, Humberto Alvarez Machain, was kidnapped by "DEA agent or informer" Antonio Garate Bustamante and 12 Mexicans, including former as well as active police officers.

Seven of the suspects have been detained.

Alvarez del Castillo said some of the remaining suspects may have fled to the United States, and that Mexico was preparing requests for their extradition.

Alvarez Machain was abducted from his office in the western city of Guadalajara on April 3 and taken to the U.S. border city of El Paso, Texas where he was formally arrested by the DEA.

He was then taken to Los Angeles where he faces charges of administering stimulants to revive DEA agent Enrique Camarena during the 24-hour interrogation and torture which preceded the agent's death in Mexico in 1985.

During a visit to Mexico last week, U.S. Vice President Dan Quayle reiterated President George Bush's claim that the DEA was not involved in the kidnapping.

Mexico has long been regarded as a major gateway for heroin, cocaine and marijuana being smuggled from Latin America to the United States, the world's largest drug-consuming nation.

BOGOTA (APRIL 29) EFE - The pilot of a commerical Avianca airlines flight has denied a seat to an ex-president of Colombia for "safety reasons," two days after presidential candidate and ex-rebel leader Carlos Pizarro was assassinated aboard an airplane in flight, according to newspaper reports Sunday.

Ex-president Misael Pastrana and four bodyguards boarded a flight from Bogota to Cartagena Saturday, but they deplaned at the request of the pilot after dozens of passengers protested that the presence of the Social Conservative party leader posed a security threat, the papers said.

On Thursday leftist presidential candidate Pizarro, leader of the M-19 former rebel group, was shot dead aboard an Avianca plane in mid-flight, by an assailant with a machine-gun.

The following day, passengers on a flight from Barranquilla to Bogota complained when M-19 congressional representative Vera Grabe and her bodyguards boarded the plane, but they were allowed to remain on the flight so they could get to Pizarro's funeral.

Passengers and Avianca staff Friday asked the government of President Virgilio Barco to allow high-risk personalities and their entourage to travel on military flights, using military airports.

Three Colombian politicians have been shot at Bogota's El Dorado airport in the last 13 months. Leftist "Patriotic Union" (U.P.) secretary Jose Antequera was assassinated there March 3, 1989, and Liberal Party senator Ernesto Samper was seriously wounded in the same attack. U.P. presidential candidate Bernardo Jaramillo was also assassinated in the airport on March 22 of this year.

EL DESTINO, NICARAGUA (APRIL 30) EFE - Contra Chief of Staff Israel Galeano said the rightist rebels have been double-crossed by Nicaraguan President Violeta Chamorro and sold down the river by Washington, reiterating that the Contras will not demobilize until the Sandinista Army is dismantled.

"We feel betrayed. It's not normal that just 48 hours after taking office Mrs. Chamorro had negotiated with the Sandinistas to the point that they are now sharing the government," said Galeano in an interview Saturday with EFE in his mountain encampment near El Destino, 240 km north of Managua.

On taking office last week, Chamorro enfuriated the Contras and conservatives in her own 14-party UNO coalition by announcing that former defense minister Gen. Humberto Ortega, brother of ex-president Daniel Ortega, would remain in the government as head of the Armed Forces.

Galeano, who also uses the name Comandante Franklin, said until Gen. Ortega goes and the Sandinista People's Army is dismantled the Contras will defy an accord under which they promised to disarm by June 10.

The Contras would go to five security zones set up by the United Nations under the accords, but wait for new developments before demobilizing, he said.

"The Sandinista Army is illegal, they are the Armed Forces of a party that lost the elections and they must go. We will only accept a small apolitical police force to defend national interests," Galeano added.

The Contra commander also said he was disillusioned with the United States "because now they only finance the international organizations that are trying to destroy us."

The Central American presidents have asked that U.S. funds earmarked to help demobilize the Contras be funneled through the U.N. International Support and Verification Committee.

"Even though no one supports us now, we will continue to resist," Galeano said.

Meanwhile, the Sandinista newspaper Barricada reported Sunday that a battalion of 600 Contras raided an agricultural cooperative in northern Jinotega province one day before Chamorro's inauguration.

The Contras made off with three bulls, three cows, clothing, medicine, tools and weapons the Sandinista Army had given the cooperative for self-protection, according to the victims quoted in the newspaper.

LONDON (APRIL 29) XINHUA - A 900-POUND (360-KG) BOMB, FOUND ON A HOUSING ESTATE IN THE TOWN OF DUNGANNON, HAS BEEN DEFUSED BY ARMY EXPERTS, ACCORDING TO REPORTS FROM NORTHERN IRELAND TODAY.

IT WAS THE LATEST IN A SERIES OF ALERTS IN NORTHERN IRELAND FOLLOWING A WARNING BY THE POLICE OF A NEW OFFENSIVE BY IRISH REPUBLICAN ARMY (IRA) GUERRILLAS, WHO ARE FIGHING TO END BRITISH RULE IN THE PROVINCE.

"THE TERRORISTS HAVE ONCE AGAIN SHOWN BY THEIR ACTIONS A BLATANT DISREGARD FOR THE LOCAL COMMUNITY," A POLICE SPOKESMAN SAID, ADDING THAT THE INTENDED TARGET WAS UNCLEAR.

NORTHERN IRELAND WENT ON A FULL SECURITY ALERT LAST THURSDAY AFTER HIGH-LEVEL INTELLIGENCE REPORTS SAID THAT THE IRA WAS PLANNING TO STEP UP ITS BOMBING AND SHOOTING ATTACKS.

ACCORDING TO BRITISH TELEVISION REPORTS, A BOMB EXPLODED TODAY AT A BORDER POST AT NEWRY, SOUTH OF BELFAST, WHILE TWO MOTORISTS HAD A NARROW ESCAPE WHEN THEY DROVE OVER TWO BOMBS ABANDONED IN A NEARBY ROAD.

ON FRIDAY, A CONSTRUCTION WORKER WAS KILLED BY A BOMB FIXED TO HIS CAR. THE VICTIM WAS BELIEVED TO HAVE WORKED ON POLICE AND MILITARY INSTALLATIONS.

ST. LOUIS (APRIL 28) UPI - Brett Hull scored twice Saturday night, including the go-ahead goal late in the second period, helping the St. Louis Blues force a seventh game of the Norris Division finals with a 4-2 victory over the Chicago Blackhawks.

Chicago hosts the deciding game of the best-of-seven Norris Division finals Monday night.

Hull, who took over the playoff goal-scoring lead with 13, scored the winner 15:18 into the second period, burying a slap shot from the top of the right circle. That shot beat goaltender Jacques Cloutier, who relieved starter Ed Belfour early in the first period.

Rich Sutter scored an insurance goal at 11:07 of the third period. After Ron Wilson displayed some creative stickhandling at the side of the net and dropped a pass, Sutter swept a wrist shot from the bottom of the faceoff circle beneath Cloutier.

St. Louis goaltender Vincent Riendeau turned aside 37 Chicago shots, including 18 in the third period as he held the Blackhawks scoreless.

Hull and Dave Lowry scored in the first 2:30 of the game against Belfour, who did not make a save in his third playoff start.

Hull, who led the NHL with 72 goals in the regular season, opened the scoring with a power-play goal at 1:36, going int the slot to tip a nifty centering pass from Adam Oates under the pads of Belfour. For Hull, it was the seventh power-play goal of the playoffs, which leads the league.

Lowry gave the Blues a 2-0 advantage at 2:30, scoring on a backhander after beating defenseman Dave Manson one-on-one. Lowry took a pass at the blue line and skated past Manson, then pulled Belfour to the near post before pushing his shot across the slot.

But the Blackhawks rallied in the second period to tie the score. Denis Savard pulled Chicago within 2-1 with a power-play goal at 7:39 of the second period, then Jeremy Roenick tied the game with a power-play goal at 14:32.

Savard, who took the initial shot from the point, recovered a bouncing puck between the circles and his wrist shot beat Riendeau.

Roenick, stationed in the slot, deflected in Savard's weak slap shot to make the score 2-2.

NEW YORK (APRIL 29) UPI - Hundreds of gay activists marched in Greenwich Village Saturday night, protesting the bombing of a crowded bar popular with homosexuals that left three men slightly injured.

The bomb filled with M-80 firecrackers exploded shortly after midnight in the back room of Uncle Charlie's Downtown Bar, a crowded night spot, police said.

Mayor David Dinkins issued a statement deploring the ''senseless attack,'' and the Gay and Lesbian Alliance Against Defamation called the bombing ''an act of terror directed against the entire gay community.''

But police said there was no evidence the blast, which hit early Saturday morning, was a bias attack. ''There weren't any notes left, no threats, no indication it was a bias incident,'' said Sgt. Norris Hollomon, a police spokesman.

About 300 protesters, led by a group carrying a banner which said ''Bash Back,'' marched from Uncle Charlie's to Christopher Street to the Sixth Precinct station house on West 10th Street.

Along the way, the protesters were joined by at least 200 other people, said Sgt. Mary Wrensen, a police spokeswoman. There were no arrests or reports of disturbances, Wrensen said.

Police set up barricades at the Sixth Precinct to prevent demonstrators from coming close to the station house.

Allan Klein, a member of ACTUP, the Aids Coalition to Unleash Power, said the protesters went to the precinct to let authorities know that, ''we are watching and want police to investigate all cases of anti-lesbian and anti-gay violence.''

The protesters then marched to the gay and lesbian community center on West 13th Street.

The blast sent the lid of the metal garbage can flying to the ceiling where it broke a light and slightly injured two male patrons and a waiter, said Jay Blochter, a gay activist who said he was standing outside the bar when the bomb exploded.

About 200 people were inside the bar at the time of the blast, Mohrmann said.

Two of the injured were treated and released at the nearby St. Vincent's hospital, while the third was treated at the scene, police said.

Blochter said he saw the waiter, who was working his first day on the job, being led out of the bar clutching a bloody rag to a laceration on his face.

There was no panic among customers at the bar, and many may not have known about the explosion until an announcement was made, he said.

''People started coming out en masse,'' he said. ''But there was no smoke or anything. It was just too crowded in there.''

''Later other gay bars in the area made announcements to patrons to be cautious,'' Blotcher said.

Dinkins, in his statement, said the explosion ''marked the 26th incident against gay people this year.''

''I am disturbed by the news of yet another senseless attack, and by the rising frequency of these attacks on members of the gay community,'' he said, noting there were a total of 47 such incidents last year.

Dinkins said the incident showed the urgency of legislation now pending in the state legislature that would increase the penalties against those who engage in violent bias-related crimes.

#90119u0101 04/29/1990 ~United Press International
SEABROOK, NH (APRIL 29) UPI - Officials at the controversial Seabrook nuclear plant shut down the nuclear reactor Saturday as plant engineers began modifications of a turbine that could delay full-power operations for several weeks.

''We were approximately at between 6 and 8 percent (power) earlier today, and right now we're below 5 percent,'' said Dave Scanzoni, a spokesman for New Hampshire Yankee, the plant's operator. ''Within the next several hours we'll go down to zero.''

Plant engineers determined Saturday that a section of the turbine needed to be modified before the generator could be connected to the electrical ''power grid'' in New England.

The adjustments were expected to take four to six weeks, Scanzoni said.

''Engineers determined that the characteristics of electrical feedback forces coming from the New England power grid could cause a specific section of the turbine to vibrate beyond specifications,'' a statement from New Hampshire Yankee said.

Scanzoni said the turbine was in a separate building from the nuclear reactor and said, ''This did not have any impact on the nuclear side.''

Seabrook was given a full-power license from the Nuclear Regulatory Commission in March, and had hoped to reach full power by the summer.

''We said some time this summer, and that's still very likely,'' Scanzoni said. ''The whole purpose of this testing program is to make sure that all functions are working properly.''

But a spokesman for a group opposed to Seabrook said the turbine problem was ''not a minor glitch'' and called on Gov. Judd Gregg to investigate the safety of the nuclear plant.

''This is something that is symptomatic of construction problems and management problems that have plagued this plant from day one,'' said Sam Miller of the Clamshell Alliance. ''It doesn't matter what side of the plant it is on.''

(APRIL 29) UPI - Jerry Kutzler completed a triumphant homecoming on short notice Saturday for the Chicago White Sox.

The native of Waukegan, Ill., summoned Friday night from Chicago's Triple-A farm club at Vancouver, paced the White Sox to a 5-4 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays in his major-league debut.

''He really did an excellent job,'' White Sox Manager Jeff Torborg said. ''At times he tried to be too fine, but he'll be better the next time. He's a very poised young man.''

About 40 friends and relatives witnessed the 25-year-old's debut, in which he allowed three runs and four hits over five-plus innings.

''My game plan was the same for any other game - go out, make the pitches and get ahead, and don't caught up in the excitement,'' Kutzler said. ''I was more anxious to get started. I was waiting around all day, but once I got up in the bullpen and in the first inning, I felt fine.''

Kutzler, 1-0, received some help from teammates Sammy Sosa and Ivan Calderon, who belted home runs to provide the firepower.

Sosa slammed his first homer of the season off the third pitch of the night from Toronto starter Mike Flanagan, 2-1. Calderon contributed a two-run homer in the fifth on the second pitch from reliever Jim Acker.

But Toronto also chipped in with three errors and a crucial baserunning error while leaving eight on base. The loss was the Blue Jays' third straight.

--- AROUND THE AL ---

In other American League games Saturday, Boston pummeled Oakland 12-3, New York nipped California 3-2, Cleveland blanked Minnesota 3-0, Texas pounded Kansas City 9-2, Seattle defeated Baltimore 4-3 and Detroit hammered Milwaukee 13-5.

In the National League, it was: Cincinnati 6, Montreal 4; St. Louis 5, San Francisco 0; Philadelphia 2, Atlanta 1; Houston 8, New York 4; Los Angeles 5, Chicago 4; and Pittsburgh 4, San Diego 3.

Red Sox 12, Athletics 3

At Boston, Wade Boggs drove in five runs and scored three times, Dwight Evans hit a three-run homer and Jody Reed collected four hits for the Red Sox. Greg Harris, 2-0, worked five scoreless innings in his first Boston start. Curt Young, 0-1, took the loss, allowing four runs before getting an out.

Yankees 3, Angels 2

At New York, Steve Sax reached base four straight times and drove in a run in the Yankees' three-run third inning, handing the Angels their third straight loss. Greg Cadaret, 1-1, who entered with an 11.74 ERA, pitched six innings of three-hit ball and retired 15 batters in a row for the win. Chuck Finley, 3-1, allowed one earned run in 7 1-3 innings for California.

Indians 3, Twins 0

At Cleveland, Mitch Webster drove in three runs with a pair of doubles and John Farrell gave up six hits over 8 1-3 innings to lead the Indians. Farrell, 2-1, struck out two and walked none, and Jesse Orosco finished for his first save. Minnesota starter Allan Anderson, 1-3, took the Twins' third straight loss as Cleveland improved to 5-0 at home.

Rangers 9, Royals 2

At Kansas City, Mo., Julio Franco hit a two-run homer to help the Rangers drop the Royals to their worst start in nine years. Kansas City lost its sixth consecutive game and is 5-12 on the year. Kevin Brown, 4-0, went 7 2-3 innings for the victory. Storm Davis, 1-3, took the loss.

Mariners 4, Orioles 3

At Baltimore, Jeffrey Leonard drove in the winning run with a ninth-inning sacrifice fly for the Mariners. Mike Jackson, 1-0, earned the win despite giving up the run in the eighth inning that tied the score 3-3. Mike Schooler pitched the ninth inning for his fifth save. Kevin Hickey, 0-2, took the loss.

Tigers 13, Brewers 5

At Detroit, Cecil Fielder drove in six runs with two homers and a bases-loaded walk as the Tigers scored 13 unanswered runs. Detroit came back from 5-0 deficit in the fourth inning. Frank Tanana, 2-1, scattered nine hits to post his 200th major-league victory. Don August, 0-2, took the loss.

#90119u0111 04/29/1990 ~United Press International

Sabo, handed just such an opportunity on a balk, responded with a three-run home run in the fourth inning to lead the Cincinnati Reds to a 6-4 victory over the Montreal Expos.

With two out and Joe Oliver on first base, Sabo apparently flied to left. But third-base umpire Doug Harvey ruled that Oil Can Boyd balked on the pitch, moving Oliver to third and giving Sabo another chance.

He responded with his long drive over the left-field wall, his fifth homer of the season. Sabo hit just six homers all of last year.

''I didn't know until I got to first base (on the apparent flyout) that it was a balk,'' said Sabo, who also extemnded his hitting streak to seven games. ''So, I got another chance to hit.''

The Expos didn't dispute the balk call.

''I didn't see it, but I asked somebody who did and they said he balked,'' Expos Manager Buck Rodgers said. ''It was a two-run balk.''

Jack Armstrong, 4-0, went 6 2-3 innings for the victory. Randy Myers pitched the final two innings for his fourth save.

Boyd, 1-2, was pounded for eight hits and five earned runs over 3 2-3 innings.

--- AROUND THE NL ---

In other National League games Saturday, St. Louis shut out San Franicsco 5-0, Philadelphia edged Atlanta 2-1, Houston defeated New York 8-4, Pittsburgh nipped San Diego 4-3 and Los Angeles outlasted Chicago 5-4.

In the American League, it was: Boston 12, Oakland 3; New York 3, California 2; Cleveland 3, Minnesota 0; Texas 9, Kansas City 2; Chicago 5, Toronto 4; Seattle 4, Baltimore 3; and Detroit 13, Milwaukee 5.

Cardinals 5, Giants 0

At San Francisco, John Tudor and two relievers combined on a seven-hitter and Willie McGee and Denny Walling each ripped a pair of RBI singles for St. Louis. Tudor, 4-0, allowed five hits over seven innings while lowering his E.RA to 0.96, second in the National League. Scott Garrelts, 0-2, hurled six innings as the Giants dropped their ninth home game in 10 outings.

Phillies 2, Braves 1

At Atlanta, Carmelo Martinez belted a solo home run in the ninth inning, his second game-winning homer in as many nights, to lift Philadelphia. Martinez, who drilled a grand slam in Philadelphia's 7-1 victory Friday night, ripped a 1-1 pitch off Joe Boever, 0-1, over left-field fence for his second home run of the season. Philadelphia reliever Jeff Parrett, 1-2 pitched the eighth inning for the victory. Roger McDowell worked the ninth for his sixth save.

Astros 8, Mets 4

At Houston, Glenn Davis and Gerald Young homered for Houston to give Bill Gullickson his first major-league win since 1987. Gullickson, 1-1, gave up four runs, none earned, and four hits over five innings to post his first major-league win in 2 1/2 years. He had spent the last two seasons pitching in Japan. Dave Smith picked up his sixth save of the year by going the final 1 2-3 innings. Mets starter Sid Fernandez, 1-2, took the loss.

Pirates 4, Padres 3

At San Diego, Barry Bonds stroked three hits and drove in a run to help the Pirates extend their winning streak to five games. The Pirates, 9-1 so far on a 13-game road trip, pounded out 12 hits off San Diego pitching. Bob Walk, 1-3, gave up five hits and three runs over six innings for the win. Bill Landrum finished for his third save. Andy Benes, 2-2, took the loss.

Dodgers 5, Cubs 4

At Los Angeles, Alfredo Griffin scored on an error by right fielder Andre Dawson in the ninth inning to lift the Dodgers. With runners at second and third and the outfielders playing shallow, Mike Sharperson lofted a fly ball off Mitch Williams, 0-1, that Dawson caught. Griffin bluffed going home and then broke for the plate when Dawson's throw bounced away from catcher Joe Girardi. That gave the victory to Ramon Martinez, 2-0, who scattered seven Chicago hits and struck out 10 in posting his second straight complete game.

(APRIL 29) UPI - The Boston Celtics not only negated the New York Knicks' quickness Saturday, but ran their way to two NBA playoff records.

Kevin McHale scored 31 points and seven other Boston players scored in double figures as the Celtics set new standards for points scored and field-goal percentage with a 157-128 rout of the Knicks.

''Face it, this game was over early,'' New York's Trent Tucker said.

The Celtics shot a record 67 percent from the floor, hitting 63 of their 94 shots, to take a 2-0 advantage in the best-of-five Eastern Conference playoff series. Game 3 is scheduled for Wednesday night at Madison Square Garden.

''Right now, we're playing with great confidence,'' Boston Coach Jimmy Rodgers said. ''We've been getting very versatile as the season's gone on.''

Boston and New York's combined 285 points tied the NBA playoff mark.

The Celtics, who led by at least 20 points from early in the third quarter have won 26 consecutive home games against the Knicks, whose last triumph at Boston came on Feb. 29, 1984.

Tucker, asked what makes it so tough for the Knicks to win on the famed parquet floor, responded: ''The Boston Celtics make it so tough - they're good.''

Kevin Gamble's 17-foot jumper at the buzzer allowed the Celtics to break the old scoring record of 156 points, set by Milwaukee against Philadelphia on March 30, 1970.

The Celtics scored at least 40 points in three of the four quarters and they combined for 46 assists.

''When everyone's moving as well as they are, you've got to pass the ball '' said Bird, who totaled 16 assists and 15 points.

Reggie Lewis scored 21 points for the Celtics, winners in 11 of their last 12 games, and Robert Parish contributed 18 points and 16 rebounds. Also scoring in double figures were Ed Pinckney with 16 points, Dennis Johnson 12, Jim Paxson 11 and John Bagley 10.

New York was led by Patrick Ewing with 28 points, Gerald Wilkins with 24 and Johnny Newman 21. The Knicks have lost 20 of their last 29 games.

Boston, which never trailed, scored on its first 10 possessions of the game for an early 19-9 lead. New York pulled within 43-40 early in the second quarter, but the Celtics responded by scoring 14 of the next 16 points as reserve guards John Bagley and Jim Paxson had Boston playing a continuous fast break against the younger, faster Knicks.

''We may be old in age, but we've had a lot of experience and we tend to get young when we play,'' McHale said.

The Celtics' opportunistic defense forced 15 New York turnovers and converted them into 31 Boston points.

--- IN OTHER PLAYOFF ACTION ---

Detroit pounded Indiana 100-87, San Antonio outlasted Denver 129-120 and Portland topped Dallas 114-107.

Pistons 100, Pacers 87

At Auburn Hills, Mich., Joe Dumars and Bill Laimbeer scored 12 points each in the third quarter when Detroit turned up the defensive heat to take a 2-0 lead in their Eastern Conference series. The Pistons forced six turnovers in the third quarter, converting them into 13 points. Indiana got off only 14 shots in the quarter, hitting seven. Reggie Miller led Indiana with 23 points.

Spurs 129, Nuggets 120

At San Antonio, David Robinson scored 31 points and Willie Anderson added 25, sparking a fourth-quarter outburst that gave the Spurs a 2-0 lead in their Western Conference series. Terry Cummings finished with 21 points for San Antonio, which could sweep the series with a win in Tuesday night in Denver. Lafayette Lever paced Denver with 26 points.

Trail Blazers 114, Mavericks 107

At Portland, Ore., Kevin Duckworth scored 18 points to lead six Trail Blazers in double figures. The best-of-five Western Conference series now moves to Dallas with Portland holding a 2-0 lead. The Mavericks, who led most of the first half, were paced by Derek Harper's 23 points. Roy Tarpley and Rolando Blackman each scored 22.

KALAPANA, HI (APRIL 29) UPI - A relentless flow of lava from Kilauea volcano destroyed three homes in a rural housing area Saturday, bringing to 114 the number of homes destroyed since the current eruption phase began seven years ago.

Gov. John Waihee, calling the lava a ''slow-moving crisis,'' issued a proclamation declaring certain parts of a southeast section of the island of Hawaii major disaster areas due to the ''insidious, continuous, and substantial lava flows'' from Kilauea volcano.

The current eruption phase began January 1983, and lava from Kilauea has caused an estimated $25 million damage since then.

The front of the flow of molten rock is 600 yards wide, stretching across five streets in the rural Kalapana Gardens housing area on the island of Hawaii some 200 miles southeast of Honolulu.

The lava is pouring from Kilauea's Kupaianaha vent 6 miles upslope from the development at the rate of 650,000 cubic yards daily, said scientists at the Hawaiian Volcano Observatory.

The three houses went up in flames at 10 a.m. HST (4 p.m. EDT), at 4:15 p.m, and 4:45 p.m., to bring the number destroyed in the settlement this month to 35.

Lava was poised to move over roads at three places - on the northwest, northeast, and southeast sides of the settlement - threatening to completely isolate Kalapana Gardens.

Hawaii County Civil Defense officials for the first time ordered all residents of the rural settlement out of their homes.

While evacuation orders have been in effect in the past, residents whose homes were not in imminent danger of being overrun were allowed to remain.

Some of the people who have left the housing area were staying at a tent shelter set up by the Red Cross at the Harry K. Brown about a half-mile from Kalapana Gardens.

There were about 80 people in the shoreside park but it was difficult to tell how many were evacuees, since others were also camping there, said a civil defense spokesman.

The front of the lava flow was about 400 yards from the Kalapana Store and the historic Star of the Sea Catholic Church, said Civil Defense Assistant Administrator Bruce Butts.

The church is more frequently referred to as the Painted Church because of the Biblical scenes painted on its interior walls.

Professional builders decided the church would be strong enough to be moved, despite being termite-damaged, said church property manager John Tolmie.

Final preparations to move the church will be made when the lava is determined to be about two days from the structure, said Tolmie.

The governor's proclamation specifically cites Royal Gardens, Kapaahu, Pacific Paradise Ocean Front Estates, Keone, Kalapana Gardens, and the town of Kalapana as disaster areas.

His disaster declaration frees $1 million in state money for immediate disaster relief. The proclamation makes available business and individual loans, tax relief, housing assistance and public lands for residential purposes for qualified people.

State disaster funds can also be used to repair public property such as roads or water lines.

The state Legislature, wrapping up its annual 60-day session, has included $1 million in the state budget to help deal with the destruction.

State civil defense and federal and county officials will make a more extensive survey of the affected area to try getting a better assessment of the total damage and impact of the disaster.

After that assessment is complete, the governor may seek federal assistance for the area.

(APRIL 29) UPI - A sheriff's spokesman in Colorado says searchers have found the wreckage of a single-engine plane that went down in the rugged Colorado mountains near Leadville during a snowstorm. At least six people are confirmed dead in the crash. The spokesman says worsening weather and steep terrain forced officials to abandon Saturday's efforts to recover the bodies.

Former President Reagan was in Miami Saturday, where he spoke to thousands of cheering Cuban exiles. Reagan called on Cuban leader Fidel Castro to hold free elections in the Caribbean island nation. To quote the former president- ''In the sanctity of the secret polling booth, the voice of freedom triumphs.''

NEW YORK (APRIL 29) UPI - A teenager bent on settling a dispute over a girl lured four other youths with the promise of drugs to a Bronx schoolyard where he gunned them down with at least 18 shots, killing two and wounding two, police said Sunday.

The four teenagers went to the schoolyard of P.S. 177 in the Clasons Point section at 10:30 p.m. Saturday after the unidentified assailant told them he would give them drugs, said Sgt. Mary Wrensen, a police spokeswoman.

The teenager had been feuding with the four other youths over a girl, Wrensen said.

She said that when the four arrived at the schoolyard, the assailant, who was accompanied by two friends, opened fire on them with a 9mm semi-automatic handgun.

''They were set up by the suspect,'' Wrensen said.

Police were searching for the gun-wielding teenager and his friends, who fled after the attack.

Nelson Rivera, 15, of the Bronx, was shot two to three times under the arm and died at the scene, police said. Carlos Young, 15, also of the Bronx, was hit twice in the chest and legs and died at Jacobi Hospital.

Manuel Allende, 18, of the Bronx, was shot in the abdomen and legs and was in guarded condition at Jacobi. A 15-year-old boy whose name was not released because of his age was shot in both legs and was listed in stable condition at Jacobi.

The gun used in the killings was not recovered, but police found 18 shell casings scattered on the ground of the schoolyard, Wrensen said.

She said police were expected to interview the two teenagers who were wounded in the attack to determine the identity of the assailant.

BANGKOK, Thailand (APRIL 29) UPI - Japan has offered to host a round of Cambodian peace talks in a renewed effort to end the country's bitter 11-year civil war, Thai Prime Minister Chatichai Choonhavan said Sunday.

Chatichai said Japan was willing to arrange a meeting for the first week of June in Tokyo between guerrilla leader Prince Norodom Sihanouk and Vietnamese-backed Cambodian Prime Minister Hun Sen.

Sihanouk is the nominal head of a three-part resistance movement that has been fighting to unseat Hun Sen's government, installed by Vietnam after its 1978 invasion of Cambodia.

Sihanouk has said he would be willing to meet Sun Hen in Tokyo. Chatichai is scheduled to meet with the Cambodian prime minister Monday to discuss the details of the potential peace talks.

However, Sihanouk also said he does not believe Tokyo peace talks would be productive because Hun Sen and the Khmer Rouge - the strongest of the three resistance groups - are far apart on key points of a proposed peace plan.

Both sides agree to U.N.-run elections, but the Khmer Rouge, which ruled Cambodia between 1975 and 1978, are adamant that Hun Sen's government be dismantled before the democratic vote.

The Vietnamese fear such a move would create a power vacuum that the Khmer Rouge would move quickly to fill. The resistance group has been accused of gross human rights violations and the deaths of an estimated 1 million Cambodians during its bloody 3 years of rule.

Thailand's Chatichai, who asked Japan to host the proposed peace talks, met with Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu Sunday morning during Kaifu's stopover in Bangkok on his way to visit Southeast Asia.

Meanwhile, Khmer Rouge Radio charged Sunday that Vietnam had sent 30,000 troops back into Cambodia in recent months to fight against resistance forces along the Thai border.

Vietnam says it withdrew all of its occupying forces from Cambodia last fall, but the resistance movement claims the Vietnamese troops are fighting along side the Cambodian government army.

TOKYO (APRIL 29) UPI - North Korea said Sunday an international fact-finding mission had verified the existence of a concrete wall along the demilitarized zone dividing the Korean Peninsula.

The communist country also disputed a claim by Defense Secretary Richard Cheney that it had the ability to invade South Korea.

The official (North) Korean Central News Agency said the existence of the wall on the southern side of the zone was verified by an international mission led by Belgian Socialist Party member Willy Burgeon, which toured the site Saturday.

''It is an undeniable, stark reality that the concrete wall exists,'' Burgeon was quoted as saying.

South Korea has denied it constructed a wall along the tense no-man's-land saying it had built fortifications deep inside its own territory to guard against a northern invasion.

The demilitarized zone divides the Korean Peninsula into the communist controlled north and the democratic south since the end of World War II.

North Korean President Kim Il Sung said earlier this year that he wanted the wall dismantled ''in order to remove the barrier of national division'' between the two Koreas.

Meanwhile, the official Communist Party daily newspaper said that North Korea had no intention to invade South Korea.

''We have neither intention nor capacity to invade the South,'' the official newspaper quoted a news analysist as saying.

The unnamed analyst was commenting on a remark by Cheney in Los Angeles Thursday that North Korea was augumenting its military spending and strength and was possessed of armed forces capable of surprise attack on the South and posing a threat to the United States.

''The U.S. imperialists outcry over threat from the North is a veil to conceal such scheme to invade the North,'' the analyst was quoted as saying.

JERUSALEM (APRIL 29) UPI - The Israeli army imposed a two-day curfew on the occupied Gaza Strip Sunday to prevent disturbances during ceremonies marking Israeli Remembrance Day and Independence Day.

At 11 a.m., sirens wailed across Israel for two minutes in honor of the 16,951 Israeli soldiers killed since the founding of the Jewish state 42 years ago.

At the sound of the sirens, most activity came to a halt. Pedestrians ceased walking while motorists stopped and stood beside their cars.

Memorial services were held at cemeteries throughout the country, and all places of entertainment were closed for the day.

In a memorial service at Mount Herzel military cemetery, transitional Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir said the nation remembered the high price paid by young Jews to establish and defend Israel. The right-wing prime minister also made a plea for peace.

''This day we remind the world that Israel seeks peace ... despite the threats against us and the growing armaments of our enemies,'' Shamir said. ''We call up our neighbors to leave the road of war and negotitate with us and build a common future bases on coexistence.''

The army put the entire Gaza Strip under a two-day curfew beginning at 4 a.m. Sunday. Such curfews have become a standard procedure during Israeli national or religious holidays.

The order confined the 650,000 Palestinian residents of the Gaza Strip to their homes. The army also sealed off Ramallah to search for gunmen who shot and killed a suspected collaborator, Zuhar Al Ejal, 44, Palestinian sources said.

The army had no information on the incident.

The somber Remembrance Day observances were to end Sunday night with a torch-lighting ceremony at Mount Herzel that will mark the start of Independence Day festivities.

In the year since the last Independence Day, 49,000 immigrants and potential immigrants have come to Israel, the Central Bureau of Statistics reported. Most of the newcomers are Soviet Jews.

The Israeli population was estimated to be 4.6 million, including Arabs in East Jerusalem and Israelis living in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip, but not Palestinians in the territories.

The country's population grew by 2.4 percent and its Jewish population by 2.2. percent compared to 1.2 percent in the previous year, the bureau said. Slightly more than 81 percent of the population is Jewish.

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, CA (APRIL 29) UPI - The shuttle Discovery swooped to a smooth Mojave Desert landing Sunday, closing out a five-day mission and leaving the tempermental Hubble Space Telescope behind in orbit.

With the light of the rising sun glinting off its wings, Discovery gently floated out of the dawn sky and settled to concrete runway 22 at 6:50 a.m. PDT after a suspense-filled morning of concern about high wind and a last-minute decision to proceed with re-entry.

Barreling down the runway at more than 225 mph, commander Loren Shriver gently pumped the shuttle's new carbon brakes in a final test, slowly bringing the speeding spacecraft to a stop after a five-day voyage of 2,068,213 miles highlighted by the deployment Wednesday of the Hubble Space Telescope.

''Houston, Discovery, wheels stopped!'' Shriver radioed mission control.

''Welcome back. Congratulations on a super mission, and the world is looking forward to reaping the benefits of your good work through the next 15 years,'' replied astronaut Steve Oswald from Houston.

Shriver, 45, co-pilot Charles Bolden, 43, Steven Hawley, 38, Bruce McCandless, 52, and Kathryn Sullivan, 38, immediately began shutting down various shuttle systems and preparing to leave the $2 billion spaceplane.

The decision to clear Discovery for landing was up in the air until the last moment because of high winds across the Mojave Desert landing site from a slow-moving front. But conditions improved as the moring wore on and rookie flight director Wayne Hale in Houston cleared the ship for re-entry.

Sailing through space 384 miles up, Shriver and Bolden fired Discovery's twin orbital braking rockets four minutes and 48 seconds to slow the ship by 390 mph, just enough to drop the 100-ton glider out of orbit.

After a one-hour plunge back into the atmosphere, Shriver banked Discovery over Edwards, lowered its nose and dived to a smooth touchdown.

Left behind in orbit was the $1.5 billion Hubble Space Telescope, capable of studying planets, stars and galaxies with 10 times the resolution of ground-based instruments in a project aimed at revolutionizing humanity's knowledge of the birth, structure, evolution and fate of the universe.

Discovery carried the costly telescope into orbit last Tuesday and Hawley, using the shuttle's 50-foot robot arm, released it into space the next day after ground controllers managed to get a stuck solar panel to unwind.

Since then, engineers at NASA's Goddard Space Flight Center in Greenbelt, Md., have been faced with a steady stream of problems, the latest involving a stuck ''high gain antenna,'' one of two needed to route science data from the observatory to a NASA relay satellite and back to Earth.

Engineers were attempting to aim the healthy antenna at a NASA data relay satellite Saturday when the other antenna's drive motor began to push too hard. Playing it safe, the operation was halted to give the test team time to figure out how to isolate the jammed antenna for more troubleshooting.

The high gain antennas, designed to lock onto and track NASA's two relay satellites, are crucial to telescope operation because they are needed to relay the torrents of science data expected once the Hubble observatory is fully operational.

In any case, the telescope's historic first photo, a focusing test shot originally scheduled to be radioed to Earth early next week, will be delayed until the satellite's checkout is back on track and problems with its science transmission antennas are resolved.

Otherwise, Harrington said, the telescope is working properly. But it cannot be fully activated and tested without at least one operational high gain antenna.

He said antenna No. 2, the one causing the concern, had a history of problems during testing on the ground that engineers thought had been corrected.

The Hubble Space Telescope is the first of four ''great observatories'' being built by NASA to study the universe across the electromagnetic spectrum in X-ray light, infrared, visible and high-energy gamma rays.

Equipped with a near-perfect 94.5-inch mirror, the Hubble is the most powerful visible-light telescope ever built for operation above Earth's obscuring atmosphere and despite its current ''teething'' pains, scientists expect a bonanza of science data once the observatory is up and running.

SAN LUIS OBISPO, CA (APRIL 29) UPI - Police using tear gas and water hoses made about 80 arrests while dispersing college-age youths rampaging through town on the final night of a traditional campus party weekend, authorities said Sunday.

Police said youths tossed rocks and beer bottles at police, damaged cars and tried to set trash dumpsters on fire in Saturday night's violent finale to the annual Poly Royal Festival, a 58-year-old California Polytechnic State University tradition.

''What we had was a full-scale riot involving thousands of students in town for a campus celebration,'' San Luis Obispo police Lt. Joe Hazouri said.

''It started last Thursday night with a small-scale riot and escalated to a medium-scale riot Friday night and a full-scale riot Saturday night,'' he said.

The rioting was confined to an off-campus residential area in the central California coastal community about 200 miles north of Los Angeles. Many students live in apartments in the neighborhood.

More than a dozen officers and at least six others were injured in the weekend disturbances that broke out during Poly Royal parties. The festival annually draws more than 100,000 people to San Luis Obispo, a town of 41,000.

Campus administrators, student leaders and Mayor Ron Dunin had issued a statement Saturday calling the police response to Thursday's and Friday's problems ''appropriate and measured'' and blaming out-of-towners for the bulk of the problems.

University administrators said, however, that they would meet this week to discuss the future of the festival.

A woman who watched Friday night's scene from her front porch called it ''incredibly chaotic.

''They were standing on cars. They were standing in the street. They were climbing telephone poles (and) street signs until they knocked all the street signs down,'' Heather Wicka told the Los Angeles Times.

''It was like a shark-feeding frenzy, just animal aggression,'' she said.

Police made 30 arrests Friday night and about 80 more Saturday for allegations from liquor violations to assault on a police officer, disturbing the peace and assault with a deadly weapon, police Capt. Cliff Chelquist said.

Friday night's crowds also looted a liquor store and did extensive damage to a residental neighborhood, knocking down signs, climbing on roofs and urinating in public.

''We had the same kind of problems as Friday night, with the exception that (Saturday night) we had a little stiffer resistance and the crowd was a little more militant,'' Chelquist said.

Chelquist said the troubles started with parties as soon as the sun went down. Police had handled some similar party-related problems during the 1989 festival, he said.

''This year, it seemed like the whole north end of town wanted to rock 'n'roll,'' Chelquist said.

Police anticipating a third night of disturbances had set up a command post in Santa Rosa Park about 7:30 p.m. Saturday. By about 10:30 p.m., Hazouri said the crowds had turned unruly.

''It was clear that ... a major law enforcement response would be needed to disperse them,'' he said.

About 125 officers from the San Luis Obispo police, Cal Poly campus police California Highway Patrol, San Luis Obispo County Sheriff's Department and every law enforcement agency in southern Monterey County and northern Santa Barbara County were called in to try and the clear the area.

''The officers were immediately greeted by rocks and bottles from the crowd and only after tear gas and high pressure fire hoses were used were the officers able to disperse the crowd,'' Hazouri said.

Other youths tried to set trash dumpsters on fire and others smashed windows on more than 60 cars.

''Along the whole of California Bouelard, every car parked there sustained some damage Saturday night,'' Hazouri said.

Most of the crowd was cleared from the area by 1:30 a.m. Sunday, but mop-up operations continued for another hour, he said.

NEW ORLEANS (APRIL 29) UPI - Diabetes forced blues guitar legend B.B. King to cancel weekend appearances at the New Orleans Jazz and Heritage Festival and all performances for the next several weeks, event officials said.

King was scheduled to perform Friday night at the River Tent in downtown New Orleans and was to have closed the festival's Saturday show at the Fair Grounds.

King suffered a diabetes attack Friday in Las Vegas and was canceling three weeks of engagements, Jazzfest executive producer George Wein said. Wein said King's manager told him the musician's condition was serious, but not life-threatening.

A spokesman for King could not be reached for comment.

Blues guitarist Elvin Bishop, who appeared at the Fair Grounds on opening day Friday afternoon, filled in for King at the River Tent. King's closing slot Saturday was covered by Little Feat.

''I have never known B.B. to cancel a show or miss a date,'' said Jazzfest producer-director Quint Davis, who has worked with King since going on tour with him in Africa in 1971.

The Jazz and Heritage Festival showcases thousands of performers in a broad range of music from funky New Orleans rhythm and blues and foot-stomping Dixieland to gospel and Cajun zydeco.

NEW YORK (APRIL 29) UPI - Two-thirds of the record $600 million in fines and penalties levied against dethroned junk bond king Michael Milken as part of a plea agreement may be tax deductible, according to a published report released Sunday.

New York Magazine, citing Milken representatives, said that because $400 million is to go into a restitution fund for victimized investors, it could be fully tax deductible as an ordinary cost of doing business.

A sobbing Milken pleaded guilty Tuesday to six felony and securitiers and tax law violations and admitted cheating some customers and rigging the prices of some stocks and bonds.

Securities and Exchange Commission Chairman Richard Breeden portrayed the 43-year-old billionaire as a master of fraud and deceit and urged a lengthy prison term for the disgraced financiuer.

As part of a plea agreement in U.S. District Court, Milken agreed to pay the record $600 million in fines and restitution.

Milken earned as much as $550 million a year as head of the influential junk bond department at Drexel Burnham Lambert Inc., which went out of business ealier this year on the heels of a collapse in the junk bond market.

The magazine also reported Milken and the government apparently sidestepped rules that now discourage judges from accepting pleas that fail to reflect the asserted seriousness the case itself by working out the deal based on offenses before November 1987, when new federal sentencing guidelines took effect.

At the center of the deal was Milken's agreement to cooperate with the government's widespread investigation of insider trading.

Sentencing for Milken is set for Oct. 1.

Five of the six charges against him carry a minimum sentence of five years in prison. A sixth carries a maximum three-year sentence. Prosecutors have said they will not ask that the terms be served concurrently.

ATLANTA (APRIL 29) UPI - Prompted by a flood of complaints from afflicted Americans, the federal Centers for Disease Control is launching a $1 million investigation into a recently identified disease that leaves its victims weak and utterly exhausted.

Dr. Walter Gunn of the CDC said the federal health agency is setting up a nationwide surveillance system to learn how widespread the puzzling illness, dubbed chronic fatigue syndrome, may be.

''We took a tally to see how many people were calling the CDC,'' Gunn said in a recent interview. ''The calls are running around a thousand a month over the past two months from people who think they have it.

''If we're getting a thousand calls a month, that's significant,'' he added. ''We know that there's something going on out there.''

Chronic fatigue syndrome, or CFS, first came to public attention about three years ago when up to 300 cases of extreme, persistent, unexplained fatigue were reported from Incline Village, a town near Reno, Nev.

Since then, outbreaks have been reported in many other parts of the country.

''The kind of fatigue we're talking about is not what you feel on a Friday afternoon,'' Gunn said. ''It is extreme, really debilitating fatigue. We got a call from one woman who said she couldn't even carry her baby across the room.''

The disease is not known to be fatal, but there have been reports of a number of suicides by desperate victims, Gunn said.

Gunn said the CDC's research initially will include patients and physicians in four cities: Reno, Atlanta, Grand Rapids, Mich., and Wichita Kan.

Some 154 physicians in Atlanta will refer CFS patients to the CDC surveillance network, along with 47 doctors in Grand Rapids, 74 in Reno and 86 in Wichita.

''These are private physicians who have patients with severe fatigue that they don't understand,'' Gunn said. So far, Gunn said, 250 patients have been referred.

The CDC is working with a definition of CFS that involves 11 symptoms and three physical criteria that occur over a period of six months.

They include low-grade fever, sore throat, swollen lymph nodes, unexplained generalized muscle weakness, muscle discomfort or myalgia, prolonged 24 hours or more of generalized fatigue after mild exercise, generalized headaches, migratory arthralgia without joint swelling or redness, neurophysical complaints (such as forgetfulness, excessive irritability, inability to concentrate and depression) and sleep disturbance.

Gunn said references in popular media to CFS as a ''yuppie disease'' are ''totally inaccurate.''

''It hits all ages and people from all walks of life,'' Gunn said. ''There doesn't seem to be any one socio-economic class. We're not looking at children (in the study), but some physicians say they are treating entire families that have it.''

Gunn said the cause of CFS is unknown, but that theories abound. One is that the Epstein-Barr virus is involved. Other researchers suspect that the immune system may be affected in some way and that normally dormant viruses for some reason become active.

Gunn said it probably will be late this year before researchers know very much about the prevalence of the illness.

''We're also looking at the course of the illness to see how many people recover,'' he said. ''Some physicians say the majority recover within five years, but others disagree.''

CDC has a disease information hotline, 404-332-4555, which people can call for facts about CFS.

(APRIL 29) UPI - Around the world... around the clock, U-P-I has the latest news.

Hawaiian Governor John Waihee has declared parts of the island of Hawaii major disaster areas because of the non-stop lava flow from Kilauea Volcano. The volcano torched three more homes Saturday, bringing to 114 the number of homes the lava has destroyed since the eruption began in 1983. Civil defense officials have ordered all remaining residents of the Kalapana Gardens residential area to evacuate.

Forecasters say the winds forecast Sunday morning during the landing of the shuttle Discovery should be within safety limits. If the weather does prohibit the shuttle from touching ground, the astronauts will use the extra day to photograph Earth using a special movie camera.

The Kremlin cut off coal supplies to Lithuania Saturday in another effort to force the republic to abandon its drive for independence. Lithuanian President Landsbergis says the declaration of independence will NOT be reversed. However, he did NOT rule out the idea of a compromise.

Syrian President Assad and Soviet President Gorbachev met in Moscow Saturday. They expressed harsh criticism of the United States. Tass says both leaders agreed the Bush administration has NOT done enough to further the stalled Middle East peace process.

Police in Vernon, Vermont, say about 20 anti-nuclear activists scrambled onto the grounds of the Vermont Yankee nuclear power plant Saturday. Officials say several protesters climbed a utility smokestack during the rally and two demonstrators remained there Saturday night.

''Babe,'' the Asian elephant who underwent a rare Caesarean section last Monday, took her first outdoor stroll Saturday since the operation. But officials at the Burnet Park Zoo in Syracuse, New York, say the elephant has a long way to go before she's completely recovered. Seven veterinarians from around the nation helped deliver ''Babe's'' stillborn calf.

BEIRUT, Lebanon (APRIL 29) UPI - Another American held for more than three years in Lebanon will be freed early this week with a message from his abductors to the Bush administration, according to an anonymous statement received Sunday by a Beirut newspaper.

''We have decided to release the American hostage Frank Reed within 48 hours, carrying a message to the American adminstration,'' said the two-line typewritten statement received by the An-Nahar newspaper.

The statement, which was not signed but came accompanied by a close-up color photograph of Reed, came exactly one week after pro-Iranian extremists freed Robert Polhill, 55, a former accountant and business professor at Beirut University who was held hostage in Lebanon for 39 months.

Reed, wearing a blue and white striped shirt and sitting against a green background, appeared suntanned and healthy in the photograph, the first released by his captors since he was abducted Sept. 9, 1986, in west Beirut.

Gunmen riding a Volvo sedan snatched Reed while he was driving in a van in the seaside area of Ramlet Al Baida.

In Washington, President Bush declined Sunday to speculate on whether the report of Reed's imminent release was true.

''I would not speculate on the hostages for the reasons I keep explaining. If that proves to be true, that's wonderful,'' Bush said when asked about the report.

Bush apparently received word of the release of the statement in Beirut during his motorcade ride back to the White House from a golf game at Andrews Air Force Base in suburban Maryland.

''We just got a report on it,'' he told reporters as he stepped out of his limousine.

Asked if he would be seeing Polhill, he said, ''I don't know if anything has been scheduled.''

Polhill is undergoing tests on a growth in his throat at Walter Reed Army Hospital in Washington, where he arrived Thursday.

Reed, of Medford, Mass., just outside Boston, is in his late 50s and, when he was abducted, was an educational adviser to the Lebanese International School in the Moslem sector of the Lebanese capital.

He had previously served for five years, after arriving in Lebanon in 1977 as the head of the elementary school of the U.S.-affiliated International College.

Reed lived with his Moslem Syrian wife, Fahimeh Dalati, in the west Beirut waterfront area of Manara, a U.S embassy spokesman said. He had converted to Islam to marry Dalati.

A statement issued in the name of the Iranian-linked Islamic Jihad group claimed responsibility for the abduction shortly after Reed disappeared, but later that organization denied holding him.

Islamic Jihad issued a statement calling for the ''real abductors to be courageous, identify themselves, shoulder the responsibility for their acts and not use our name as a disguise.''

A shadowy pro-Libyan group called the Arab Revolutionary Cells-The Forces of Omar Al Mukhtar later claimed responsibilty for kidnapping Reed. The Arab Revolutionary Cells has also claimed responsibility for holding U.S. hostage Joseph James Cicippio, also a convert to Islam.

Polhill had been held by yet another group, Islamic Jihad for the Liberation of Palestine.

Analysts suggested Sunday's declaration - although it was not signed - was authentic because it was backed up with a photograph of Reed.

Libyan Leader Col. Moammar Gadhafi has recently called on the captors of all 17 Western hostages - including seven Americans - held in Lebanon to free them on the occasion of the Moslem feast of Al Fitr, which ended Sunday.

Polhill's release last week sparked optimism that more American and Western hostages would be released soon.

Moslem extremist groups and their clerical leaders in Lebanon at first encouraged that optimism, but later said the failure of the U.S. to reciprocate for Polhill's release had delayed the release of more hostages.

The moves appeared to be part of a growing campaign by Iran's allies in Lebanon to obtain the release of a Moslem fundamentalist leader kidnapped by Israeli commandos and 400 other Arabs held by Israel in exchange for the freedom of Western hostages.

LONDON (APRIL 29) UPI - British scientists hoping to reduce the amount of plastic and rubber waste littering oceans are studying the possibilities for a degradable, self-destructing condom, a report published Sunday said.

The Independent on Sunday newspaper said leading condom manufacturer

London International is examining the ''photodegradable'' sheath, a condom which disappears when exposed to light.

The company, which makes Durex condoms and supplies contraceptives to 11 million Britons, said that after years of working to make naturally biodegradable Latex more stable and reliable, its faces the difficult challenge of trying to undo some of that progress in the name of the environment.

''Latex is a renewable natural product which is intrinsically unstable. For a long time we have been doing our best to make it more stable,'' said Bill Potter, London International's director of research and development.

''The last thing we want when the user opens his little pack of condoms is for the product to have started in any way to degrade,'' Potter told the newspaper.

The study was prompted by widening concern over the number of rubber and plastic products which are passed through sewage pipes into waterways and seas.

If left in the open, Latex will ultimately reduce to carbon dioxide and water under the combined influences of light, heat, ozone and microbial attack, the paper said. But additives have helped condoms to remain viable for several months.

Latex rubber balloons are also attracting scrutiny after reports that they are harmful to marine life, the newspaper said. The British branch of the Malaysian Rubber Producers' Research Association is set to investigate biodegradable balloons.

''At least 4 billion (balloons) are released in the United States each year, many settling on the sea, where sea animals eat them and choke to death,'' The Independent on Sunday said.

CAPE CANAVERAL, FL (APRIL 29) UPI - With Discovery back on the ground in California, NASA is gearing up to launch the shuttle Columbia next month on the agency's second flight in a row aimed at shedding new light on the birth and fate of the cosmos.

Columbia and a seven-member crew are scheduled to blast off from launch pad 39A at 12:45 a.m. EDT May 16 to ferry a suite of telescopes into orbit to study ultraviolet and X-ray emissions from energetic astronomical targets.

But as of Sunday, it was not clear who will be on board for the 36th shuttle mission.

Shuttle program director Robert Crippen announced last week that civilian astronomer Samuel Durrance had developed an unspecified ''medical condition'' and that NASA doctors were debating whether the ''payload specialist'' should be grounded and replaced with his backup, astronomer Kenneth Nordsieck.

An obviously uncomfortable Nordsieck replaced Durrance Saturday for a dress-rehearsal countdown aboard Columbia, fueling speculation that Durrance was out after more than six years of training.

But William Lenoir, NASA's associate administrator for spaceflight, said Sunday the matter was not yet closed and implied that Durrance will, in fact, be reinstated on the crew.

''We think that's working itself out so there will be no need to change the primary payload specialist, who's had a questionable medical condition '' Lenoir said at a news conference held at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif. after Discovery's landing.

''We believe ... there will be no need to make a crew change. If there is, we have a backup who is also ready.''

Durrance's crewmates for the flight are commander Vance Brand, co-pilot Guy Gardner, John ''Mike'' Lounge, Jeffrey Hoffman, Robert Parker and civilian astronomer Ronald Parise.

Durrance and Parise are the first non-professional astronauts to be assigned to a shuttle flight since New Hampshire school teacher Christa McAuliffe and satellite engineer Gregory Jarvis blasted off on Challenger's final voyage in 1986.

The last time an American space flier was bumped from a mission so close to launch was in 1970, when astronaut Ken Mattingly was taken off the ill-fated Apollo 13 moon mission because of exposure to German measles.

Durrance, an astronomer at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore, helped design the Hopkins Ultraviolet Telescope, one of four primary instruments scheduled to be launched aboard Columbia to study radiation from deep space that is blocked by Earth's atmosphere.

The data beamed back from Columbia's on-board telescopes will complement the visible light studies that will be carried out by the Hubble Space Telescope, which was launched last week from Discovery.

Later this year, NASA plans to launch the Gamma Ray Observatory, the second in a series of four ''great observatories'' designed to study the universe across a variety of wavelengths.

KATMANDU, Nepal (APRIL 29) UPI - The Christian minority in the world's only Hindu kingdom demanded religious freedom Sunday and called for the release of people imprisoned for proselytizing, a practice banned by law.

''Everybody has a right to choose a religion,'' said Simon Pandey, a Nepalese Christian leader. ''The choice is an individual decision that should not be stifled by any law. But there should not be any forceful conversion.''

Also Sunday, Prime Minister Krishna Prasad Bhattarai said he planned to meet with King Birendra to discuss abolition of the office of zonal commissioners, a move likely to reduce direct royal control and strengthen the powers of the new multi-party interim government.

Bhattarai, leader of the Nepali Congress Party, said he would also discuss broad representation of political parties in a committee for drafting the new constitution. The new constitution would limit the powers of the king.

Nepal, a landlocked Himalayan kingdom, was jolted by pro-democracy protests last month. Birendra, who had previously thwarted the emergence of a multi-party system in the impoverished nation, agreed to relinquish absolute power and allow free elections in the future.

Birendra would remain a constitutional monarch.

The growth of the pro-democracy movement apparently spurred Pandey's call on behalf of the estimated 50,000 Christians in Nepal. His comments were published in the weekly newspaper Sanghu.

Pandey demanded the repeal of article 14 of the constitution, which declares Nepal a Hindu kingdom. He also called for the repeal of laws that prohibit the spread of religions other than Hinduism.

Pandey also demanded the release of all prisoners detained for religious proselytizing or changing their faith to Christianity. Under existing laws Nepal has freedom of worship but conversion and propagation are illegal.

Christian missionaries operate schools and hospitals in the kingdom but their work is closely monitored by the government. The London-based human rights group Amnesty International has mentioned detentions of Nepalese and foreigners for proselytizing. Their exact numbers are not known.

Ninety percent of Nepal's 19 million people are Hindus, while 5 percent are Buddhist and 3 percent are Moslems.

In a meeting Sunday with the commissioners of Nepal's 14 governmental zones, the interim prime minister told the officials that their offices should be abolished.

''Your positions have become redundant,'' Bhattarai told the commissioners. Girija Prasad Koirala, secretary general of the Congress Party, who also was present, said, ''If you had any sense, you would have resigned.''

Nepal would be ruled directly from the central government through 75 district officers if the zonal commissioners are removed. Under the present system, the kingdom is divided into 75 administrative districts which come under the 14 zonal commissioners.

GREENBELT, MD (APRIL 29) UPI - The $1.5 billion Hubble Space Telescope will probably never be 100 percent healthy because a critical radio antenna needed to beam science data back to Earth apparently is stuck on a wayward cable, officials said Sunday.

But even if the antenna cannot be restored to full use, the observatory should still be able to complete its historic 15-year mission of exploring the universe using only a portion of its communication system, officials said.

''We're somewhat frustrated because we feel that even though we're going to solve this problem, a final resolution may not restore and probably will not restore that antenna to complete capability, although we feel that's not a major impact on the mission from a long-term standpoint,'' said Jean Olivier at NASA's Goddard Space Flight Center.

''At the same time, we're very elated and optimistic ... The system as a whole is working real well,'' said Olivier, who is directing the problem-plagued start-up of the telescope.

''So although we're frustrated we also feel very good and we're optimistic we'll be back up and in pretty good shape this time next week.''

The problem involves one of the telescope's two ''high-gain antennas,'' parabolic dishes mounted on masts extending from each side of the 12-ton telescope. The antennas are required to transmit the telescope's all-important science data to astronomers on the ground.

The antennas were designed to swivle about on computer command to lock onto and track a NASA data relay satellite, maintaining a crucial link between ground controllers and the satellite regardless of its orbital position.

But when ground controllers tried to point one of the antennas at the relay satellite, a motor driving the appendage showed signs of strain, indicating the antenna was stuck. Olivier believes one of many nearby cables may be catching a counter-weight on the antenna that keeps it stable.

''We've identified a cable that we suspect could be the culprit,'' he said. ''A counter-weight swinging around might be bumping this cable and it won't let it go any further.''

Engineers Sunday managed to get the satellite to beam down stored data about the antenna's motion using one of the observatory's ''low gain'' antennas, even though they are designed only to receive commands.

As many as 75 engineers are pouring over the data at Goddard, the Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala., Lockheed Missiles & Space Co. in Sunnyvale, Calif., and elsewhere, to try to solve the problem.

The worst scenario is that the problem cannot be fixed, leaving the telescope with just one operational high-gain antenna.

But engineers are optimistic they will be able to regain use of the balky antenna, although the best they can hope for is movement through a large though limited range. Even so, Olivier was hopeful the telescope will have more than 75 percent of its planned capability.

''Our long-term strategy is to find the area ... which we should avoid and thereby ... still utilize that antenna through a majority of its area of coverage,'' Olivier said.

In either case, the telescope will not be able to contact the relay satellite as often as originally planned, limiting the amount of science data that can be beamed to Earth as it is gathered.

Instead, the telescope will store information on the satellite's tape recorders longer and transmit the data less frequently to eager scientists waiting on Earth.

The telescope was placed into orbit 381 miles above Earth Wednesday by the crew of the space shuttle Discovery, which landed Sunday at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., to complete a successful five-day mission.

The long-awaited telescope is expected to revolutionize humanity's understanding of the birth, structure and fate of the universe by studying planets, stars and galaxies more clearly than ever before.

NASA has battled one problem after another since beginning an eight-month process of slowly turning on the complicated telescope's many systems and five high-tech instruments.

As a result, work to activate the electronic observatory was about a week behind schedule and the historic first photo from the instrument will be delayed.

(APRIL 29) UPI - Shuttle Discovery commander Loren Shriver is scheduled to steer his four-person crew back to Earth this morning at Edwards Air Force Base in California. There's a chance that high winds in the area could postpone the landing. But Air Force meteorologists say it appears that unsafe wind conditions will NOT occur until after the vessel lands. Discovery left behind in orbit the Hubble Space telescope.

Nearly 500 gay activists marched last night through Greenwich Village to protest yesterday morning's bombing of a popular homosexual nightspot. Police say the explosion- which consisted of a package of M does NOT appear to be a bias attack. But New York Mayor David Dinkins begged to differ... saying the anonymous act shows how urgently an anti-bias law pending in the state House is to prevent such incidents of violence.

A spokesman for the Seabrook nuclear plant says plant officials are shutting the nuclear reactor down to zero this weekend to allow engineers to modify a turbine. Originally, the plant's owner- New Hampshire Yankee- had hoped to reach full power-status by summer. The latest in a string of setbacks for the plant jeopardizes that goal, although a Seabrook official says the summer goal is still attainable.

New York police say an unidentified teen-ager seeking romantic revenge used the promise of drugs to lure four other youths into a Bronx schoolyard last night... then gunned his foes down with at least 18 shots. The barrage killed two youths and wouded the other two. Authorities plan to question the two survivors about the identity of their assailant.

(APRIL 29) UPI - About 200-thousand anti-abortion protesters gathered yesterday in the nation's capital in the anti-abortion movement's latest attempt to end legalized abortion. Despite the large turnout, rally organizers fell far short of their bid to host Washington's largest-ever rally. The abortion foes failed to draw the estimated 300-thousand that a pro-choice demonstration attracted last year. President Bush addressed the mainly religious throng via a telephone hookup.

It appears as if some of the Nicaraguan Contra guerrillas will renege on their promise to lay down their arms. The top leader of the U-S-backed rebels says his militants will NOT abide by an agreement signed April 19th that calls for rebels to enter assigned security zones and turn in their weapons. The rebel leader says that his group's reluctance stems from what it sees as the failure of the new Nicaraguan government to re-structure the Sandinista army.

Student activism is experiencing a renaissance in the United States. But a new poll released in London indicates a growing trend of intolerance among working class British youths. Nearly half the survey's respondents hold anti-homosexual views while more than a third cling to racist beliefs. The poll indicates that the youths spend much of their free time and pay at local pubs.

A friend of journalist and playwright Bella Spewack says a date has NOT been set for a memorial service for Spewack, who died this weekend at the age of 91. One of Spewack's claims to fame was her exclusive interview with the woman who claimed to be the sole surviving child of the executed czar of Russia. Spewack also invented the Girl Scout cookie and co-wrote the Tony Award-winning musical, ''Kiss Me Kate.''

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (APRIL 29) UPI - Veterans of the African National Congress Sunday declared themselves open to compromise in peace talks with the government, and ANC leader Nelson Mandela appealed to South Africa's white minority to ''make it possible for us to throw away our AK-47s.''

Before a crowd of more than 20,000 in the mixed-race township of Mitchell's Plain, the ANC presented its 11-member delegation that opens talks with the government Wednesday. The organization also addressed one of the most contentious issues it faces - the armed struggle.

The ANC team includes five prominent exiles granted temporary safe passage by President Frederik de Klerk, among them South African Communist Party leader Joe Slovo, once white South Africa's most hated man as a chief strategist of the ANC's sabotage campaign.

''We appeal to whites in this country to make it possible for us to throw away our AK-47s,'' Mandela told the crowd. ''We appeal to the government to allow us to move away from the atmosphere of conflict and confrontation.

''We ourselves, as the ANC, will do our best to ensure that a solution will be reached as soon as possible,'' he said.

The three-day meeting in the Cape is intended to address obstacles in the way of formal power-sharing negotiations, including ANC calls for an end to a 4-year-old state of emergency and amnesty for political prisoners and exiles.

De Klerk has added to the list of obstacles, insisting the ANC halt the limited guerrilla war it has waged since 1961 and make a firm commitment to resolve the country's racial conflict peacefully.

His chief reform negotiator, Constitutional Development Minister Gerrit Viljoen, writing in the nationally circulated Star newspaper Sunday, said formal negotiations could not begin until both the political climate is normalized and the armed struggle is suspended.

''The government also insists on a clear and unambiguous commitment to peaceful methods for political change ... implying the abandonment of violence and intimidation and a cessation of references to continuing the armed struggle,'' Viljoen wrote.

Mandela said the government had objected to the Lithuanian-born Slovo's presence on the negotiating team because it was ''difficult to explain'' to the ruling National Party's electorate why it was speaking with a communist.

''I have risked my own reputation and told my organization that Mr. de Klerk is an honest man... They also should risk their own reputations and explain to the whites in this country that Mr. Slovo was a true son of South Africa,'' Mandela said.

As a police helicopter hovered overhead, Slovo also addressed the crowd, declaring the delegation had come to Cape Town ''in a spirit of reconciliation.''

''If there is a way forward without bloodshed we will grasp it with both hands,'' he said. ''It is because we spoke with an AK-47 that dialogue is now at least in the air.

''Like other liberation movements, we accept that a moment may arise that negotiations and even a degree of compromise is in the interest of what the people are struggling for,'' he added. ''And we say to Mr. de Klerk in all sincerity that we will be ready to walk through the door if we really see prospects of moving speedily towards real democracy.''

Anglican Archbishop Desmond Tutu warned Sunday that right-wing extremists were attempting to subvert the peace talks and urged de Klerk's government to ''take every possible step to ensure that no one in its ranks is cooperating'' with them.

Tutu issued a statement following a letter bomb attack Saturday on prominent Harare-based anti-apartheid cleric Michael Lapsley, who has close relations with ANC exiles in Zimbabwe.

Lapsley lost sight in one, and possibly both, eyes and his hands were amputated following the blast, ANC sources said.

ANC officials in Harare blamed South African agents for the attack, the first such incident in neighboring Zimbabwe in more than two years.

RIGA, Latvia, U.S.S.R. (APRIL 29) UPI - Candidates of the nationalist Popular Front took an early lead Sunday in runoff elections for seats in the Latvian Parliament, which is expected to vote as soon as this week on independence for the Baltic republic.

The voting results could determine whether Latvia follows its southern neighbor, Lithuania, in a bid to break free from a half-century of Soviet rule.

Imants Ziedonis, a well-known Latvian poet and chairman of the Latvian Cultural Foundation, said before the elections that the nationalists had to take control of Parliament to stop ''the Russian elephant that is stomping on the Baltic ant hill.''

The Latvian Popular Front claims it won 124 places in the republic's 201-seat Supreme Soviet in the first round of voting March 18 and needed to add 10 of 17 remaining spots in the runoff election to gain the two-thirds majority necessary to proclaim independence when the new Parliament opens Thursday.

Voting was heavy on a breezy spring Sunday, with officials at several polling centers reporting that about two-thirds of their districts' eligible voters had cast ballots by 3 p.m., five hours before the close of polls.

Projections released by the official election commission at 5 p.m. showed Popular Front candidates winning at least six seats and one spot going to an office-seeker supported by Interfront, a Russian nationalist group that opposes secession from the Soviet Union. Projections for the other seats were not released.

Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev has warned Latvia and Estonia that, if they move rapidly to secede, they will face the same tough measures he has imposed in Lithuania, the third Baltic republic.

Gorbachev has demanded that Lithuania annul its March 11 declaration of independence before negotiations on Lithuanian independence can begin. On April 18, he cut off oil shipments and most deliveries of other raw materials to the defiant republic.

The Estonian Parliament, also controlled by nationalists following elections last month, passed a weaker declaration than Lithuania's on March 30, calling for phased moves toward independence. Gorbachev so far has not matched his tough measures against Lithuania with similar moves against Estonia.

The Latvian Popular Front, believing it has a chance to win enough seats in the runoff to gain a two-thirds majority, has vowed to defy Gorbachev and attempt to push through an independence proclamation soon after the new Parliament convenes May 3.

The nationalist group says a recent straw vote among its deputies elected last month showed overwhelming support for quick and decisive movement toward secession.

Even before the polls closed Sunday, the Popular Front caucus of deputies, who already claim a majority in the Parliament, met at the Latvian Academy of Sciences to begin chosing what the front believes will become the new government after the legislature convenes.

Eight of the runoff campaigns, to select lawmakers in districts where no candidates got more than half the votes in the initial election, were waged in the Latvian capital of Riga, with nine others held elsewhere in the republic of 2.7 million people.

''We think that in Riga we have no chance except for maybe two seats, but that we will win the other nine,'' said Popular Front spokeswoman Anda Anspoka.

Interviews at several polling places in Riga indicated that voting was following ethnic lines, with Latvians chosing Popular Front candidates and Russians and Russian-speaking people of other nationalities supporting their opponents.

After casting her ballot at Polling Station No. 20 in the historic Agenskalns district of the medieval city, 24-year-old Latvian Dr. Ilze Barone said she had voted for a Popular Front candidate Leopolds Ozolins, also a physician and a local environmental activist.

But a middle-aged woman, who identified herself as a Russian Jew but declined to give her name, said she had voted for Ozolins opponent, Igor Garaev, a Russian who heads a Riga district branch of the Latvian Communist Party.

Unlike its fellow Baltic republics, where Lithuanians and Estonians claim comfortable majorities of the population, only 52 percent of Latvia's 2.7 million people are Latvians.

(APRIL 29) UPI - The five-person crew aboard the shuttle Discovery is preparing the two-BILLION-dollar spaceplane for its scheduled re-entry and landing this morning. Forecasters say blustery conditions should die down to within the space agency's acceptable landing criterion by this morning's scheduled landing time .

East German Prime Minister Lothar de Maziere is in Moscow for talks with Soviet leaders. Soviet officials are expected to urge that de Maziere NOT steer East Germany into NATO.

Federal agents are looking into the possible connection between Friday's letter-bomb explosion at televangelist Pat Robertson's Christian Broadcasting Network and a January bombing in Houston. Investigators say similarities between the two blasts include postmarks from the Carolinas and that both targets were religious figures. Robertson says the bomb was sent by a ''deranged'' individual who wants to silence Christians.

Anti-abortionists turned out in droves at a rally yesterday in Washington. President Bush told about 200-thousand demonstrators that they were delivering a ''life-saving message.'' He also hypothesized that adoption is a means of resolving the bitter debate. Yesterday's rally was the largest anti-abortion gathering ever in the nation's capital, but it failed to surpass last year's get-together by pro-choice forces. That rally drew 300-thousand people.

WASHINGTON (APRIL 29) UPI - Barbara Bush is not noted for being a celebrity gawker but the first lady admitted Sunday she was disappointed at not seeing Marla Maples of Trump divorce fame at Saturday night's White House correspondents dinner.

Sitting at the head table with her husband, board members and past presidents of the association, the first lady said she scanned the room at the Washington Hilton Hotel but did not ''catch a look'' at the lady who has made headlines in the Ivana-Donald Trump rift.

The president just stared down reporters in amusement when asked if he had spotted the glamorous blonde model, wearing a black and gold dress, who was the guest of Time Magazine.

Although the room was filled with Washington dignitaries, political leaders and some Hollywood stars, Maples was the star the other guests wanted to see.

A couple of years ago, another famous blond - Fawn Hall - took center stage at the dinner held soon after revelations about the involvement of her boss, Lt. Col. Oliver North, in the Iran-Contra affair.

Mrs. Bush laughingly made the comments about Maples while chatting with reporters Sunday after attending worship services with the president at St. John's Episcopal Church across the street from the White House.

The Bushes got a lot of laughs out of Dennis Miller, the comedian on ''Saturday Night Live'' who entertained those attending the annual dinner, and the president held his own on the program.

In his remarks, Bush recalled that he discussed the forthcoming summit with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev in the Rose Garden with entertainer Michael Jackson by his side.

''Wait till you see what we have with Elvis (Presley),'' he said.

Since it was announced that his left eye was afflicted with the beginning of glaucoma, Bush has been joking about that ''vision thing'' that he has been accused of lacking. ''I can't see it,'' he jokes.

There was some snickering at the dinner in the packed Hilton ballroom when guests were served stir-fry vegetables that included broccoli. Bush, who has made clear his dislike of broccoli, said he learned in the Navy mess that one could ''just push it aside.''

Instead, he pushed it on Mrs. Bush's plate. She likes the vegetable.

During his spiel, Bush made many teasing references to White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater who lost some 40 pounds by dieting. The president said he was going to get a ''group photograph'' taken of Fitzwater.

(APRIL 29) UPI - The five-person shuttle Discovery crew have fired the spacecraft's braking rockets to lower the two-BILLION-dollar craft toward a runway at California's Edwards Air Force Base. There's still a chance that blustery winds in the Mojave desert can postpone Dicovery's landing this morning.

Israel is honoring its war dead today with memorial celebrations throughout the country. Right-wing transitional Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir used the occasion... in his words... (APRIL 29) UPI - The Soviet news agency Tass has a report on East German Prime Minister Lothar de Maziere's visit to Moscow. Tass reports de Maziere said Europe must develop a ''transitional model'' for continental security until a more permanent security order is created. De Maziere is in Moscow for talks with Soviet leaders that are expected to focus on security issues. Another probable topic of conversation is German re-unification.

Thai Prime Minister Chatichai Choonhavan says Japan has offered to host peace talks aimed at ending Cambodia's 11-year-long civil war. Conservative dissidents in the three-Million-member Episcopal Church say they'd like to remain within the confines of their predominantly liberal religion. (APRIL 29) UPI - The Hubble Space Telescope is in orbit and the shuttle Discovery is back on the ground after a successful landing today. Houston mission control said the world was looking forward to reaping the benefits of the Discovery crew's five-day mission to launch the telescope. The spacecraft landed this morning at California's Edwards Air Force Base, testing its new carbon brakes.

New York City police today arrested a 17-year-old youth suspected of gunning down four others last night in a Bronx schoolyard. Two of the victims died and the other two are hospitalized with gunshot wounds to the legs and stomach. The shooting suspect says he had been feuding with the other teens over a girl. The youths were lured to the schoolyard under the impression they would be given drugs.

Anglican Archbishop Desmond Tutu is suggesting a letterbomb attack yesterday on a fellow Anglican priest was the work of right-wing South African extremists. Prominent anti-apartheid priest Michael Lapsley is in serious condition in a Zimbabwe hospital after the package exploded in his hands. Lapsley had both his hands amputated and lost sight in one eye.

There's a report today that dethroned junk bond king Michael Milken may be able to deduct two-thirds of his record court fine from his taxes. The report says 400-Million of the 600-Million-dollar fine may be tax deductible because its going into a restitution fund for victimized investors. Milken pleaded guilty last week to felony security and tax law violations.

The European Community is using the quickening pace of German unification as the glue for binding its 12-nation organization. The E-C held a special session yesterday in Dublin, Ireland, in which it successfully tied a united Germany to its western neighbors. The organization also ''firmly and decisively'' committed to European political unity by 1993.

(APRIL 29) UPI - Reports out of Lebanon indicate another U-S hostage might be released. A Beirut newspaper received a statement today saying hostage Frank Reed would be released within 48 hours. The statement was NOT signed, but was backed up with a photo of Reed, who was kidnapped September 9th, 1986, in west Beirut.

East Germany's prime minister says he and Soviet President Gorbachev have a ''difference of opinion'' about whether a united Germany should be in NATO. Prime Minister Lothar de Maiziere met in Moscow with Gorbachev today and later said Germany could be a NATO member if the alliance changes its ''strategy and structure.'' Moscow opposes Germany's belonging only to NATO.

A new study by the World Health Organization has some sobering news about preventable deaths. It says up to 200-Million people may die prematurely during the 1990's. The study says more than eight-thousand children die each day because they are NOT immunized, and the organization's chief calls disease ''the most destructive force in the world today.''

A report out of China contradicts government denials of human rights violations in Chinese jails. The report carried by the official news media says hundreds of people detained by authorities were tortured or wrongfully detained in the first three months of this year. The numbers are an increase over last year.

The Discovery astronauts have completed their part of the Hubble mission. The five-member crew made a pin-point landing at Edwards Air Force base this morning, leaving the troublesome super scope in orbit. NASA technicians are still struggling to repair one of Hubble's jammed high-powered antennas.

(APRIL 29) UPI - A report says another American hostage may be freed soon... East German and Soviet leaders disagree on whether a united Germany should be in NATO... And the space shuttle makes a triumphant return home... U-P-I details these top stories and more, next.

It's been one week since U-S hostage Robert Polhill was released from captivity in Lebanon, and today it appears another U-S hostage might be freed soon.

A statement received today by a Beirut newspaper says American hostage Frank Reed will be released within 48 hours, carrying a message from his kidnappers to the Bush administration.

The two-line, typed statement was NOT signed, but it was backed up with a color photo of Reed, who was kidnapped September 9th, 1986, in west Beirut.

In the photo... the first released of Reed since his abduction... he is sitting against a green background and appears suntanned and healthy.

Analysts say the statement appears authentic because of the photo.

In Washington, President Bush declined to speculate on whether the report is true. He said if it turns out to be true, then ''that's wonderful.''

There's a new twist on whether a unified Germany should be a member of NATO.

East Germany's new conservative prime minister says a united Germany could be a member of NATO... but only if the Western alliance changes its ''strategy and structure.''

Prime Minister Lothar de Maiziere declined to say exactly what changes he was talking about. But he did suggest NATO should move away from being primarily a military alliance.

He says he thinks NATO ''will play more and more political and economic functions and less military functions.''

De Maziere made the statements today in Moscow, following talks with Soviet President Gorbachev. The East German leaders says there's a ''difference of opinion'' between him and Gorbachev on the issue.

Moscow opposes a unified Germany belonging only to NATO, and says Germany should either be neutral or hold dual membership in NATO and the Warsaw Pact.

(APRIL 29) UPI - The World Health Organization says as many as 200-Million people may die prematurely during the next 10 years if health care resources are NOT redistributed.

The recently released W-H-O study on death and dying was prepared for the international organization's 1990 World Health Assembly to be held later this year.

The report suggests that if the present trend of health care continues, 200-Million people may die from preventable causes in the 1990s. The study predicts that about 80 percent of those deaths will be in Third World countries.

It also says that about 14-point-six-Million children under the age of five living in developing countries are expected to die each year.

If the Discovery astronauts are relieved, it's because their mission is over.

NASA technicians aren't so lucky.

The five Discovery astronauts are on their way home to Houston after the shuttle made a picture-perfect landing this morning at California's Edwards Air Force base. Their five-day flight successfully placed the one-point-five BILLION-dollar Hubble superscope in orbit.

But NASA technicians are still struggling with their end of the stick... they've had endless headaches with their new orbiting station, whose first picture-taking session next week has been pushed back.

Engineers are still trying to fix a jammed high-powered antenna needed to help transmit data back to earth.

Deputy Project Manager Jean Olivier says the team is frustrated because, even though they think they'll solve the problem, they don't think the telescope will be able to transmit at 100-percent capacity.

(APRIL 29) UPI - Chinese authorities are refusing to comment about a Chinese legal official's disclosure that the goverment has detained or tortured hundreds of people since January.

The deputy chief of China's national attorney general's office says his office is investigating 490 cases involving death and injuries of detainees. That's an increase of nearly 60 percent over the same period last year.

The report did NOT specify whether the cases involved those arrested after last June's crackdown on the pro-democracy movement.

The official's acknowledgement comes despite steadfast denials by the government of human rights violations in Chinese jails.

Western diplomats and human rights groups have estimated that between 10-thousand and 30-thousand people were arrested or detained last year in a nationwide dragnet that followed the Tiananmen Square massacre.

A prominent anti-apartheid Anglican priest is in serious condition in a hospital in Zimbabwe following a mail-bombing at his home.

African National Congress sources say the blast occurred yesterday when Michael Lapsley opened a package he thought contained books. He was blinded in his right eye and had both hands amputated.

The force of the blast brought down parts of the ceiling and shattered windows in Lapsley's house in the capital of Harare .

In Cape Town, Anglican Archbishop Desmond Tutu says the attack might have been staged by right-wing South Africans trying to derail peace talks between Pretoria and the A-N-C. Those talks are set to begin Wednesday.

Witnesses to the bombing say Lapsley stated the package had a South African postmark just before he lapsed into unconsciousness.

(APRIL 29) UPI - The final night of a traditional campus party weekend turned into what police in San Luis Obispo, California, called a ''full-scale riot.''

Police used tear gas and water hoses and made about 80 arrests while dispersing college-age youths who rampaged through the central California coastal town about 200 miles north of Los Angeles.

Authorities say youths threw rocks and beer bottles at police, damaged cars and tried to set trash dumpsters on fire in last night's finale to the annual Poly Royal Festival. The celebration at California Polytechnic State University dates back 58 years.

Lieutenant Joe Hazouri said the trouble started Thursday night with what he termed a ''small-scale riot.'' He said on Friday night, it escalated into a medium-scale riot, and became a full-scale riot last night.

A woman who watched the disturbance Friday night called it ''incredibly chaotic.''

The federal Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta wants to know why all of a sudden so many people are complaining of extreme, UNexplained fatigue muscle and throat soreness and low-grade fevers.

The office has been swamped with phone calls in the past two months by confused sufferers... who don't have any idea what they've got.

Now the C-D-C is launching a one-Million dollar nation-wide study to track the illness... which they've dubbed chronic fatigue disorder.

C-D-C spokesman Dr. Walter Gun says the research will include patients and physicians in four cities... Atlanta... Reno, Nevada... Grand Rapids, Michigan and Wichita, Kansas.

(APRIL 29) UPI - President Bush refuses to speculate about reports that another American hostage soon may be freed. A Beirut newspaper today reported that Frank Reed, who was kidnapped in Lebanon in 1986, will be released early this week. The article also said Reed will carry a message from his abductors to President Bush.

The Hubble Space Telescope is in orbit, but it probably will NEVER be 100 percent healthy. That's because a critical radio antenna apparently is stuck on a wayward cable. But NASA officials in Greenbelt, Maryland, say the telescope should still be able to complete its 15-year mission of exploring the universe, using only a part of its communication system.

Now that the Hubble telescope has been deployed and the shuttle Discovery is back on the ground, NASA is gearing up to launch the shuttle Columbia on a related mission next month. Columbia is scheduled to blast off from Cape Canaveral May 16th to carry a group of telescopes into orbit, that'll be used to study ultraviolet and X-ray emissions from astronomical targets.

(APRIL 29) UPI - In New York City, charges of murder and attempted murder have been filed against a 17-year-old youth following a shooting in which two teen-agers were killed and two others seriously wounded. Police say Louis Perez surrendered today to detectives, following the shooting last night in a Bronx schoolyard.

Authorities say Perez lured the four youths to the schoolyard with a promise of marijuana, and then opened fire on them. Police earlier said 18 shells were found in the schoolyard, but they now say only 15 were recovered. Perez apparently shot the victims because he felt they had insulted his girlfriend.

India's prime minister says his country is ''exercising utmost restraint'' toward Pakistan in a dispute over the Kashmir region along the border between the two countries. (APRIL 29) UPI - A previously unknown group in Lebanon says it will release U-S hostage Frank Reed within 48 hours, carrying a message for the Bush administration. The statement signed by the Islamic Dawn Organization was delivered today to a Beirut newspaper. It was accompanied by a photo of Reed, showing him bearded and haggard. Earlier today, an unsigned statement and two other photos of Reed were delivered to the newspaper. In one of those photos, Reed was cleanshaven and appeared suntanned and healthy.

Panamanian President Guillermo Endara arrives in Washington, D-C, tomorrow... when he says he'll personally thank President Bush for his help in rebuilding the Central American nation. The visit marks the first anniversary of Endara's election and General Noriega's refusal to let him take office. Endara and Bush are expected to press Congress to pass 720-Million dollars in aid to Panama and Nicaragua.

At least 50 inmates at a French prison surrendered to police today after staging a mutiny. The prisoners at the Loos detention center attacked their jailers yesterday and clambered onto the roof, where they spent the night hurling tiles at police. The inmates say they wanted to dramatize prison overcrowding. The flare-up was proceeded by another riot at a nearby prison, which ended peacefully.

Runoff parliamentary elections are being held in Latvia today, and official projections show candidates of the nationalist Popular Front with an early lead. The Popular Front needs to win 10 of 17 seats in order to get the two-thirds majority needed for a declaration of independence from Moscow. The nationalist group has already said it plans to defy the Kremlin and push through a declaration of independence soon after the new parliament convenes on Thursday.

(APRIL 29) UPI - A previously unknown group calling itself the Islamic Dawn Organization says it will release U-S hostage Frank Reed within 48 hours. A statement signed by the group was sent to a Beirut newspaper , along with a photo of Reed, who was kidnapped in West Beirut on September 9th, 1986. The statement says Reed will carry a message for the Bush administration, but there was NO indication what that message would be.

In Washington, President Bush declined to speculate on whether the report was true, but he's keeping a close watch on the situation. Bush is expected to meet early this week with Robert Polhill, an American hostage who was released last Sunday amid reports that another hostage would be freed soon.

The shuttle Discovery returned home today, but NASA technicians already are gearing up for next month's launch of the shuttle Columbia. Columbia is set to blast off May 16th to ferry telescopes into orbit to study ultraviolet and X-ray emissions from space. But it's NOT yet clear if NASA will allow astronaut Samuel Durrance to go because of an undisclosed medical condition.

NASA technicians say the one-point-five-BILLION-dollar Hubble Space Telescope probably will NEVER be 100-percent healthy. They're still trying to fix one of the two high-powered antennas needed to transmit data back to Earth. The antenna is apparently snagged on a wayward cable. If technicians free it, they say Hubble only will be able to relay at about 75-percent capacity.

(APRIL 29) UPI - East German Prime Minister Lothar de Maiziere has finished his daylong visit with Soviet officials in Moscow and has left for Berlin. Before leaving, he said he's ''returning home with fine feelings'' and said the Moscow talks would simplify the German unification process. He said East Germany's policy ''will NEVER pose a threat to the Soviet people'' or to other countries.

The Contras have started moving into cease-fire zones, but they say they WON'T hand in their weapons until they discuss a list of demands with Chamorro. The rebels earlier agreed to enter cease-fire zones by last Wednesday, the day Chamorro took office, and to disarm completely by June 10th.

A new study suggests U-S colleges may be in serious trouble. In the 2nd item, please read it xxx Panamanian President Guillermo Endara arrives in Washington, D-C, today, etc.

A previously unknown group in Lebanon says it will release U-S hostage Frank Reed within 48 hours, carrying a message for the Bush administration. The statement signed by the Islamic Dawn Organization was delivered today to a Beirut newspaper. It was accompanied by a photo of Reed, showing him bearded and haggard. Earlier today, an unsigned statement and two other photos of Reed were delivered to the newspaper. In one of those photos, Reed was cleanshaven and appeared suntanned and healthy.

Panamanian President Guillermo Endara arrives in Washington, D-C, today... when he says he'll personally thank President Bush for his help in rebuilding the Central American nation. The visit marks the first anniversary of Endara's election and General Noriega's refusal to let him take office. Endara and Bush are expected to press Congress to pass 720-Million dollars in aid to Panama and Nicaragua.

At least 50 inmates at a French prison surrendered to police today after staging a mutiny. The prisoners at the Loos detention center attacked their jailers yesterday and clambered onto the roof, where they spent the night hurling tiles at police. The inmates say they wanted to dramatize prison overcrowding. The flare-up was proceeded by another riot at a nearby prison, which ended peacefully.

An election setback for nationalists in the Soviet republic of Latvia...

And it's ''mission completed'' for the shuttle Discovery...

These stories... and more... next, from United Press International:

It looks as though another U-S hostage might be released from captivity in Lebanon.

Today... one week after the release of U-S hostage Robert Polhill... a previously unknown group in Lebanon said it would release American hostage Frank Reed within 48 hours.

The Islamic Dawn Organization sent a statement to a Beirut newspaper, saying Reed would be carrying a message for the Bush aministration. The statement was accompanied by a photo of Reed, showing him bearded and smiling.

Earlier today, another photo of Reed sent to the Beirut newspaper showed him cleanshaven and apparently healthy. But, in a separate picture sent to a Western news agency, he appeared haggard and tired.

Reed, who's in his late 50's, was kidnapped in West Beirut on September 9th, 1986.

In Washington, D-C, President Bush declined to speculate on whether the report was true... but he's keeping a close watch on the situation in Beirut. The White House says it has ''NO independent confirmation'' of the report.

(APRIL 29) UPI - Nationalists in Latvia may NOT have the parliamentary votes needed to secede from the Soviet Union.

The Baltic republic's Popular Front suffered a setback today in key runoff elections. They won only four of the 17 remaining seats in the Latvian Parliament. They needed 10 of those seats for an out-right two-thirds majority needed to declare independence.

The election comes only four days before the Parliament votes on whether to follow neighboring Lithuania's lead to secede.

Soviet President Gorbachev has warned Latvia and Estonia, another independence-minded republic, that they'll suffer a fuel embargo similiar to the one imposed on Lithuania if they speed toward independence.

But even with the election losses, leaders of the Popular Front say they have the support to clinch the needed two-thirds majority.

More than 35-thousand people demonstrated throughout Romania today, punctuating a week of protests aimed at toppling the remains of the nation's old communist regime.

Some 20-thousand anti-communist activists rallied in the city of Timisoara... where demonstrations last December sparked the revolution that ousted dictator Nicolae Ceausescu .

Demonstrators are trying to drive out the communists who they say still cling to power. They're also moving to ban members of the disbanded secret police from seeking candidacy in the May 20th elections.

Today's was the latest in a round of protests that began last week in Bucharest. Organizers say they want to establish real democracy and remove the tension caused by the regeneration of communist structures.

(APRIL 29) UPI - The Discovery astronauts flew back to their homes near Houston today, following completion of their five-day mission that launched the Hubble Space Telescope.

Earlier, the five-member crew brought Discovery down to a pinpoint landing at Edwards Air Force Base in California. Left behind in orbit was the one-point-five-BILLION-dollar space telescope that's expected to revolutionize astronomy.

The telescope will enable scientists to study planets, stars and galaxies with 10 times the clarity of instruments on the ground.

NASA has had some trouble activating the Hubble telescope, and a radio antenna needed to beam data back to Earth appears to be jammed because of an obstruction.

But officials say they're still ''elated'' because ''the system as a whole is working real well.''

Astronaut Steven Hawley said in Houston that the end of Discovery's mission marks the beginning of the space telescope's 15-year adventure.

Panama's President Guillermo Endara arrived in Washington, D-C, today for a five-day U-S visit that's to include talks with President Bush and a visit to the United Nations.

He told reporters he has ''every confidence'' that Congress will help his country financially.

Before leaving Panama, Endara said the main purpose of his trip is to thank President Bush for his help in rebuilding the Central American nation.

A senior Bush administration official says Endara's visit will highlight the president's push for 720-Million dollars in aid for Panama and Nicaragua. The aid package is stalled in Congress because of fights over amendments.

Endara's U-S visit comes one year after he was elected to lead his nation. He did NOT assume office until after a U-S invasion in December that overthrew former Panamanian dictator Manuel Noriega .

(APRIL 29) UPI - Life on America's college campuses apparently is NOT the idyllic experience depicted in college promotional materials.

A new Carnegie Foundation study says racial tension, sexism, substance abuse and crime are playing an increasingly disturbing role in campus life and are weakening the undergraduate experience.

The study was based on surveys of 500 college and university presidents and 500 student affairs officers... and on interviews with students, faculty and administrators.

The presidents said racial and ethnic divisions are deepening, with 24 percent saying racial tensions are a major problem.

Various forms of anti-Semitism are flaring up, and sexist attitudes and sexual harassment persist. Other problems included physical attacks against women, abusive language and increases in crime.

The report says a larger, more integrated vision of ''community'' is needed to improve students' classroom and social experiences.

A London newspaper says environmentally-conscious British scientists are trying to develop a degradable, self-destructing condom.

The Independent on Sunday says leading condom manufacturer London International is examining a sheath which evaporates when exposed to light.

The company already makes Durex condoms and supplies contraceptives to 11-Million Britons.

The company launched the feasibility study amid widening concern over the number of rubber and plastic products which are passed through sewage pipes into the oceans. An in-house report says that in the United States alone, at least four-BILLION condoms find their way into waterways, where- quote- ''sea animals eat them and choke to death.''

LONG BEACH, CA (APRIL 30) BUSINESS WIRE - Dolphin Scientific Inc. Monday announced the Desktop Signal Processor DSP450, a multipurpose super computer providing 450 million floating point operations per second using the MACINTOSH II or IBM PC/AT as host computers.

Because of its small size (about the size of an IBM PC), the DSP450 fits easily in the office environment with no special power or cooling requirements unlike systems of similar processing power.

The DSP450 can be used in a wide range of applications from I/O intensive such as robotics, control/monitoring and sound/speech processing, to compute intensive such as meteorology, biochemical analysis and scientific simulation. At $59,990, the DSP450 is one of the lowest priced super computers available.

A complete development software package is included with the DSP450 and includes AT&T C for easy coding or port of existing code and a library of math, matrix, filter and FFT functions that reduce development time. Also included is the Dolphin Scientific DsiView package containing a library of subroutines that allow viewing and processing external signals through the I/O ports.

DsiView also contains a window interface that allows users to download programs, run applications and retrieve results from specific DSP32C processors.

The DSP450 harnesses the power of 18 DSP32C floating point digital signal processors. Each DSP32C is connected to its own 1.0 Gbit/sec bus allowing the DSP450 to sustain a total system throughput rate of 1600 Mbytes/sec. The DSP450 is one of 16 Dolphin Scientific digital signal processing computers that utilize the AT&T DSP32C processor.

A five slot enclosure allows flexible configurations with up to 40 analog channels (8,12 and 16 bit ADC/DAC), four 32-bit digital ports, four serial ports and four RS-232 ports.

Along with MACINTOSH II and IBM PC/AT host interfaces, future interfaces will include MACINTOSH SE/30, SUN 3, SUN 4, SUN SPARCStation, IBM PS2 and DEC/Q-BUS.

Prices start at $12,500 for the DSP25 containing one DSP32C processor and 10 analog channels, to $59,990 for the DSP450. Orders will be taken beginning in June with delivery 12 weeks ARO.

GREENVILLE, SC (APRIL 30) BUSINESS WIRE - The Liberty Corp. (NYSE:LC) Monday announced operating earnings for the first quarter ended March 31, 1990, of $5.2 million, or 60 cents per share, compared with first quarter 1989 operating earnings of $660,000, or 8 cents per share.

Total net income for the first quarter of 1990 was $4.5 million, or 52 cents per share, compared with net income for the year-earlier period of $1,163,000, or 14 cents per share. The first quarter net income comparison includes realized investment losses of $677,000, or 8 cents per share, for the first three months of 1990 and realized investment gains of $503,000, or 6 cents per share, for the year-earlier period.

Revenues from operations for the quarter increased 3 percent to $77.3 million compared with $75.4 million for the first three months last year. Net investment income, excluding realized investment gains, increased 25 percent to $21.6 million.

Commenting on the results, Hayne Hipp, president, said: ''Our insurance and broadcasting operations were both above budget for the quarter. Liberty Life's operating earnings, exclusive of net realized investment losses, were $7 million, well ahead of the $4.3 million reported in the similar period last year. Revenues for Liberty Life increased 11 percent to $57.9 million and expenses as a percentage of premiums continued to decline.

NASHUA, NH (APRIL 30) BUSINESS WIRE - Nashua Corp. (NYSE:NSH) announced that it intends to commence a Dutch Auction self-tender offer for up to 2.75 million shares of its common stock later this week.

Nashua indicated that the price range for tendering shares under its offer will be between $39 and $44 per share. Nashua currently has 9.2 million shares outstanding.

The Dutch Auction self-tender offer will provide stockholders who are considering a sale of all or a portion of their shares the opportunity to determine the price or prices at which they are willing to sell their shares, within the range specified by the company.

Nashua will select a single purchase price within this range that will enable it to buy at that price up to 2.75 million shares tendered at or below such price. Shares tendered above that price will not be purchased in the offer. The offer will not be conditioned on any minimum number of shares being tendered.

If tendered shares are purchased pursuant to the offer, holders will be able to sell a significant portion or all of their shares for cash at a price greater than market prices prior to the company's announcement in February of the sale of its international office systems business and its expectation to use a significant portion of the net proceeds to purchase shares.

Selling shareholders will not incur the usual transaction costs associated with open-market sales. Funding for the tender will come from a portion of the net proceeds of the recently completed sale of Nashua's international office systems business to Gestetner Holdings plc.

Charles E. Clough, chairman, president and chief executive officer, said,

''This self-tender offer is evidence of our continued commitment to increasing stockholder value. The board strongly believes that Nashua's common stock is an attractive investment.

Nashua Corp. provides a diverse mix of products and services which includes coated paper products, computer products, office supplies and photofinishing services.

MONTEREY, CA (APRIL 30) BUSINESS WIRE - In a survey released Monday by the American Electronics Association (AEA), it was reported that 90 percent of 262 participating electronics companies view quality and productivity as key competitiveness tools, but that less than 25 percent have viable programs in place.

The results were released here today at the start of AEA's annual Productivity Colloquium.

The annual productivity survey was conducted for the trade group by Pittiglio, Rabin, Todd & McGrath (PRTM) and KPMG Peat Marwick's High Technology Practice.

For the first time, the survey incorporated questions on the importance of time-to-market -- the time required to bring a product to volume production from engineering project -- as a competitive consideration. Ninety three percent of the survey participants idenitified it is an important factor.

Approximately two-thirds of the respondents said that the time-to-market span has grown shorter in their industry segments. Although 54 percent said they had programs in place to address product cycle lengths, just 5 percent stated they had achieved progress in getting products to market sooner.

The AEA survey measured industry use of five currently used productivity programs -- Total Quality Management (TQM), Just-In-Time manufacturing (JIT), Design for Manufacturability (DFM), Computer-Integrated Manufacturing (CIM), and Electronic Data Interchange (EDI).

Participants using each program broke out as follows: TQM/73 percent; JIT/52 percent; DFM/45 percent; CIM/42 percent for CIM, and EDI/15 percent.

The American Electronics Association represents more than 3,500 companies in technology concentrations throughout the U.S. For almost 50 years, AEA has been the accepted voice of the U.S. electronics community.

Copies of the survey results are available from PRTM at (415) 967-2900.

WALNUT CREEK, CA (APRIL 30) BUSINESS WIRE - The Avant Garde Group Monday announced the availability of EtherPeek , a new Macintosh and Ethernet-based local area network analyzing tool for network administrators and programmers.

EtherPeek takes advantage of the Macintosh graphic interface to provide data about Ethernet network performance. Shipments to EtherPeek's first customers and distribution channels began last week.

EtherPeek is a software-only solution which is compatible with most major Ethernet controller cards for the Macintosh. EtherPeek lets users capture transmit, view and interpret traffic on Ethernet networks to troubleshoot problems, check network connections and analyze performance.

EtherPeek is capable of intercepting every type of packet on an Ethernet network. It comes pre-configured to decode AppleTalk and IP packets. Multiple display features make it useful for discovering routing and configuration errors on large networks. Programmers can also use EtherPeekUs packet analysis to help them confirm their compliance with protocol standards.

Packets may be saved for post-analysis by EtherPeek or by other user applications.

REtherPeek is a network analysis tool similar to those that are PC-based but without the cumbersome user interface nor the prohibitive high cost of those systems, said Mahboud Zabetian, vice president of research at The Avant Garde Group. REtherPeek is the Ethernet network monitoring tool for the rest of us.

EtherPeek now runs on any member of the Macintosh II family, in conjunction with any of the following Ethernet cards: AppleUs EtherTalk NB 3ComUs EtherLink/NB, CaymanUs GatorCard/E II, NovellUs EtherPort II, and AsantUs MacCon II. In addition, EtherPeek may be used on a Macintosh SE/30 with a Novell EtherPort SE/30 card.

EtherPeek lists for $475 and is available now from The Avant Garde Group.

The Avant Garde Group develops network enhancement products for internetworks which include Macintosh computers. The products provide solutions to the problems of network setup, management, maintenance, and expansion.

SUNNYVALE, CA (APRIL 30) BUSINESS WIRE - Advanced Micro Devices Inc. (''AMD'') and Samsung Semiconductor Inc. (''Samsung'') have settled litigation pending between them in the United States District Court for the Northern District of California relating to certain AMD patents for programmable array logic (PALR) semiconductor circuits.

In the litigation, AMD asserted claims alleging that Samsung was infringing U.S. Patent No. 4,124,899 (''''899 Patent'') relating to PAL-type products and that Samsung was infringing U.S. Patent No. 4,717,912 (''''912 Patent'') relating to 22V10-type devices. As part of the settlement, Samsung has acknowledged that AMD's '899 Patent and '912 Patent are legally valid.

Samsung has decided to discontinue production of its CMOS programmable logic (CPLTM) devices over the next two years, and AMD has granted Samsung a limited license under the '899 Patent during this period of time.

Specifically, AMD has licensed Samsung for a period of one year to enable Samsung to sell CPL products in its current inventory, and for two years to enable Samsung to meet its CPL obligations to its original equipment manufacturers (OEM) customers. Samsung has notified its distributors and OEM customers that it will be discontinuing the sale of its CPL products.

Samsung and AMD have also agreed to discuss a possible future business relationship in areas of mutual technological interest.

As part of the settlement, Samsung and AMD will each dismiss the claims they have filed against each other and will exchange mutual releases of all claims arising out of the litigation.

RESTON, VA (APRIL 30) BUSINESS WIRE - US Sprint Monday announced a comprehensive, organization-wide information directory or ''electronic address book'' for its SprintMail(sm) electronic messaging service.

The service enables companies and organizations to establish a centralized easy-to-use, on-line directory for their users as well as other companies using SprintMail(sm) or office automation systems. The directory is designed with a data structure that follows the X.500 international recommendations now being developed for an eventual global E-mail directory.

The SprintMail(sm) directory uses a simple menu-driven format to present E-mail addresses and 33 other information categories such as X.400 global electronic messaging address, telephone, fax and telex numbers, title, department or postal address.

Directory Service is accessible from virtually anywhere in the world, in most instances by a local dial-in call to SprintMail(sm).

''Directory Service fills a real need in the rapidly-growing E-mail market '' said Howard Brooks, vice president and general manager messaging services, at Sprint International, which has worldwide responsibility for the US Sprint E-mail service.

''It makes SprintMail(sm) a single point of reference for addressing information, not only within companies but also by other companies using SprintMail(sm) or other office automation systems.''

The directory provides restricted access to organizations at several levels, with built in safeguards against misuse of information. Organizations can specify which external companies may use their directory as well as the amount of information available to outside users.

US Sprint is a unit of United Telecommunications Inc., a diversified international telecommunications company headquartered in Kansas City, Mo.

OAKLAND, CA (APRIL 30) BUSINESS WIRE - Bruce Seaton, chairman of American President Companies Ltd. (APC), announced the resignation of Donald C. Orris, president of the company's domestic transportation subsidiary, American President Domestic Co. Ltd. (APD).

The resignation is effective immediately.

The resignation related to fundamental differences over APC's moving in the direction of increased integration of its business activities.

Pending announcement of a successor, which is expected shortly, Seaton said the domestic operations will report on an interim basis to Michael Diaz. Diaz is president of American President Intermodal Co., an APD operating unit that manages the company's double-stack container train network in North America.

APC provides container distribution and transportation services within and between Asia and North America through an intermodal system combining ocean, rail and truck transportation.

FRESNO, CA (APRIL 30) BUSINESS WIRE - United Express Monday announced that it will offer a special $49 fare on flights between Fresno and San Francisco effective Tuesday, May 1, the same date that it will increase jet service on the route.

United Express is operated by WestAir Airlines, a subsidiary of WestAir Holding Inc. (ASE:WAH).

''We are redeploying our jet aircraft routes that have clearly indicated a demand for increased capacity and jet frequency,'' said Maury Gallagher, president. ''The move in the Fresno-San Francisco market is in response to feedback we've received from our local customers and travel agents.''

Gallagher said that United Express will offer four non-stop roundtrip jet flights every business day between San Francisco and Fresno, doubling the two roundtrip jet flights currently offered. United Express will also offer three jet-prop roundtrips on the route bringing the total service to seven roundtrips daily effective Tuesday.

The airline utilizes its 90-passenger British Aerospace BAe-146 for all its jet flights.

Gallagher said the new excursion fare is set at $49 each way, and requires roundtrip travel, seven day advance ticket purchase, and a Saturday night stay. The fare will be available for ticket purchase at least through June 1.

The new discount fare offer is intended to further stimulate passenger travel and entice travelers, particularly those taking weekend pleasure trips, who might otherwise drive their cars to San Francisco, Gallagher said.

Many passengers flying United Express from Fresno to San Francisco connect there to United Airlines flights serving the Pacific Northwest, Hawaii, other parts of the United States and the Orient, said Gallagher. He said that United Express customers who make those connections often pay no more flying from Fresno and connecting in San Francisco than they would if they started their trip in San Francisco.

Doing business as United Express through marketing agreements with United Airlines, WestAir offers its customers many United benefits including Mileage Plus frequent flier credits on all flights, worldwide reservations advance seat selection and boarding passes. For additional information and reservations for United Express flights, customers can call 800/241-6522.

WestAir Holding Inc. is the parent company of WestAir/United Express, NPA/United Express and Altantic Coast Airlines/United Express. WestAir Holding Inc. employs over 2,500 people and is headquarterd in Fresno.

SANTA CRUZ, CA (APRIL 30) BUSINESS WIRE - The dramatic increase in Raytek Inc.'s manufacturing efficiency will be showcased Tuesday as part of the annual Productivity Colloquium being held in Monterey, Calif., by the American Electronics Association (AEA).

Raytek, a leading developer of infrared thermometers used to monitor temperatures in process manufacturing and maintenance, was selected as the small company manufacturing plant to be visited by the more than 70 top corporate officers attending the AEA conference on productivity.

The visiting executives will learn how Raytek went from spending $74,000 per month controlling production and inventory in 1985 to a position of having no finished goods in inventory today. Using Just-in-Time manufacturing procedures, the company has slashed inventory, improved quality, reduced manufacturing floor space and increased revenues.

Under the company's Total Quality Control program, every Raytek workers inspects his or her own work, eliminating the quality control position. All products are built only after receiving an order and one-third of Raytek orders -- and invoices -- are shipped within 48 hours.

''Raytek is an outstanding example of an American company that has increased productivity while improving quality and profitability,'' said Stephany Nickel, AEA's manager of quality and productivity. ''Our conference attendees will learn a great deal from the Raytek experience.''

''We are an international company with more than 30 percent of our sales overseas,'' said Fred Hennes, Raytek's vice president of operations. ''We knew we had to streamline our entire operation to be successful in this competitive marketplace. We learned that we could control expenses while improving productivity and quality, as demonstrated by Raytek having one of the lowest return rates in the industry.''

Hennes will escort the visiting executives on the tour of the Raytek facility. Steve Mangelsen, vice president of finance, will outline the steps the company took to become one of the electronics industry's most efficient manufacturers.

The AEA's four-day Productivity Colloquium at the Hyatt Regency in Monterey ends Wednesday.

TUSTIN, CA (APRIL 30) BUSINESS WIRE - CMS Enhancements Inc. (NYSE:CME) Monday announced net sales for the third quarter ended March 31, 1990, of $46,383,000, down from $52,876,000 for the same quarter of last year.

Net income for the quarter was $420,000, or 13 cents per share, compared with $1,118,000, or 43 cents per share, for the same quarter last year.

Net sales for the first nine months of fiscal 1990 were $154,153,000 compared with $157,554,000 for the comparable period last year, while net income for the first nine months of the current fiscal year was $2,150,000 or 68 cents per share, compared with $3,585,000, or $1.49 per share, for the same nine-month period a year ago.

Per-share results have been computed with 23 percent more shares outstanding for the current year's third quarter and 32 percent more shares outstanding for the first nine months of fiscal 1990 than in the prior comparable periods, and have been adjusted to reflect the one-for-four ''reverse'' split of the company's common stock on Dec. 5, 1989.

''While we are disappointed in these lower results, the reduced revenues are primarily due to our concentration during the quarter on those products which carry a higher profit margin for the company,'' stated President and Chief Executive Officer Jim Farooquee.

''In addition,'' Farooquee said, ''we continue to experience increased expenses attributable to our tape back-up manufacturing facility in Singapore, and during the third quarter we encountered initial expenses associated with the acquisition of our service and repair business, along with competitive pressures in Apple-related products.

''Our strategy is to continue to emphasize our higher margin product lines and we believe that this emphasis in the coming quarters will improve our operational results,'' Farooquee said.

CMS Enhancements Inc. is a producer and global marketer of mass data storage devices and accessories for personal computers manufactured by Apple, IBM, Digital Equipment Corp., Compaq, AST, Commodore, AT&T, Zenith, Tandy, Toshiba and others. DALLAS (APRIL 30) BUSINESS WIRE - The Federal Communications Commission has denied and dismissed a complaint by the Dallas Times Herald that sought to revoke the broadcast license of WFAA-TV, A.H. Belo Corp.'s (NYSE:BLC) ABC television affiliate in Dallas-Fort Worth.

In a petition filed Oct. 4, the Times Herald alleged that Belo improperly used its cross-ownership of WFAA-TV and The Dallas Morning News to induce Universal Press Syndicate to transfer 26 UPS features from the Times Herald to The Morning News, causing financial loss to the Times Herald.

The complaint also alleged that WFAA-TV television facilities and expertise were improperly used to explore programming opportunities for UPS features.

In a separate antitrust case currently pending in Texas state court, the Times Herald has asserted similar claims against Belo and The Dallas Morning News concerning the transfer of UPS features from the Time Herald to The Morning News. A decision in that case is expected within days.

Belo owns The Dallas Morning News and Dallas-Fort Worth Suburban Newspapers Inc., publisher of seven community newspapers in the Dallas-Fort Worth area. In addition, Belo owns and operates network-affiliated television stations WFAA-TV (ABC) in Dallas-Fort Worth and KHOU-TV (CBS) in Houston; KXTV (CBS) in Sacramento, Calif.; WVEC-TV (ABC) in Hampton-Norfolk, Va.; and KOTV (CBS) in Tulsa, Okla.

BOSTON (APRIL 30) BUSINESS WIRE - Lifetime Corp. (NYSE:LFT) a leading national home health care personnel and services company, announced Monday the signing of a definitive agreement to sell its interest in its subsidiary Kindhaven Limited which owns Chelsfield Park Hospital in England to GreatNorthern Health Management Limited, a subsidiary of Compagnie Generale de Sante (''CGS'') for cash proceeds of approximately $11 million, resulting in an immaterial gain.

The sale of Kindhaven Limited was concluded after negotiations to form a joint venture with CGS for medical services and facilities in the United Kingdom and Europe were terminated following the acquisition by CGS of AMI Healthcare PLC in England.

In connection with this agreement Daniel Caille, president of CGS, has resigned from the board of directors of Lifetime as of April 27, 1990 and will concentrate on his new European responsibilities and CGS has given up its right to appoint a new director to the Lifetime board.

CGS has also agreed not to increase, for a period of two years, its equity interest in Lifetime beyond 25 percent without the prior approval of the Lifetime board of directors. CGS remains a substantial shareholder of Lifetime with approximately 9 percent of its stock. DALLAS (APRIL 30) BUSINESS WIRE - Trammell Crow Real Estate Investors (NYSE:TCR) Monday announced that the five nominees for election as trust managers had been elected at its 1990 annual meeting of shareholders held Monday.

In addition to four incumbent trust managers, Trammell Crow, the founder of Trammell Crow Co., was elected to serve as trust manager in place of Don Williams, who decided not to seek reelection. Crow previously served as a trust manager from the trust's inception in 1985 until 1988.

During the meeting, Philip Norwood, president and chief executive officer of the trust, announced that the trust Monday declared a cash distribution to shareholders of 17.5 cents per share for the first quarter of 1990 ended Mar. 31. The distribution is payable May 16 to shareholders of record on May 9.

It is estimated that the entire first-quarter distribution will constitute a tax-free return of capital. Distributable cash for the quarter ended Mar. 31 amounted to $1,856,597, or 20.5 cents per share, almost unchanged from distributable cash for the previous quarter ended Dec. 31, 1989, of $1,891,000, or 20.8 cents per share.

Distributable cash for the comparable period ended Mar. 31, 1989, amounted to $2,862,000, or 31.5 cents per share. This decrease in distributable cash resulted from the expiration of the trust's developers' leases, a decline in rental rates, and the continued high cost of attracting and retaining quality tenants.

Trammell Crow Real Estate Investors is an equity real estate investment trust that has acquired from Trammell Crow Co. entities 19 commercial real estate projects, consisting of 18 industrial properties located in California, Florida, Maryland, Minnesota, North Carolina, Texas,

Washington and Wisconsin, and one retail mall located in Colorado.

The trust's investment objective is to maximize the total return to its shareholders through the leasing, management and eventual disposition of its industrial and retail properties.

MENLO PARK, CA (APRIL 30) BUSINESS WIRE - Raynet Corp. Monday announced a new trial of its fiber optic telephone system to be conducted by Telefonica, the Spanish telephone company.

The trial involves the testing of Raynet's Loop Optical Carrier (LOC) fiber optic system. The first phases of the Raynet trial are designed to test the technological and economic feasibility of delivering conventional telephone service with fiber optic technology rather than conventional copper.

Later phases of the trial will verify the Raynet approach in bringing cable television and high-speed business services (ISDN and BISDN) to every home and office (see attachment for technical details).

The first two trial phases using the Raynet LOC System will test regular voice-grade telephone service, commonly known as POTS (Plain Old Telephone Service). Phase one will begin in the fourth quarter of 1990, with the LOC system being installed in a neighborhood of approximately 100 homes in Madrid, Spain.

According to Raynet, Madrid customers will not notice any change in their service, except for perhaps an improvement in signal quality with the new system.

During phase two, Telefonica will test Raynet's system for enhanced services and for volume deployment in the telephone network. The second stage of the trial will be implemented during the fourth quarter 1991.

In subsequent phases, Telefonica will also evaluate the Raynet LOC system for its upgrade capabilities. Raynet's LOC system is designed to provide cable television (AM video), as well as high speed data communications (Integrated Services Digital Network, or ISDN) and broadband ISDN (BISDN) when these services become available.

The Raynet system provides many passive optical network (PON) deployment options, including a bus topology utilizing Raynet's non-invasive optical coupler, as well as splitter-based layouts. These multiple cable deployment options permit a high degree of flexibility and resource sharing in the outside plant.

Raynet Corp. develops, manufactures, and sells high-performance, cost-effective resource-sharing fiber optic telephone and video distribution systems for local loop applications throughout the world. Founded in 1987, Raynet is a subsidiary of Raychem Corp. (NYSE:RYC).

SAN JOSE, CA (APRIL 30) BUSINESS WIRE - Xilinx Inc. announced today that it has filed a registration statement with the Securities and Exchange Commission for a proposed initial public offering of 2,500,000 shares of Common Stock, of which 750,000 shares will be newly issued Common Stock and 1,750,000 shares will be offered by selling stockholders.

The public offering price is expected to be between $6.50 and $8.00 per share. The public offering will be made by an underwriting group managed by Morgan Stanley & Company Inc. and Cowen & Co., which plans to offer the shares in early June 1990. Simultaneously with the public offering, the company intends to sell approximately 3,400,000 shares to Advanced Micro Devices Inc., a principal stockholder.

The net proceeds from the public offering and the sale of shares to AMD will be used by the company to provide funds for working capital and general corporate purposes. The company will not receive any of the proceeds from the sale of shares by selling stockholders.

Xilinx designs, manufactures and markets field programmable gate arrays (FPGAs) and related development system software for use in the design and manufacture of electronic systems. FPGAs are standard integrated circuits which can be programmed by system designers using the company's proprietary development system software to meet the unique needs of most logic applications.

Through March 31, 1990, the company has sold over 6,000 licenses to use its development system software to more than 2,800 customers worldwide.

A registration statement relating to these securities has been filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission but has not yet become effective. These securities may not be sold nor may offers to buy be accepted prior to the time the Registration Statement becomes effective.

This press release shall not constitute an offer to sell or the solicitation of an offer to buy nor shall there be any sale of these securities in any State in which such offer, solicitation or sale would be unlawful prior to registration or qualification under the securities laws of any such State.

Copies of the preliminary prospectus relating to the offering may be obtained from Morgan Stanley & Company Inc., 1251 Avenue of the Americas, New York, NY, 10020 and Cowen and Co., Financial Square, New York, NY, 10005.

MILPITAS, CA (APRIL 30) BUSINESS WIRE - The Subcommittee on Economic and Commercial Law of the House Committee on the Judiciary has requested the testimony of Atari Games Corp. regarding the anticompetitive practices of Nintendo of America Inc.

The Subcommittee, chaired by Congressman Jack Brooks (D-Tex.), announced the hearings last week to review charges that foreign companies operating in the United States are willfully violating U.S. antitrust laws. The hearings will be held at 10 a.m. on Thursday, May 3, in Room 2141 of the Rayburn House Office Building. Dan Van Elderen, chief operating officer for Tengen, will appear before the Subcommittee.

Atari Games has been asked to testify to the anticompetitive business practices of Nintendo of America, a company which Atari Games believes created a monopoly over the highly lucrative home video game industry. Atari Games believes that Nintendo has achieved this monopoly through the use of a proprietary ''lock-out'' device and restrictive licensing and manufacturing relationships.

Tengen is the wholly owned subsidiary of Atari Games Corp. and has headquarters at 1623 Buckeye Drive, P.O. Box 360782, Milpitas, Calif., 95035-0782; 408/473-9400. Atari Games is a privately held company, is not affiliated with Atari Corp. and should be referred to as Atari Games.

PORTLAND, OR (APRIL 30) BUSINESS WIRE - Financial results released Monday by Riedel Environmental Technologies Inc. (ASE:RIE) showed the company increased revenues by 28 percent to $20.1 million in the first quarter of 1990 compared to $15.7 million for the same period in 1989.

As anticipated by the company in late 1989, first quarter results were heavily impacted by the loss of income due to the closure of the Portland landfill operation which had contributed significantly to profits during the first quarter of 1989.

J.H. Dastur, RET president and chief operating officer, explained that other operations of the company enjoyed very positive success during the quarter. ''Riedel OMNI Rubber Products rebounded from setbacks experienced in 1989 and benefited strongly from our investments last year. OMNI achieved the most profitable first quarter in its history ending the quarter with a record backlog,'' said Dastur.

The company's Riedel Environmental Services subsidiary continued the trend established in 1989 as private sector and non-EPA business increased substantially as a percentage of total revenues. A newly organized national marketing team has already developed a number of significant opportunities to further this effort.

Additionally, a substantial upgrading of the Solvent Recovery subsidiary's Kansas City facilities was undertaken in response to regulatory concerns and in anticipation of expanding the capacity and range of waste materials which the operation will process. Dastur explained: ''When completed in Fall 1990, Solvent Recovery will have a truly state-of-the-art treatment, storage and disposal facility. We anticipate that this expansion will make our Kansas City operation a real contributor to our profitability. During this construction period, however, operations have been and will continue to be disrupted.''

According to Dastur, the company also incurred substantial expenses in further expanding its marketing and technical organization throughout the United States.

Largely as a result of these factors, operations in the initial 1990 quarter resulted in a loss of 12 cents per share.

RANCHO CUCAMONGA, CA (APRIL 30) BUSINESS WIRE - Data-Design Laboratories Inc. (NYSE:DDL) announced Monday results for the third quarter ended March 31.

Sales for the quarter were $26,511,000, compared with $29,711,000 in last year's third quarter. A net profit of $79,000, or 1 cent per share, was realized in 1990, compared with a loss of $10,353,000, or $1.54 per share last year.

The 1990 income included gains of $1,225,000 from the sale of DDL's Sierra Precision subsidiary and $1,319,000 from the repurchase of $5,037,000 par value of its 8-1/2 percent convertible subordinated debentures. Fiscal 1989's third quarter included a $5,877,000 write-down to market of the company's marketable securities portfolio, a provision for losses on disposal of assets of $850,000 and tax adjustments resulting from the recorded losses.

For the nine months ended March 31, sales were $78,559,000 and the net loss was $450,000, or 7 cents per share. Results for the same period last year were sales of $81,324,000, and a net loss of $10,466,000, or $1.56 per share.

DDL is primarily engaged in the manufacture and assembly of printed circuit boards for computer, communications and instrumentation industries.

MILPITAS, CA (APRIL 30) BUSINESS WIRE - Logic Modeling Systems Inc. announced Thursday the appointment of Russell Hall as vice president of marketing.

Hall will report to Dr. L. Curtis Widdoes Jr., president of Logic Modeling inventor of hardware modeling and widely acknowledged as one of the founders of the CAE industry.

Prior to joining Logic Modeling, Hall was director of marketing for Valid's CAE division and its design entry and simulation tools for both analog and digital design. Previously Hall was with the venture capital firm of Merrill, Pickard, Anderson & Eyre, where he actively invested in the design automation industry, including investments in Synopsys, Cross Check Technology and Logic Modeling.

Hall was also director of sales for Silicon Solutions Corp. of Menlo Park, Calif., where he had also served as the original product marketing manager for Silicon Solutions' MACH 1000 logic and fault simulation accelerator. Silicon Solutions is now part of Zycad Corp.

Hall holds and MBA degree from Stanford University, an MS degree from the University of California at Berkeley, and a BS degree from the United States Military Academy at West Point. Hall served in Korea as a company commander and at the Pentagon on the staff of the secretary of defense.

Hardware modeling solves the simulation model availability problem for system and ASIC designers by allowing the physical VLSI device to be used to model its own behavior during design verification. Hardware models are full-function, full-fidelity and execute at hardware speed. The LM-1000 provides designers with easy access to over 600 hardware models of important VLSI devices on the market today, and ASIC models can be developed in less than one day. The LM-1000 hardware modeling system is platform- and simulator-independent.

Logic Modeling sells through OEM relationships with EDA vendors including Cadence, GenRad, Harris Scientific Calculations, Siemens, Valid, Vantage Analysis Systems, Viewlogic Systems, and to companies with proprietary simulators.

Logic Modeling Inc. is a privately held company, with corporate headquarters located in Milpitas.

KANSAS CITY, MO (APRIL 30) BUSINESS WIRE - US Sprint is helping to make possible a major breakthrough in nuclear imaging that will enhance medical diagnosis and treatment of patients.

The telecommunications leader will demonstrate this new development at the Fifth Annual Conference on Information Technology in the Health Sciences, May 2-4 at the Memphis Convention Center Complex in Memphis, Tenn.

More than 750 healthcare and medical research professionals are expected to attend.

Using its Virtual Private Network 56 service (VPN 56), US Sprint and James Lear, M.D., chief of nuclear medicine and associate professor of radiology of the University of Colorado Health Sciences Center, will demonstrate the new, near-instantaneous transmission of nuclear medicine images.

The advances represented by combining technologies in a new way make it possible to transmit images without compromising quality, in a cost-efficient manner using Macintosh II personal computers.

The new process eliminates the need for cumbersome and expensive computers and the use of computer modems and X-ray film. It makes it possible to link outlying medical facilities to larger healthcare centers so that physicians in different regions can consult with complete information on complex medical cases.

US Sprint provides the high-quality, 100 percent fiber-optic, digitized network which is faster and cleaner than analog or digital microwave and satellite transmissions. Fiber is not susceptible to electrical or atmospheric interference, which can damage data. Such interferences have proved an obstacle to clear and precise image transmission in the past.

Images and data are sent directly from a Gamma camera linked to a Macintosh II computer over the VPN 56 network, maintaining the image quality and transmission speed crucial to the diagnosis of critical cases.

A major benefit of the VPN 56 system is its cost and convenience. Before VPN 56, high-speed data customers were forced to use standard high-speed data transmission lines that often were unavailable. The only other option was to access specially equipped private lines.

US Sprint is a unit of United Telecommunications Inc., a diversified international telecommunications company headquartered in Kansas City.

GOLDEN, CO (APRIL 30) BUSINESS WIRE - Horizon Gold Shares Inc. (NASDAQ:HRIZ) Monday announced the finalization of two previously announced agreements in principal with Chevron Resources Inc. of San Ramon, Calif.

Under the terms of the first agreement, Horizon and Chevron will form a joint venture to explore and develop the Hope Butte Property located in Malheur County, Ore. The agreement calls for Horizon to assume responsibilities as operator of the project.

Horizon may earn a 75 percent working interest in the project through the expenditure of $7 million over the next seven years. Chevron will retain certain rights to ''back in'' to a 49 percent interest under certain conditions through the payment of a penalty to Horizon.

Horizon has agreed to spend a minimum of $1 million on the project during the first 12 months of the venture, plus an additional $500,000 during the following six months.

Based on initial exploration work done by Chevron since 1985, Horizon feels that the potential for the project may exceed 1 million ounces of gold. The goal of the joint venture a Hope Butte is the development of sufficient proven and probable reserves to justify commencement of a large-scale, open pit, heap leach operation. Drilling will begin within the next 60 days.

Under the terms of the second agreement, Horizon will purchase Chevron's leasehold interest in the Mt. Chase massive sulfide deposit located in Penobscot County, Maine. The Mt. Chase deposit is a base and precious metals deposit previously drilled by Chevron and Getty Mining Co.

As previously announced, Horizon estimates ''in place'' value (before extraction, processing and other costs) in excess of $650 million based on current spot metal prices for gold, silver, lead, copper and zinc.

Current plans indicate that the Mt. Chase deposit will be mined by underground methods and processed by flotation recovery. Preliminary planning suggests that production from the project might be achievable sometime in late 1993 or early 1994, depending on financing and permitting considerations.

The purchase agreement of Mt. Chase calls for Horizon to (1) issue 500,000 shares of Horizon common stock to Chevron and (2) to fund a limited portion of Chevron's exploration expenditures at Buffalo Valley and Tuscarora during 1990 and 1991.

KANSAS CITY, MO (APRIL 30) BUSINESS WIRE - Oppenheimer Industries Inc. (ASE:OPP) Monday reported a net loss of $6,704,962, or $1.56 per share, on revenues of $2,371,423 for the fiscal year ended Jan. 31.

For the fiscal year 1989, Oppenheimer reported a net loss of $3,294,817, or 79 cents per share, on revenues of $1,368,170.

For the quarter ended Jan. 31, 1990, Oppenheimer lost $4,269,859, or $1.03 per share, on revenues of $942,366. During the like period last year, the company reported a loss of $1,046,032, or 24 cents per share, on revenues of $515,711.

Gary D. Hedberg, chief financial officer, said the increase in revenues was due mainly to increased sales of real estate and rental income from an office building purchased in January 1989.

In addition, Hedberg said $2.3 million of the fiscal year 1990 loss was attributable to losses from the operation and disposal of the discontinued syndication, construction and insurance agency segments.

Other factors contributing to additional costs included the increase in interest associated with borrowings that were initiated in order to recover property carrying costs, continuing development and sales expenses and the non-recurring expenses related to the development of the company's restructuring plan.

SANTA CLARA, CA (APRIL 30) BUSINESS WIRE - The first lossless random access data compression add-in card designed for personal computer users is now available from InfoChip Systems, a Santa Clara, Calif., company.

The new disk expander card, called Expanz!, provides extended, error-free storage for IBM PC XT/AT and compatibles.

Expanz! is a single half card for MS-DOS 3.X-based personal computers. An MS-DOS 4.X version of the Expanz! card will be available in the fourth quarter.

Capable of increasing total data storage capacity by a factor of three, Expanz! offers transparent compression/decompression for hard and floppy disks without degrading user response time. In fact, the card enhances performance for relatively slow storage devices (e.g. floppy disk drives).

Unlike file compression software in the public domain, Expanz! disk expander card is a real-time solution for random access primary data storage applications.

InfoChip's Expanz! is compatible with any disk storage device. The card provides automatic compression/decompression, a transparent file system (requiring no host or user intervention) and features an autosensing capability that allows pass-through of uncompressible data. Users can initialize a floppy disk with an InfoChip utility to accommodate compressed data.

Uncompressed data can be stored on an original floppy disk to achieve data interchangeability.

The Expanz! disk expander card is based on lossless or noiseless data compression technology; a recoding methodology where decompressed data is an exact reproduction of original data.

Samples of InfoChip's Expanz! disk expander card are currently available with production quantities scheduled for availability in the third quarter of 1990. The product will be sold through national and international retail chains and distributors with a suggested retail price of $199.

InfoChip Systems Inc. designs, manufactures and markets information compression products for the personal computer and workstation market. The company was founded in November 1988.

ALEXANDRIA, VA (APRIL 30) BUSINESS WIRE - Kay Jewelers Inc., (NYSE:KJI) Monday reported results for the first quarter ended March 31, 1990.

Net revenues for the quarter decreased to $76,509,000 compared to the $79,383,000 reported for the first quarter of 1989.

The seasonal loss for the period was $5,594,000 or 45 cents per share, compared to a loss of $3,835,000 or 31 cents per share for the same period the prior year. Due to the nature of jewelry retailing, Kay Jewelers typically reports a seasonal loss in the first three quarter of the year.

In line with management's expectations, first quarter 1990 results were below those of 1989. First quarter comparsions are affected by the fact that programs insituted to improve credit quality were not in place until late February 1989.

These credit improvement programs have been very successful in reducing charge-off provisions and, since March, the company is pleased to note that sales trends have improved as credit sales are now on a comparable basis to last year.

In line with management's plans, the company opened 53 new stores last year. While new stores show losses in the first half of the year these stores will begin contributing to profits in the second half of 1990. Store openings have been temporarily reduced for the current year to limit capital expenditures.

Management noted that higher interest costs resulting from last year's debt offering and from the higher borrowings to finance the new stores were reflected in the loss for the first quarter.

As a result, the company continues to anticipate a return to historic levels of profitability in 1990.

Kay Jewelers Inc. is the second largest fine jewelry retailer in the United States with 494 stores and leased departments in 32 states. The company's sales units include Kay Jewelers Stores, J.B. Robinson Jewelers, Marcus & Co. and Black Starr & Frost Ltd.

VAN NUYS, CA (APRIL 30) BUSINESS WIRE - Com Systems Inc. (ASE:CTM) reported a 59 percent increase in revenue to $27,897,000 for the quarter ended March 31 vs. $17,525,000 for the corresponding period in 1989.

For the three months ended March 31, the company incurred a net loss of $942,000, or 23 cents per share, after preferred dividends, vs. net income of $801,000, or 11 cents per share, after preferred dividends, for the three months ended March 31, 1989.

Rex Licklider, chief executive officer of Com Systems, stated: ''Although not clearly reflected by the first quarter's loss, the company is generally experiencing an improvement over the losses suffered from the second quarter through the end of 1989.

''During the three months ended March 31, earnings before depreciation, amortization and interest were $1,076,000 and operating income was $178,000. In addition, systems and procedures implemented over the past 9 months to control the fraudulent use of our network have resulted in a 50 percent reduction over the levels of fraud experienced in mid-1989, such fraud having been a primary contributing factor to 1989's losses.

''Cost cutting measures over the past 9 months have reduced our general and administrative expenses from 22 percent to 15 percent of net revenues. Finally, we anticipate that the integration of the TMC Communications Inc. network with ours will result in reduced network costs early in the second half of 1990.

''These factors, combined with anticipated revenue growth, should result in continued improvement in our financial performance over the balance of 1990.''

MOUNTAIN VIEW, CA (APRIL 30) BUSINESS WIRE - VITACOM Corp., located in Mountain View, announced Monday its role in preparing the Hubble Space Telescope for launching by providing a highly reliable satellite link between Lockheed Missiles & Space Co., located in Sunnyvale, Calif., and the Kennedy Space Center in Titusville, Fla.

This link tested the telescope's ability to receive and execute commands before it was launched into space.

In 1988, Lockheed Missiles & Space Co. awarded the contract to VITACOM to design, manufacture and install a satellite communications link between the LMSC located in Sunnyvale, and Kennedy Space Center in Florida. The link consists of two large 9 meter earth stations supporting two T-1 carriers for total redundancy.

The link enabled the Sunnyvale-based computers to test the telescope in Florida. The contract required that the satellite link be monitored and managed 24-hours a day, seven days a week, from the VITACOM Network Operations Center in Mountain View, to prevent any costly down-time and to insure link performance during testing.

The Lockheed engineers were able to test the telescope's command system during the time it was being built, and to run extensive pre-launch tests in Florida before it was loaded onto the shuttle ''Discovery.''

VITACOM, based in Mountain View, provides turnkey solutions of equipment, network management and full services for domestic, international and multi-national data and voice communications networks.

RENO, NV (APRIL 30) BUSINESS WIRE - NCR Corp. Monday announced the fourth release of its NCR 9800 family of large processors.

The release includes the Application Processor 4, Release 4 of the VRX/E operating system, and a PC console. The package significantly enhances the performance, usability and configurability of the 9800 system.

The AP4 was introduced at the annual convention of the Federation of NCR Users (NUCON) held in Reno.

In the Compliance Plus Debit/Credit Benchmark, a single AP4 processes 24 transactions per second (tps), vs. 13.1 tps for the 8845 and 3.5 tps for the previous generation 9800 application processor, the AP3. This means that 9800 systems can now be configured to support the On-Line Transaction Processing requirements of the smallest to the largest installations.

A second key attribute of the 9800 AP4 system is improved usability through the integration of industry standard microprocessor technology. VRX/E Release 4, the latest release of the operating system for 9800s, implements an NCR PC386 personal computer using Microsoft Windows and an icon-based interface for console operations and system-level utilities.

This integration of PC technology greatly enhances operator and system administrator productivity by automating many of the day-to-day functions associated with console operations. Automatic processor initialization, context-sensitive help, automatic message answering and job scheduling all contribute to the overall productivity and ease-of-use for 9800 systems.

Finally, the 9800 AP4 increases system configurability through coexistance with existing 9800s. The NCR 9800 system, first released in 1986, provides an incremental architecture approach for solving business-oriented transaction processing needs. This architecture, which uses function-specific processors, dedicates different processors to the task of processing application logic as well as managing the data storage environment.

NCR develops, manufactures, markets and supports business information processing systems for worldwide markets.

BLUE BELL (APRIL 30) BUSINESS WIRE - Unisys Corp. announced Monday what it believes is a unique packaging of local area network (LAN) services, providing a single-source service to U.S. customers to plan, design, implement, maintain and support their PC LANs.

These PC LANs could include Unisys and other vendors' hardware and software products.

Unisys CONNECT is a five-phase program designed to sequentially address the LAN needs of a customer with an existing network--or a customer developing a new network. Each phase is devoted to a specific task:

--Phase One: Network Configuration Planning, in which a Unisys CNE analyzes operational factors, proposed hardware and software components, and the projected plans and growth of the network. A project plan, including a conceptual LAN configuration, is developed.

--Phase Two: Network Configuration Design, in which a more detailed logical and physical design is developed.

--Phase Three: Network Installation Services, in which Unisys serves as project manager for the installation. Unisys also will conduct a ready-for-use demonstration and LAN operations review for the customer's LAN administrator, as part of a certification process.

--Phase Four: Unisys SURETY for LANs, in which Unisys provides various levels of maintenance and support coverage for all elements of the LAN, including LAN-connected hardware, system or applications software and the cable installation.

--Phase Five: Network Support Services, in which Unisys will periodically visit customers to assess LAN performance and requirements.

Unisys CONNECT is available immediately to U.S. customers either directly through Unisys or through its many value-added resellers. Pricing for the various phases is bid-specific.

NEW YORK (APRIL 30) BUSINESS WIRE - Arthur Hauspurg, chairman and chief executive officer of Con Edison, announced Monday that the board of trustees has named Eugene R. McGrath, 48, the utility's president and chief operating officer, to become chief executive officer effective Sept. 1, 1990.

Hauspurg, who will retire at age 65 at the end of August, said he will recommend to the board at its organizational meeting on May 22 that McGrath also be elected chairman of the board as of Sept. 1, 1990.

''These actions will provide an orderly transition of executive responsibility and take full advantage of the solid experience, balanced perspective and broad vision demonstrated by Gene McGrath during his 27 years as a manager and key executive at Con Edison,'' Hauspurg said.

McGrath joined Con Edison in 1963 and held positions of increasing responsibility with the utility's engineering, power generation and construction departments from 1963 to 1971. He managed fossil and nuclear power generation plants from 1971 to 1978.

McGrath was elected vice president - power generation in 1978, senior vice president - power generation in 1981, executive vice president - central operations in 1982 and executive vice president - operations in 1987. He was named Con Edison's president and chief operating officer in 1989.

McGrath is a member of the board of directors of Barnard College, the Regional Plan Association, the United Way of New York City and the business committee of the New York Zoological Society.

He serves as chairman of the Nuclear Management and Resources Council and as chairman of the Association of Edison Illuminating Companies power generation committee.

He is a member of the board of the Edison Electric Institute and a member of the New York Power Pool executive committee.

A native of Yonkers, McGrath graduated from Manhattan College in 1963 with a degree in mechanical engineering. He earned a master of business administration degree from Iona College in 1980 and completed the Advanced Management Program at the Harvard Univesity Graduate School of Business Administration.

ROCKY HILL, CT (APRIL 30) BUSINESS WIRE - Stephen L. Pistner has been named chief executive officer of Ames Department Stores Inc., Ames' board of directors announced Monday.

He has also been appointed to the board of directors where he will serve in the office of the chairman. The appointments are subject to court approval.

Pistner replaces Peter B. Hollis, who has resigned from his positions as CEO and vice-chairman.

Pistner, who is 58, is considered a specialist in turnaround situations in the retailing industry. He began his career as a salesman, and rose from sales manager to become president of Electronics Associates, a St. Paul electronics wholesale operations. As president, he bought the company, renamed it Team Electronics and, after growing the chain, sold it to Dayton-Hudson Corp. in 1970.

Pistner worked at Dayton-Hudson from 1970 to 1981. In 1973, he assumed responsibility for turning around Dayton-Hudson's Target chain of discount stores, which had experienced lagging sales and losses.

By trimming expenses and reformulating Target's strategy, he was able to return the troubled division to profitability. In 1977, he was promoted to the positions of president and chief operating officer of Dayton-Hudson and assumed responsibility for all operations, including specialty, discount and department stores and real estate.

In 1981, he joined Montgomery Ward & Co., where he served as chairman and chief executive officer until 1985. Pistner is widely credited with implementing the strategies which turned the retailing giant around. During his tenure, Montgomery Ward, which had suffered major losses for years, returned to profitability.

Ames, which filed for protection under Chapter 11 of the U.S. Bankruptcy Code in the Southern District of New York on April 25, operates more than 600 stores in 20 states and has 55,000 employees.

The company, which has an annual sales base of well over $4 billion, sought court protection to restructure its business and finances.

NASHUA, NH (APRIL 30) BUSINESS WIRE - Ekco Group Inc. (NYSE:EKO) Monday announced that the company has taken a $3.6 million charge against first-quarter earnings as a result of a decision to consolidate its Chicago-based kitchenware parts-fabrication operation into its Lititz, Pennsylvania, facility.

This action, which is expected to be substantially completed by year-end, combined with the company's previously announced manufacturing restructuring in Lititz, is expected to increase operating income by $3 to $4 million annually.

As a result of the Chicago consolidation, the company reported a net loss of $3.3 million, or 22 cents per share, for the first quarter ended April 1, 1990, compared with net income of $118,000, or 1 cent per share, reported for the comparable quarter last year.

The $3.6 million charge, of which approximately $2 million is noncash, provides for the write-down of assets, severance benefits, equipment relocation and other costs. The company will continue to plate, assemble, package and ship finished kitchenware products from its Chicago plant and continue to maintain its Franklin Park, Ill., administrative and distribution operations.

Ekco Group Inc. manufactures and markets a variety of consumer products which it broadly markets through leading retail outlets. The company's products include a range of household and recreational products carrying the brand names ''Ekco,'' ''Baker's Secret,'' ''Victor,'' ''Woodstream'' and ''Havahart.''

The condensed consolidated statement of income for the company is attached.

GARDEN CITY, NY (APRIL 30) BUSINESS WIRE - Computer Associates International Inc. (CA) disclosed its software development strategy Monday defining for its clients the process by which the company will continue to meet their information processing needs in the 1990s and beyond.

The company unveiled a unifying computer architecture, called CA90s, which manifests its strategy and serves as a blueprint for the continuing development of all Computer Associates software solutions.

Rather than add to the proliferation of software architectures in the computer industry, CA90s has been carefully designed to unify the disparate architectures and standards existing today, enabling CA clients to use the hardware platform of their choice, or even a combination of hardware platforms, to run their CA software solutions.

CA90s endorses and adds value to IBM's Systems Application Architecture (SAA) and Digital Equipment Corp.'s Network Applications Support (NAS). CA90s is the technical foundation for over 200 Computer Associates Enterprise Software solutions encompassing nearly every area of business software and, as such, supports more than 30 operating systems.

The guiding principles of Computer Associates software development process and, hence, the underpinnings of CA90s are: to preserve clients' investments in hardware, software and expertise, while enabling them to take advantage of emerging technologies; to endorse and enhance established industry architectures and standards; to promote the integration of software solutions across product families, operating systems and hardware platforms; to enhance and extend distributed processing across multiple operating systems and hardware platforms; and to facilitate the portability of software solutions, engineered for efficiency on each platform.

CA90s is layered in design to promote the sharing of common services among software applications, providing clients with the most effective processing of information across the enterprise. The architecture unifies the technology currently available in CA software solutions in the areas of Systems Management, Information Management and Business Applications by providing common services - such as User Interface and Visualization, Integration, and Distributed Processing - across these areas.

To help its clients address the information processing requirements of the 90s according to the guiding principles of CA software development, Computer Associates will continue to develop new products, acquire technology and integrate CA software solutions.

Over time, more and more of the company's software product families will reflect the guiding principles until the entire CA product line benefits from the CA90s architecture.

CA90s is documented and described in detail in a number of company publications and communications designed to inform CA clients aout the architecture and its benefits.

Computer Associates International Inc., headquartered in Garden City, is the leading independent software company in the world. The company develops, markets and supports systems management, information management and business applications software for a broad range of mainframe, midrange an desktop computers. The company operates through more than 100 offices located in 24 countries.

PLANO, TX (APRIL 30) BUSINESS WIRE - EMCOM Corp. has announced a sales and marketing agreement with Arlington, Texas-based TAP Inc. for EMCOM's full line of advanced, real-time computer network performance monitoring, reporting and management systems.

Under terms of the agreement TAP (Total Assets Protection) will sell the powerful EMCOM NCS70 Series and other related network performance measurement, reporting and analysis products through its regional offices in the United States and its international distribution channels in Canada and Australia.

In making the announcement, EMCOM President and founder Steve Emly said, ''This new relationship with TAP provides a unique opportunity to reach even more organizations which require the EMCOM solution for network performance monitoring and control. The EMCOM product family fits well with TAP's consulting company providing a wide range of specialized services for fail-safe information system environments.

EMCOM Corp. designs, develops and manufactures real-time network monitoring systems used to accurately measure and report all aspects of performance, down to the status of individual transactions and devices on a complex data communications network.

The EMCOM system allows data center operations managers and those responsible for capacity planning and service-level verification to constantly know the overall ''health'' of their network and to efficiently ''tune'' the network for optimized performance.

The EMCOM system approach permits network managers to reduce down-time by identifying problems or degrading conditions immediately and providing a problem resolution procedure for any component failure. Additionally, capacity planning, trending and the accurate reporting of user service levels allow network planners to increase productivity, reduce equipment costs and maximize network performance.

EMCOM's Steve Emly says, ''For years TAP has provided its customers with services which include the planning and design of computer centers and integrated communications networks best suited for fail-safe operation, efficient growth and comprehensive protection for the organization's information assets.

With our EMCOM products, TAP can now offer an even stronger package of solutions for an industry which faces incredible pressures for high performance on smaller budgets.'' TAP's Senior Vice President of Sales and Marketing, George W. Macintyre, says, ''Of all the monitoring technology we have reviewed, EMCOM has the most logical, powerful and cost-efficient network performance monitoring solution for our clients.

EMCOM Corp., founded in 1975, is based in Plano. TAP (Total Assets Protection), founded in 1980, is a publicly held company, traded over the counter, NASDAQ Symbol: TAPP. TAP maintains regional offices in New York, Chicago, Washington, Los Angeles, Atlanta and Arlington, Texas.

ST. LOUIS (APRIL 30) BUSINESS WIRE - Fiber Imaging Inc. and Jefferson Smurfit Corporation (JSC) have announced a joint research and development project, funded by JSC to develop a revolutionary new quality control system for paper manufacturing using optical fibers made of Synglass(TM).

The ''synthetic glass'' is specially formulated plastic that, within certain parameters, offers clarity as good as or better than glass fiberoptics.

''Our goal is to develop technology that will monitor paper production accurately at speeds up to 7,000 feet per minute continuously,'' explained Bob Johnson, president of Fiber Imaging. ''The speed of detection of inconsistencies and the system's ability to monitor the paper quality accurately are two key elements of this project. The system should provide a more efficient and cost saving quality assurance program.''

The clarity, flexibility and cost efficiency of Synglass(TM) fiberoptics make it an ideal technology for a variety of industries. High quality images can be produced instantaneously and continuously.

Uses for Fiber Imaging's novel fiberoptics include:
Aerospace: examining the structural integrity of an aircraft wing.
Cancer Treatment: verifying treatment in radiation therapy of cancer patients.
Paper and Packaging: quality assurance/monitoring for high speed production such as paper.

St. Louis-based Jefferson-Smurfit is one of the leading suppliers of paper and paperboard products with research and development operations headquartered in Chicago.

Fiber Imaging Inc., a St. Louis-based fiberoptics company, was founded to market technology developed at St. Louis' Washington University physics lab and Medical School. The company specializes in the development, manufacturing and marketing of fiberoptic detectors and a new generation of optical fibers.

NEW HARTFORD, NY (APRIL 30) BUSINESS WIRE - PAR Technology Corp. (NYSE:PTC) for the three months ended March 31, 1990, PTC reported revenues of $22 million compared to $20.1 million for the same period in 1989.

Net income for the first quarter was $16,000 vs. $334,000 for the same period a year ago.

Earnings per share reflected a break even performance for the first quarter of 1990 compared to $.04 for the same period a year ago.

Included in the prior year's reported results were two non-recurring items which favorably affected earnings per share by a total of $.06.

The company adopted the Statement of Financial Accounting Standards No. 96 ''Accounting for Income Taxes,'' which benefited earnings by $.03 per share in 1989. The company sold certain assets of its PAR Business Systems subsidiary which impacted earnings by an additional $.03 per share in 1989.

''The first quarter is typically a quarter for low seasonal revenues from the Commercial Point of Sale business, and this year was no exception,'' said Dr. John Sammon, CEO and chairman. He also noted that ''traditionally, our point of sale business builds quarter-to-quarter through the year reflecting the business cycle of our fast food customers. While it is too early to tell, it appears that our new Industrial Transaction business may show a similar pattern.''

Contract revenues for the government segment increased by 11.4 percent, prinicpally due to higher levels of business with the company's major defense customer, Rome Air Development Center.

Sammon also said, ''In looking forward, we anticipate similar operating results in the second quarter as in the first quarter, and then reasonably stronger results in the last half. Our plans still project improved overall results year-to-year in 1990 compared with 1989.''

PAR is a supplier of transaction processing information systems to the food service and convenience store industries, and to the Computer Integrated Manufacturing market; and a contractor providing computer based system design and development services to the Federal Government.

NEW YORK (APRIL 30) BUSINESS WIRE - National Fuel Gas Company Monday announced earnings of $27,537,000 or $.97 per common share for the second quarter of fiscal 1990. The quarter ended March 31.

This compares to $37,166,000 or $1.41 per share in fiscal 1989. Share amounts reflect a greater number of shares outstanding in current periods resulting mainly from the sale of 2 million shares of common stock in March 1989. Revenues for the quarter were $324,703,000 this year compared to $336,342,000 last year.

Earnings for the first six months of fiscal 1990 were $51,935,000 or $1.83 per share compared to $56,490,000 or $2.16 per share in 1989. Revenues for 1990 were $615,764,000 compared to $587,804,000 in 1989.

The twelve months ended March 31 produced earnings of $47,865,000 or $1.69 per share compared to $49,189,000 or $1.89 per share last year.

Earnings for the quarter ended March 31, 1990 were reduced by $8,274,000 or 29 cents per share to revise the estimated provision for refund, net income tax effect, relating to Supply Corporation's rate case RP86-136. These rates were in effect from January 1, 1987 to June 30, 1989, subject to refund.

National Fuel's earnings report represents the total performance of National Fuel Gas Company and its subsidiaries including National Fuel Gas Supply Corporation (oil and gas production, pipeline, and natural gas storage), National Fuel Gas Distribution corporation (utility), Penn-York Energy Corporation (natural gas storage), Seneca Resources Corporation (exploration and production), Empire Exploration, Inc. DAYTON, OH (APRIL 30) BUSINESS WIRE - Enhancing its 386SX-based product line, NCR Corp. Monday introduced two new 20MHz 386SX-based systems, among the first and most powerful SX-based systems on the market.

One system, the NCR PC386sx/MC20, is based on the Micro Channel bus architecture. The other, the NCR PC386sx20, is based on the AT-bus architecture. Features combined with the speed of the 20MHz microprocessor, make these new systems superior to existing 386SX-based units, as well as to many 20MHz 386-based systems on the market.

The speed of the 20MHz Intel microprocessor combined with the power of Micro Channel architecture make the NCR PC386sx/MC20 the most powerful 386SX-based system on the market today.

The latest entry in NCR's growing suite of Micro Channel-based PCs, the NCR PC386sx/MC20 combines advanced system configuration and data bus architecture with high performance features developed by NCR.

The NCR PC386sx/MC20 provides standard vaue-added features designed to increase the system's performance and flexibility, including a Small Computer System Interface (SCSI) controller, which provides a built-in support for up to seven peripheral devices; enhances graphics capabilities including 16-bit 800 x 600 Super VGA as a standard and an optional NCR 1024 x 768 high-speed graphics coprocessor.

IRVINE, CA (APRIL 30) BUSINESS WIRE - Ralph W. Leatherby, chairman of the board and chief executive officer of UniCARE Financial Corp. (ASE:UFN), announced Monday record revenues, net income and net income per share for the first quarter ended March 31, 1990.

Total revenues for the period increased 35 percent to $21,479,000 from $15,776,000 in the first quarter of 1989. Net income rose 16 percent to $2,018,000, or 37 cents per share compared with net income of $1,744,000, or 32 cents per share in the first quarter of 1989. The per-share results reflect a 5-for-4 stock split paid to shareholders of record March 31, 1990.

Leatherby noted that ''significant growth occurred in all important categories. Net premiums earned increased 37 percent to $18,877,000 for the 1990 first quarter compared with $13,811,000 for the same quarter last year, and net investment income increased 29 percent to $2,472,000 from $1,919,000 in the prior year's first quarter.

''The improved premium growth contributed to a record level of net cash provided by operating activity for the period of $7,575,000 compared with $4,581,000 for the same period last year. The increase in net premiums earned was primarily attributable to the addition of new accounts.''

Leatherby noted that the record net income occurred in spite of a higher federal income tax provision for the period. ''We anticipate that the generally favorable market trends experienced in the first quarter will continue for the balance of the fiscal year,'' said Leatherby.

SHREVEPORT, LA (APRIL 30) BUSINESS WIRE - Arkla Inc. (NYSE:ALG) Monday reported financial results for the first quarter of 1990. Net income for the first quarter was $55.9 million compared to $53.7 million in 1989.

After payment of preferred dividends, the first quarter net income available to common stock was $54.0 million or 62 cents per share compared to $51.7 million or 61 cents per share in 1989.

The increase in earnings was accomplished despite some of the mildest winter weather of the century. For the quarter, warmer weather throughout Arkla's service territory averaged more than 35 percent warmer than normal and more than 25 percent warmer than last year.

In some service areas, including Houston, temperatures were more than 50 percent warmer than in the first quarter of last year. This weather pattern adversely affected all of Arkla's business units.

Mack McLarty, Arkla's chairman, president and chief executive officer, stated: ''The warm weather not only resulted in lower traditional pipeline and distribution sales volumes, but also adversely affected our average pipeline margins by reducing our highest margin business."

McLarty also stated, ''Our continued strong pipeline throughput, helped by the inclusion of LIG, was up over 30 percent from last year. This growth coupled with the pipeline margin improvement more than offset declines in both distribution and exploration/production operating income and an increase in interest expense.

The decline in distribution results was entirely weather related while the exploration/production results were affected by lower margins on gas purchased for resale and by higher depletion and depreciation expenses.''

Arkla, Inc. is a balanced gas company engaged in the transmission, distribution, exploration, and production of natural gas. Its stock is traded on the New York Stock Exchange under the symbol ALG.

BOSTON (APRIL 30) BUSINESS WIRE - The Aetna Casualty and Surety Co. Monday filed suit in United States District Court, challenging the constitutionality of Massachusetts' laws and regulations regarding withdrawal from the private passenger automobile insurance market.

The Aetna suit challenges two provisions of Massachusetts law:

-- Commonwealth Automobile Reinsurers (C.A.R.) Rule 11 B 3, which compels a company to pay an assessment for eight years to C.A.R. in order to withdraw from the private passenger automobile insurance business without losing the right to sell other insurance;

-- Section 22H of Massachusetts General Law, Chapter 175, which gives the insurance commissioner sweeping authority to revoke all of an insurer's licenses if that company withdraws from the state's market for motor vehicle policies.

The Aetna suit alleges that the state's rules regarding even the most orderly and responsible withdrawal from the private passenger auto insurance market confront each insurer with an obstacle course to exit that violates the U.S. Constitution's freedom of interstate capital mobility.

The suit also alleges that the state's rules conditioning a company's withdrawal upon its payment of an eight-year assessment unless the company is willing to give up its right to sell other lines of insurance amounts to an unconstitutional taking of property.

Finally, the suit maintains that this condition effectively holds Aetna's other insurance business hostage in a manner that violates Aetna's due process and equal protection rights. In Aetna's case, the assessment alone could exceed $200 million.

Laurence H. Tribe, Tyler Professor of Constitutional Law at Harvard University, has joined James K. Brown and Stephen B. Deutsch of Foley, Hoag & Eliot in Boston to represent the company in its lawsuit.

Pending the outcome of the suit, Aetna will continue to fully meet all of its obligations to customers and agents in the private passenger automobile insurance market. Aetna also will remain active in all other lines of insurance in Massachusetts.

Aetna currently has approximately 2,500 employees in Massachusetts in 10 locations serving all lines of business.

CHARLOTTE, NC (APRIL 30) BUSINESS WIRE - ''Sales growth in new tires, retreading and automotive service continued in the first quarter of 1990

'' said Brad Ragan Inc. (ASE: BRD) President and Chief Executive Officer W.P. Brophey.

''Total revenues of $50,829,000 were 2.5 percent lower than the same period a year earlier primarily due to reduced rubber processing volume related to an over-capacity situation for rubber mixing in the tire industry,'' said Brophey.

''Strong sales growth was generated from our commercial outlets and our retail stores kept pace with the first quarter sales of the previous year with automotive service sales volume improvements offsetting reduced sales of major appliances and electronics where the market remained relatively soft,'' continued Brophey.

A net loss of $297,000, or (14 cents) per share was recorded for the quarter compared to a net loss of $155,000, (7 cents) per share in the first quarter of 1989.

''Due to seasonal trends, the January-March period historically has not represented strong earnings for Brad Ragan Inc. The reduced earnings compared to the same quarter last year were directly related to the lower levels of rubber processing.

''Operating efficiency continues as one of our primary focuses. Progess in this area is indicated by the $348,000 reduction of variable expense in the first quarter of 1990 compared to the first quarter of 1989. We expect continual operating efficiency improvements as we proceed to develop enhanced operating skills,'' added Brophy.

Brad Ragan Inc. is the largest United States producer of retreaded tires for off-highway vehicles. BRI distributes new and retreaded off-the-road and truck tires through a network of 51 commercial outlets in 20 states. The company also operates a chain of 137 retail stores in the Southeast, featuring products and services for the auto and home.

NEW HAVEN, CT (APRIL 30) BUSINESS WIRE - SNET Monday filed financial data and testimony required by the Department of Public Utility Control (DPUC) in its investigation of the company's financial and operational status announced last December.

In addition to the stated agenda of this review, SNET's filing asked for consideration of the increased role of the telecommunications infrastructure in economic development and the need for a continuation of flexible, incentive-based regulation.

The DPUC has separated this proceeding into two phases. In Phase I, schedule to be completed in January of next year, the DPUC will review such issues as SNET's revenues and costs, rate of return (profit level) and subsidiary relationships. In compliance with the DPUC's request, SNET will demonstrate the need, at this time, for an additional $45 million to maintain its level of investment in Connecticut's network.

The second phase of this review, which will address the issue of rates, is scheduled to begin in early 1991, after the completion of Phase I.

Since SNET's last rate request eight years ago, the company has done a number of things to avoid seeking an increase in rates -- cost containment revenue stimulation, the introduction of new services, and the enhancement of its network that makes additional services possible and provides for greater efficiency.

In testimony presented to the DPUC, the company pointed out that: rates for Connecticut customers remain reasonable -- no rate increases for eight years, two rate decreases; Connecticut has the highest penetration of phone service in the country; and SNET's rate of return remains well under agreed-upon levels reached in accordance with state regulators in its 1987 Financial Settlement.

SNET's current incentive regulation still sets rate of return levels -- as in traditional regulation -- but over a certain level permits sharing between ratepayers and shareholders. This mechanism has served SNET ratepayers and shareholders well, Monteith observed. It encourages companies to operate efficiently to keep the prices of their products and services at the lowest possible level.

The company believes that the DPUC, in adopting incentive regulation in 1987, properly recognized the significant changes that have taken place in the telecommunications industry over the past seven years. SNET believes that enhanced incentive regulation, along with regulatory and pricing flexibility, will serve the company and Connecticut citizens well in the future.

SNET will also ask the DPUC to take into consideration that the telecommunications infrastructure is becoming increasingly critical to the state's economic and social well being. Over the past three years, the company has invested almost a million dollars a day in the Connecticut network. SNET is asking that the DPUC give it the ability to continue this investment.

NEW YORK (APRIL 30) BUSINESS WIRE - General Electric will start manufacturing surge protector devices at a new 130,000 sq.-ft. factory in Bayamon, Puerto Rico by the end of this year, it was announced by Stephen Rabinowitz, vice president, GE Electric Distribution & Control.

Speaking at a recent Puerto Rico seminar co-hosted by GE in Trumbull, Conn., Rabinowitz also revealed that GE would establish a ''Business Development Laboratory'' on the island.

''In that lab, Puerto Rican scientists and engineers will design and develop the next generation product lines,'' he said.

News of the two GE projects in Puerto Rico is a testimonial to the island's unique local and U.S. tax incentives and to its labor productivity, according to Alfredo Salazar, administrator of the Economic Development Administration. EDA or ''Fomento'' in Spanish is Puerto Rico's primary agency for investment attraction and industrial development.

Salazar headed a team of private sector Puerto Rican experts in taxation, finance, and industrial facility development at the seminar.

New GE employment in Puerto Rico will reach 100 by December of this year and 125 by the end of 1991. GE currently employs some 3,800 workers and management level personnel in Puerto Rico, Rabinowitz noted.

GE currently has 16 manufacturing facilities on the island under the supervision of Caribe General Electric Products Inc., an umbrella corporation formed in 1984 to better allocate and manage island operations.

GE began its involvement in Puerto Rico May 8, 1956, when the company set up a wholly owned subsidiary to produce circuit breakers at Palmer, a town to the east of San Juan.

Today, GE's Puerto Rican work force manufactures ''a broad array of electro-mechanical and electronic products and parts of low and medium voltage distribution,'' he continued.

Caribe General Electric in Puerto Rico sells these products, including molded-case circuit breakers, power circuit breakers and general purpose control devices and components to GE operations throughout the mainland United States.

CAMBRIDGE, MA (APRIL 30) BUSINESS WIRE - Bolt Beranek and Newman Inc. (BBN) Monday reported sales for its third quarter ended Mar. 31, 1990, of $64,889,000, compared to $74,458,000 in the third quarter last year.

The company reported a net loss for the quarter of $32,373,000, or $1.77 per share, including a restructuring charge of $20,400,000, or $1.12 per share; compared to a loss of $5,175,000, or 29 cents per share, in last year's third quarter.

Sales for the nine months ended Mar. 31, 1990, were $192,647,000, compared to $219,649,000 in fiscal 1989's first three quarters. The company reported a net loss of $38,625,000, or $2.12 per share, compared to a loss of $2,382,000, or 13 cents per share, for the first nine months of fiscal 1989.

Fiscal 1989's results included a favorable cumulative effect of a change in accounting for income taxes of $6,395,000, or 35 cents per share, reflecting the company's adoption of Financial Accounting Standard No. 96.

The restructuring charge of $20.4 milion recorded in the quarter is associated with a previously announced strategic restructuring and cost-cutting program.

The major components of the restructuring charge include provisions for consolidation of certain of the company's leased facilities; severance costs associated with an 11 percent reduction in the company's work force announced earlier in April; and the cost of downsizing and the re-focusing of BBN Advanced Computers, which includes provisions for costs relating to the acquisition of technology and termination of a limited partnership agreement.

Headquartered in Cambridge, Bolt Beranek and Newman is a diversified high technology corporation. BBN develops, manufactures, sells and supports products including private wide-area communication networks, data analysis software and parallel processing computers; provides research and development services in the computer and physical sciences; and builds advanced simulation and sensor and surveillance systems.

For its fiscal year ended June 30, 1989, BBN had sales of $292 million.

WELLINGTON (APRIL 30) - Last-ditch talks between union and management will continue Tuesday in an attempt to avert a potentially crippling strike by workers in a key unit of New Zealand's banking system.

Four major trading banks - the ANZ Banking Corporation, the Bank of New Zealand, the National Bank and Westpac Banking Corporation - could be closed Wednesday if workers at Databank, the data processing centre of the four banks, go ahead with a planned strike.

Finance Minister David Caygill said Monday he could intervene and stop banks from shutting.

Reserve Bank deputy governor Lindsay Knight said under the Banking Act banks needed ministerial approval to close under any circumstances.

Mr. Knight said the central bank would make "every effort to ensure that banking services can continue to be provided".

Databank workers have threatened to strike in protest at a redundancy and superannuation deal offered to more than 200 workers made redundant last week and earlier this month.

Bankers' Association president and Westpac general manager George Stoopin has said banks would close immediately the strike began because they would be without the central processing services of Databank.

If banks did close, New Zealanders' pay cheques could not be processed, automatic tellers would not dispense cash and New Zealand's foreign exchange and money markets would also be at a standstill.

Finance Sector Union assistant general secretary Paul Goulter said any strike action would not proceed until at least Thursday this week, depending on the outcome of continuing talks.

MANILA (APRIL 30) - China agreed Monday to sell between 700,000 and one million tons of cement to the Philippines to help ease a shortage here, the two governments said.

Philippine Trade Secretary Jose Concepcion and Chinese Ambassador to Manila Wang Yingfan signed an agreement on the purchase here Monday.

Mr. Concepcion said the Philippines was to import 10 million bags of cement this month and another 10 million bags next month from Iraq, Iran, Indonesia, North Korea and China. He did not say how much of the shipment would come from China.

He expressed confidence that domestic prices, which have been going up due to heavy demand, would go down after the arrival of the imported cement.

MANILA (APRIL 30) - The Philippine government approved 28.4 billion pesos' (1.24 billion dollars') worth of proposed investment in priority areas in the first quarter of this year, Trade Secretary Jose Concepcion said Monday.

He told reporters the amount represented a 14.5 percent increase from the same period last year, and said it showed that investors had recovered from the scare caused by a bloody coup attempt against President Corazon Aquino in December.

However, Mr. Concepcion admitted that the acute power shortage that has forced rationing of electricity in Manila and nearby areas had had a "very big effect" on the garment industry.

He said they were checking on a newspaper report here Monday that 20 foreign firms at an industrial enclave south of here had threatened to relocate to neighboring countries due to production losses caused by power blackouts.

Mr. Concepcion said 61 percent of the investment proposals for the first quarter were made by foreign firms and the rest by Filipino companies. Of the total, 278 were manufacturing projects and 10 are in mining.

Proposals by Japanese firms accounted for 54.3 percent of the total amount, followed by Canada at 12.6 percent, Hong Kong at 9.1 percent, Taiwan at 7.2 per cent and the United States at 4.9 percent.

Mr. Concepcion said the government has a target amount of four billion dollars in investment approvals this year, up from 3.3 billion dollars last year.

Hong Kong (APRIL 30) - Hong Kong banking commissionar Tony Nicolle warned the colony's financial institutions Monday that loan volume was increasing faster than deposits.

The ratio of loans to deposits rose from 92 percent to 117 per cent in 1989, the year which saw the biggest rise in Hong Kong dollar loans for the past decade, Nicolle said in his annual report.

Nicolle identified this as the most worrying trend in the past year. But he noted that since compilation of the report, banks had increased lending rates to dampen loan demand.

Nicole reported that 11 new banking licenses were granted in 1989 and six were revoked voluntarily, bringing the total of registered banks to a record 165.

Total assets and liabilities of licensed financial institutions stood at 4,247 billion Hong Kong dollars (544 billion U.S. dollars), a rise of 15 per- cent compared with the previous year.

Japan continues to dominate the banking sector in terms of asset size, accounting for 56 percent of the total market, he said. But that dominance was exaggerated as Japanese banks, due to restrictive banking laws at home tended to ''book'' overseas business transactions in Hong Kong.

Nicolle said that although Chinese banks suffered a big loss of deposits following the democracy protests last June, ''they have more than made good the loss.''

PARIS (APRIL 30) - French group Compagnie de Navigation Mixte and West German insurance giant Allianz announced Monday that Mixte's insurance sector would become part of a new group controlled by Allianz.

Allianz would hold a 65 percent stake in the new company, grouping Mixte's insurance operations Via and Rhin et Moselle with Allianz France, while Mixte would retain a 34 percent minority blocking stake and the remaining one per cent is held by other shareholders.

The new group will be France's third largest private insurance concern behind Axa Midi and Victoire, with premiums totalling some 10 billion francs (1.7 billion dollars), eight billion of it from Mixte and the rest from Allianz France.

The deal marks the final stage in a rapprochement between Mixte and Allianz which began in September last year when Mixte ceded 50 percent of its insurance sector to the West German group.

Monday's move will bring Mixte some one billion francs (175 million dollars) as Allianz puts its French subsidiary, valued at 3.3 billion francs, into the new operation and buys some one billion francs' worth of Mixte shares.

Via and Rhin et Moselle are valued at some 13.5 billion francs, Mixte said.

JAKARTA (APRIL 30) - Seven private companies have plans to set up six new pulp plants soon in the Indonesian province of East Kalimantan, press reports here said Monday.

An official of the industry ministry was cited as having said at the southeastern Kalimantan city of Samarinda that the largest of the six plants would have an annual production capacity of around 450,000 tons of pulp and paper.

The construction of the 462.5 million dollar plant, the only project involving a foreign joint venture -- two Indonesian private companies and Lakemba Ltd. of Hongkong -- was expected to start this year,the reports said.

The other five plants will churn out a total of around 1.08 million tons of pulp and related products such as rayon and paper, the reports said.

Although the official did not say when any of the factories would start construction, he added that all companies had fullfilled all government requirements.

JAKARTA (APRIL 30) - Indonesia and the Soviet Union are expected to sign an agreement in May to resume direct airlinks between the two countries after an eight-year suspension, Transportation Minister Azwar Anas said here Monday.

Representatives of the two countries will meet at the Indonesian resort island of Bali on May 10-12 to finalize the bilateral agreement, Mr. Anas told journalists after meeting President Suharto.

"We hope that the agreement can be signed then," Mr. Anas said, adding that the deal would cover arrangements for flights linking Moscow and Jakarta between the Soviet airline Aeroflot and Garuda Indonesia.

Indonesia closed down Aeroflot's operations here in 1982 after arresting its office manager on espionage charges. He was sent home along with several Soviet diplomats amidst charges they were part of an extensive spy ring.

Mr. Anas did not give details of the frequency of the planned flights or of the routes.

But he said representatives of the two countries might discuss the possibility of Garuda Indonesia leasing several of Aeroflot's wide-bodied aircraft to cope with the annual Moslem Haj pilgrimage flow to and from Mecca in Saudi Arabia.

Mr. Anas said that if such an agreement were reached, Aeroflot aircraft would be used to replace those of Garuda taken off regular commercial routes to transport the pilgrims.

Up to 68,000 Indonesian pilgrims have registered so far for this year's Haj, Mr. Anas said.

NEW DELHI (APRIL 30) - India's coffee exports in fiscal 1989-90 ending March 31 stood at 140,000 tons, some 42,000 tons more than the previous year, the Press Trust of India (PTI) said Monday quoting official sources.

Exports for the first nine months of 1989-90 totalled 93,633 tons, valued at some 157 million dollars and the figures for the last three months were an official estimate, the news agency said.

In the previous year the first nine months' exports had totalled 71,692 tons. The Indian financial year begins on April 1.

But PTI said without giving further details that domestic consumption of coffee had stagnated at around 55,000 tons for the past three years.

NEW DELHI (APRIL 30) - Five chests of Darjeeling tea fetched a per kilogram (2.2 pounds) price of 5,001 rupees (294.17 dollars) in a Calcutta auction Monday, creating a new world record, the Press Trust of India (PTI) reported.

The London department store Harrods paid the record price for five chests and an additional 115 kilograms (253 pounds) from the Castleton Estate auctioned by Tea Brokers Private Ltd., PTI said adding that the previous world record export price of 3,920 rupees (230.58 dollars) was also set by Castleton.

The record price was unusual in that it was paid for first flush tea, which usually fetched lower prices than second flush, PTI quoted Tea Brokers' chairman Vijay Dudeja as saying, adding that the top price buyers were normally West German or Japanese.

HONG KONG (APRIL 30) - Hong Kong is still a key banking site despite some talk that overseas bankers might want to move out of the British colony before China's takeover in 1997, the colonial Banking Commissioner said Monday.

Tony Nicolle said that last year "there was a net increase of nine in the number of overseas banks licensed" while the number of representative offices increased by eight to 160.

Hong Kong's efforts to bring up to world standards its banking laws and rules following a series of bank failures here in the early 1980's would also attract more international banks to set up regional operations here, Mr. Nicolle told a press conference.

LAHORE, PAKISTAN (APRIL 30) - At least one person was killed and 10 injured when a bomb planted under the seat of an inter-city bus exploded here Monday, the official Associated Press of Pakistan said.

The bus, bound for Sialkot in the north, had stopped in a fruit market to pick up passengers when the bomb went off.

Most of the casualties were fruit sellers on their way home after disposing of their merchandise.

No organisation immediately claimed responsibility.

TOKYO (APRIL 30) - Results of an opinion survey just published here make the real Japan of today look like a throwback to the rest of the world's cliche vision of the country.

In the commonplace view, the Japanese see the meaning of life in hard work and beating the competition. They bring up their children to a similar workaday life with little effort to develop their individual personalities.

According to the image, they are also fiercely nationalistic, justifying this by claiming the Japanese are a ''unique'' race.

So what of the reality? The Japanese indeed work six days a week with only Sunday off, and it seems they expect the same of children.

The education ministry has timidly proposed closing schools on Saturdays. But a survey of 3,000 adults by the newspaper Mainichi Shimbun shows 63 per- cent of adults do not like the idea.

Regardless of whether they have children or not, 59 percent of men and 69 percent of women think children should go to school six days a week. Overall 58 percent agree with the common view that the children would ''just waste the extra leisure time''.

And 40 percent of parents said that if the school week was shortened, it should be made up with extra cramming-school classes for the children in evenings, weekends or during regular school holidays.

As for nationalism, the same poll shows 73 percent of those questioned agreed with an April 1 national-anthem directive from the education ministry in the face of vehement opposition from teacher unions and leftwing parties.

The directive aims to encourage national pride by obliging schools to raise the flag and sing the national anthem at every school ceremony, despite the fact that neither national symbol is even mentioned in the Japanese constitution.

DUBLIN (APRIL 30) - The Allied Irish Bank said Monday it had launched a 223.7 million dollar takeover bid for U.S. bank Baltimore Bancorp, in which it already holds a 4.9 percent stake.

The Irish bank said it wanted the bid to be seen as a friendly takeover move, although it had not been sought by the Maryland bank.

Allied Irish also announced a 162 million Irish punt (258 million dollars) capital raising exercise to finance the operation, with an issue of 92.5 million new shares, one new share for six existing shares, at a price of 175 Irish pence per share.

Allied Irish shares lost 12 British pence on the London stock exchange to 237 pence following news of the operation.

PALERMO, ITALY (APRIL 30) - The provisional death toll in Sunday's ferry disaster in Sicily was set at 13 Monday.

The 3,500-gross-ton Espresso Trapani sank in sight of the port of Trapani, apparently after a heavy truck on board slipped free from its position and capsized the vessel in calm seas, authorities said. There was no explanation how the truck came loose.

The ferry, which was bringing trucks from Livorno, Italy, sank within 15 minutes. Though help came promptly Sunday evening, only 39 of the 52 persons aboard were rescued. Six bodies were recovered and a search continued through Monday for the other seven persons.

LONDON (APRIL 30) - Major British textiles group Tootal said Monday that its taxable profit fell 15.6 percent in the year to January 31 to 35.7 million pounds (59.5 million dollars).

Turnover rose 7.7 percent to 529.8 million pounds, and final dividend was set at 4.95 pence, up from 4.85. Earnings per share were down to 8.53 pence from 11.

The result was in line with the lower end of market predictions, and Tootal shares fell a penny to 85 pence in mid-session trading in London.

BERLIN (APRIL 30) - East Germany's economy ministry is battling with the mammoth task of introducing the basic framework of a market economy in time for monetary union with West Germany in only two months' time.

"We are in a period where virtually everything needs to be re-evaluated and changed," said Reinhard Hadrich, advisor to Economy Minister Gerhard Pohl.

"If we want to have all the laws we need adopted by the end of this year, we will monopolise parliament's time."

But the changes are vital to attract rapid capital investment, and the credibility of the government of Lothar de Maiziere depends to a large extent on its ability to carry through the economic transformation.

The contract signed by the five parties in the coalition government outlines an economic plan including some concrete commitments, with plans to modify existing laws or create new ones, but there are also several areas where things are left much more open.

One thorny issue is land and property ownership, particularly what will happen to farmers' rights to work land belonging to cooperatives and the rights of tenants in housing confiscated after its owners fled to the west.

Some 800,000 properties and pieces of land in East Germany are estimated to belong to West Germans, and some effectively have two owners - those of pre-1949 and those who acquired the land or house afterwards.

Mr. de Maiziere has pledged not to touch land expropriated during agrarian reforms in 1945, and has said that property rights acquired "in good faith" under communist rule will remain valid, although some people in West Germany are lobbying for him to reconsider.

"What we have seen in recent months, with people from the West (Germany) walking into farms or buildings as if they were in their own home is not acceptable," Mr. Hadrich said.

MOSCOW (APRIL 30) - The Soviet Union's traditional parades to mark International Labour Day on May 1 are likely to have a very different flavour this year, as the Communist Party gives up its monopoly on organising the events, and nationalist and reform groups take to the streets.

Following the decision by the Congress of Deputies, or Parliament, in March to abolish the Communist Party's monopoly of power, the main Mayday parade in Moscow is being organised for the first time by the official trade unions.

In the capital the parade will be watched with special interest because of the local elections which in March put the city council under the control of the pro-reform "Democratic Russia" alliance, which last week elected Gavril Popov to the post of mayor.

The day before Mr. Popov was elected, however, President Mikhail Gorbachev issued a decree removing the city of Moscow's right to authorize or ban marches in the city centre around the Kremlin, and giving that right to the central government.

This threatened plans by several of the pro-reform groups to take part in Tuesday's Red Square parade, but a compromise was eventually reached under which the government allowed a "union meeting" on the square -- but stipulated that it had to be all over by 1:00 p.m., according to the government newspaper Izvestia.

In recent years the authorities have ended the impressive displays of military hardware which used to accompany the marches, but although non-conformist groups have been able to march, they have been kept out in the suburbs, away from the television cameras.

One familiar aspect of the Red Square parade will however remain -- the official unions have not forgotten to invite Mr. Gorbachev, who will watch the march as usual, flanked by other top leaders.

In other parts of the country, nationalist groups are expected to take advantage of the freer atmosphere to join in the Mayday marches.

Last year tens of thousand of Armenians braved a ban to march in Yerevan, the capital of their republic.

Meanwhile the country's coalminers will be taking advantage of the three-day Mayday holiday to hold the first-ever congress of the grass-roots committees which led their mass strike last July.

The conference, which is taking place outside the official union structures, is to start Monday in the city of Novokuznetsk in Siberia's Kuzbass coalmining basin.

PARIS (APRIL 30) - The team that won a bitter battle for control of the French luxury goods group Louis Vuitton-Moet Hennessy (LVMH) on Monday refused to approve the Vuitton accounts.

This was seen as part of a continuing legal dispute over contracts made by the deposed managers.

The Louis Vuitton board meeting had been postponed several times to allow completion of court action pitting financier Bernard Arnault, 41, against Henri Racamier, 77, who was widely accredited with resurrecting the fortunes of Vuitton.

That dispute, over whether special shares held by the Arnault side should be annulled, went against Mr. Racamier in an appeal court ruling on Thursday, putting Mr. Arnault in charge of LVMH, which holds 98 percent of luggage maker Louis Vuitton. Mr. Racamier resigned his functions.

In a separate dispute, LVMH has challenged contracts signed by Vuitton in South East Asia, holding that they are "irregular" and allow exorbitant advantages to the head of the Bluebell Asia company, Michel Goemans, responsible for the regional distribution of Vuitton products.

On Thursday, the Paris commercial court, ruling on a case brought by LVMH, rejected a request that the contracts be cancelled. LVMH has said that it intends to appeal.

During the annual meeting of Louis Vuitton on Monday, LVMH representing 98 per cent of the equity or 38.9 million votes, abstained from a vote to approve the 1988 accounts, and from a vote to approve a payment to directors for their management in 1988.

This had the effect of rejecting the resolutions. In the vote on the accounts, there were 651 votes in favour and 302 against. A resolution approving a dividend was passed.

The meeting was attended by about 40 people including Jean Dromer, appointed president on Friday, who thanked the teams which "made the group's exceptional success".

One shareholder spoke out in critical terms. She was Madeleine Lebrun with 300 votes, who said "I learnt with sadness of the departure of Mr. Racamier".

COPENHAGEN (APRIL 30) - Denmark's two largest banks said Monday that they were cutting interest rates on loans to businesses and private individuals and on the latters' deposits by 0.5 percent.

The decision by Den Danske Bank and Unibank, to take effect Tuesday, followed Friday's announcement by the Danish central bank that it was cutting its base rates by 0.5 percent, taking interest rates on loans down to 11 per cent and that on deposits down to 10 percent.

It was the second reduction in central bank rates in less than a month, breaking a tradition of following movements in West Germany.

The Danish economy has become strong enough to follow an economic policy independent of that of West Germany, banking experts here said.

The latest cuts have reduced the difference in interest rates between the two countries to around 2.5 percent.

DUSSELDORF, WEST GERMANY (APRIL 30) - The future of West Germany's leading paper concern Feldmuehle-Nobel is uncertain following its takeover by Swedish forestry and paper group Stora, chairman Heribert Blaschke said here Monday.

"The staff (which totalled 35,175 as of the end of December) are waiting to find out what is to happen, and are assuming that the group will not be dismantled," Mr. Blaschke told a press conference.

It is the second time that Feldmuehle-Nobel has changed hands in less than a year, after upheaval following the dismantling of the Flick empire in 1986 in the wake of a bribery scandal which shook the West German political establishment.

Chemicals and energy conglomerate VEBA acquired a majority stake last year but on Friday Stora and investment group Patricia AB announced that they had acquired an 85 percent stake in Feldmuehle-Nobel for more than 14 billion Swedish kroner (2.3 billion dollars) or 567 Deutsche marks per share following an agreement with major shareholders.

They said Monday that they were offering 540 Deutsche marks per share for the remaining 15 percent held by minor shareholders, giving a total value for the takeover of four billion Deutsche marks, the highest ever paid for a West German company by a foreign buyer.

The acquisition of Feldmuehle, whose interests also include explosives and the Buderus foundry, makes Stora Europe's leading paper group and the fourth largest in the world.

A Stora spokesman said that the difference in price offered to major and minor shareholders was due to the fact that major shareholders such as VEBA, which held a 51 percent stake, would not have accepted a lower price.

VEBA had paid 400 Deutsche marks per share last year, and the West German press estimated its profit after selling to Stora at around 500 million Deutsche marks.

Feldmuehle-Nobel had a consolidated turnover of 9.5 billion Deutsche marks (5.6 billion dollars) last year. The deal, which would mean that control of half of West Germany's paper making industry was in foreign hands, is subject to the approval of the West German monopolies commission.

The Feldmuehle acquisition is Stora's third major move in Europe this year, after a decision to increase production of cellulose in its Portuguese subsidiary from 360,000 tonnes a year to 600,000 at an investment cost of 1.1 billion Deutsche marks (647 million dollars), its biggest ever single investment.

Stora, acting with Finnish group Kymmene, also acquired French paper maker Chapelle Darbley for 400 million Deutsche marks (235 million dollars).

SAARBRUCKEN, WEST GERMANY (APRIL 30) - East Germany could end up with between 100,000 and 300,000 jobless following the introduction of economic and monetary union with West Germany, a senior West German official said here Monday.

But Heinrich Franke, the president of the West German labour office, said in a radio interview that it was "irresponsible to talk about two million jobless in East Germany" after economic and monetary union were achieved.

Mr. Franke also said that the West German government would have to spend "hundreds of millions of Deutsche marks every year" out of the federal budget to finance East Germany's transition from a planned to a market economy, although he gave no indication how many years he expected this to last.

KUALA LUMPUR (APRIL 30) - Singapore's Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew said Monday his island-nation meant ''no harm'' if it had ever spied on Malaysia.

Speaking to reporters after one hour of talks with Malaysian Prime Minister Mahathir Mohamad, Lee said if Singapore ever spied on Malaysia, the intention was ''to gather information'' to find out what was going on in the other country.

Lee was commenting on an allegation that Singapore had been involved in espionage in Malaysia following the detention of several Singaporeans, including a member of the military, last year.

He said ''the espionage problem'' was not an issue that governments should openly be accusing each other of.

Lee also denied charges that Singapore was trying to sabotage the on-going ''Visit Malaysia Year'' campaign.

''It does not make sense why Singapore will sabotage Malaysia. The influx of tourists to Malaysia will also benefit the republic as some spillover will be felt in Singapore,'' Lee said.

Lee, who arrived here from Singapore early Monday, returned to Singapore the same day after talks with Mahathir aimed at straightening out problems between both countries.

NEW DELHI (APRIL 30) - Asian Development Bank (ADB) officials and members are set to begin talks on replenishing and expanding the bank's 3.6 billion dollar soft-loan fund, bank officials said here Monday.

Tuesday's closed-door talks, grouping finance ministers and central bank governors from the ADB's richest members, will be the first meeting in four years to discuss the size of the fund, they said.

The Asian Development Fund (ADF) talks come one day before the 49-member bank's annual meeting opens here Wednesday.

The ADF was set up to provide cheap, long-term funds to the bank's poorest members and is funded mainly by non-Asian members of the bank, plus Japan, Australia and New Zealand.

The current 3.6 billion dollar fund, ADF-5, will run to the end of this year and negotiations here this week are due to determine the size of ADF-6, which is set to commence lending in 1991.

ADF loans carry zero interest, a service charge of one per cent per annum, and are repayable in 35 to 40 years after a 10-year grace period.

This compares extremely favourably with the bank's standard lending rate of 6.3 percent, but ADF loans are only available to countries with a per capita gross national product of less than 650 dollars a year.

So far, the main recipients have been South Asian countries.

Bangladesh has picked up 29 per cent of the 9.58 billion dollars disbursed by the ADF since 1966, Pakistan has received 29 per cent, and Nepal and Sri Lanka have each received nine percent.

Neither of the regional giants, China and India, has so far applied for ADF loans, although both easily fall under the GNP threshold.

Under an agreement in 1986, when China joined the ADB and India began to borrow the bank's ordinary funds, both countries agreed not to tap the soft-loan funds.

KINSHASHA (APRIL 30) - Four French nationals have been taken hostage by separatist rebels of the Cabinda Liberation Front at the border between the Angolan enclave of Cabinda and the Congo, the Cabinda Liberation Front said Monday.

The front, which is fighting for the independence of Cabinda from Angola, said guerrillas had abducted four employees of the Elf-Congo oil company on Friday.

A front spokesman said that 11 people, mostly French and Congolese, were seized during a raid on an Elf-Congo camp south of the Congolese city of Pointe-Noire near the border, but seven had later been released. The others were being kept as hostages, he said.

ATHENS (APRIL 30) - The Greek government's recent announcement of measures to reduce the country's debt were a decisive first step in the right direction, but more needed to be done, the central bank governor said Monday.

The main reason for Greece's economic problems is the huge public sector deficit, Dimitris Halikias told the annual general meeting of the Bank of Greece, during which he presented his annual report on prospects for the Greek economy and problems with monetary policy.

The inevitable result of the high and increasing level of public sector deficit and of lax policy on revenue had been worsening inflation and a worsening balance of payments situation in the first few months of this year.

Mr. Halikias estimated that inflation in March stood at 17.8 per cent on a year on year basis and that the balance of payments deficit for January and February reached 1.15 billion dollars.

The country's exchange reserves meanwhile fell to 939 million dollars in the first three months of the year, despite the fact that net state borrowing abroad hit some 620 million dollars.

The public sector deficit, including deficits of state-owned enterprises, has reached 18.1 percent of gross national product, while public debt is the equivalent of 105 percent of GNP.

In current conditions it was not possible to liberalise capital movement or introduce the drachma into the exchange rate mechanism (ERM) of the European Monetary System (EMS), Mr. Halikias said.

The public sector deficit would have to be reduced further, and the country would have to achieve monetary stability and a reduction in inflationary trends before such a move could be made, he added.

Mr. Halikias urged the government to scrap a requirement that banks invest a percentage of their reserves in interest-bearing government bonds, in order to develop an extra-bank money market.

But he said such an abolition would have to be carried out gradually to avoid pushing up interest rates on the banking and capital markets.

BONN (APRIL 30) - West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl on Monday urged experts of the two Germanies negotiating on monetary union to complete their deliberations within the agreed timetable.

Mr. Kohl and East German Prime Minister Lothar de Maiziere agreed last week that the Deutsche mark would replace the Ost mark in East Germany on July 1.

The West German chancellor stressed Monday that any other timetable "would not in any circumstances have his support," Mr. Kohl's spokesman Dieter Vogel said.

Any delay "would only aggravate the psychological climate in East Germany," Mr. Kohl told the experts from the two sides who resumed their talks in Bonn on Monday.

The talks, which began Wednesday, are to continue in Bonn until late Tuesday then resume in East Berlin on Thursday and Friday.

Mr. Kohl is hoping that a treaty on monetary union can be signed before Sunday, when local elections are to be held in East Germany, but Mr. Vogel said some points could still need discussion after the weekend.

He said however that "the main points" would be agreed before the end of the week.

The head of the East German delegation in the monetary union talks, secretary of state to the prime minister Gunter Krause, told Mr. Kohl that East Germany did not want to endanger the Deutsche mark.

He also said that the treaty on monetary union should "prevent further departures from East Germany to West Germany," Mr. Vogel said.

Free elections in March and the prospect of monetary union have so far failed to stem the influx of East German refugees into West Germany, and a further 4,200 arrived in the West last week, taking the total so far this year to almost 175,000, according to interior ministry figures.

VEVEY, Switzerland (APRIL 30) - Swiss food group Nestle said Monday it was abandoning plans to increase its capital due to the current poor state of the stock market.

Nestle had said in March that it planned to issue one new share for each 20 existing shares, at a price to be fixed at a later date, to continue to improve the group's financial structure and to meet possible future needs.

"In view of the current condition on the stock market there is no longer any justification for a capital increase," Nestle spokesman Francois-Xavier Perroud said.

The Zurich stock market is currently at its lowest level this year, and on Monday the Swiss Performance Index fell eight points from Friday's level to end the day at 1,044.

Nestle had a consolidated net profit of 2.4 billion Swiss francs (1.6 billion dollars) last year, a 17.2 per cent increase over the previous year's level, on turnover of 48 billion francs (32 billion dollars), up 22 percent.

Taipei (APRIL 30) - Taiwan has lifted a ban on elected officials travelling to mainland China, bringing down another barrier between the two sides.

The Committee on Mainland Affairs, under the executive yuan (cabinet), Monday approved visits by all elected officials on the local and central levels, ending a 40-year ban on such travel.

As a result of this decision, military and government officials are the only citizens who are still prohibited from visiting the mainland.

Elected officials have ignored the ban in the past, making frequent visits to the mainland, but were subject to punishment upon their return to Taiwan, usually having their passports revoked for a period of several years.

All contact with mainland China was previously prohibited under the government's policy of no contact, no compromise and no negotiation in effect since the Kuomintang government lost the mainland to the Chinese communists in 1949, and retreated to Taiwan.

Beginning in November 1987, however, Taipei gradually began to loosen restrictions on people-to-people contacts, which the government says are not official, permitting mainlanders living in Taiwan to return home for their first family visits since 1949.

Singapore (APRIL 30) - The Pacific region, although plagued with regional and global economic woes, is expected to look for new ground for expansion in the 1990s, according to a report by the Pacific Economic Co-operation Conference released Monday.

The report, compiled by a group of academics, government officials and businessmen, said the main problems confronting nations in the region were ''inflation and a structural imbalance of trade and payments.''

It said ''these problems are being attended to and until they are corrected, economic uncertainty is expected to remain.''

The report also said market forces were desperately trying to make the Pacific economy more cohesive. ''This comes from direct investments, trade and tourism,'' it said.

LONDON (APRIL 30) - A former South African policeman and self-professed member of alleged police "hit squads" admitted here Monday that he had never killed government opponents but had been present during their assassinations.

Captain Dirk Coetzee, testifying for the second week before a Pretoria-appointed commission investigating the alleged murder units described how one member of the African National Congress (ANC) was tortured in a police station where he suffered brain damage and was later assassinated.

But asked directly by Judge Louis Harms, the head of the commission which is meeting temporarily in London, whether he had ever been the man to pull the trigger in any of the alleged political killings, Capt. Coetzee responded: "No,
Mr. Chairman."

The admission came amid intense questioning from lawyer Sam Maritz, the lawyer representing police officers named by Capt. Coetzee as having been members of the death squads.

In one instance, Capt. Coetzee described how he drove his car more than 400 kilometers (185 miles) from Pietermaritzburg with a delivery of so-called "knock-out drops" to be used in one of the killings.

Mr. Maritz said the story was "stupid" and "ridiculous" and that Capt. Coetzee's presence at the killing was unnecessary on the grounds that the victim could simply have been hit over the head before being shot.

"I stick to what I said before -- that's exactly the way it happened," Capt. Coetzee answered, sitting a few feet away from Mr. Maritz.

But Capt. Coetzee's admission that he had only been present at the killings and had never himself carried one out appeared to lend some weight to efforts by Mr. Maritz and other lawyers to cast doubt on the reliability of his evidence.

The proceedings of the Harms Commission, which continue Tuesday, coincide with the first anniversary of the assassination of anti-apartheid academic David Webster.

Mr. Webster's alleged killer was named Thursday by a witness testifying before a separate commission investigating Johannesburg's city council spy ring which authorities have said was set up to monitor anti-apartheid activists.

ISLAMABAD (APRIL 30) - Opposition parties in Pakistan Monday petitioned the speaker of the National Assembly to unseat Prime Minister Benazir Bhutto for allegedly violating constitutional provisions relating to ''political ethics''.

The opposition accused the Bhutto of using an air force plane to ''hijack'' 80 members of the assembly to defeat an opposition motion of no confidence against her last November and rewarding four opposition defectors with ministerial posts.

The term hijack refers to the whisking away of supporters by Bhutto's party to a secluded hill resort in order to prevent them being bought by the opposition prior to the vote.

Pakistan's chief election commissioner is the final authority to decide the petition.

Political observers said the opposition was retaliating to similar petitions moved by Minister of State for Parliamentary Affairs Sher Afgan against Bhutto's main adversary, Nawaz Sharif, who rules the powerful Punjab province and heads the opposition alliance.

Afgan's petition, which also names Sharif's brother and several of his close associates in the National Assembly, is to be processed by assembly officers next week.

STUTTGART, WEST GERMANY (APRIL 30) - Metalworkers staged a warning strike on Monday in the southwest region of Baden-Wurttemberg and in northern West Germany to press demands for higher wages and shorter working hours.

Some 65,000 workers in Baden-Wurttemberg responded to the strike call by the IG Metall union, paralyzing five plants, including automaker Mercedes-Benz in Stuttgart, which said the strike had cost it 1,300 cars in lost production, and ball bearing manufacturer SKF, a union source said.

In the northern town of Nortorf, 120 workers stopped work at Teldec-Press, one of West Germany's biggest compact disc manufacturers.

IG Metall, which wants a 35-hour working week and an 8.5 percent pay rise for its four million workers in the country's metallurgical industry, is planning similar localized "warning strikes" from Wednesday, in the north of the country and in Bavaria.

If its demands are not met by May 8, IG Metall plans to call an unlimited strike.

Negotiations between workers and management in Baden-Wurttemberg are to resume Thursday in the town of Goeppingen.

CAPE TOWN (APRIL 30) - The South African Government and anti-apartheid African National Congress were preparing Monday for talks later in the week expected to start negotiations between the white minority and black majority they rule.

Although the talks scheduled here Wednesday through Friday have been called "preliminary", they will mark the first time Pretoria has met officially with its principal rival.

President Frederik de Klerk's chief adviser, Gerrit Viljoen, said Monday the venue would be Groot Schuur, a huge property which houses several official residences.

The main subject on the agenda will black-on-black violence which has flared up again since de Klerk lifted a ban on the ANC and its ally, the South African Communist Party, three months ago.

Renewed fighting in most black townships almost scuttled the historic meeting, originally scheduled for Apr. 11. ANC leaders cancelled the talks after police opened fire on black demonstrators in Sebokeng township, near Johannesburg, on Mar. 26, killing seven.

Another main issue will be the ANC's refusal to renounce the "armed struggle", or guerrilla warfare, it has waged against white-minority rule since 1961.

Black nationalist leader Nelson Mandela, released in February after more than 27 years in prison, will lead the 11-member ANC delegation. His group is to include two whites. One of them is Joe Slovo, head of the South African Communist Party and a senior ANC official.

De Klerk will lead the nine-member government delegation.

The two sides planned to spend Monday and Tuesday putting final touches to their strategies for the talks.

The ANC team were closeted with some 30 leaders of the United Democratic Front (UDF) and Confederation of South African Trades Unions (COSATU). The UDF and COSATU to all practical purposes constituted the ANC's internal branches before it was legalized.

Mandela said Sunday the main goal of the meeting was "to remove all the obstacles which stand in the way of negotiations".

The idea is to clear the way for true negotiations, which would not be confined to the ANC and would focus on drafting a new constitution giving the black majority the right to vote in national elections for the first time.

The so-called "obstacles" -- or, to the ANC, conditions -- were laid out in the "Harare Document", adopted by the Organization of African Unity (OAU) in August.

Only one of them has been fulfilled by Pretoria: legalization of previously banned organizations.

However the ANC and communist party also want an amnesty for all political prisoners, whom they estimate number 3,000, and a general pardon for some 20,000 exiles.

They also want Pretoria to lift the state of emergency imposed June 12, 1986 and halt political trials and executions, currently suspended.

However the ANC temporarily shelved a demand that troops be withdrawn from townships, following the recent upsurge in violence. Sending in military reinforcements has appeared to be the only way to limit the carnage, particularly in Natal province.

As for Pretoria, its only known demand is that the ANC make an "unequivocal commitment" to pursue peaceful solutions. The government has called for "the cessation...of preaching the armed struggle".

This could be "even if it were merely rhetorical", de Klerk said in an address to parliament Apr. 17.

Pretoria claims glorification of "the armed struggle" caused the new wave of violence. De Klerk has refused to lift the state of emergency, saying the fighting would continue regardless.

However the ANC has refused to lay down its arms in the near future. "It is because we spoke with an AK-47 that dialogue is now in the air", Slovo said Sunday.

Analysts predict the ANC's refusal to renounce violence will be the main stumbling block at the talks here.

DURBAN, SOUTH AFRICA (APRIL 30) - The death toll in Saturday's gas cylinder explosion in Stanger, north of this east coast city, has risen from two to six, a hospital spokesman said.

He said two women and two men had died in hospital on Monday after sustaining third-degree burns in the blast, which happened when a black man lit a cigarette close to a truck containing gas cylinders, causing a leaking 48 kilogram (105 pound) cylinder to explode.

The black man died instantly and a 12-year-old Asiatic boy died later Sunday in hospital.

The hospital spokesman said three men and a woman were still in a critical condition. Another 15 people were injured in the blast, which extensively damaged nearby buildings.

NEW DELHI, INDIA (APRIL 30) - Prime Minister Vishwanath Pratap Singh on Monday justified India's latest defense allocations by saying that Pakistan had more than doubled its military capability in the last few years.

Mr. V.P. Singh told parliament his government's announcement of hiked defense allocations in March for the new fiscal year had followed a virtual defense spending freeze by the outgoing government of former prime minister Rajiv Gandhi.

His statement to parliament coincided with reports from Islamabad earlier Monday of Pakistan allocating an additional 200 million dollars to its armed forces.

It also came hours before visiting Japanese Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu issued a strong appeal in the parliament for both Islamabad and New Delhi to go to the negotiating table rather than to war over the problem of Kashmir.

Mr. V.P. Singh said in answer to questions in the Lok Sabha, or lower house, that Pakistan was engaged in a buildup by tripling its naval strength, doubling the army and more than doubling its air power.

He accused the Gandhi government of harming India's security by virtually freezing defense budget during the Pakistani military buildup.

"We have to make up for that policy ... We are determined to make up for the distortions of the last few years." he said.

Mr. Singh's government allocated 9.2 billion dollars, up by 600 million dollars, for defense in the new fiscal year that began April 1, the first hike in real terms in the past three years.

India and Pakistan have fought three wars, two of them over Kashmir, which is claimed by both.

Relations between the two nations deteriorated sharply from efforts towards detente between Mr. Gandhi and Pakistan Prime Minister Benazir Bhutto after Moslem militants stepped up a bloody secessionist campaign in Jammu and Kashmir, the only Moslem-majority Indian state, late last year.

India accuses Pakistan of aiding the militants, a charge rejected by Islamabad.

MAPUTO (APRIL 30) - People in the central Mozambican province of Zambezia are once again faced with starvation, according to press reports.

The daily paper Diario de Mocambique said 10 people per day were dying of hunger in Mugulama, in Ile district, that was retaken at the end of last year by the Mozambican armed forces after several years in the hands of rebels of the Mozambique National Resistance (RENAMO).

Mugulama now shelters about 50,000 displaced people, who fled to the small town shortly after the rebels were dislodged.

They are now housed in accommodation centers, but local officials cannot provide sufficient food.

Only two convoys have reached Mugulama from the Zambezia provincial capital, Quelimane, since the army recaptured the locality. Airlifts of food are urgently needed to stave off a disastrous famine.

Ile and the neighboring district of Gile suffered a major famine in early 1989, at the height of which over 120 people a day were dying.

WASHINGTON (APRIL 30) - The United States and Southern Yemen Monday resumed diplomatic relations after a 21-year break, State Department spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler said.

The move was irrespective of the fact that South Yemen would stay on the list of countries considered by the United States as supporting international terrorism, she said.

''We've seen increasing evidence of a desire by South Yemen to maintain peaceful relations with its neighbors and have read with interest reports of new moves to liberalize both their economy and their political system '' she said.

The Arabian Peninsula was an important part of the world, and ''we seek a useful and productive relationship,'' she added.

Along with countries like Syria, Iran, Libya and North Korea, South Yemen has for years been regarded by Washington as supporting terrorists - mainly by being a haven for terrorists and hijackers.

But Tutwiler added: ''South Yemen has considerably reduced its support for terrorism since the early eighties, and we do not believe it sponsored any terrorist attacks in 1989.''

JAMMU, INDIA (APRIL 30) - Suspected Moslem militants killed five people and shot and wounded a policeman in continuing violence in the northern Indian state of Kashmir, the Press Trust of India (PTI) reported Monday.

Two of the victims had reportedly been hanged separately in the troubled state, while two bodies were found in the Kashmir valley's Baramulla town and one in a forest in Kupwara district, the news agency said.

One of the two men found hanged was a Moslem,the other a Hindu, PTI said, adding that it was not clear when and why they were killed.

Moslem militants campaigning to secede Kashmir also shot and seriously wounded a Hindu police constable in the Safakadal area of Srinagar, the summer capital of Kashmir.

Also in Srinagar, a bomb blast blamed on Moslem separatists damaged the house of a moderate Moslem politician, Ghulam Mohammad Teli. There were no reports of injuries.

More than 405 people have reportedly died this year in violence linked to the Moslem campaign to free Kashmir from the Indian Union. New Delhi has blamed Pakistan for the unrest.

Pakistan, which controls the northern third of the Moslem-majority province, has denied the charge. India and Pakistan have fought two of their three wars since 1947 over Kashmir. The continuing violence has sparked fears of a fourth war.

In a related development, an Indian Moslem politician on Monday urged the Kashmir administration to lift marathon curfew restrictions in the Kashmir valley, cradle of the separatist movement.

An easing of the curfew, which is periodically relaxed in Srinagar, would help restore "at least a semblance of normalcy" in the valley, Mirwaiz Maulana Farooq said.

SEOUL (APRIL 30) - Thousands of South Korean riot police stormed the national broadcasting company here late Monday and broke up an illegal strike hours after union members had voted not to go back to work.

It was the second time in less than 72 hours that the South Korean Government has forcibly ended an illegal strike.

The police showed up shortly after 11:00 p.m. (1400 GMT), surrounding in a matter of minutes the some 300 strikers chanting anti-government slogans inside the Seoul headquarters of the Korean Broadcasting System (KBS).

They rounded up the strikers and put them onto buses in less than an hour. There was no violence as the strikers offered no resistance.

The national Yonhap news agency said 2,400 riot police were used in the operation.

The KBS workers went on strike on April 12, crippling programming at the national radio and television network, to try to force the resignation of a new KBS president whom they accuse of being too pro-government.

The strike was prompted when the new President Soh Ki-Won forced his way into his office by mobilizing hundreds of riot police to break up a barricade formed by employees at the entrance to the KBS building.

"Step down, Soh Ki-Won," the workers chanted as they were marched onto the buses by the riot police, their clenched fists raised defiantly.

At dawn Saturday more than 10,000 riot police at the southeastern city of Ulsan broke a union occupation of the country's largest shipyard, Hyundai Heavy Industries, leading to outbreaks of violence there by workers at other industries.

The government has blamed the Hyundai strike on the KBS workers, saying the shipyard workers had taken their inspiration from the broadcasters.

The action is sure to further inflame what was already expected to be a difficult May Day for the authorities. Radicals and workers have said they plan to hold demonstrations all over South Korea on Tuesday.

JERUSALEM, ISRAEL (APRIL 30) - A petition with half a million signatures calling for changes in Israel's institutions through electoral reform was handed in on Monday to President Chaim Herzog as the Jewish state celebrated the 42nd anniversary of its independence.

Signatories want the executive to be strengthened by the prime minister being directly elected and the current electoral system to be modified to one of proportional representation.

The mayor of Jerusalem Teddy Kollek gave his backing to the movement's organisers, who include reserve officers and those invalided out of the army, who went on hunger strike in recent weeks in support of their demands.

Mr. Herzog promised his support but emphasised that any change would have to be by legal and democratic means.

On Sunday, he spoke out against the political paralysis gripping Israel since the coalition government of Premier Yitzhak Shamir lost a parliamentary vote of confidence on March 15.

"A citizen who has the right to democratically chose his representatives can't stay impassive when political machinations ridicule democratic principles", he said.

Mr. Herzog first asked Labor party leader Shimon Peres to form a new cabinet before turning to Mr. Shamir last week when the attempt failed.

BONN, WEST GERMANY APRIL 30 - West German Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher discussed the preparation of the "two-plus-four" talks on German unity with Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Victor Karpov in Bonn on Monday.

The foreign ministry here said Mr. Karpov had come to Bonn to prepare for Mr. Genscher's meeting with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze in Bonn on Friday.

Mr. Karpov delivered a message to Mr. Genscher from Mr. Shevardnadze, the contents of which were not divulged.

Foreign ministers of the two Germanies plus the four World War II allies -- the Soviet Union, the United States, Britain and France -- are to meet in Bonn on Saturday for the first ministerial meeting in the "two-plus-four" talks.

Officials of the six nations met in East Berlin on Monday to prepare for the talks.

Mr. Genscher told Mr. Karpov that Bonn wanted a speedy conclusion to the Vienna negotiations on conventional forces in Europe, the ministry said in a statement.

BUCHAREST (APRIL 3O) - Romania's main opposition parties threatened to boycott upcoming elections Monday as a leader of thousands of anti-government demonstrators rallying here announced he was starting a hunger strike.

Meanwhile Doina Cornea, a leading dissident under the ousted Ceausescu regime, made a vibrant appeal for non-violence to the protesters camped for nine straight days in University Square.

"Let us live without hate," she said, quoting Mahatma Gandhi, "You must convince your adversaries, not hate them".

Opposition groups, in a document sent to the interim government, said they would boycott the country's first free elections in more than four decades unless authorities stopped "organized harassment" of their campaigns.

They said their rallies had been attacked, their delegates beaten and in some cases murdered. Campaign posters had been torn down and party newspapers failed to reach their destinations.

"If the government does not take action, we will be obliged not to participate in elections", the document said.

It also called on the government to delay the elections, scheduled for May 20.

It was signed by the three major pre-World War II parties -- the National Liberal Party, National Peasants' Party, and Social Democratic Party -- and the smaller Liberal Democrats and Liberal Socialists.

They accused the ruling National Salvation Front of monopolizing unlimited resources left over from the Ceausescu regime. They cited funds, technical equipment, and an allegedly unchanged administration, "including the machinery of repression".

The Peasants' Party earlier said unidentified assailants had attacked six of its candidates at a rally in the north. Its presidential candidate Ion Ratiu said he was attacked by a group claiming to be from the ruling Front.

U.S. observers also have denounced physical and psychological intimidation of opposition parties.

PARIS (APRIL 30) AFP - Security forces fired tear gas at some 50 convicts in Douai, northern France, who climbed on to the prison roof Monday for the second consecutive day, police said.

They waved a makeshift flag bearing a skull and crossbones from the roof, and demanded that a sports ground be built and the prison yard enlarged. Other prisoners occupied workshops.

They had started a fire and clambered up on to the roofs on Sunday after exercising in the prison yard, but returned to their cells in the evening after a talk with the prison governor.

In the Mediterranean city of Nice, another prison rebellion ended peacefully Monday when convicts agreed to return to their cells after presenting complaints about overcrowding and a list of demands for better conditions to the prison authorities.

Some 50 inmates of Loos-lez-Lille jail near Lille, northern France, also surrendered Sunday after spending the night on the roof in a brief but violent mutiny blamed by the authorities on overcrowding.

A 25-day prison uprising, also over overcrowding and conditions, ended last week at Britain's Strangeways jail in the northern city of Manchester.

WASHINGTON (APRIL 30) - The United States Monday deflected new overtures by Vietnamese officials seeking to normalize bilateral relations, insisting that settlement of the Cambodia crisis must precede improved ties.

Speaking on the 15th anniversary of the end of the Vietnam war, State Department spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler said: "We have no philosophical objection to normalization of relations with Vietnam.

"However the formal precondition for normalization remains an acceptable political settlement in Cambodia which includes verification of the complete withdrawal of Vietnamese forces."

She added that "as a practical reality the pace and scope of normalization" would depend on continued cooperation between Hanoi and Washington on locating the remains of prisoners of war and other U.S. soldiers missing since the Vietnam war "and other humanitarian issues."

Earlier Monday in Ho Chi Minh City, Communist Party chief Nguyen Van Linh said Vietnam wanted to establish diplomatic relations with the United States.

"We fought against the American army and American policies, but not against the American people," Mr. Linh said, adding, "I would like normalization of relations between Vietnam and the United States."

A trade embargo against Vietnam imposed by Washington at the end of the war remains in force, badly hurting the Vietnamese economy.

Mr. Linh expressed regret for "the policy of political isolation and the economic embargo" practised by the United States "even though we have withdrawn all our troops from Cambodia" -- which Hanoi invaded in late 1978 to oust the Chinese-backed Khmer Rouge.

Hanoi says it withdrew the last of its forces from Cambodia in September, but the U.S.-backed resistance coalition denies this and Washington has refused to acknowledge the pullout in the absence of a political settlement between the resistance and the Vietnamese-backed government in Phnom Penh.

WASHINGTON (APRIL 30) - Turkey is planning to strengthen primary and secondary education as part of the country's drive toward long-term economic development, the World bank annouced today in Washington.

Under a project to be supported by a 90.2 million dollar World Bank loan, the country will improve the quality of education, teacher-training programs and the management of the education sector.

To achieve long-termdevelopment, Turkey needs a very diversified work force, ranging from semi-skilled workers to professional experts. This project is the first step toward the goal of developing the manpower resources that are required for achieving Turkey's national development objectives.

The World Bank loan is for 17 years, including five year's grace, with a variable interest rate, currently 7.75 percent, linked to the cost of the Bank's borrowings. It also carries an annual commitment charge of 0.25 percent on the undisbursed balance.

LISBON (APRIL 30) - The rebel National Union for the Total Independence of Angola (UNITA) wants U.S. and Soviet observers to attend peace talks with the Angolan government, the group said in a statement received here Monday.

The U.S.-backed group said it hoped to sign a cease-fire agreement with the government in June after the talks in Portugal, but warned that it would step up its guerrilla war in the meantime "so that the solution to the conflict is negotiated seriously".

"UNITA considers it essential for U.S. and Soviet observers, and why not from Cuba and Zaire also, to attend the talks to give the peace process a more solid content," said the statement, signed by UNITA leader Jonas Savimbi.

UNITA has been fighting the Angolan government since the south-west African country gained independence from Portugal in 1975. Cuban troops had backed the Angolan government in the conflict until their pull-out, and Zaire leader Mobuto Sese Seko had undertaken mediation efforts.

PESHAWAR (APRIL 30) - At least seven mujahedeen were killed and several others injured in clashes Monday with Afghan Government troops in eastern Kunar province, bordering Pakistan, resistance sources said here.

Fighting erupted when regime forces attacked positions belonging to the fundamentalist Wahabi group, led by Jamil-ur-Rehman, in the region bordering Kunar and Nangarhar provinces, east of Jalalabad, they said.

The sources said the dead and wounded had been brought to this Pakistani city because heavy weapons were being used in the continuing fighting.

BAGHDAD, IRAQ (APRIL 30) - A senior Iraqi cabinet minister Monday said his government had rejected all cooperation with Syrian President Hafez al-Assad, whom he described as "suspect."

The remarks by Culture and Information Minister Latif Nassif Jassem were echoed in Al-Thawra, the newspaper of the ruling Iraqi Baath party.

The paper on Monday denounced Mr. Assad for "his crimes against the Syrian people and all Arab countries" and charged that he was prone to sweeping arbitary arrests of dissidents, whom he treated as "hostages."

But the two countries earlier this month did manage to exchange documents on an accord covering joint use of the Euphrates River, sources at the Syrian Irrigation Ministry disclosed Monday.

They said the exchange, which followed ratification of a 1989 accord in both Damascus and Baghdad, took place in mid-April in the presence of Arab League Secretary General Chedli Klibi.

By terms of the agreement Iraq will be allotted use of 58 percent of the discharge from the Euphrates and Syria 42 percent.

Despite an apparent agreement on water-sharing, Mr. Jassem declared that Iraq "has no confidence in Hafez al-Assad and considers him to be a suspect individual."

He told a press conference here that "Iraq rejects all cooperation with the Syrian regime."

Iraq and Syria, ruled by opposing wings of the Baath Party and long-standing rivals for stature in the Arab world, have had no relations since October 1980 after Damascus made clear its support for Iran in the Gulf war.

The Iraqi-Syrian feud threatens to mar the unity at an Arab summit, proposed by the Palestine Liberation Organization for next month.

The Qatar-based newspaper Al Arab, citing a Palestinian diplomatic source, reported Monday that the summit would take place May 15 in Baghdad.

But the gathering has not been endorsed by several key Arab League members, notably Egypt and Syria.

Al Arab said diplomatic efforts were now underway to convince Mr. Assad to attend a summit in the Iraqi capital.

DAMASCUS (MAY 1) - Frank Reed, held captive for 43 months by Shiite kidnappers in Lebanon, was aboard a plane bound for the U.S. hostage reception center in West Germany early Tuesday, hours after being released in Beirut.

Gaunt and weary, he boarded an American C-140 military hospital jet in Damascus for the flight to Wiesbaden and thorough debriefing and medical examinations prior to the final leg of the trip home to Boston.

Reed, 57, was released to Syrian authorities in West Beirut Monday evening and delivered to U.S. Ambassador Edward Djerejian in Damascus.

''I hope that all my fellow hostages will be freed very soon,'' he told a Syrian television interviewer just before being handed over to Djerejian by Syrian Foreign Minister Faruk al-Sharaa at the Damascus ministry.

Asked if he had any message for his wife, Fahima, and family in Medford, Massachusetts, he said in particular reference to his 9-year-old son Tareq: ''Daddy is well - he's a little skinny but he's be home very soon.''

Reed, 57, said he had not been ''politically harassed'' by his kidnappers - a group calling itself Islamic Dawn - and he presumed he was picked ''because I'm an American''.

He told reporters he had spent most of his 43 months in captivity blindfolded.

''I was blindfolded 24 hours a day except for three and a half hours,'' he said in slow, measured words. ''In fact, it seems strange now to be standing before you here without a blindfold.''

Starting about two and a half years ago, he added, his captors began offering him books and videotapes. But he said he refused them ''because I did not want to receive entertainment during my imprisonment''.

He said food and clothing had been ''adequate''.

Reed was taken by car from Lebanon to Syria for cursory medical examination and a news conference before the flight to Wiesbaden. The same procedure had been used eight days earlier in the release of Robert Polhill, who was released reportedly as a result of pressure by Iran and Syria on the fundamentalist Shiite kidnappers.

Reed was turned over to Syrian intelligence officers in Moslem West Beirut at 8.30 p.m., sources in Damascus and the Lebanese capital said.

Reed, founder and director of the Lebanese International School in Beirut, was seized at gunpoint in September 1986 at the seaside district where he lived.

The White House issued a statement in Washington expressing joy at the release, but adding that this was dampened by the continuing detention of six other U.S. hostages. The statement thanked the Syrian government for its efforts, and also mentioned that Iran had brought its influence to bear.

The thanks were repeated personally by President George Bush at the White House during a reception for Polhill which happened to occur minutes after Reed was handed over to the U.S. ambassador.

A state Department report on terrorist activities, meanwhile, continued to blame Syria and Iran for exporting terrorism. The report, publication of which was delayed several hours pending Reed's release, also cited Cuba, Libya, North Korea and South Yemen as sponsors of international terrorism.

Al-Sharaa implied Syria expected reciprocation from the United States in return for the release of Polhill and Reed. At the ceremony in Damascass, Sharaa expressed hope that ''this second initiative of good gesture be reciprocated during the process of freeing the remaining hostages''.

Reed's wife Fahima, interviewed at her home outside Boston, said the release had been totally unexpected. Saying it had been ''one of the happiest and hardest days of my life'', she boarded a plane for West Germany to meet her husband.

Reed's 91-year-old mother, Leota Reed Sprague, told reporters, ''I thought I wouldn't live to see him again.''

The release of Reed leaves six Americans in the hands of Lebanese captors. They are Terry Anderson, Thomas Sutherland, Joseph Cicippio, Edward Tracy, Alann Steen and Jesse Turner.

TOKYO (MAY 1) - Japan's Finance Ministry plans to scrap regulations requiring the government to own a certain portion of Nippon Telegraph and Telephone Corp. (NTT) shares, a Tokyo financial daily reported on Tuesday.

Ministry sources were quoted by the Nihon Keizai Shimbun as saying the move was designed to enable the company, which is one of the world's biggest, to flexibly raise funds in capital markets and to improve its financial soundness.

The government, which currently owns about two-thirds of NTT stocks, is keeping part of them in reserve as future repayment of government bonds.

Under existing law, the government is obliged to hold one-third or more of the issued shares of NTT.

The rule prevents the company from issuing straight and convertible bonds which would force the government to purchase more NTT shares than it desires to own.

The abolition of the mandatory ownership regulations will thus help the government cope flexibly with the selling of NTT shares when such needs arise, the sources said.

The ministry is also considering a revision of part of the NTT law that bans foreigners from acquiring NTT shares.

But because of another law banning foreigners from owning a combined total of one-third or more of NTT shares, the ministry believes it unlikely that a foreigner could influence the company even if the regulation is scrapped.

The ministry plans to discuss these changes with the Ministry of Posts and Telecommuniations after the current holiday-shortened week ends May 6, the sources said.

Ministry officials declined to comment on the report.

Jakarta (APRIL 30) - Indonesia will reduce cement exports this year and next to ensure an adequate supply for steadily increasing domestic demand, officials said Monday.

Cement exports would be cut from 4.1 million tons last year to around 3.25 million tons this year and 2.5 million tons in 1991, according to the director general of basic chemicals industry, Wardjiman.

Domestic cement consumption was projected to rise to 12.78 million tons this year and 14.06 million tons in 1991 from 11.41 million tons in 1989, he said.

Cement production was expected to grow to 16.37 million tons in 1990 and 16.71 million tons in 1991 compared to 15.64 million tons in 1989.

Wardjiman said four major cement plants in the country were in the process of expanding production capacity and were expected to be done in 1992-93, increasing national production capacity to 22.30 million tons per year from 17.41 million tons at present.

WELLINGTON (APRIL 30) - New Zealand's stock market closed Monday within 50 points of its post-crash low after world equity markets fell on Friday.

New Zealand's Barclays index slipped 29.32 points to close at 1673.40, after Wall Street closed off 31.53 points at 2645.05 Friday and the London's FTSE 100 index dropped 27 points to 2106.6.

Monday's close was only 47.63 points off the February 29, 1988 low of 1625.77, which was the worst since the world stock crash of October 1987.

Brokers said market sentiment was gloomy, with prices quoted down heavily even before any stock was traded. Stocks were lower across the board with Stock Exchange's top 10 gross and capital indices showing that market leaders lost heavily.

Only 7.1 million shares were traded.

MANILA (APRIL 30) - The Indonesian economy, weaned away from oil, should sustain the 6.5 percent growth of 1989 over the next two years by maintaining a favorable investment climate, the Asian Development Bank (ADB) said Monday.

"The reform process initiated in the mid-1980s has begun to bear fruit in terms of improved economic efficiency and competitiveness, attracting foreign investment and enabling rapid export growth," the ADB publication, Asian Development Outlook, said.

It cited Indonesia attaining reasonable growth through the past decade despite susceptibility to the so-called "Dutch disease" - heavy dependence on oil export earnings - through currency devaluations, structural reforms providing incentive for exporters, and prudent fiscal and monetary policies.

The report said the non-oil economy should grow by seven per cent over the next few years and the oil sector, which now accounts for less than 25 percent of total export income, by three percent.

The growth forecast assumes that agriculture will not be drastically disrupted by adverse weather and that manufacturing investment and output will remain generally buoyant, the report said.

Continued reform to improve competitiveness and lessen the regulatory framework in the manufacturing sector is "critical" to sustained growth, it said.

But the sector's ability to sustain rapid production and export growth rates "may be limited by capacity constraints, a narrow range of manufacture export lines and by somewhat slower growth in the world economy, it said.

The report said underemployment will continue to be a pressing problem and the inflation rate is expected to rise to just under eight per cent due to strong domestic demand and less restrictive monetary policies.

Indonesia should enjoy a six billion-dollar trade surplus during the period and the debt-service ratio should be reduced to 35 percent by 1991 from 44 per cent in 1988, it said.

HONG KONG (APRIL 30) - The Hang Seng Index fell 36.24 points to 2,950.09 Monday as punters judged Hong Kong's current political weather unfavourable.

The sharp fall came after the key index was beaten back below the psychological 3,000 point mark Friday following a 23-point loss.

Monday's turnover also dwindled to 818 million Hong Kong dollars (105 million U.S.), against Friday's 895 million dollars (115 million U.S.)

Share prices had dipped soon after a weak opening, with the Hang Seng logging an 18-point loss at noon before more selling pressure emerged.

Dealers said local and foreign investors alike were uneasy over Hong Kong's political climate, to which the Hang Seng is hyper-sensitive.

The latest political issue focussed on Beijing's continuing refusal to recognize full British passports which London plans to give to a selected few here before the British colony reverts to Chinese rule in 1997.

MOGADISHU (APRIL 30) - Floods in northern Somalia have destroyed some 5,500 hectares (13,600 acres) of crops, damaged a dam and left some 300 families homeless, it was officially announced here Monday.

A number of villages had been cut off for two weeks by flood waters, which had also threatened to cut the main road linking the Somali capital to the north of the country, the minstry of agriculture said in a statement.

Heavy rains in the neighbouring Ethiopian highlands had swelled the country's second largest river, the Shabelli, until it flooded the northern Somali district of Jowhar, some 90 kilometers (57 miles) north of Mogadishu, destroying crops and damaging the main dam in the town of Jowhar.

Some 300 families had been left homeless, and had been evacuated to the village of Garaashka near Jowhar.

BOGOTA (APRIL 30) EFE - A judge kidnapped by leftist rebels has been murdered and an opposition party town councillor shot by unidentified gunmen in the latest incidents of violence reported across strife-torn Colombia.

Kidnapped Judge Luis Eduardo Galvez was shot dead Sunday by Colombian Revolutionary Armed Forces (FARC) rebels in Guaviare, 400 km south of Bogota, according to military officials.

Meanwhile in Chigorodo, 450 km northwest of the capital, town councillor Juan Bautista Murillo was murdered by unidentified gunmen inside a restaurant.

Bautista was a member of the opposition Conservative Party.

The military officials also said two soldiers were killed Sunday during a clash with FARC rebels in Las Juntas, 420 km southwest of Bogota, while an undisclosed number of guerrillas also died in the fighting.

FARC is one of Colombia's five active rebel groups. The leader of the M-19 guerrilla group, which gave up arms some six weeks ago and turned into a political party, was gunned down Thursday on a flight to the northern city of Barranquilla.

Investigations are continuing into who ordered the assassination of Carlos Pizarro, M-19's presidential candidate in May elections.

Pizarro was the third presidential hopeful to be gunned down over the last nine months. In August last year, ruling Liberal Party presidential hopeful Luis Carlos Galan was shot by gunmen allegedly paid by the country's drug kingpins.

Following Galan's death the government ordered a major crackdown on Colombia's narcotics trade, sparking a violent retaliation from the traffickers which has left several hundred people dead.

The candidate for the leftist Patriotic Union, Bernardo Jaramillo, was murdered in March at Bogota airport by a 15-year-old gunmen. It remains unclear whether his and Pizarro's murders were ordered by cocaine traffickers or right-wing extremists.

Also over the weekend, some 200 peasants from villages located close to Colombia's cocaine capital of Medellin, 480 km northwest of Bogota, marched Sunday in protest at attacks against them carried out by the Armed Forces searching for leftist rebels.

According to march organizers, six peasants were killed several days ago by soldiers who accused them of belonging to guerrilla groups.

MEXICO CITY (APRIL 30) EFE - A rear admiral in the Mexican Navy has been arrested for his alleged involvement in drug trafficking, the Notimex news agency reported.

Pedro Moreno Santillan, navy chief in the northeastern state of Tamaulipas and six men under his command were flown to the capital over the weekend to be questioned by anti-narcotics agents, Notimex said Monday.

The men were arrested following the discovery of a cocaine haul on board an aircraft which crashed last week off the coast of Tamaulipas, on Mexico's border with the United States, according to reports on local radio.

Mexico has long been regarded as a gateway for cocaine, heroin and marijuana being smuggled from Latin America into the United States.

RIO DE JANEIRO (APRIL 30) EFE - Daredevil President Fernando Collor de Mello has promised to kiss goodbye to one of his most dangerous hobbies after his mother called on Brazilians to write to her son begging him to put an end to his sporting adventures.

"I'm asking people to write to him, in letters and telegrams, to ask him to stop these games," the president's mother, Leda Collor, pleaded last week.

"The President of the Republic, like a good son, will listen to his mother and he will not ride around on a motorbike anymore," read a statement released by the presidential palace after hundreds of letters flooded in asking Collor de Mello to stop his sporting demonstrations.

Since taking office March 15, the 40-year-old president has demonstrated his skills by speeding across Lake Parana on an aqua bike, flying through the skies in a micro-light plane and racing around on a 1,000 c.c. motorbike at 130 km an hour.

"Listen to your mother's advice, millions and millions of Brazilians are counting on you," wrote one Rio de Janeiro woman. "Don't jump out of a plane with a parachute on," asked a 56-year-old woman from Belo Horizonte.

"For the love of God, the country needs to be lead out of this crisis and only Your Excellency can do this," read another telegram sent to Collor de Mello after his mother's plea.

Dubbed "Indiana Jones" by local reporters who traipse after him on his daredevil excursions, Collor de Mello made front page news last weekend after breaking the sound barrier in a Mirage supersonic jet sitting in the co-pilot's seat.

But the news that the youthful president was now planning to go underwater in a Navy submarine was apparently just too much for his mother and thousands of other Brazilians.

"Collor's style worries the country," ran the front-page headline this weekend in the daily "Jornal do Brasil", which interviewed presidential spokesman and close adviser Claudio Humberto Rosa e Silva on the matter.

"What is interpreted as a publicity stunt is in fact a decision of ours to let people, public opinion, know exactly who citizen Fernando Collor de Mello is. He practices sports because he's a sportsman," argued the presidential spokesman.

"We have a modern president who takes decisions very swiftly and who is absolutely conscious of his role. He's an example for all Brazilians," said Rosa e Silva, who described Collor de Mello's predecessor, Jose Sarney, as "ugly, short, old and cowardly."

While Collor de Mello's family and supporters continue to worry about his safety, Brazilian opposition parties have been voicing their concern over the political consequences of the president's headstrong character.

The Istoe-Senhor magazine warned last week that while Collor de Mello might be an +energetic gentleman capable of restoring presidential authority+ or a "charimsatic tropical leader", he must face up to a country plunged into a grave economic crisis.

SANTO DOMINGO (APRIL 30) EFE - A man was shot dead and four others were wounded in pre-election violence between followers of the ruling Social Christian Reformist Party (PRSC) and the social democratic Dominican Revolutionary Party (PRD), police said Monday.

The killing brought to four the number of people who have died in the electoral campaign for the May 16 general elections. The three other victims were also with the PRSC.

The dead man was identified as ex-police major Tulio Terrero, 64. Two of his sons, also members of the PRSC, were wounded in the clash, along with two PRD members.

According to police accounts, the shootings occurred Sunday when a PRD caravan passed through the a district of the capital, where PRSC sympathizers came out waving party flags.

A fight broke out and shots were fired. Terrero attempted to defend his sons, but was shot several times and severely beaten. He died undergoing surgery.

MADRID (APRIL 30) EFE - Leftist dissidents from Spain's ruling Socialist party (PSOE) Monday registered as a separate party to be known as Socialist Democracy, the first time a new party has been formed from a PSOE splinter.

Socialist Democracy leader Ricardo Garcia Damborenea said the new party would "espouse the ideas that the PSOE has ceased to stand for".

Socialist Democracy, which as a faction within the PSOE had criticized the ruling party's austere wage and welfare policies, announced its withdrawal from the PSOE Saturday.

Prime Minister Felipe Gonzalez' Socialists, who have governed since 1982, suffered a significant setback in October's general elections when they lost some 800,000 votes. Many of those went to the communist-backed United Left coalition which increased its number of seats from ten to 17.

Damborenea said the new party would not act in concert with the United Left. He resigned from the ruling party Friday after the PSOE leadership suspended his membership for two years for organizing the faction.

Socialist Democracy held a convention last year, attended by some 1,000 people. The group says it has some 3,000 members. The group filed party statutes with the Interior Ministry, which has 20 days to inscribe it as a party or reject the registration as unconstitutional.

BRASILIA (APRIL 30) EFE - Police are this week to begin destroying 110 landing strips in Indian lands of northwestern Brazil, to keep out gold prospectors whose presence is threatening an endangered tribe, officials said Monday.

The airstrips are to be torn up using dynamite and backhoes at a total cost of some dlrs 7 million, as part of the government's plans to protect the Yanomami Indians.

In January, the government of then-president Jose Sarney announced the expulsion of gold miners from Yanomami lands and began hauling the prospectors out aboard Air Force planes.

President Fernando Collor de Mello, who took office last month, decided to destroy the airstrips to keep the miners out and curb trafficking in the region by suspected Colombian cocaine smugglers.

Some 40,000 miners had encroached on Indian hunting areas, polluted the rivers with mercury used in gold refining, and brought diseases to which the Indians had no natural resistance.

The estimated 15,000 Yanomami, the last major Stone Age tribe of the Amazon, live in the Brazilian states of Roraima and Amazonas and in neighboring Venezuela.

Since 1987, when the miners began moving to Yanomami territory, some 15 percent of the tribe has died from the new diseases and malnutrition resulting from loss of fish and game.

The dozen largest landing strips are to be destroyed by May 18, the officials said.

At one of them, in the district of Baiano Formiga, police recently seized cocaine aboard a plane they said belonged to Colombian drug traffickers.

BOGOTA (APRIL 30) EFE - A negotiation team headed by Venezuelan President Carlos Andres Perez, former U.S. president Jimmy Carter and the vatican envoy to Bogota is ready to mediate in peace talks between Colombia's five leftist rebel groups and the government of President Virgilio Barco, a spokesman for the rebels said Monday.

In an interview with the Caracol radio network, a spokesman for the Simon Bolivar Guerrilla Coordinating Group (CMGSB) said the rebels had spoken to Perez who was willingly to sponsor an internationally-monitored peace initiative.

Perez, in the United States meeting with international bankers, confirmed in an interview with Caracol in New York that he was ready to mediate in peace talks between the five leftist rebel groups that make up CMGSB and the Barco government as head of a team that would include Carter and the Vatican emissary to Colombia, Paolo Romeo.

The peace initiative follows the assassination of former M-19 rebel leader and presidential candidate Carlos Pizarro Thursday, one month after his guerrilla group ended their armed struggle and turned to politics in response to a peace call from the Barco government.

TEGUCIGALPA (APRIL 30) EFE - Honduran authorities Monday said they would investigate complaints from residents that U.S. companies were using parts of the country to dump radioactive waste.

The director of the Center for the Study and Control of Pollutants, Luis Munguia, said he "would not let Honduras be turned into a nuclear dump", and added that technicians would test a 300-ton shipment of disposable cardboard that arrived in March from the United States.

Unofficial sources said the shipment, dumped at the Puerto Cortes wharf in northern Honduras, was "radioactive material".

Dockworkers and seamen in Puerto Cortes said U.S. ships have been seen dumping containers of unknown cargo into the waters off the eastern Honduran coast.

"The official investigation will clear up these claims," Munguia promised.

According to the accusations, the abandoned shipment of cardboard came from Miami and was left by the vessel "Sonia", which is owned by the Morgan Price Company.

The Honduran Consul in Miami, Rene Sagastume, said that the Sonia had permission to arrive in Honduras, but added that he did not know if the Morgan Price Company really existed.

"It could be a ficticious company," he said, and explained that U.S. companies traditionally do not worry about dumping waste off the Honduran coast.

"They are just given a fine by the Treasury Ministry," Sagastume said.

In the last three years several U.S. companies have offered to initiate development projects in isolated areas of the country in exchange for permission to dump their waste. But the Honduran government has refused their offers.

Managua MAY 1 (EFE) - Nicaragua's previous Sandinista administration set up a potential +inflation explosion+ before leaving power, Central Bank President Francisco Mayorga charged Monday.

Mayorga told a press conference that the new government of President Violeta Chamorro had inherited a deliberately bloated money supply that would inflame inflation he predicted would reach 35 percent for April.

In the few days since Chamorro took office last Wednesday, his officials have been +discovering curious things+ in the Bank's books, Mayorga said.

However, he said he would refrain from revealing them in the interests of promoting national reconciliation.

NEW DELHI (APRIL 30) XINHUA - A WORLDWIDE ANTI-SMOKING CAMPAIGN IS AFFECTING INDIAN TOBACCO EXPORTS.

INDIA IS NOW THE FOURTH LARGEST PRODUCER OF UNMANUFACTURED TOBACCO IN THE WORLD. IN TOBACCO EXPORTS, INDIA RANKS SIXTH IN THE WORLD MARKET.

INDIA'S TOBACCO EXPORTS HAVE RISEN TO AN ESTIMATED 1,600 MILLION RUPEES (94.1 MILLION U.S. DOLLARS) DURING 1989-90 FROM 1,160 MILLION RUPEES (68.2 MILLION U.S. DOLLARS) IN THE PREVIOUS YEAR, LOCAL PRESS REPORTED TODAY.

THE MAJOR MARKETS FOR INDIAN TOBACCO HAVE BEEN THE U.S.S.R., BRITAIN, NORTH AFRICA AND THE MIDDLE EAST. THE U.S.S.R. AND BRITAIN HAPPEN TO BE AMONG THE COUNTRIES THAT HAVE CONSIDERABLY REDUCED THEIR TOBACCO IMPORTS RECENTLY WITH THE ANTI-SMOKING MOVEMENT GAINING ASCENDANCY, THE REPORTS SAID.

HEAVY INVENTORIES AND INCREASED LOCAL PRODUCTION BY SEVERAL COUNTRIES WITH A HIGH RATE OF TOBACCO CONSUMPTION HAVE ALSO LED TO THE SLOWING DOWN OF DEMAND.

THE INDIAN COMMERCE MINISTRY IS REPORTED TO BE CONVINCED THAT THERE IS LITTLE LIKELIHOOD OF ANY APPRECIABLE INCREASE IN FUTURE TOBACCO CONSUMPTION AND THE DEMAND GRAPH IS BOUND TO TAKE A DIP IN MORE AND MORE COUNTRIES IN THE YEARS TO COME. THE MINISTRY FEELS THAT THE ONLY WAY OUT TO MAINTAIN INDIAN TOBACCO EXPORTS IS BY EXPLORING NEW MARKETS, THE REPORTS SAID.

NEW DELHI (APRIL 30) XINHUA - THE INDIAN COMMERCE MINISTRY IS IN FAVOR OF PRUDENT MACRO-MANAGEMENT OF THE ECONOMY TO MAINTAIN A VIABLE CURRENT ACCOUNT DEFICIT, GENERATE ADEQUATE EXPORT SURPLUSES AND AIM FOR AN EXPORTS GROWTH OF 20 PERCENT IN U.S. DOLLARS TERMS DURING THE CURRENT FISCAL YEAR (STARTING FROM APRIL 1).

INDIA'S EXPORTS IN 1989-90 WOULD AGGREGATE TO 16.985 BILLION U.S. DOLLARS, AN INCREASE OF 2.98 BILLION U.S. DOLLARS OVER THE PREVIOUS YEAR.

ACCORDING TO LOCAL PRESS TODAY, THE RECOMMENDED MACRO-MANAGEMENT OF THE ECONOMY WILL INCLUDE MODIFYING THE EXCHANGE RATE POLICY TO REDUCE THE PROFITABILITY GAP BETWEEN EXPORT AND DOMESTIC SALES.

OTHER STEPS RECOMMENDED IN THIS REGARD ARE TO REDUCE FISCAL DEFICITS AND TO CORRECT THE IMBALANCE BETWEEN AGGREGATE SAVINGS AND INVESTMENT.

A STATUS PAPER PREPARED BY THE COMMERCE MINISTRY ON INDIA'S EXPORT STRATEGY FOR 1990-91 SAID, THE 20 PERCENT DOLLARS GROWTH WOULD CORRESPOND TO ABOUT 12-13 PERCENT GROWTH IN VOLUME TERMS.

THE COMMERCE MINISTRY IS CONFIDENT THAT THE SEVENTH FIVE-YEAR PLAN (1985-90) EXPORTS GROWTH RATE OF 16 PERCENT PER ANNUM IN DOLLAR TERMS COULD BE SUSTAINED EVEN DURING THE EIGHTH FIVE-YEAR PLAN (1990-95) PERIOD.

HOUSTON (APRIL 30) PR NEWSWIRE - Baroid Corporation (NYSE: BRC) today announced that TIMET, a wholly owned subsidiary, signed a $70 million debenture purchase agreement with a Japanese Consortium, Union Titanium Sponge Corporation (UTSC) to finance the construction of a new 22-million-pound capacity titanium sponge plant. The new plant will be constructed in Henderson, Nev., the site of TIMET's sponge and ingot manufacturing activities and will incorporate the most advanced commercially proven titanium manufacturing technology available.

UTSC will provide state-of-the-art vacuum distillation technology which was perfected in Japan by Toho Titanium Ltd. and will participate in construction of the new plant. Once the plant is operational, UTSC will have the option of converting its debentures into 25 percent of the common stock of TIMET.

Kirby Adams, president and CEO of Titanium Metals Corporation of America, remarked "This agreement is not only good for TIMET and UTSC, but will make available to the U.S. aerospace industry and the Department of Defense Stockpile Program domestically produced titanium sponge of a purity presently available only through imports. This project will increase U.S. titanium production capacity, make the United States less reliant on imports and improve the efficiency of our operations and the quality or our product. Thus, it is beneficial to the communities where we operate, our stockholders and employees, and the industries which we serve."

Also today, TIMET announced it has signed a definitive agreement to purchase an equity interest in TISTO GmbH, a metals distributor specializing in titanium and zirconium, located in Dusseldorf, West Germany. This distribution business will complement TIMET's 100 percent owned subsidiaries in the United Kingdom and France and is a further step in TIMET's strategy to increase its global presence in the titanium industry.

TIMET is the free world's largest integrated producer of titanium products. In addition to its titanium interests, Baroid Corporation is a worldwide supplier of petroleum services and equipment.

VANCOUVER, WA (APRIL 30) PR NEWSWIRE - Red Lion Inns Limited Partnership (AMEX: RED) today announced results for its first quarter ended March 31.

For the quarter, the partnership generated cash flow available for distribution (after refurbishing reserves) of $0.7 million, or 15 cents per unit, compared to $1.1 million, or 26 cents per unit, for the same quarter last year. Before refurbishing reserves, cash flow available for distribution was 30 cents per unit, compared to 38 cents for the same period last year.

For financial reporting purposes, the partnership's net loss for the quarter was $0.7 million, or 17 cents per unit, on revenues of $21.4 million. For the same period last year, the net loss was $0.2 million, or 5 cents per unit, on revenues of $21.1 million.

The hospitality business is seasonal. The winter months are typically the slowest business period. The operating results reflect this seasonality and overcapacity in certain markets in which the partnership's hotels operate.

As previously announced, the partnership will make a distribution of $0.5250 per unit on May 15 to unitholders of record on April 30.

Red Lion Inns Limited Partnership is the owner of 10 Red Lion hotels acquired on April 14, 1987. The 10 hotels are managed by Red Lion as part of its chain of 57 hotels in the western United States.

PURCHASE, NY (APRIL 30) PR NEWSWIRE - PepsiCo, Inc.'s (NYSE: PEP) first quarter sales rose a very strong 24 percent to $3.7 billion, and net income advanced 10 percent to $181.9 million. Earnings per share rose to 68 cents from 62 cents, despite approximately 12 cents of dilution from acquisitions made in 1989.

Operating earnings increased a robust 26 percent for the quarter (22 percent excluding acquisitions). This outstanding operating performance was fueled by strong volume growth in every business as well as by significant margin improvements in domestic soft drinks and worldwide restaurants.

Soft drink sales rose 25 percent to $1.3 billion, and operating profits advanced 27 percent to $151.5 million. Excluding recent acquisitions, sales increased 8 percent and operating profits jumped 24 percent.

These results reflect exceptional growth in the United States and an expected decline in international soft drink profits. Domestic profits, primarily driven by strong volume growth, increased 32 percent on an 8 percent sales gain, excluding recent acquisitions. International profits were down against a very strong first quarter in 1989. These results reflect accelerated concentrate shipments in the first quarter of 1989 and seasonal losses in certain company owned bottling units added since last year.

U.S. bottler case sales increased a very strong 6 percent for the quarter. This reflects double digit growth in Diet Pepsi and in the Mountain Dew brands.

International bottler case sales grew over 3 percent. This reflects strong growth in Europe, Asia and Mexico somewhat offset by declines in Argentina and Venezuela due to local economic problems.

Snack foods operating profits rose 20 percent to $186.4 million and sales advanced 27 percent to $1.1 billion. Excluding the July 1989 acquisition of Smiths and Walkers, sales increased 14 percent and operating profits grew 14 percent.

The profit growth was driven by a more than 50 percent increase in international results (excluding Smiths and Walkers), due primarily to strong volume growth. Slower U.S. profit growth was the result of higher advertising and marketing expenses, costs related to new product introductions and a mix shift toward lower margin products. In 1989, potato shortages resulted in an unusually high proportion of corn product sales, which have higher profit margins.

SCOTTSDALE, AZ (APRIL 30) PR NEWSWIRE - Giant Industries (NYSE: GI) reported today 1990 first quarter earnings of $655,000 or $.05 per share. This compares to $2,275,000 in net income for the first quarter of 1989 or $.32 per share. Revenues for the first quarter totaled $91,561,000 compared to $63,410,000 for the first quarter of 1989.

During December 1989, Hixon Development Co. merged into the company. The merger was accounted for as a purchase. Had the merger occurred on Jan. 1 1989, revenues, earnings and earnings per share for the first quarter of 1989 would have been $64,946,000, $2,753,000 and $.29, respectively.

Commenting on first quarter earnings, James E. Acridge, president and CEO said, "First quarter earnings were negatively impacted by unusually high crude oil costs in relation to refined product prices. The refinery margin spread between crude oil costs and refined product prices in the first quarter of 1989 were much more favorable and resulted in record first quarter earnings. Revenues increased 44 percent between the two quarters due to a significant increase trading volumes, increased refined product prices and the addition of exploration and production net revenue."

The company also announced today the signing of a seven-year supply contract to receive natural gas and isobutane. The contract, which became effective Feb. 1, 1990, will be used to satisfy the company's isomerization and alkylation unit requirements at its Ciniza Refinery. Both feedstocks will be transported to the refinery via the company's supply-gathering pipeline which is the most cost efficient way to transport refinery feedstock. While exact pricing and volume levels were not disclosed, a company spokesman did describe the transaction as a "significant contract relating to the company's strategy of securing long-term supplies of refinery raw materials."

FORT LEE, NJ (APRIL 30) PR NEWSWIRE - A. L. Laboratories Inc. (NYSE: BMD) today reported that for its first quarter ended March 31, 1990, net income increased 24.6% to $3,492,000 compared with $2,803,000 in the same period of 1989. Fully diluted per share earnings increased 20% to $0.30 versus $0.25 in the same quarter 1989. For the period, total revenue was $69,308,000 compared with $70,053,000 in 1989. The variation of less than 1% resulted primarily from the continuing planned de-emphasis on lower margin products.

Commenting on the results, I. Roy Cohen, President and Chief Executive Officer said, "Our 1990 first quarter results reflect continuing earnings progress; noteworthy since these results were accomplished even as we continue to incur additional expenses in our accelerated quality efforts."

The Company's profitable quarter further strengthened its financial condition. At March 31, 1990, shareholders' equity was $97.1 million, or $8.68 per share.

Cohen concluded, "As we have emphasized in the past several years, our business has a seasonal factor resulting in the second quarter of our year tending to be a weaker period. However, as we look to the full year 1990 we continue to be confident that our goal of average annual earnings growth of 20% is reasonable."

WILMINGTON, DE (APRIL 30) PR NEWSWIRE - Beneficial Corporation (NYSE: BNL) today reported first quarter earnings of $31.8 million, up 15 percent from earnings of $27.7 million in the first quarter of 1989. Reflecting a reduced preferred dividend requirement this year, earnings per share increased 21 percent to $1.37 from $1.13 in the 1989 period. This represents Beneficial's 13th consecutive quarter of increased core operating earnings per share on a year-to-year basis, and is a record quarterly total.

Total receivables outstanding at March 31 were $6,982 million, up $80 million from year-end 1989 during the normally seasonally slack first quarter, compared to growth of $27 million in the same period of last year. Removing the distortive impact of foreign exchange translation in both periods, receivables increased $83 million during the 1990 quarter, compared to $57 million in the first quarter of 1989.

Credit quality continues strong by any historical measure despite a moderate increase in the net chargeoff percentage for the quarter. Net chargeoffs rose to $24.0 million, up from $18.8 million in the first quarter of 1989. However, as a percentage of average receivables, net chargeoffs increased just modestly to 0.33 percent of the portfolio from 0.27 percent in the 1989 period. Also, the reserve for credit losses at March 31 was 3.03 percent of receivables, unchanged from the level at year-end 1989, and represented an extremely conservative ratio by industry standards.

As mentioned in Beneficial's 1989 annual report to shareholders, the company has switched this year to the contractual method of calculating loan delinquency from the previously utilized recency method. In addition, the company adheres to a rigorous cure policy, making the contractual percentages particularly conservative. On this contractual basis, all loan and sales finance balances more than two months delinquent improved to 3.83 percent at March 31 from 4.24 percent at March 31, 1989.

Beneficial Corporation provides consumer financial services through a network of over 1,000 offices located across the United States, and in Canada, the United Kingdom and West Germany.

NEW YORK (APRIL 30) PR NEWSWIRE - Vernitron Corporation announced that it is filing today definitive proxy materials with the Securities and Exchange Commission in connection with Kollmorgen Corporation's (NYSE: KOL) May 24, 1990 annual meeting of shareholders.

Vernitron's proxy statement describes in detail its case for seeking to replace the Kollmorgen board with new directors committed to a prompt sale of the company in order to maximize values for Kollmorgen shareholders. Vernitron's nominees, if elected, will hire an independent investment banking firm to solicit offers to acquire Kollmorgen and will form a special committee of independent directors to evaluate acquisition proposals and conduct a fair auction.

In addition, if its proxy campaign is successful, Vernitron intends to submit to the special committee a proposal to acquire Kollmorgen pursuant to which all outstanding Kollmorgen shares would be converted into the right to receive, at the election of the holder and subject to proration, either $15 per share in cash, or a unit consisting of (i) one share of common stock of a newly formed corporation which would own Vernitron and Kollmorgen and (ii) a security representing the right of the holder to receive a pro-rata amount of the net proceeds from the sale of Kollmorgen's Electro-Optical (E-O) Division.

If shareholders owning more than 50 percent of the outstanding Kollmorgen shares elect the cash option or unit option, the cash or units, as the case may be, will be allocated on a pro-rata basis. The E-O security will entitle Kollmorgen shareholders to receive 100 percent of the first $40 million and 75 percent of any additional amount of net proceeds from the sale of the E-O Division.

This cash and stock election merger proposal would provide Kollmorgen shareholders with the opportunity to receive substantial and immediate cash payments and to participate in the future of Vernitron's and Kollmorgen's combined motors and controls businesses. The new common shares issuable to Kollmorgen shareholders would constitute 50 percent of the outstanding common equity of the combined companies.

Vernitron, which owns 593,700 Kollmorgen shares of 5.54 percent of the outstanding commons shares, has been seeking to acquire Kollmorgen for more than a year. As previously announced, in September 1989, Vernitron determined not to proceed with its $25 per share merger with Kollmorgen because of adverse changes in Kollmorgen's financial performance which were not anticipated at the time the merger agreement was executed in late April 1989.

In April 1989, prior to signing the merger agreement, Kollmorgen management delivered to Vernitron full-year 1989 net income projections of $29.8 million. Subsequently, Kollmorgen has reported actual losses of $31.8 million for 1989, eliminating all but $430,000 of Kollmorgen's retained earnings. Vernitron was not permitted to submit a new proposal to acquire Kollmorgen until today, under the terms of a standstill agreement contained in the 1989 merger agreement.

Both Vernitron and Kollmorgen have significant, complementary operations in the motors and controls business. In addition, Kollmorgen has operations in electro-optical instruments and Vernitron is engaged in the manufacture and sale of passive components and the distribution of bearings for a variety of precision instruments.

BOULDER, CO (APRIL 30) PR NEWSWIRE - NBI, Inc. (NYSE: NBI) today reported a net loss from continuing operations for the third fiscal quarter ended March 31, 1990 of $3.6 million, or a loss of $.42 per common share. This compares to a net loss from continuing operations of $2.9 million, or a loss of $.36 per common share for the same period of the previous year. For the nine months of this fiscal year, the company had a net loss from continuing operations of $36.4 million, or a loss of $4.24 per common share. Comparable figures for the nine months of the previous fiscal year showed a net loss from continuing operations of $15.6 million, or a loss of $1.88 per common share. Included in the net loss from continuing operations for the third fiscal quarter ended March 31, 1990, is $1.7 million of additional income tax expense resulting from a change in the estimated tax provisions for periods prior to June 30, 1988.

Stephen G. Jerritts, president and CEO of NBI, stated, "Our financial results and reduction in losses reflect our first completed quarter since the downsizing and strategic repositioning of NBI. Our transition to being a provider of service and support to our installed customer base, and the related stabilization of the associated revenues, allowed us to show progress in improving our financial performance.

"Additionally," Jerritts noted, "we have announced our entry into the Novell service and support business, while continuing our efforts of establishing the company in the software marketplace with our Legend advanced word processing product. We also have had continued discussions with our creditors for the purpose of implementing a financial restructuring."

NBI, Inc., designs and markets advanced word processing software packages. NBI has been a leader in the word processing industry for more than a decade and also provides customer service and support to a wide base of system users in domestic and international locations.

BLUE BELL, PA (APRIL 30) PR NEWSWIRE - The Franklin Institute Science Museum has received support from Unisys Corp. (NYSE: UIS) to design and implement the museum's new, state-of-the-art interactive computerized information system.

It is the first museum-wide visitor-friendly computer system ever created. The full system will be operational in the Futures Center, a 90,000 square-foot addition to the Franklin Institute containing eight permanent exhibits on future science and technology, when it opens in May 1990, and in the Science Center in December 1990.

This unified computer information system is called the Unisystem. Each museum visitor will receive a Unisystem barcoded card that can be personalized. Information about visitor' interests, education or age will help Unisystem answer questions at an appropriate level. Computer stations in 20 exhibit areas in the Science Center and the Futures Center will allow an interested user to explore a scientific principle or hands-on device in depth. For example, a visitor whose imagination is piqued by a model space station in Future Space can be directed to learn more about gravity in mechanics and discover the enormous energy of our sun at a demonstration of the solar collector in the observatory. Unisystem will help the Franklin Institute provide more fully integrated science education experience by emphasizing the unifying themes and educational goals of the exhibition goals of the exhibition areas.

COLUMBUS, GA (APRIL 30) PR NEWSWIRE - American Family Corp. (NYSE: AFL) today reported first quarter results.

Operating earnings, excluding realized investment gains, were $26.1 million, down 1.3 percent from a year ago. Operating earnings per share declined 3.0 percent to $.32 compared to $.33. The decline in operating earnings was primarily attributable to the 13.1 percent weakening of the average yen to the dollar in the first three months of this year.

Total revenues were $622.6 million, a 2.7 percent increase over last year. Net earnings for the quarter were $26.1 million compared to $28.7 million a decrease of 9.0 percent. Net earnings per share were $.32 per share vs. $.35 per share a year ago.

The board of directors also declared a second quarter cash dividend of $.08 per share to be paid on June 1, 1990 to stockholders of record on May 18, 1990. This is the company's 67th consecutive quarterly cash dividend.

Chairman and Chief Executive Officer John B. Amos noted: "We are pleased with the fundamental strength of the company in the first quarter. For the remainder of the year, we anticipate that our reported results will be impacted by the weak yen. However, despite the weakness in the yen, we expect that operating earnings per share for 1990 will greatly exceed those of 1989 and should also surpass the record year of 1988."

DETROIT (APRIL 30) PR NEWSWIRE - Lambrecht Company announced the merger of its operations with DuPont Mortgage of Avon, Conn., combining its two regional forces to form a unified real estate power with offices throughout the northern Mid-Atlantic area.

Lambrecht Company and DuPont Mortgage will maintain a sizable mortgage financing and real estate services operation based in downtown Detroit, where Lambrecht Company has operated since 1926. Top management and support staff will be centralized in this office, keeping the lines of communication within the company open and effective.

The continuity and stability that has been synonymous with the Lambrecht name is enhanced by this merger. Current Lambrecht Company directors remain on the board, including Robert P. Lambrecht, Edward F. Lambrecht Jr., and Saffee and will be joined by key DuPont executives.

The merger will bring together DuPont Mortgages' residential mortgage offices in Cleveland; Avon, Danbury and New London, Conn.; and New York City with Lambrecht Company's eight residential mortgage offices. Five of these are in Michigan -- Rochester Hills, Taylor, Livonia, Grand Rapids, and Kalamazoo. There are two in Ohio -- Cincinnati and Columbus, and one in Indianapolis. The Detroit headquarters will maintain at a high volume, streamlined support operation for loans originated at all branches.

The combined number of branch offices will also offer expertise in real estate services to a broader region. These services include property management, property tax services, commercial brokerage, commercial mortgage financing, and appraisal and consulting.

Founded in 1926 by Richard G. Lambrecht and his son Edward, Lambrecht Company employs 150 persons; approximately 80 are based in downtown Detroit in the Penobscot Building.

SANDUSKY, OH (APRIL 30) PR NEWSWIRE - Cedar Fair, L.P. (NYSE: FUN), which owns and operates two amusement/theme parks, today announced results for the first quarter of 1990.

The partnership's parks are open to the public from early May to late September. Therefore, net revenues for the first quarter are historically minimal and are generated primarily from restaurant operations and marina rentals. Net revenues for the quarter were $302,000 compared with $411,000 in 1989.

Operating results for the first quarter of both 1990 and 1989 include normal off-season operating, maintenance and administrative expenses for both parks. Net loss for the quarter remained essentially unchanged at $7.5 million, or $.35 per unit.

Richard L. Kinzel, president and chief executive officer of Cedar Fair Management Company, the managing general partner of Cedar Fair, L.P., explained that virtually all of Cedar Fair's gross income is realized during the 130-day operating season, with the major portion historically concentrated in the peak vacation months of July and August.

"With Cedar Point and Valleyfair both scheduled to open May 5, and with the addition of the new Disaster Transport, an exciting space adventure ride at Cedar Point, and the Minnesota River Valley Railroad, a family-oriented train ride at Valleyfair, we are excited by the prospect of providing our park guests with another season of quality family entertainment," Kinzel concluded.

Cedar Point is located on Lake Erie between Cleveland and Toledo, and Valleyfair is located near Minneapolis/St. Paul.

BALTIMORE (APRIL 30) PR NEWSWIRE - Baltimore Bancorp (NYSE: BBB) today announced that it had received an unsolicited cash offer from First Maryland Bancorp (NASDAQ: FMDB) to acquire Baltimore Bancorp at a price of $17 per share.

The offer price represents approximately 90 percent of Baltimore Bancorp's book value at March 31, 1990. The offer contains a number of conditions, including due diligence.

Since March 1989, First Maryland has been wholly owned by Allied Irish Banks, a large foreign bank.

Baltimore Bancorp stated that it would give appropriate consideration to the offer in due course.

Following is the text of a letter from Harry L. Robinson, chairman and chief executive officer of The Bank of Baltimore to Jeremiah E. Casey, chairman of First Maryland Bancorp, dated today:

I am in receipt of your letter of April 27, 1990. The board of directors of Baltimore Bancorp, together with its advisors, intends to afford appropriate consideration to your offer and will respond on the merits in due course.

I cannot, however, avoid taking direct issue with your statement that the offer is delivered in a "spirit of cordiality and goodwill".The approach of delivering an offer to me and to my directors, on a Friday afternoon, before even having the courtesy to telephone me, the suggestion of a May 2 deadline for a response, and your immediate distribution of a press release could have only been designed to create a hostile atmosphere and to place pressure upon us. Please rest assured that we will not be cowed by these tactics.

I have also noted, and am particularly dismayed by, the absence of any commitment to retain our employees. This suggests the "slash and burn" technique of the hostile raider, which has brought so much hardship to so many families and communities across the country.

Finally, I cannot understand how, in the current environment, you can express "extreme confidence" in the ability of both First Maryland and Allied Irish to obtain all necessary regulatory approvals. The regulatory focus on Community Reinvestment Act compliance, capital issues in cash transactions, and bank lending practices, as well as traditional concerns, should preclude the blanket reassurance you so readily attempt to provide. As you should be aware, a number of bank transactions have recently experienced substantial regulatory delay, and at least one was reportedly terminated as a consequence of a regulatory issue.

SANTA ANA, CA (APRIL 30) PR NEWSWIRE - Ingram Micro D announced the formation of a new Mass Storage Products Division (MSD), effective April 30, to meet the growing needs of its resellers for a strong, customer-service oriented source that can provide a complete range of mass storage solutions. There will also be a Mass Storage Division in the distributor's Canadian subsidiary, Ingram Micro D Ltd., headquartered in Toronto.

A key element in the expanded service that MSD will provide to resellers will be disk kitting -- outfitting disks with the appropriate bezels, attachments and cabling for specific CPUs and then boxing the complete kits for shipment. Another important service expansion will be the addition of technical support specialists for mass storage products.

The mass storage product category is entering a phase of sustained growth. Market factors contributing to this growth -- and the desirability of forming the Mass Storage Products Division -- include increased use of complex applications which are by nature storage intensive; rising incremental per-user storage requirements of LAN nodes; the advent of more complex multitasking operating systems; the demand for hard disk upgrades among existing hard disk users; and the growing need of users to safeguard data by backing it up with tape drives.

MSD's roster of vendors includes industry leaders such as Plus Development Western Digital, Mountain, NEC Technologies, Iomega, Pinnacle Micro, Storage Dimensions, Miniscribe, Emerald, Maynard/Archive, Irwin, Toshiba, Sysgen, Priam, Tecmar and Rodime.

The products available from MSD represent the full spectrum of mass storage devices, including hard disks, tape backup drives, disks-on-a-card removable media drives, optical drives and floppy drives.

Heading MSD as its general manager is Vicky Cotten, presently an Ingram Micro D director of hardware purchasing.

Ingram Micro D Inc. is the world's largest distributor of microcomputer products, marketing and distributing more than 6,000 products from over 500 of the world's top hardware manufacturers and software developers. It serves as a wholesale distributor to over 40,000 reseller customers in the United States, Canada and Europe. Ingram Micro D Inc. operates two international subsidiaries, Ingram Micro D Ltd. of Canada and Ingram Softeurop of Belgium. The company is headquartered in Santa Ana, and achieved sales in excess of $1 billion in 1989.

BIDDEFORD, ME (APRIL 30) PR NEWSWIRE - Some 500 million blank video cassettes and 1 billion pre-recorded and blank audio cassettes were produced in 1989 in the United States alone. Prompted by the ecological impact and future growth of the cassette industry, Shape Inc., the nation's leading audio and video cassette manufacturer, is the first to develop environmentally responsible cassettes, the company announced today.

Shape is looking to make their products environmentally responsible by using new engineering and design changes that will make the cassettes easy to disassemble and therefore recyclable. All cassettes will include identification marks to determine what type of plastic was used to manufacture the product. These marks will allow the handicapped and visually impaired to assist in the recycling process. Shape will apply the new design to all new products.

"Video cassettes are becoming more prevalent and are increasingly replacing printed material," said Michael Thomas, chief operating officer of Shape. "Just as you read and dispose of a magazine today, we must think of how this process will be affected in the future when we are using a video cassette," Thomas added.

A newly designed video cassette, currently under development, will be the first Shape product manufactured with the environmentally responsible features and is scheduled to go into production by the end of the summer.

Shape Inc. is a market driven product development and manufacturing company delivering products to the audio, video, compact disc and computer markets worldwide.

JAMESTOWN, NY (APRIL 30) PR NEWSWIRE - Bush Industries, Inc. (AMEX: BSH), a leading manufacturer of RTA (ready-to-assemble) furniture, today reported results for the first quarter ended March 31, 1990.

Net income was $394,000 or nine cents per share on net sales of $24,899,000 compared to net income of $1,070,000 or 24 cents per share on net sales of $27,434,000 for the same period last year. Results for the 1989 quarter were restated for a change in accounting policy regarding the treatment of certain expenses related to sales.

"The results reflect a softness in electronics furniture sales and the steady rise in demand for Bush furniture in the traditional furniture and home office markets," Paul Bush, chairman and president, said.

"Our innovative 'Furniture On The Move' merchandising display program, which was introduced to traditional retailers last year, gained substantial support from retailers at the recent International Home Furnishings Show at High Point, N.C. This program offers the retailer the opportunity to dramatically increase his sales and profitability, while offering the consumer the value, quality, style, and function of our products. The program is being offered nationally, and we expect it to grow substantially as the year progresses," he said.

"Currently, $5 million of versatile, state-of-the-art machinery is being installed in our Jamestown facility, and our program to more than double finished goods inventory is nearing completion. We expect our Ashtabula Distribution Center to be operational by mid-May. The result of these actions will be further improvement in our customer service," Bush added.

"We are optimistic that the strategies adopted and implemented in recent years will begin to generate operating gains during the second half of 1990," he concluded.

OKLAHOMA CITY (APRIL 30) PR NEWSWIRE - Hadson Corporation (NYSE: HAD) today announced net earnings for the quarter ended March 31, 1990 of $433,000 ($.01 per share) on total revenues of $175,781,000. This compared with net earnings of $1,061,000 ($.03 per share) and total revenues of $225,132,000 for the quarter ended March 31, 1989.

In March, the company's Power Systems Group began to receive, through 50 percent-owned partnerships, funding for two of four 70- megawatt cogeneration projects located in Virginia. This funding is part of the $200 million non-recourse construction loans for the four projects and was received upon receipt of final environmental permits related to the two plants. The funding allowed the Power Systems Group to recognize during the first quarter development fees and to begin recognizing engineering, procurement and construction revenues and profits related to the two projects. The company expects to recognize development fees and to begin recognizing engineering, procurement and construction revenues and profits on the remaining two plants later in 1990 when final environmental permits are received.

J. Michael Adcock, president of Hadson, stated: "As we have previously discussed, Hadson has embarked on a program to significantly reduce its long-term debt. The first step in this program was successfully completed in early February with the sale to the public of approximately 51 percent of our combined domestic and international oil and gas exploration, development and production operations through Hadson Energy Resources Corporation.

This transaction had the effect of reducing Hadson's consolidated long-term debt by about $62 million.

Hadson Corporation is an independent producer and supplier of energy products and a defense technology firm as well as an electric power services firm. Hadson has operations in natural gas and gas liquids; the development, construction, operation and ownership of electric power generation facilities; international oil and gas exploration; and defense and space technologies.

WALTHAM, MA (APRIL 30) PR NEWSWIRE - Thermo Instrument Systems Inc. (AMEX: THI) announced today that it has commenced, through a wholly owned susidiary, a cash tender offer for all outstanding shares of common stock of Finnigan Corporation (NASDAQ: FNNG) at $20 per share. A condition of the offer is that the number of shares tendered, together with currently owned shares, must give Thermo Instrument a majority of the shares of Finnigan common stock outstanding. Also, the parties jointly announced that they have entered into a definitive merger agreement, under which those holders of common stock of Finnigan who fail to tender their shares in the tender offer would be entitled to receive $20 per share, and Finnigan would become a wholly owned subsidiary of Thermo Instrument.

The offer and withdrawl rights will expire at 12:00 midnight, Eastern Daylight Time, on Friday, May 25, 1990, unless the offer is extended.

Thermo Instrument separately announced that it had sold a $12 million principal amount 7 percent Subordinated Convertible Note due 2000 to Thermo Electron Corporation (NYSE: TMO). The Note is convertible into Thermo Instrument common stock at a price of $15-5/8 per share. Together with Thermo Instrument's own cash, the proceeds of the Note will be used to finance the acquisition of Finnigan.

Thermo Instrument Systems develops, manufactures, and markets analytical instruments used to detect and monitor air pollution, radioactivity, complex chemical compounds, and toxic metals and other elements in a broad range of liquids and solids. The company also provides environmental science and engineering services, laboratory-based testing, and nuclear health physics services. Thermo Instrument Systems is a public subsidiary of Thermo Electron Corporation.

Finnigan is the world's leading manufacturer of mass spectrometers. Its products, sold under the trade name Finnigan MAT, are used in industrial, analytical, service, university, and government research laboratories. Applications include analysis for pharmaceuticals, foods, chemicals, petrochemicals, and environmental, health, and forensic science. SOUTH SAN FRANCISCO, CA (APRIL 30) PR NEWSWIRE - Lewis Galoob Toys Inc. (NYSE: GAL) today reported first quarter sales of $33,212,000, a decline of 12 percent from record 1989 first quarter sales of $37,547,000. The company announced a loss after its $782,000 preferred dividend of $1,512,000, or 16 cents per share, compared to a profit in the first quarter of 1989 of $2,378,000, or 25 cents per share.

David Galoob, chairman, president and chief executive officer, stated, "The first quarter sales decline and loss resulted primarily from lower than expected orders on the company's continuing Micro Machines and Bouncin' Babies products due to slower rates of sales at retail recently on these two lines and the fact that very few of the company's 1990 product introductions were shipped during the quarter. Contributing to the loss was a decline in the company's gross margin rate principally due to a change in the mix of sales between domestic and international customers.

"International sales, which normally generate significantly lower margins, accounted for 32 percent of the first quarter sales in 1990 compared to 16 percent in 1989. We expect these factors to also adversely affect our second quarter, since significant new product shipments won't begin until June and July."

Galoob added, "We are hopeful about our prospects for the second half of the year, when new Micro Machines, Bouncin' Babies and other products, including Secret Places, Unifighters and Tuff Trax will be available for distribution." He also noted that due to its operating and financing activities in 1989, the company's financial condition was significantly strengthened compared to a year ago. As of March 31, 1990, the company's cash position had increased to $40.3 million compared to $2.2 million a year earlier. Total bank debt was reduced to $6.1 million as of March 31, 1990, from $17.7 million a year earlier.

Lewis Galoob Toys designs, develops, markets and distributes a variety of quality toy products sold worldwide. The company is headquartered in South San Francisco.

MORRIS TOWNSHIP, NJ (APRIL 30) PR NEWSWIRE - Allied-Signal Inc. (NYSE: ALD) Chairman and CEO Edward L. Hennessy, Jr., today told shareholders that the company will continue its strong commitment to research and capital investments, and its aggressive expansion into world markets.

"Allied-Signal has no intention of standing idly by and letting our competitors around the world push us aside in the race for new products, new markets and greater profits," he said.

At the company's annual meeting here, Hennessy also presented three manufacturing units with the Chairman's Award for Productivity Excellence for 1989.

Hennessy said that the company's emphasis on research and development and global expansion is accompanied by a commitment to increased productivity.

The winners of the productivity awards were Garrett Engine Division, Autolite Division, and the Genetron operations of the Fluorine Products Division, representing the company's aerospace, automotive and engineered materials businesses, respectively.

Garrett Engine Division of Phoenix, Ariz., a leading supplier of aircraft propulsion engines, increased its sales per employee by 20 percent in 1989. Autolite Division, Fostoria, Ohio, increased the number of spark plugs produced per employee by 16 percent. The Genetron operations, headquartered in Morris Township, improved output per employee by 11 percent.

In 1990, Allied-Signal will spend more than $600 million on research, development and engineering, and more than $500 million on capital projects. In addition, the company will conduct another $600 million in research funded by customers. Hennessy also said he expects the company's overseas business to continue to expand in the 1990s. In 1989, 36 percent of Allied-Signal's revenues was generated outside the United States.

Allied-Signal is an advanced technology company with businesses in aerospace, automotive products and engineered materials.

WILTON, CT (APRIL 30) PR NEWSWIRE - Preferred Health Care, Ltd. (AMEX:

PY) today reported record earnings and operating revenues for the first quarter of 1990. For the quarter ended March 31, 1990, operating revenues were $7,591,478, compared to $5,326,140 for the comparable period in 1989.

Net income was $1,056,804, or $.10 per share, against $917,556, or $.09 per share, for the comparable period in 1989. 1989 earnings per share data have been restated to recognize a 10 percent stock dividend.

"With mental health care and substance abuse costs constantly rising, more and more organizations are looking to us for programs that will help to contain costs while maintaining quality care. Preferred Health's proven track record with its PsychCare product was responsible for adding three major clients in the first quarter and contributed significantly to our record results. We see this positive trend continuing through 1990 and beyond," Dr. David J. McDonnell, president, said.

"During the first quarter we added approximately 145,000 people as a result of initiating programs for the Episcopal Church Clergy and Employees' Benefit Trust, Maricopa County, Arizona, and Federal Express Corporation. Our new business brings the number of people covered and currently served by PsychCare to 1,026,000. Programs for an additional 190,000 people will begin during the second quarter of 1990," McDonnell added.

Also during the quarter, Preferred Health Care signed a definitive agreement to acquire all the assets of the CareSys Company. CareSys has developed systems to provide quality assurance and cost containment services in the workers' compensation area. "CareSys will complement our present business. Many of our existing clients have serious workers' compensation cost problems and are likely candidates for the new service," McDonnell said.

AKRON, OH (APRIL 30) PR NEWSWIRE - The BFGoodrich Company (NYSE: GR) announced today that it will be expanding production capacity for its Carbopol(R) hydrophilic resins.

Carbopol resins are produced at plants in Calvert City, Ky., and Pohang, South Korea. Capacity will be expanded at both plants, increasing worldwide production of Carbopol resins by about 35 percent. Total investment will be about $14 million.

Carbopol resins are high-performance polymer additives that are widely used as thickening and suspension agents, stabilizers and emulsifiers. Major applications include cosmetics and personal-care products such as hand cream, styling gel, toothpaste and sun screens, as well as pharmaceuticals, printing inks and detergents.

"Demand for BFG Carbopol products has been growing steadily," said Kent H. Lee Jr., president of BFG's Specialty Polymers & Chemicals Division. "And we see demand continuing to climb in the future.

"These expansion projects will give us the ability to meet customer needs, in North America, Europe and in the growing Pacific Rim markets and are representative of the continuing growth of our specialty chemicals business."

Both expansions are scheduled to be completed in mid-1991. BFG's specialty chemicals business segment had sales of about $735 million in 1989. BFGoodrich produces a variety of specialty chemical products and is a major producer of vinyl resins and compounds. The Company also supplies components and services to the aviation industry.

NEW YORK (APRIL 30) PR NEWSWIRE - The Bank of New York Company, Inc. (NYSE: BK) today announced that it had notified Northeast Bancorp, Inc. (NASDAQ: NBIC) that Northeast was in breach of its merger agreement with the Bank of New York. The breach relates to Northeast's obligation under the merger agreement to maintain accurate books of records and accounts.

Under the terms of the merger agreement, Northeast has 60 days to cure this breach. The Bank of New York has urged Northeast to take appropriate and expeditious action to correct its books. If the breach is not cured during the 60-day period, the Bank of New York management intends to recommend to its board of directors that it terminate the merger agreement.

The Bank of New York stated that it took this action only after Northeast failed to accept the Bank of New York's proposals for binding review of Northeast's loan portfolio by a neutral and qualified third party, either the Comptroller of the Currency or the Federal Reserve.

ATLANTA (APRIL 30) PR NEWSWIRE - The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency announced today that Canadyne-Georgia Corp., a potentially responsible party for the Woolfolk Chemical Works Superfund site, has agreed to perform a Remedial Investigation/Fesibility Study (RI/FS).

The company has already performed extensive investigative and remedial work. This site has been proposed on EPA's Superfund National Prioritis List (NPL) of hazardous waste sites.

"Public money from the Superfund Trust Fund will not have to be used for the site RI/FS because of an agreement by one of the potentially responsible parties," said Greer C. Tidwell, EPA regional administrator. There are six potentially responsible parties identified to date. The agency commends Canadyne-Georgia Corp. for entering into this agreement.

This agreement does not, however, absolve responsible parties, whether identified now or in the future, from responsbility for the eventual cleanup of the site.

The study will include an investigation to determine the extent of the contamination and associated risks, and an evaluation of alternate remedial strategies from which EPA will choose the most appropriate cleanup method. The study will take approximately 18 to 24 months to complete.

All work done by the Canadyne-Georgia Corp. will follow EPA guidelines, and EPA will be providing oversight of all activities and reviewing all reports. EPA will be conducting public meetings at various stages during the study to keep the public informed and to solicit input. In particular, a public meeting will be held near the end of study to present the various remedial strategies EPA will be considering to alleviate any future threats from the site.

The Woolfolk Chemical Works facility, which covers 18 acres in the central business district of Fort Valley, was proposed to the NPL in June 1988. Operations at the facility have evolved over time from a lime-sulfur plant to a full-line pesticide formulating plant producing agricultural chemicals. Principal contaminants at the site are arsenic, DDT, chlordane, lead, lindane and toxaphene.

HOUSTON (APRIL 30) PR NEWSWIRE - ConVest Energy Partners, Ltd. (AMEX: CEP) announced today that it has reached an agreement in principle for a possible business combination with two affiliates of General Investment & Development Co. (GID), a Boston-based real estate and energy holding company. The two affiliates include ConVest Energy Corporation, CEP's general partner (ConVest), and Sanderling Oil Company, L.P.

The transaction, if consummated, will result in the owners of both CEP and the GID entities becoming shareholders of a new publicly held corporation (Newco). Based on reserve reports prepared as of Dec. 31, 1989, Newco would have reserves of approximately 6.9 million barrels of oil equivalent with an estimated value, determined in accordance with guidelines of the Securities and Exchange Commission, of approximately $54.6 million.

A special committee of independent directors of ConVest was appointed last summer to represent the interest of CEP's unitholders in discussing a possible combination with certain oil and gas affiliates of GID. Under the agreement in principle reached earlier today by the committee and the GID entities, it is proposed that CEP, ConVest and Sanderling will cause Newco to be formed for the purpose of acquiring all of the assets of CEP and certain oil and gas assets of ConVest and Sanderling. Consummation of the transaction is conditioned, among other things, upon negotiation of definitive agreement, approval of the transactions by the board of ConVest the unitholders of CEP and the partners of Sanderling, the receipt by the special committee of an investment banking opinion of Petrie Parkman & Co. to the effect that the transactions are fair to the unitholders of CEP from a financial point of view, compliance with various regulatory provisions and the listing of Newco's common stock on the American Stock Exchange.

In general, the proposed transactions include the acquisition by Newco of all the assets, subject to assumption of all liabilities, of CEP in exchange for shares of common stock of Newco; the acquisition of certain oil and gas assets and associated liabilities of both ConVest and Sanderling in exchange for shares of Newco's common stock; and the distribution by CEP of the Newco shares so acquired to its unitholders in liquidation.

ConVest Energy Partners, Ltd. is a publicly traded master limited partnership whose principle business activities include the development and operation of oil and gas properties and the acquisition of additional producing properties. ConVest Energy Corporation serves as general partner of CEP and currently owns a 14 percent equity interest.

PHILADELPHIA (APRIL 30) PR NEWSWIRE - SmithKline Beecham (NYSE: SBH) announced today that it has successfully completed the issue, in the United States, of $800 million of Auction Rate Preference Shares.

The issue, which is equal in size to the largest ever issue of Preference Shares in the United States, has been placed with investors at initial dividend rates of 6.75 percent-7 percent, in line with rates on existing comparable issues.

Hugh Collum, SmithKline Beecham finance director, said, "The proceeds of recent disposals and this successful issue of Preference Shares, represent major steps in the restructuring and strengthening of the balance sheet by allowing us to reduce our debt."

The company has also given notice of redemption, on June 1, 1990, of the 618 million pounds sterling outstanding balance of the Floating Rate Unsecured Loan Stock 1990-92 issued to non-U.S. former Beecham stockholders at the time of the merger. These stockholders will have the option of receiving either cash on redemption or converting their existing Loan Stock into a new stock. The redemption provisions of the new stock are more flexible than is the case for the existing stock and conversion into the new stock, which bears an interest rate of 1/4 percent below the three month London Inter Bank Offered Rate (LIBOR), should enable stockholders to continue to roll over their tax on capital gains.

HOUSTON (APRIL 30) PR NEWSWIRE - LL&E Royalty Trust announced today that its monthly distribution to unit holders will be made on May 17, 1990 to unit holders of record on May 7, 1990. This distribution represents amounts payable to the trust with respect to production for the month of February 1990.

The total amount of the May distribution will be $517,133 or approximately $.02723 per unit. This distribution decreased from the previous month's distribution primarily due to a temporary reduction in production at South Pass Block 89 which was severely curtailed due to problems encountered while drilling Well B-17 as well as a temporary NGL plant shutdown at the Jay Field. Due to the nature and timing of other operating and capital projects along with monthly production fluctuations, this distribution is not necessarily indicative of future monthly distributions.

As previously announced, the working interest owner has begun to escrow amounts for the Fort Worth Basin property in connection with the issue of recapture of intangible drilling and development costs under Section 1254 of the Internal Revenue Code. The trust's interest in the amount escrowed from the current month's distribution and the cumulative balance of such are $6,258.20 and $493,662.80 respectively. As stated last month, pending the possible appeal by the IRS of the previously announced favorable ruling rendered by the United States Tax Court on the Section 1254 issue, the working interest owner has made no decision on whether and when these amounts will be released from escrow.

The working interest owner has determined under the terms of the trust documents that it is eligible to escrow funds from all trust properties for the 1254 recapture issue. However, it has advised the trustee that it does not intend to exercise its rights to escrow funds, other than for the Fort Worth Basin, for this issue for the May 1990 distribution. However, the working interest owner intends to continue to monitor its estimates of relevant factors in order to evaluate the necessity of escrowing funds for this issue on an ongoing basis. The working interest owner is under no obligation to give any notice to the trustee or the unit holders in the event it determines that funds should be escrowed. If the working interest owner does begin to escrow such funds with respect to the productive properties, other than Fort Worth Basin, the effect on royalties paid to the trust would be significant, and in certain circumstances could eliminate distributions for a period of time.

JACKSON, MI (APRIL 30) PR NEWSWIRE - Thanks to record contributions by customers of Consumers Power Company, the 1990 PeopleCare campaign to help the needy raised the highest amount of money in its history.

Officials of the utility and The Salvation Army announced that $573,616 was raised this year, including a new high of $373,616 in donations from the company's 2 million residential customers. Consumers Power provided $200,000 in bill credits to the campaign, bringing the total to the new high.

The two organizations jointly sponsor the annual fund-raising effort which just completed its eighth year.

Lt. Col. Clarence W. Harvey, divisional commander of The Salvation Army, said he was gratified that his organization "will be able to help thousands of less fortunate families with these funds. We're grateful to all those whose contributions made this campaign a resounding success."

Consumers Power's residential customers were asked to pledge $3 to PeopleCare by checking a box on their January bills. The $3 was added to the February bills of those who responded.

Customers who wished to make a larger contribution could send a check made out to "PeopleCare/The Salvation Army" and mail it to Consumers Power's headquarters in Jackson.

This year's campaign raised $202,485 in pledges and $171,131 in cash and checks. Some $2,194,065 has been raised since the program's inception. Another $541,400 in bill credits has been awarded.

PeopleCare was started in 1983 at the suggestion of Consumers Power employees as an offshoot of informal employee-directed food and clothing drives for the needy. All funds are turned over to The Salvation Army and are used to provide many kinds of assistance, including purchases of food, clothing, help with housing, and medical expenses.

The Salvation Army, one of the oldest nonprofit social-service organizations in the United States, was selected to distribute the funds because it has a statewide organization experienced in screening applicants and providing aid.

Consumers Power Company, the principal subsidiary of CMS Energy Corporation (NYSE: CMS), is Michigan's largest utility serving almost 6 million of the state's 9 million residents in 67 of the 68 Lower Peninsula counties.

HOUSTON (APRIL 30) PRNEWSWIRE - Weatherford (AMEX: WII) today reported 1990 first quarter net income of $1,416,000, or $0.05 per common share, compared to a net loss of $611,000, or $(0.09) per common share, for the same period a year ago.

First quarter 1990 revenues increased to $33.9 million from $30.8 million for the same period a year ago.

The company said it recorded strong operating performance in virtually all regions, with a substantial improvement in its domestic results due to the impact of cost containment measures and improved pricing as a result of the increase in U.S. drilling activity compared to 1989 first quarter. First quarter 1990 operating income of $2,288,000 was more than twice that recorded during the same period in 1989.

Net income was also positively impacted by a $1,128,000 reduction in net interest expense, primarily as a result of the November 1989 debt restructuring which reduced the company's debt by more than $41 million.

HOUSTON (APRIL 30) PR NEWSWIRE - Continental Airlines today reported a first-quarter net income of $21.3 million on revenues of $1.3 billion. In the prior year's first quarter, a period substantially aided by the near cessation for one month of operations of a major competitor, the company reported a net loss of $16.5 million on revenues of $1.2 billion. This represents a year-over-year improvement of $37.8 million.

Included in Continental's 1990 results were special items totaling $69.7 million, which consisted primarily of litigation settlement proceeds. In the first quarter of 1989, special items totaled $30.6 million.

"In an environment of higher fuel costs and substantially worsened results being reported by most airlines, we are very gratified with Continental's first-quarter results," said Continental Chairman Frank Lorenzo. WASHINGTON, DC (APRIL 30) PR NEWSWIRE - The Boeing Co. (NYSE: BA) announced today it has submitted its proposal for the U.S. Army's Reserve Component Automation System (RCAS), a project aimed at enhancing the readiness and mobilization capability of the Army National Guard and Army Reserve.

The RCAS contract is intended to fulfill a long-standing objective for an integrated information system to support Reserve and National Guard units throughout the world. The contract for Phase I is expected to be awarded before the end of the year.

Boeing Computer Services would provide overall program management over the 12-year life cycle of RCAS, including integrated logistics support and operations, systems engineering, and procurement of commercial off-the-shelf software and hardware.

Dr. R. Peter Dube, the Boeing proposed program manager for RCAS, said, "We are prepared to provide the National Guard and Army Reserve with a solution equal to the challenge.

"Our mission is to deliver a cost-effective, reliable system of user-friendly workstations to support 9,000 units at over 5,000 locations in the United States and overseas. It's a major task, but one that we are ready to deliver," Dube added.

In addition to supporting the operational user at the unit level, RCAS will provide automated decision support tools for the Reserve Component chain of command. The system will use state-of-the-art office automation telecommunications, distributed databases and distributed processing capabilities to provide timely and accurate information for administration as well as planning, preparation and execution of the Reserve Component forces mobilization mission.

RCAS will allow the Army to mobilize the Reserve Component through electronic notification and control. In peacetime, the system will improve routine operational and administrative tasks, such as payroll, training, inventory and operational unit readiness reporting.

Boeing Computer Services currently provides a broad range of information systems services for NASA, the U.S. Army, the U.S. Navy, the Department of Energy, the state of Alabama, the commonwealth of Pennsylvania and other Boeing operating divisions.

PITTSBURGH (APRIL 30) PR NEWSWIRE - Chambers Development Co. Inc. (AMEX: CDVB) today officially celebrated the opening of its new state-of-the-art sanitary landfill in Charles City County, Va.

The Charles City County Board of Supervisors and Chambers of Virginia hosted Virginia Gov. L. Douglas Wilder, local, state and federal officials and community leaders in the successful inauguration of Virginia's first triple-lined sanitary landfill for solid waste.

"We are honored that Gov. Wilder and many public officials and community leaders today are attending the opening of our high-tech landfill," said John G. Rangos Sr., president and CEO of Chambers. "This regional landfill has been designed to bring to the county and the Commonwealth of Virginia a tremendous advance in solid waste disposal technology that will provide needed refuse capacity to Virginia citizens.

"It will serve as a national showcase to demonstrate the proper way to dispose of refuse. One factor that makes this project especially meaningful is the positive reaction demonstrated by the citizens in Charles City County. These residents have had the vision to accept the project and to recognize the need to have environmentally sound and economically efficient disposal facilities," Rangos said.

Since September of last year, crews have worked day and night and weekends to construct the first disposal cell area, scalehouse, maintenance building, support facilities, truck wash, container box area and two miles of access roads at the landfill.

In September of 1989, Chambers was issued a permit by the Virginia Department of Waste Management for the construction and operation of the landfill.

Chambers signed an agreement with the County of Charles City in 1988 for the development of the landfill.

The 289-acre landfill footprint will be located on a 934-acre site, will accept 2,000 tons per day of municipal solid waste and has a capacity of approximately 25 million tons. It is 25 miles southeast of Richmond and about five miles south of Interstate 64 between routes 631 and 609.

Trucks enter the landfill from a private road and do not travel through any town. The county's 6,500 residents will receive free refuse disposal for the life of the landfill.

This is the first landfill to be permitted in Virginia under the commonwealth's new regulations.

Chambers Development Co., headquartered in Pittsburgh, with offices in Richmond, Va.; Atlanta; and Dallas, is a leading environmental firm offering services in collection, hauling, recycling, disposal and landfill development.

LANCASTER, PA (APRIL 30) PR NEWSWIRE - Armstrong World Industries (NYSE: ACK) Chairman William W. Adams said this afternoon that he is confident that at least three of the Armstrong Board of Directors' nominees were elected at the company's annual meeting held here this morning.

Adams said the company's nominees apparently received sufficient votes to elect three of them in the contested election, in which the Belzberg family of Vancouver, Canada, had nominated four of its own candidates.

He noted that the situation is complicated by the fact that Armstrong has cumulative voting, with the four nominees receiving the highest number of votes elected. In addition to the complicated tallying process, some proxies may be subject to challenge.

"It's possible that the Belzbergs were able to cumulate enough votes to elect Professor Jensen, but I think that's too close to call at this point in time," he said.

"The judges of election tell us that a final count will not be available till at least May 11," Adams said, "but the best information I have at this time would indicate that the Belzbergs have failed to elect more than one of their people to the Armstrong board." MORRIS PLAINS, NJ (APRIL 30) PR NEWSWIRE - Warner-Lambert Co. (NYSE: WLA) has begun an engineering study to determine the feasibility of locating the first U.S. manufacturing operation for its new starch- based polymer, Novon, at the company's confectionery products plant in Rockford, Ill. The study should be concluded by the end of the second quarter of this year, after which a final decision will be made.

"Beyond the fact that we have space in our existing facility there, Rockford is an ideal location for the first Novon manufacturing operation for a number of reasons," said President and Chief Operating Officer Melvin R. Goodes. "They include a highly favorable business climate, an outstanding transportation system, proximity to raw materials and the excellent track record of Rockford employees."

Novon was announced by Warner-Lambert earlier this year. It is the result of an eight-year research program at the company's Capsugel

Division, the world's largest producer of empty hard gelatin capsules. Company scientists in Basel, Switzerland, created Novon by transforming conventional starch into a biodegradable material with many of the characteristics of plastics. The technology could eventually be used to produce substitutes for a wide range of materials in use today from annually renewable agricultural crops.

In March, the company dedicated a new polymer facility near Basel that will serve as the European research and development center and the first pilot plant for Novon. If the Rockford feasibility study results are positive, it is expected that the plant will be ready for start up by the end of 1991. Warner-Lambert plans to provide Novon in pelletized form to customers that will convert the pellets into end-use products.

It is proposed that Novon manufacturing be housed in one of the three main buildings at the 525,000-square foot Rockford plant. Some building and site modifications would be required to accommodate Novon production. Silos would have to be constructed just outside the building to store both the raw starch from which Novon is made and finished product.

Warner-Lambert is a worldwide company devoted to developing, manufacturing and marketing quality health care and consumer products. It employs approximately 33,000 people at its operations in 130 countries. In 1989, Warner-Lambert earnings per share rose 22 percent to $6.10. Sales increased 7 percent to $4.2 billion.

SHREVEPORT, LA (APRIL 30) PR NEWSWIRE - Arkla Exploration Co. (NYSE: ARK) today reported consolidated net income of $3,009,000, or 9 cents per share for the quarter ending March 31, 1990, compared to $3,493,000, or 11 cents per share, for the like period in 1989, based on the same number of average shares outstanding in the first quarter of 1990.

Revenues for the first quarter of 1990 totaled $44,838,000, a 23.4 percent increase over 1989 revenues of $36,334,000. Net cash flow from operations before net changes in working capital, increased 32.9 percent to $21,380,000 in 1990 from $16,082,000 for 1989.

Carl S. Quinn, chairman and chief executive officer of Arkla Exploration, attributed the reduction in first quarter net income to lower margins on gas purchased for resale, resolution and payment of expenses related to non-operated wells, and higher depletion and depreciation expenses. These factors were, however, largely offset by increased volumes sold and tax credits on increased tight sands gas production, Quinn added.

For the quarter, the company had total sales volumes of 22.6 billion cubic feet of natural gas and gas equivalent (Bcfe) compared to 19.1 Bcfe for 1989, an increase of 18 percent. The average sales price for natural gas was $1.90 per thousand cubic feet compared to $1.84 for the like period of 1989. Average liquids prices also rose to $20.57 per barrel in 1990 from $16.33 per barrel in 1989.

Arkla Exploration Co. is one of the nation's largest independent operators in terms of proved natural gas reserves, with more than 800 billion cubic feet of gas and gas equivalent reserves.

Shares of Arkla Exploration trade on the New York Stock Exchange under the symbol "ARK."

DALLAS (APRIL 30) PR NEWSWIRE - The LTV Corporation (NYSE: LTV) today reported first quarter net income of $44.2 million, compared with $76.6 million for the first quarter of 1989. The decline resulted primarily from lower operating results in the steel group.

Consolidated sales for the quarter declined to $1.5 billion from $1.6 billion in the first quarter a year ago. The seven percent decline in sales reflected a $100 million decrease in missiles and electronics group sales, principally attributable to military vehicles, and a $45 million decrease in steel sales. Those declines were partially offset by increased sales in the energy group.

LTV Chairman and Chief Executive Officer Raymond A. Hay said, "First quarter financial results were adversely affected by higher costs, lower average selling prices and lower volume at the steel group."

The aircraft products group, although still reporting an operating loss, had improved results over those of a year earlier when the group recognized $25 million in charges on fixed-price programs.

LTV's financial results continue to reflect significant Chapter 11-related benefits, Hay said. He said the company continues to defer certain expenses, including those for pensions and interest, among other items, while operating under the protection of Chapter 11.

As of March 31, LTV's cash and cash equivalents totaled $967 million, compared with $1.05 billion a year earlier.

LTV is a diversified manufacturing company involved in steel, aerospace/defense and energy products.

CHICAGO (APRIL 30) PR NEWSWIRE - R.R. Donnelley and Sons Company (NYSE: DNY) today announced a five-year, multimillion-dollar contract with Hewlett Packard Company (NYSE: HWP) to serve most of the printing, kitting and distribution needs of two HP divisions, both based in California's Silicon Valley.

To accommodate the increase in volume, R.R. Donnelley will lease and renovate a 30,000-square-foot, document-management service center in Sunnyvale, Calif., that will serve a large percentage of the printing and kitting needs of HP's Direct Marketing Division (based in Sunnyvale) and Software Replication and Distribution Operations (based in Mountain View, Calif.).

The facility, which will open in June, will produce more than 350 million printed pages each year for HP, a leading computer and instrument company.

Eventually, the state-of-the-art facility will employ 60 workers. The two firms are working closely together to design the facility, which will include high-speed offset and high-speed electronic printing capabilities as well as optical copying equipment. The facility also will manage for these two HP divisions an electronic database of their computer-document masters, which can be transmitted to other Donnelley operations around the world for simultaneous printing, kitting and distribution of documentation.

According to an HP spokesperson, the arrangement with R.R. Donnelley is a faster and more efficient way for these divisions to produce and distribute computer manuals and marketing materials. Up until now, these divisions used a variety of sources for producing documents.

Donnelley's Business Services division, started in 1988, has opened in-house document-management facilities for customers in Chicago, New York Los Angeles and Washington, D.C. The unit is one of the fastest growing divisions within R.R. Donnelley and Sons Co.

R.R. Donnelley is North America's largest printer of catalogs, newspaper advertising inserts, magazines, books, directories, computer documentation and financial printing. The company, which employs some 26,000 persons, operates printing plants, service centers, sales offices and subsidiaries in nearly 100 locations from coast to coast, in the United Kingdom, Ireland, Mexico, the Caribbean and the Far East.

Sales in 1989 were about $3.1 billion.

NEW YORK (APRIL 30) PR NEWSWIRE - Grace Specialty Chemicals Co., the world's largest specialty chemicals company, today announced that it will complete, two years ahead of schedule, the United States portion of its worldwide five-year underground storage tank replacement program. When completed by year end, the United States program, begun in 1987, will have cost approximately $12 million.

"In 1987, Grace Specialty Chemicals instituted a comprehensive worldwide program that would place all storage tanks above ground within five years " according to Donald H. Kohnken, president of Grace Specialty Chemicals. "All tanks 25 years or older were removed within the first year, and younger tanks have followed. New tanks are placed above ground with protective dikes, unless local regulations require other types of storage " he said.

Tanks that cannot be placed above ground are double walled and monitored or have been put in leak-proof vaults that are accessible for periodic inspections. "We are extremely pleased that we have been able to complete the major part of this program faster than planned. We anticipate meeting our worldwide goal on or before schedule," said Kohnken.

The program affected 274 tanks at more than 90 plants throughout the United States. Underground storage tank regulations became effective in December 1988 and require that leak detection systems be installed on a sliding schedule depending upon tank age.

Grace Specialty Chemicals has initiated several other environmental programs, including a comprehensive audit program that reviews the environmental, health and safety activities of its facilities and a waste minimization program. Grace Specialty Chemicals also participates in the Chemical Manufacturers Association's (CMA) Responsible Care Program. Responsible Care is based on ten guiding principles for the safe handling and use of chemicals. All signatories to this program must adhere to the principles or risk losing membership in the CMA.

Grace Specialty Chemicals had sales last year of $3.3 billion and is the larges operating unit of W. R. Grace & Co. (NYSE: GRA), an international specialty chemicals company with interests in energy, manufacturing and service businesses with sales last year exceeding $6 billion.

WHITE PLAINS, NY (APRIL 30) PR NEWSWIRE - American Savings Bank (NYSE: ASB) today announced that at the annual meeting held on April 25, 1990, stockholders approved all proposals put forth by the bank at the meeting.

Three of the five proposals resulted from a settlement agreement reached in December 1989 with the stockholder group headed by Henry Salzhauer. They are:

-- A proposal to reimburse Henry Salzhauer for expenses incurred in connection with the proxy contest conducted at the 1989 annual meeting of stockholders. This proposal, which required a majority of votes cast, received 67.6 percent of the votes cast; -- A proposal to reduce the maximum number of directors of the bank from 30 to 15. This proposal, which required the affirmative vote of 66-2/3 percent of outstanding shares, received the affirmative vote of 67.6 percent of outstanding shares; and -- A proposal to approve amendments to the organization certificate and bylaws of the bank to (1) delete the current 10 percent limit on ownership of the bank's stock, (2) enable stockholders to call special meetings of stockholders in certain circumstances, and (3) reduce the advance notice required for director nominations and other proposals submitted by stockholders. This proposal, which required the affirmative vote of a majority of outstanding shares, received an affirmative vote of 66.5 percent of outstanding shares. Stockholders also elected five directors to the board. Two directors -- John K. Lundberg, chairman, and Joseph A. Grotto -- were re-elected. Three directors who had been added to the board in January by vote of the directors -- Henry Salzhauer, Dr. Axel Stawski, and Gary Pokoik -- were elected by the stockholders for the first time. Stockholders also approved the ratification of Ernst & Young as the bank's independent auditor.

All of the five proposals put forth by the bank were also fully supported by the board of directors.

At the meeting, William G. Lillis, American's president and chief executive officer, reviewed the bank's financial results for the year and for the first quarter, and the steps taken to implement the back-to-basics strategy adopted in December 1989 to focus on income property lending and retail banking.

"American's performance continues to be negatively affected by the slowdown in the regional economy, the weak commercial real estate market, and the level of interest rates prevailing during the quarter," said Lillis. "We are concentrating our efforts on resolving non- performing loans, reducing operating costs, and phasing out lines of business that do not generate adequate return based on the bank's investment of time and resources."

American Savings Bank is a New York state-chartered savings bank with executive and administrative offices in White Plains. Together with its wholly owned subsidiary, Riverhead Savings Bank, FSB, American operates 39 branch offices in New York City and in Westchester, Nassau and Suffolk counties. NEW YORK (APRIL 30) PR NEWSWIRE - Reliance Group Holdings, Inc. (NYSE: REL) today announced that it has completed the previously announced sale of its General Casualty Companies subsidiary to Winterthur Swiss Insurance Company for $630 million in cash. As a result of the transaction, Reliance will realize a pretax gain of approximately $380 million in the second quarter of this year.

Commenting on the sale, Saul P. Steinberg, Reliance Group's chairman and chief executive officer, said: "The $630 million sale price, which was nearly three times the book value of the operations sold, reflects the excellent long-term performance of General Casualty, as well as the intrinsic value Reliance has built in this subsidiary." Steinberg added that the sale "will greatly benefit Reliance Group and our shareholders over the long-term by strengthening the company's balance sheet and providing additional capital to pursue future opportunities."

General Casualty, headquartered in Sun Prairie, Wis., writes personal and standard commercial lines of insurance in a 10-state region in the Midwest. Premiums written by General Casualty in 1989 were approximately $400 million.

Reliance Group Holdings, Inc., headquartered in New York City, has major property and casualty, life, title and mortgage insurance operations; engages in real estate development; provides consulting and technical services; and makes diversified investments. NEW YORK (APRIL 30) PR NEWSWIRE - John K. Ziegler, chairman and chief executive officer of Willcox & Gibbs, Inc. (NYSE: WG), today announced that sales for the quarter ended Mar. 31, 1990, rose to $138,997,000, and earnings, before unusual charges after tax of $2,040,000, declined to $3,284,000 compared with sales of $134,369,000 and earnings of $4,301,000 for the same quarter in the prior year. Net earnings per share after the $2,040,000 charge, net of tax, were 9 cents compared with 31 cents for the comparable 1989 period.

The company's apparel and covered yarn divisions both experienced decreases in sales and profits in the first quarter of this year compared to last year. These declines are due to general economic conditions and to the general tightening of inventories by manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers.

PLAINS, PA (APRIL 30) PR NEWSWIRE - Magic Years Child Care and Learning Centers Inc. (NASDAQ: KIDS) today announced the results of operation for the year ended Dec. 31, 1989, and that it has executed a Letter of Intent to enter into a merger agreement that would result in Magic Years Child Care and Learning Centers Inc. becoming a wholly owned subsidiary of Children's Discovery Centers of America Inc. (NASDAQ: CDCRA) (CDC), a California-based child care provider.

Operating revenues were a record $7,834,365, 25 percent higher than the $6,289,055 of revenues recorded in the year ended 1988. Seventy-nine percent of the increase was due to higher enrollments and tuition fee increases at existing centers, while 21 percent was due to the opening of new centers. General and administrative expenses decreased as a percentage of revenue to 15 percent in 1989 from 17 percent in 1988. Operating loss for the year totaled $2,285,475 compared to $741,819 in 1988. The 1989 loss included a one-time restructuring charge of $1,314,128 which reflected the company's intention to sell and/or close facilities in its South Carolina region. The company also wrote-down the value of its goodwill as a result of the sale of its South Carolina operation and the failure, in the majority of cases, to realize potential earnings projections made at the time of the individual acquisitions in South Carolina and elsewhere.

Magic Years was founded in 1983. Including its South Carolina region, the company currently operates 39 child care and learning centers in six states with a licensed capacity of approximately 3,100 children.

MAGIC YEARS CHILD CARE AND LEARNING CENTERS INC.
(Selected Financial Data)

Year ended Dec. 31	1989	1988
Operating data:
Operating revenues	$7,834,365	$6,289,055
Operating profit	239,073	333,596
SG&A and interest	1,378,918	1,309,797
Restructuring costs	1,314,120	--
Net loss	(2,453,973)	(976,201)
Per-share data:
Loss per common share	($1.51)	($0.97)
Weighted Average:
Common shares	1,625,477	1,235,169

The letter of intent with CDC provides that CDC will issue and aggregate of 1.4 million shares of its Class A common stock to holders of Magic Years' common and preferred stock in the merger. CDC plans to file a registration statement with the Securities and Exchange Commission covering these shares and to complete the merger by mid- summer.

Based on the current capitalization of Magic Years, the merger would result in Magic Years' common shareholders receiving approximately .44 of a share of CDC Class A common stock for each share of Magic Years surrendered in the merger.

The merger is subject to certain conditions, including completion of satisfactory due diligence by both CDC and Magic Years, execution of a definitive merger agreement, the exchange of certain outstanding indebtedness of Magic Years for an equal amount of convertible CDC notes and approval by the stockholders of both CDC and Magic Years. Simultaneously with the closing of the merger, certain existing institutional stockholders of CDC and Magic Years intend to purchase an additional $1,350,000 of new Class A common stock of CDC at a price of $3 per share.

CDC, which is headquartered in San Rafael, Calif., is engaged in the business of providing child care and preschool programs to children primarily between 2-1/2 and 6 years of age. CDC has operations in 16 states, consisting of 96 company-operated child care centers with an aggregate licensed capacity of 9,130 children and an additional 26 centers under franchise with an aggregate licensed capacity of 1,873 children. CDC's revenue for the year ended Dec. 31, 1989, totaled approximately $15,720,000.

HERSHEY, PA (APRIL 30) PR NEWSWIRE - Hershey Foods Corp. (NYSE: HSY) today announced record consolidated net sales and earnings for the first quarter ended April 1, 1990.

Net sales were $681,244,000 compared with $572,245,000 for the first quarter of 1989. Net income was $47,090,000, or $.52 per share compared with $39,689,000, or $.44 per share, for the same quarter last year. Weighted average shares outstanding were 90,186,336 for both periods.

"Our first quarter results were excellent," said Richard A. Zimmerman. "Consolidated net sales experienced healthy growth spurred by strong unit volume gains for Hershey Chocolate U.S.A. and Hershey Pasta Group, as well as the acquisition of Ronzoni Foods Corp. on Feb. 12, 1990. These divisions also posted strong earnings growth as a result of generally lower commodity costs and manufacturing efficiencies.

"As we review this period, we should keep in mind the timing differences of Easter confectionery shipments from one year to the next. This year Easter was in mid-April, therefore, most of our Easter sales were made in the first quarter. In 1989 an early Easter resulted in a significant level of Easter sales in the fourth quarter of 1988.

"We've gotten off to a good start in 1990. While the costs of supporting new product introductions will be a factor going forward, we are confident that the strength of our basic businesses will enable us to achieve another record year in 1990," Zimmerman concluded.

The corporation also announced today that the board of directors has approved a share repurchase program to acquire from time to time in the open market or through privately negotiated transactions approximately 1.4 million shares of the corporation's outstanding common stock. The corporation said it expects to use the repurchased shares to satisfy future employee benefit obligations.

Regular Quarterly Dividend Declared The board of directors of Hershey Foods Corp. today declared regular quarterly dividends of $.195 on the common stock and $.175 on the Class B Common Stock.

Both dividends are payable on June 15, 1990, to stockholders of record May 25. It is the 242nd consecutive regular dividend on the corporation's common stock and the 23rd consecutive regular dividend on the Class B Common Stock.

HOUSTON (APRIL 30) PR NEWSWIRE - TME Inc., one of the nation's largest providers of outpatient diagnostic imaging services, has completed a $6.1 million offering to help finance an aggressive program to develop new, and to acquire existing, outpatient facilities.

Making the announcement was Cherrill Farnsworth, president and chief executive officer of TME.

The New York investment firm of Alan Patricof Associates Inc. and existing TME shareholders provided the funds. Alan Patricof Associates manages in excess of $1 billion in venture capital funds.

The infusion of new equity capital leaves TME extremely well-positioned to respond to opportunities to acquire existing outpatient imaging facilities. TME expects the next 12 months to yield a number of attractive acquisition candidates and new development opportunities.

Stephen Jackson, chief financial officer of TME, said: "TME recently completed two successful private offerings with the assistance of PaineWebber. The proceeds of these offerings and the addition of new capital makes TME one of the best-capitalized companies in the diagnostic imaging industry."

Concurrent with the completion of the offering, TME has expanded its board of directors to include Charles Sheedy of Fayez Sarofin & Co., Robert Chefitz and Janet G. Effland of Alan Patricof Associates Inc., and George Asch.

TME, a privately held company with headquarters in Houston, recently was named the 54th fastest-growing private company in the United States by INC. magazine. Founded in 1983, the company operates a network of 15 outpatient diagonostic imaging facilities in eight states.

Information on TME is available by calling 1-800-621-0328.

CHESTERFIELD, MO (APRIL 30) PR NEWSWIRE - Hyundai Motor Finance Co. (HMFC) officially opened its new National Operations Center in Chesterfield, a suburb of St. Louis. Martin Brennan, vice president of operations for HMFC, said, "The offices will open with about 60 employees and may triple in size over the next few years."

This full service National Operations Office opening marked the end of an exhaustive search for a suitable location. Utilizing 33 selection criteria such as: strength of the labor force, stability and potential growth of local economy, facility cost, local taxes both corporate and personal, and central time zone, St. Louis was the clear winner. The new 15,000-square-foot expandable to 44,000- square-foot HMFC offices are located at: 14528 South Outer 40 Road, Chesterfield, MO 63017.

"This HMFC National Operations Center is further evidence of Hyundai Motor America's commitment to the United States market," said President H.W. Baik. "We're following our overall strategic plan to become a full car line import car manufacturer."

The HMFC office typifies the new international financial cooperation with approval coming from Hyundai Motor Co. in Korea, funding secured by a letter of credit from Industrial Bank of Japan, and commercial paper issued through Merrill Lynch in the United States.

Hyundai Motor Finance Co. will serve the 331 Hyundai dealers across the United States with individual customer financing and wholesale dealer inventory financing.

Currently, Hyundai sells the popular subcompact Excel and larger mid-size Sonata in 48 states across the United States. Since entering the American automotive market in 1986, Hyundai has sold more than 900,000 cars. A new sporty-looking vehicle, called Scoupe, will be previewed this summer at Hyundai dealerships.

FORT WORTH, TX (APRIL 30) PR NEWSWIRE - Robert H. McLean, chairman of the board and president of Buffton Corp. (AMEX: BFX), today announced a net loss of $1,465,000, or 38 cents per share, on revenues of $21,366,000 for its second quarter ended March 31, 1990. For the like period last year, net income was $106,000, or 3 cents per share, on revenues of $26,687,000.

For the six months ended March 31, 1990, the net loss was $2,019,000, or 52 cents per share, on revenues of $44,344,000. For the like period last year, net income was $626,000, or 15 cents per share, on revenues of $51,843,000.

In making the announcement, McLean stated, "The performance of our company continues to be affected by the economic downturn in the northeast and southeast, as well as the cyclical and seasonal slowdown in our PVC operations. We have recently seen some improvement in the pricing relating to our PVC pipe operations and portions of the PVC fittings operations. We believe this improvement should be sustained during the third quarter. In addition, our electronics businesses continue to be affected by the slowdown in the computer industry. We believe this softness will continue through most of the third quarter."

McLean further stated, "Because of the improvement in the market conditions affecting our PVC pipe and fittings operations, we are forecasting significant improvement in our third quarter earnings over the second quarter. We are continuing to implement reductions in overhead at the corporate office, as well as at the operating facilities."

ATLANTA (APRIL 30) PR NEWSIRE - Scientific-Atlanta, Inc. (NYSE: SFA) today reported that net earnings for the third quarter ended in March were $11.8 million, 22 percent ahead of the same quarter a year ago, and the best quarterly earnings ever reported by the company.

Higher sales and margins and a lower effective income tax rate generated the 22 percent improvement in earnings. Earnings per share were 51 cents, a 24 percent increase over the prior year. Common shares and common share equivalents averaged 23 million for the quarter, down 3 percent from the prior year.

Sales of $161 million were 19 percent ahead of the same quarter a year ago and were also the highest quarterly sales achieved to date. New orders of $145 million, the highest ever for a third quarter, were up from $132.5 million in last year's third quarter, paced by rising orders for cable television equipment.

Backlog declined to $198 million because of the start of billings on several major Network Systems' contracts and a slowdown in new orders from Instrumentation businesses serving defense markets.

For the nine months ended March, earnings were $31 million, 21 percent ahead of the prior year. Earnings per share were $1.33, a 24 percent increase over the prior year. Sales for the nine months were $453.2 million, up 17 percent from the prior year.

NEW YORK (APRIL 30) PR NEWSWIRE - The board of directors of Ametek Inc. (NYSE: AME) has elected Roger K. Derr executive vice president and chief operating officer of the diversified manufacturer, according to company Chairman Dr. John H. Lux.

Derr, 58, will be responsible for the day-to-day operations of the company's 30 manufacturing facilities with more than 6,000 employees worldwide.

Derr joined Ametek's electric motor division in Kent, Ohio, in 1958 and rose to head the Lamb Electric business in 1970 when he was named general manager. Under his leadership, Lamb Electric grew to be a major supplier of fractional horsepower motors for the floor care and computer industries to manufacturers in 40 countries around the world. Derr was elected a vice president of the corporation in 1972 and a group vice president in 1982. He has served as a senior vice president of Ametek since 1983. In 1985 Derr's assignments were expanded to include responsibilities with most of Ametek's other operating divisions.

A Wooster, Ohio, native, Derr served in the U.S. Air Force from 1951 to 1955. He later attended Kent State University where he earned both a bachelor's degree and a master's degree in business administration. Today, Derr is a member of the Kent State University Foundation's board of directors. He also serves as an outside director for the Oak Rubber and Oak Technical Companies of Ravenna, Ohio.

Derr and his wife, the former Donna Jean Renzenbrink of Canton, Ohio, are the parents of three children and reside in Tallmadge, Ohio.

Listed on the New York Stock Exchange since 1930, Ametek reported 1989 sales of $585 million. The FORTUNE-500 manufacturer has raised cash dividend payments to its stockholders for 40 consecutive years.

PHILADELPHIA (APRIL 30) PRNEWSWIRE - Philadelphia Electric Co. (NYSE: PE) said that Unit No. 2 at the Peach Bottom Atomic Power Station in York County was placed back on line over the weekend after an eight- week outage for maintenance and testing.

PE said Unit 2 was reconnected to the regional power grid Sunday morning. As of 2 p.m. today it was operating at 40 percent of full power, generating 400 megawatts of electricity. It is expected to return gradually to full power during the next several days.

The unit initially was restarted on Saturday, April 21, but was taken off line due to vibrations in the unit's generator exciter. Bearings were replaced and additional maintenance was performed before the unit was restarted.

Unit 2 was taken off line on March 3 for a four-week, mid-cycle outage for maintenance and testing. The outage was extended to accommodate review and testing of the unit's Emergency Service Water (ESW) system.

The extension enabled plant personnel to conduct a series of flow tests on the unit's ESW system, similar to tests done at the plant's Unit 3 during an outage in early March, to make sure the system would receive adequate cooling water in an emergency.

The Unit 2 tests, PE said, confirmed sufficient flow in the ESW system, as did the previous tests on Unit 3. The results of both tests were presented to the NRC prior to the units' restart. Unit 3 went back on line on March 11 and currently is operating at full power.

SEATTLE (APRIL 30) PR NEWSWIRE - Sales of $6.435 billion and net earnings of $302 million or $1.31 per share for the first quarter of 1990 were reported by Frank Shrontz, Boeing (NYSE: BA) chairman and chief executive officer. First quarter 1989 sales were $4.001 billion and net earnings before restatement for the effect of adopting a change in accounting for income taxes were $161 million or 70 cents per share. Including the restatement, first quarter 1989 earnings were $459 million or $1.99 per share. The 1989 data has also been restated for the 1989 three-for-two stock split.

The increase in net earnings compared to the same period of 1989, excluding the 1989 restatement for the accounting change, is primarily due to increased sales volume and improved commercial aircraft operating margins, partially offset by lower other income and a higher effective federal income tax rate.

Key challenges in 1990 in the commercial transport business include achieving higher production rates on the 737, 757 and 767 jet transport programs; significantly improving productivity levels; obtaining firm orders from key customer airlines for the proposed 777 twinjet; and negotiating equitable labor contracts with de Havilland's hourly and general office bargaining units. In the defense and space business, continued emphasis will be placed on streamlining operations to lower costs and improve productivity. The consolidation of all military and space divisions into the Defense & Space Group will provide better management focus and a more efficient use of resources.

During the first quarter, the company's newest jetliner, the 737-500, received Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) certification and the first delivery was made to Southwest Airlines. The 737-500 is just 10 inches longer than the older 737-200 it replaces, but incorporates the advanced technologies of the larger 737-300 and 737-400 models. Orders for the -500 total 192 from 19 customers.

Defense and space sales in the first three months totaled $1.420 billion, $191 million higher than the comparable period of 1989. Defense and space program sales for 1990 are expected to be slightly higher than comparable 1989 sales. Based on current programs and schedules, the company continues to project 1990 sales to be in the $27 billion range.

MIAMI (APRIL 30) PR NEWSWIRE - American Savings and Loan Association of Florida has kicked off a month-long fund raising campaign in support of "Operation Exodus" to resettle Soviet Jews in Israel.

As part of the campaign, the Miami-based thrift will be making a cash donation to "Operation Exodus" for every new checking account, money market account, or CD opened in its Florida East Coast branches during the month of May.

In addition, American Savings is placing ads describing "Operation Exodus" in the Miami Herald, Fort Lauderdale News/Sun-Sentinel and Palm Beach Post and is mailing descriptions of the campaign to more than 85,000 of its customers.

"We have an opportunity to help more than 200,000 people enjoy the fruits of freedom and build new lives for themselves in Israel," explained Harris C. Friedman, chairman and chief executive officer of American Savings. "The door to freedom can suddenly shut again," noted Friedman, explaining why it is critical for concerned Americans to act quickly.

According to Friedman, the purpose of the American Savings campaign is to help raise awareness among its customers. "We know they are concerned, and we want to help them demonstrate that concern." The newspaper ads and the other promotional material provide the names and mailing addresses of the five Jewish Federations in South Florida to which they can send donations.

Customers also will be able to make "Operation Exodus" donations at any one of the 41 conveniently located American Savings branches in Dade, Broward and Palm Beach counties.

American Savings and Loan Association of Florida, with $4.8 billion in assets, provides a range of lending and deposit services through more than 70 full-service retail banking, mortgage origination and consumer lending offices in the state.

DEARBORN, MI (APRIL 30) PR NEWSWIRE - CMS Energy Corporation's independent power production unit, CMS Generation Company, today announced initial test production of electricity at the Filer City Station cogeneration plant located near Manistee, Mich.

"The plant's generator was successfully synchronized to the Consumers Power electric grid six weeks ahead of schedule, delivering approximately seven megawatts of power as part of our startup testing program," said Ashish D. Sarkar, CMS Generation's vice president of project management. "The Filer City Station is being completed within budget, and is now expected to begin commercial operation in June, well ahead of the originally scheduled August date," Sarkar said.

CMS Generation and Tondu Energy Systems, Inc. each hold a 50-percent ownership interest in the Filer City Station, which will provide approximately 100,000 pounds per hour of process steam to an adjacent Packaging Corporation of America paper mill. The plant's entire 54-megawatt electric output will be sold to Consumers Power Company's electric grid under a long-term contract at an avoided cost cogeneration rate approved by the Michigan Public Service Commission. A subsidiary of CMS Generation will operate the coal- and waste wood-fired cogeneration facility.

Ground was broken for construction of the $87 million project in September 1988. The plant's permanent operating work force will number approximately 30 employees. In addition, several local contractors will be involved in providing services for coal and waste wood handling, lime hauling and ash disposal for the project. Construction jobs peaked at 440 employees in 1989.

"The success of this project will provide major economic benefits to the local area and badly needed new electric capacity for Michigan," Sarkar concluded. The Filer City Station's 54-megawatt output will provide enough power to serve a community of 40,000 people.

The Filer City project was built and designed by a joint venture of Southern Electric International, Inc. and Fluor Constructors, Inc.

CMS Energy Corporation (NYSE: CMS) is a $3 billion (sales) diversified energy company with businesses engaged in the distribution of electricity and natural gas, interstate storage and transmission of natural gas, oil and gas exploration and production, independent power generation and utility services. NEW YORK (APRIL 30) PR NEWSWIRE - The Environmental Protection Agency has issued an Administrative Consent Order to W. R. Grace & Co. (NYSE: GRA) allowing it to begin the pilot testing of a groundwater recovery and treatment system at its former Cryovac site in Woburn, Mass., the company announced. The decision issued today is the result of the company's earlier submission of a proposal for the cleanup of the site.

"We are pleased that the EPA has approved Grace's request to allow us to begin the installation of the initial phase of a comprehensive water treatment system," said Charles H. Ehlers, president of Grace's Dewey and Almy Chemical Division.

Grace has worked closely with the EPA since 1986 in order to design a satisfactory pilot study and water treatment system. In September of last year, Grace at the time also endorsed the cleanup plan announced by the EPA.

"Grace has cooperated fully with the EPA over the past few years in order to fulfill its commitment to clean up its property," added Ehlers.

The Order was also issued to the Unifirst Corp. The initial pilot phase of this cleanup system will enable Grace to obtain necessary information before installing a final treatment system. The pilot study will include a pump test to determine such factors as how quickly the water can be extracted and how to remove the largest volume of contaminated groundwater from the site.

In 1986, after a lengthy trial, a federal jury reached an unclear and contradictory verdict regarding allegations against Grace in a suit brought by eight Woburn families, Grace said. The Federal District Court judge overturned the verdict and ordered a new trial.

Following that action by the judge, Grace settled with the eight families out of court in order to avoid the heavy cost and negative publicity associated with a new trial.

NEW YORK (APRIL 30) PR NEWSWIRE - A U.S. district judge here has granted a request from Valvoline Inc. to ban rival motor oil maker Castrol and its advertising agency from using a television commercial that Valvoline charges is "false, misleading and disparaging."

Castrol subsequently advised the court it intends to reformulate the commercial and assured Valvoline's legal counsel that the prohibited version never would be broadcast again.

On April 19, Valvoline filed suit in U.S. District Court here. Scali, McCabe, Sloves, Inc., Castrol's advertising agency, is co-defendant. The action centers around a Castrol commercial that aired initially during the first week in April and was directed against a Valvoline motor oil product. U.S. District Judge Michael B. Mukasey subsequently granted Valvoline's request for a temporary restraining order.

In its complaint, Valvoline alleges that "the Castrol advertising campaign falsely and deceptively disparages Valvoline motor oils, seriously undercuts the company's competitive standing, reputation and goodwill and is causing irreparable harm." In addition to permanently prohibiting Castrol from further use of the false and disparaging commercial, the Valvoline suit seeks unspecified damages.

"The commercial misled the public about the performance of Valvoline motor oil," said Valvoline President John D. Barr. "We can't tolerate such an attack on the integrity of our products and our company," he said. "There is too much at stake, both in terms of protecting the trust we have earned with the motoring public over the past 124 years, and the interests of consumers."

In 1980, Castrol used virtually the same advertising tactic against competition. Two other leading brands -- Quaker State and Pennzoil -- were the targets then. Quaker State took Castrol to court, but only after a futile two-year struggle to resolve the matter in other ways. It reportedly ended with Castrol agreeing to an out-of-court settlement; the contested commercial did not appear again.

Barr expressed "shock and amazement" over the current Castrol commercial in light of Castrol's experience 10 years ago.

CHARLOTTE, NC (April 30) PR Newswire - A national study has ranked First Union National Bank's Capital Management Group in the top three percent of money managers for a ten-year period ended March 31, 1990. First Union has traditionally ranked high, placing among the top three percent for the previous rating period at year-end 1989.

"Our continued presence in the top percentage of money managers nationwide testifies to the success of our investment philosophies," said Richard K. Wagoner, executive vice president of First Union's Capital Management Group.

The study, conducted and published by CDA Investment Technologies, Inc., ranked funds managed by 920 U.S. banks, insurance companies and mutual funds. CDA is an independent investment performance measurement service based in Silver Spring, Md.

First Union's Common Stock Fund for individuals, managed by the bank's Capital Management Group, ranked in the top one percent of money managers and ninth nationwide, with a ten-year cumulative return of 628.0 percent.

The group's Value Equity Fund for retirement accounts ranked in the top four percent of money managers and 29th nationally, with a 557.3 percent return during the rating period.

The Capital Management Group offers investment management and administrative services to corporations for various pension, profit sharing and 401(k) plans, as well as to individual trust accounts, endowments and foundations.

First Union National Bank also serves as investment advisor to the Salem Funds, a family of four mutual funds. The Salem Growth Portfolio's total return, since its March 1985 inception through March 31, 1990, was 94.64 percent, averaging 14.25 percent annually.

For the 12-month period ended March 31, 1990, the Growth Portfolio's total return was 15.54 percent. Total return is a measure of the percentage change in Net Asset Value plus the reinvestment of income dividends and capital gains.

CLARK, NJ (APRIL 30) PR NEWSWIRE - Ketchum & Co. Inc. (AMEX: KCH) reported results for the three-month and six-month periods ended March 31, 1990 at their annual meeting of shareholders held on April 27, 1990. Net sales for the second quarter amounted to $71,036,000 representing an increase of $10,665,000, or 17.7 percent, from the comparable period of the prior year. Net sales for the six months ended March 31, 1990 amounted to $136,016,000 representing an increase of $13,372,000, or 10.9 percent from the same period in fiscal 1989. The company reported a net loss of $580,000 for the quarter ended March 31, 1990, as compared to a loss of $1,907,000 during the same three-month period last year. Net losses for the six-month period ended March 31, 1990 amounted to $1,933,000 as compared to a net loss of $3,185,000 for the six-month period in the prior fiscal year.

The company also announced that the board of directors appointed Jean-Marc Charlier as treasurer and chief financial officer. Previously Charlier served as the company's corporate comptroller.

Jean-Pierre Duche, chairman of the company, reported to shareholders that this is the first three-month period since the third quarter of fiscal 1987 that the company's net loss was less than $1 million. Duche stated to shareholders that he is confident that the progress made by the company in the last year will be reflected in the company's fiscal 1990 results. The management team in place is making great strides to meet their goals for this current year. Duche reported that results for fiscal 1989 were disappointing, but stated that it was a year of stabilization in which many operational and financial problems were resolved. He also said that Ketchum's management team gives Office Commercial Pharmaceutique, the company's French parent, confidence in the continued strengthening of the company. Duche said that it was OCP's belief that the requirement for additional investment by OCP would be significantly reduced from the levels necessary in the past.

NEWTON, MA (APRIL 30) PR NEWSWIRE - Convex Computer Corporation (NYSE: CNX), Richardson, Texas, has become the second major systems vendor in as many months to sign a licensing agreement to market Stardent Computer's Application Visualization System, AVS(tm).

Under the terms of the agreement, Convex will be able to license AVS and provide its supercomputer customers with leading visualization tools in target markets such as petroleum, computational chemistry, government and aerospace, computer-aided engineering and advanced research.

The agreement marks the first time non Stardent-supercomputer users will have access to AVS, an interactive visualization environment which gives scientists, engineers and technical professionals the ability to use advanced graphics and imaging techniques without graphics programming.

With AVS running on both graphics supercomputers or workstations and the Convex host, users can directly access data and interact with their simulations, in a clearly defined and easy to use manner.

"Convex customers indicated that they needed a system to closely integrate our supercomputers with their graphics workstations," said Paul Lambert, Convex graphics product manager. "We found AVS to be the best visualization strategy for all Convex users."

AVS provides a unique visual programming interface that allows the end-user to construct visual applications which incorporate their own computational code. This dramatically increases the users' ability to see and experiment with a simulation under a varying set of conditions.

Stardent Computer Inc. is the leading worldwide supplier of visualization and departmental supercomputers and visualization software for the general scientific and engineering community. All Stardent systems emphasize parallel processing, floating point accelerators, vector processing, advanced compiler technology and AVS software. Applications for the company's products include mechanical computer- aided engineering, computational chemistry, computational fluid dynamics, geophysical analysis, visual simulations, econometric modeling, scientific research and image processing.

Convex Computer Corporation, a leading supplier of supercomputers worldwide, was founded in 1982 to design, manufacture, market, and service high-performance systems. Convex, which is listed in the NYSE with the symbol CNX, has sold more than 650 systems in 33 countries. The installed base now represents more than a quarter billion dollars of cumulative revenues from 400 customes worldwide. The systems are sold and serviced through direct sales and an extensive distribution network.

HOUSTON (APRIL 30) PR NEWSWIRE - Zapata Corp. (NYSE: ZOS) reported an operating loss of $4.2 million for the second quarter of fiscal 1990, compared with a second quarter loss of $5.6 million the year before, Zapata Chairman and Chief Executive Officer R.C. Lassiter said today.

The company reported a net loss of $14.7 million (46 cents a share), versus a net loss of $12.9 million (41 cents a share) for the year-earlier period. Before income taxes, however, the 1990 loss of $16.8 million represented an improvement over the 1989 loss of $18.6 million. The reduced tax benefit rate is a result of lower deferred tax balances in 1990. Revenues for the quarter ended March 31 were $39.8 million, compared with revenues of $38.6 million for the 1989 quarter.

The drilling division recorded an operating loss of $4.2 million on revenues of $18.6 million for the second quarter of 1990, versus a 1989 operating loss of $11.1 million on revenues of $13.0 million.

Zapata's oil and gas divison recorded operating income of $3.9 million on revenues of $9.5 million for the quarter, versus operating income of $5.1 million on revenues of $10.7 million the year before. The 1989 results, however, included a $2.5 million recovery from the Bolivian state-owned oil company. Gas prices were higher for the quarter, while production was approximately the same as the previous year.

Zapata's marine service vessel operations, conducted through the joint venture Zapata Gulf Marine Corp., reported significantly improved results for the quarter. The joint venture had operating income of $2.8 million on revenues of $53.4 million, compared with an operating loss of $0.8 million on revenues of $45.9 million the year before. Zapata Gulf posted a net loss for the quarter of $0.6 million, versus a net loss of $3.3 million in 1989.

For the six-month period ended March 31, Zapata had revenues of $82.5 million, versus $83.8 million a year earlier. The company recorded an operating loss of $5.0 million, compared with a loss of $3.3 million in 1989. A net loss of $22.2 million was posted for the six-month period in 1990, compared with a net loss of $19.6 million the year before.

Zapata Corp. is a Houston-based international company that operates a fleet of offshore drilling rigs, conducts menhaden fishing operations that produce fish meal and edible oil, and produces oil and natural gas.

SAN FRANCISCO (APRIL 30) PR NEWSWIRE - Visa U.S.A. Inc. today announced that its 124 million U.S. cardholders this summer will automatically win part of $40 million in prizes every time they check into any of the 540 Marriott, five Fairmont and 10 Loews hotel and resort locations nationwide.

"I would have to call this the travel tip of the summer," said Visa chief executive officer Charles T. Russell, in announcing "With Our Compliments " the biggest bankcard-usage stimulation program in the history of the lodging industry.

Visa has secured exclusive agreements with Fairmont Hotels and Loews Hotels plus all properties in the Marriott Corporation (NYSE: MHS) family (including Marriott Hotels, Resorts and Suites, Courtyard by Marriott, Fairfield Inn by Marriott, and Residence Inn by Marriott) to offer the first-of-its-kind promotion from May 1 through Aug. 31.

Every time a cardholder checks into any of these hotel or resort sites nationwide with Visa, he or she automatically will receive a free gift -- ranging from discounted meals to five years' worth of resort vacations. A total of 1.5 million individual gifts worth $40 million will be awarded during the 120-day program.

"This is a way to reward cardholders for making Visa the most preferred card for personal travel and entertainment," said Russell.

"We see this as an excellent opportunity to expose our line of multi-brand lodging products to a new and diverse group of consumers," said Todd Clist senior vice president of lodging for Marriott Corporation. "This prestigious and unique promotion will allow this group of consumers to experience Marriott's consistent quality service," he added.

"The partnership is another creative way for us to add value and enjoyment for our hotel guests," said Richard L. Swig, president and CEO of Fairmont Hotels.

"'With Our Compliments' allows us to provide extra value to our loyal guests, and at the same time attract new customers whom we hope will become repeat clientele," said Jonathan Tisch, president and CEO of Loews Hotels.

In addition to regional and national print advertising, Visa member financial institutions are mailing out statement inserts to reach Visa cardholders across the country. In addition, point of purchase materials and "take one" displays are installed throughout the lobbies of all hotels.

Visa, with 220 million cards in circulation, is the world's largest consumer payments system.

MIDLAND, MI (APRIL 30) PR NEWSWIRE - The National Environmental Development Association (NEDA) has named The Dow Chemical Company (NYSE: DOW) to its Earth Day Honor Roll in recognition of Dow's Waste Reduction Always Pays (WRAP) program.

Dow is one of ten corporations honored by NEDA, an association of businesses, labor unions, and other private-sector members which has addressed various environmental, economic, and energy concerns since it was founded in 1973.

"These awards are designed to increase awareness of the general public and policy makers about positive environmental activities of many corporations in America," said Steven B. Hellem, executive vice president of NEDA.

WRAP was initiated at Dow in 1986 to formalize the company's waste reduction activities. The goals of the program are to reduce waste to the environment, provide recognition to Dow employees who excel in reducing waste, and re-emphasize the need for continuous improvement in this area.

Due to WRAP and other programs, Dow has reduced its U.S. Area air emissions by more than 50 percent since 1985, and is committed to reduce these emissions another 50 percent by 1995.

The other companies named to NEDA's Earth Day Honor Roll were: Adolph Coors Company, Air Products and Chemicals, Inc., Corning, Inc., Phillips Petroleum, Solmar, Inc., Texaco Syngas, Inc., Union Carbide, U.S. Windpower, and Zoecon Corp.

Formal recognition and award presentation will take place on June 20 at the NEDA Awards Dinner in the historic Caucus Room at the U.S. House of Representatives in Washington, D.C.

HAMMOND, IN (APRIL 30) PR NEWSWIRE - NIPSCO Industries, Inc. (NYSE: NI) today reported net income of $42.5 million for the first quarter ended March 31, 1990, compared to $48.3 million for the first quarter of last year.

Earnings for the three months ended March 31, 1990 were 61 cents per average common share, compared to 65 cents for the same period in 1989.

Revenues for the first quarter of 1990 were $453.6 million compared to $466.7 million in the first quarter of 1989.

For the first quarter of 1990, gas deliveries dropped 7 percent, reflecting decreased residential and commercial heating usage due to 15 percent fewer heating degree days than the same period a year ago. Electric sales were at the same level as the year earlier period.

For the 12 months ended March 31, 1990, the company recorded net income of $118.0 million or earnings of $1.66 per average common share before reflecting the fourth quarter 1989 extraordinary charge of $51.7 million net of income taxes (73 cents per average common share) for refunds to electric customers for amounts previously collected in rates for the canceled Bailly N1 project, compared to $119.9 million or earnings per share of $1.63 for the 12 months ended March 31, 1989.

Revenues for the 12-month period were $1.546 billion compared to $1.526 billion for the same period ending March 31, 1989.

For the 12 months ended March 31, 1990, electric sales increased 1 percent reflecting increased commercial and industrial demands which were partially offset by decreased residential sales. Gas deliveries for the period were relatively unchanged.

ALPHARETTA, GA (APRIL 30) PR NEWSWIRE - Digital Communications Associates Inc. (DCA) (NYSE: DCA) said today its board of directors has named Charles G. "Garry" Betty president and chief executive officer and Bertil D. Nordin will remain chairman of the board.

"In the short time he has been president, Garry's excellent management capabilities have had a positive impact on DCA's day-to-day operations," Nordin said. "Under his leadership, the company has taken several major steps, including the recent acquisition of Pacific Data Products."

"I am pleased and privileged to accept this new challenge and look forward to building and expanding our personal computer communications and laser printer enhancement businesses," Betty said.

Named president and chief operating officer in September 1989, Betty's responsibilities included the operations of DCA's personal computer communications products. In his newly expanded position, Betty will also assume reponsibility for DCA's financial operations.

In addition, DCA announced its board of directors has authorized the company to repurchase up to an additional $25 million in shares of its own common stock over an indefinite period.

"Having nearly completed a $25 million stock repurchase plan originally authorized in September 1988, we continue our commitment to using our strong cash position in ways that we hope will improve shareholders' value " Nordin said. "Repurchasing our stock is one possible means of achieving that goal."

In April, DCA reported earnings of 64 cents per share or $9.4 million for its third fiscal quarter ended March 31, up 30 percent from 49 cents per share or $7.3 million reported for the same period a year ago. Average shares outstanding for the quarter were 14.7 million vs. 14.9 million a year ago.

DENVER (APRIL 30) PR NEWSWIRE - Presidio Oil Company (AMEX: PRS.A) today announced that it will redeem all of the remaining outstanding shares of its 9.5 percent cumulative convertible preferred stock (the "preferred stock") on June 1, 1990, at the price of $5 per share.

According to the terms of the mandatory redemption, holders of the preferred stock also have until May 24, 1990 to exercise the option of converting their preferred stock into shares of the company's Class A common stock at the rate of 1.25 shares of Class A common stock for each share of preferred stock.

The mandatory redemption follows Presidio's recent successful exchange offer which terminated on April 26, 1990, and which was accepted by holders of 96 percent of the shares of preferred stock outstanding on March 26, 1990.

"The completion of Presidio's exchange offer and the redemption of its preferred shares indicates that the company remains on track in its program to strengthen its balance sheet during 1990," stated Chairman and Chief Executive Officer George P. Giard, Jr.

Presidio also announced that its board of directors has declared a quarterly cash dividend of $.025 per share on the company's Class A common stock, payable May 31, 1990, to holders of record May 11, 1990, and a semi-annual cash dividend of $.2375 per share on the preferred stock payable June 1, 1990, to holders of record May 11, 1990.

CLEVELAND (APRIL 30) PR NEWSWIRE - Bearings, Inc. (NYSE: BER) today reported net income and sales for the third quarter ended March 31, 1990.

Chairman of the Board George L. LaMore reported that third quarter net income was $3,083,000 on sales of $171,114,000. This compares with net income of $4,430,000 on sales of $165,353,000 in the related 1989 quarter. Earnings per share were $.43 compared with $.60 a year ago.

For the nine months ended March 31, net income was $11,394,000 on sales of $486,448,000. Comparable net income was $12,473,000 on sales of $462,124,000 during the prior year. Earnings per share were $1.58 compared with $1.66 a year ago.

During the quarter, the company acquired 19,500 shares of its common stock pursuant to a September 1988 board authorization. On March 31, 1990, the company had board authorization to acquire up to 232,000 additional shares of its common stock in open market and negotiated transactions, from time to time, depending on market conditions.

Commenting on the activities during the quarter, LaMore said that the March 1990 implementation, conversion, and start-up of the company's new OMNEX 2.0 computer system had delayed reporting results for the quarter ended March 31. Operating results for the quarter and nine months were principally affected by a decline in gross margin associated with competitive market conditions and increased net-interest expense. The conversion of OMNEX 2.0 is progressing and complete implementation is expected to improve gross margin percentage, rate of inventory turnover, and to enhance customer service from each of the company's 269 branch locations.

LEBEC, CA (APRIL 30) PR NEWSWIRE - Tejon Ranch Co. (AMEX: TRC) today reported a net loss from operations of $100,000 for the first quarter ending March 31, 1990. This compares with a net loss of $21,000 from operations for the first quarter in 1989. For each of the quarters the loss is less than $.01 per share.

The increase in the first quarter loss from operations, compared to 1989, is largely associated with lower livestock earnings and increases in fixed water charges. These losses were partially offset by a reduction in corporate general and administrative expenses and reduced land planning expenses. The reduction in livestock earnings and the increases in fixed water charges are related to the drought condition on the Ranch.

Total revenues from operations, including interest income, for the quarter were $1,492,000 as compared to $1,566,000 for the same period in 1989.

Tejon Ranch Company owns approximately 270,000 acres of land approximately 60 miles north of Los Angeles and is engaged in cattle, farming, oil and minerals, and commercial highway leasing operations.

MIDLAND, TX (APRIL 30) PR NEWSWIRE - Insilco Corporation announced today that it plans to file tomorrow with the SEC a registration statement for an exchange offer. The offer will consist of a combination of cash and a new debt security for its existing senior subordinated notes and a combination of the new debt security and equity for its subordinated discount debentures. The exchange offer will be made only by means of a prospectus after the registration statement is declared effective by the SEC.

Under terms of the exchange offer, holders of 15 percent senior subordinated notes due 1999 would receive $250 of cash and $400 principal amount of new 12 percent senior subordinated notes due 1998, and holders of subordinated discount debentures due 2001 would receive a package consisting of $63 principal amount of the new 12 percent senior subordinated notes due 1998 and 38 shares of convertible preferred stock, convertible into Insilco Class B common stock.

The cash portion of the exchange offer will be provided by the purchase of $20 million in convertible preferred stock by the company's controlling shareholders and additional bank borrowings under the company's existing revolving credit facility.

The offer will be conditioned upon, among other things, at least 90 percent of the outstanding principal amount of each of the existing senior subordinated notes and subordinated discount debentures being validly tendered and not withdrawn.

The company said that the new senior subordinated notes are intended to rank senior to the untendered old bonds. Insilco will also request exchanging bondholders to eliminate substantially all covenants in the old securities.

MOUNT AIRY, NC (APRIL 30) PR NEWSWIRE - Insteel Industries, Inc. (AMEX: III), one of the nation's largest wire products manufacturers, today announced that it has signed an agreement with Stelwire, a Hamilton, Ontario-based business unit of Stelco, Inc., under which Stelwire will become the master distributor for Canada for the Insteel Construction System's 3-D(TM) panel.

Stelwire will proceed immediately with obtaining approval of the system from the Canada Mortgage and Housing Corporation and provincial code authorities. The Insteel 3-D compliance report was issued effective on March 1, 1990, by the Southern Building Code Congress International Inc. in the United States. Upon obtaining approval from the appropriate Canadian authorities, Stelwire will stock the panels in Ontario and Quebec and possibly other locations for immediate shipment to customers.

The Insteel 3-D Panel Building System, which was invented in Austria by EVG Industries and is new to North America, is produced by Insteel Construction Systems, Inc., at its plant in Brunswick, Ga.

The 3-D element is a three-dimensional welded wire space frame integrated with an expanded polystyrene insulating core. The lightweight 3-D element is shipped and erected without concrete. After erection on the job site, concrete is applied to each side of the element, producing a steel-reinforced concrete sandwich wall.

The 3-D panel system offers design flexibility for architects and engineers by permitting various combinations of steel mesh diameters, strengths and concrete thicknesses. It can be utilized for a variety of applications, including residential, commercial, industrial and institutional structures. End uses include single- or multi-story construction for regular or low-cost "affordable" housing; curtain, privacy, sound barrier and retaining walls, and precast panel sections for low- or high-rise construction.

The system has many advantages over conventional construction materials, including built-in thermal insulation, excellent sound characteristics, improved security, low maintenance costs, and ease of installation.

"The agreement with Stelwire," said Howard O. Woltz Jr., Insteel chairman, "provides 3-D with very broad exposure early in its history. Our joint efforts should serve to heighten interest in 3-D as a new and highly advantageous means of construction."

Stelco, Inc. produces and markets a comprehensive line of wire products through its Stelwire business unit. Insteel Industries, Inc., one of the largest wire products manufacturers in the United States, produces welded wire reinforcement, high and low carbon industrial wire, galvanized fencing products, specialty wire fabrics and nails.

NEW YORK (APRIL 30) PR NEWSWIRE - Cambridge Capital Fund, L.P., a

Delaware limited partnership, announced today that it had delivered a letter to the board of directors of Whitehall Corporation (NYSE: WHT) stating that Cambridge disputes the proxy tabulation and the legality of the election results for the voting for directors at the annual meeting of Whitehall Corporation.

The meeting was held on April 23 but adjourned until April 30 for counting the votes and announcing the election results. Cambridge also stated that it is withdrawing the merger proposal it had previously made to pay Whitehall stockholders at least $20 per share. The complete text of Cambridge's letter follows:

We are deeply troubled by reports received from stockholders regarding the methods used by Lee Webster in the recent proxy solicitation for the annual meeting of Whitehall.

Stockholders have informed us that as part of the company's solicitation, Mr. Webster made statements concerning a purported contract with Federal Express for Whitehall's Aero subsidiary, culminating in an "inadvertent" release and "retraction" shortly before the annual meeting. We are dismayed to learn from a report in the Lake City, Fla., newspaper that Mr. Webster informed employees on Wednesday, April 26, that Federal Express has now terminated negotiations with Whitehall. In addition, we have learned that Mr. Webster made earnings projections and disclosures regarding the number of proxies in hand that are in possible contravention of Securities and Exchange Commission rules and regulations.

Although Cambridge Capital disputes the current proxy tabulation and the legality of the election results in light of the foregoing, it is gratified that at least 46 percent of the votes cast were for one of its nominees (representing 56 percent of the voting shares not affiliated with either Cambridge Capital or Mr. Webster). However, Cambridge Capital is disappointed that it did not achieve the majority needed to implement its merger proposal to pay stockholders at least $20 per share.

Accordingly, Cambridge Capital is withdrawing its merger proposal, Cambridge, as the largest independent stockholder of Whitehall, holds each of the directors personally accountable for the management of the company. We regard the failure of Whitehall to obtain the Federal Express business as a further example of Mr. Webster's inability to manage the company for the benefit of all the stockholders and an important fact for the board to weigh as it considers all future actions, including the election of new officers of Whitehall.

BOISE, ID (APRIL 30) PR NEWSWIRE - William M. Agee, chairman and chief executive officer of Morrison Knudsen Corp. (MK) (NYSE: MRN), reviewed the significant events of the past year with the company's shareholders today at the 1990 annual meeting.

Agee noted that the company's consistent, six-quarter operational earnings trend continued through 1990's first quarter with net income of $7.2 million.

Included in Agee's discussion was a summary of new work since last year's shareholders meeting, including the selection of an MK joint venture for the prestigious Superconducting Super Collider project. He cited the award of a $208-million contract from the Chicago Transit Authority as special because it breaks new ground for the company by starting the Rail Systems Group in the new transit car industry.

He also cited this year's receipt of a contract to design and build a $200-million industrial plant in Singapore for Du Pont and the Mining Group's acquisition of equity positions in precious metal properties as significant recent achievements.

During a meeting prior to the annual meeting of shareholders, Morrison Knudsen's board of directors declared a cash dividend of 37 cents per share to be paid June 18 to shareholders of record May 16.

In other business, shareholders re-elected three directors to three-year terms, approved the company's Stock Option Plan for Non-Employee Directors and amendment to the Morrison Knudsen Corp. Stock Option Plan, and ratified the selection of Deloitte & Touche as independent auditors of the company for 1990.

Directors re-elected are Harold W. Andersen, director and contributing editor of the Omaha World Herald; Christopher B. Hemmeter, founder, chairman and chief executive officer of the Hemmeter Corp.; and Robert A. McCabe, president of Pilot Capital Corp.

(1) On June 30, 1989, Tosco completed its acquisition of Seminole Fertilizer Corp. (Seminole) for approximately $133.1 million, including transaction costs. Tosco accounted for the acquisition as a purchase; accordingly, the financial results of operations of Seminole have been included in Tosco's consolidated results of operations beginning July 1, 1989.

Sales for the first quarter of 1990 include revenues of approximately $54 million related to the trading (purchase and resale for anticipated profit) of crude oil cargoes. Resales of other purchased crude oil (to dispose of excess crude oil or to reduce the cost of the desired mix of crude oil required by the Avon Refinery) continue, as in prior years, to be recorded as a reduction of crude oil costs.

(2) The increase in interest expense for the quarter ended Mar. 31, 1990 is primarily due to the higher level of debt associated with the acquisition of Seminole ($120 million loan incurred to finance the acquisition as well as the debt of Seminole acquired).

BOISE, ID (APRIL 30) PR NEWSWIRE - Morrison Knudsen Corp. (MK) (NYSE: MRN) announced today that the company has been selected by the Department of Energy (DOE) to manage construction of between $500 million and $1 billion of work over seven years at the DOE's Oak Ridge (Tennessee) Operations. A contract is expected to be signed in July.

MK's cost-plus award fee contract will be effective Oct. 1, 1990, and will extend through Sept. 30, 1997.

The work will occur at three plant sites within the DOE's Oak Ridge Operations. This work will encompass new construction and plant modifications.

MK is currently performing similar construction-management services for DOE at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory under a five-year, approximately $300-million contract. The company also is program-management contractor for the DOE's Oak Ridge office for clean-up of a Superfund hazardous waste site at Weldon Spring, Missouri.

CALGARY, ALBERTA (APRIL 30) PR NEWSWIRE - Encor Inc. today announced its financial and operating results for the three months ended Mar. 31, 1990. Funds generated from operations totalled $30.3 million or 20 cents per share (13 cents per share, fully diluted), up 32 percent from the pro forma period in 1989. The net loss applicable to common shares for the quarter amounted to $16.2 million or 11 cents per share compared to a net loss of $4.5 million or three cents per share for the same period in 1989.

Net revenues of $83.4 million reflect a four percent improvement over 1989 pro forma results for the period as increased product prices more than offset a 10 percent decline in liquids volumes and a three per cent decrease in natural gas volumes. The reductions in volume were due mainly to the asset dispositions completed in the second half of 1989. Expenses, at $74.8 million, declined 26 percent largely due to lower dry hole and abandonment costs which reflect a reduction in international activities and 1989 write-offs of certain international assets which had been recognized as pre-production costs in prior years.

Other factors contributing to the reduction in expenses include lower production costs which result from the 1989 disposition of producing properties and lower amortization of undeveloped rights as fewer leases expired. The resulting income from operations of $8.6 million represents a $29.5 million increase over $20.9 million loss in the corresponding period in 1989. Financial charges were 15 percent lower in the first quarter of 1990 reflecting the reduction in long-term debt that occurred in 1989.

Capital expenditures and exploration expenses for the first quarter of $25.1 million, were largely made in western Canada. At the end of Mar., 14 exploratory wells have been completed with a success ratio of 57 percent and 36 development wells have been drilled with a success ratio of 83 percent. This drilling activity compares with 11 exploratory and 36 development wells for the first quarter in 1989.

(APRIL 30) UPI - Michael Jordan may have been the victim of a thunderous knockdown, but it is the Milwaukee Bucks that are on the verge of being knocked out of the NBA playoffs.

Jordan, who was slammed to the floor early in the final quarter, scored 36 points and Scottie Pippen added a career-high 32 Sunday to lead the Chicago Bulls to a 109-102 triumph over the Bucks and 2-0 advantage in their Eastern Conference playoff series.

The Bulls, who have beaten the Bucks in 19 of their last 21 meetings, can sweep the best-of-five series with a victory in Game 3 at Milwaukee Tuesday night.

Chicago led 79-75 through three quarters and suffered a scare 19 seconds into the final quarter when Jordan appeared seriously injured.

The four-time defending NBA scoring champion drove the baseline for a layup and was taken down hard by Greg Anderson. He remained motionless on the floor for several minutes as the Chicago Stadium crowd of 18,676 stood in silence. But Jordan slowly shook off the effects of the collision and remained in the game.

''It was scary,'' Jordan said. ''I didn't know if I was hurt. I felt kind of funny, and it was the first time I actually fell on my head, and I hit it pretty hard. But I'm glad I'm all right.''

Anderson got a lot of the ball, and Milwaukee Coach Del Harris said it was debatable whether there should have been a foul called.

''It was a tough call,'' Harris said. ''It was a great block, and Michael came down hard. There was never any question to whether it was an intentional or flagrant foul.''

Milwaukee, fighting from behind most of the game, nearly came through despite playing without guard Jay Humphries much of the way. Humphries was limited to just 20 minutes with a pulled groin muscle.

The Bucks ran off eight straight points midway through the final quarter to pull ahead for the last time at 89-88 with 5:28 to go. The Bulls followed with a 9-1 surge, Jordan capping it with a three-point play, to take the lead for good.

The Bucks managed to close within 102-100 on a Ricky Pierce three-pointer with 58 seconds left. But Jordan responded with a baseline jumper with 37 seconds to go, and the Bucks turned the ball over on an inbounds play.

Bill Cartwright hit one of two free throws with 25 seconds left to make the score 105-100, then got his own rebound and added another free throw with 15 seconds remaining to seal the triumph.

Paul Pressey led the Bucks with 25 points, while Pierce finished with 23. The Milwaukee bench outscored the Chicago reserves 62-8.

In other playoff action Sunday, the LA Lakers outlasted Houston 104-100, Philadelphia slammed Cleveland 107-101 and Phoenix thrashed Utah 105-87.

Lakers 104, Rockets 100

At Inglewood, Calif., James Worthy scored 32 points, two coming off his steal and slam with 64 seconds left, to help the Lakers rally from a 19-point deficit to a 2-0 lead in their Western Conference series. Magic Johnson added 17 points and 14 assists for the Lakers, who have won 20 straight first-round playoff games dating back to 1984. Sleepy Floyd had 27 points, Vernon Maxwell 24 and Buck Johnson 16 for Houston. Game 3 of the series is scheduled for Tuesday night at Houston.

76ers 107, Cavaliers 101

At Philadelphia, Charles Barkley scored 32 points to lead the 76ers within one game of a sweep of their Eastern Conference series. Barkley, who had 38 points in the 76ers' victory Thursday night, sparked a third-quarter rally that gave Philadelphia the lead for good, then scored several key baskets down the stretch to preserve the victory. Cleveland got 27 points from Mark Price, a career-high 22 from Winston Bennett and 21 from Brad Daugherty. Game 3 is scheduled for Tuesday night in Cleveland.

Suns 105, Jazz 87

At Salt Lake City, Kevin Johnson returned from a bout with the flu to score 22 points and Mark West hauled down 21 rebounds as the Suns evened their Western Conference series 1-1. Phoenix held Utah to its second-worst NBA playoff scoring output. Karl Malone led Utah with 20 points - 11 below his season average - before fouling out late in the final period. Game 3 of the series is scheduled for Wednesday night in Phoenix.

(APRIL 30) UPI - Good news for American League hitters: Dave Stewart has run out of April.

Stewart, who hasn't lost in April in three years, ran his record to 5-0 this season and extended his April winning-streak to 19 games Sunday as the Oakland Athletics edged the Boston Red Sox and Roger Clemens 1-0.

Stewart, whose last April loss came in 1987, limited the Red Sox to six hits over 7 2-3 innings, striking out six and walking four. Despite winning 20 games in each of the last three seasons, Stewart is yet to win a Cy Young Award, something he is not concerned with this year.

''I'm not thinking about it this year. I thought about it the last three years and it never happened,'' said Stewart. ''People don't mention my name when it comes to the best pitchers in the league. But it'll come with time. You can't forget numbers.''

Stewart escaped Boston jams most of the afternoon with solid fielding and closing four innings with Boston runners in scoring position.

''I don't know if Clemens was 100 percent today, but his heart was 100 percent and that's what we see from Stew every time, too,'' Oakland Manager Tony La Russa said.

''They're both so similar. They're such competitors. These two guys were unbelievable.''

Clemens, 4-1, surrendered only four hits while battling through early control problems to last seven innings. His record dropped to 2-7 against the Athletics and 1-4 lifetime against Stewart.

''It was a great confrontation,'' Boston's Ellis Burks said. ''Everybody knew it would probably be a pitchers' game.''

Clemens said everybody ''just knew it would probably be a low run-scoring game like it was. We couldn't have asked for more chances, though.''

The Athletics got their run in the first inning. Rickey Henderson walked, advanced on a groundout and scored on Jose Canseco's RBI single.

Elsewhere Sunday in the American League, Cleveland topped Minnesota 6-4, Milwaukee ripped Detroit 6-1, California nipped New York 4-3, Chicago pounded Toronto 10-3, Kansas City beat Texas 5-2 and Baltimore edged Seattle 5-4.

In the National League, it was: Atlanta 3, Philadelphia 1; Montreal 6, Cincinnati 3; Houston 2, New York 1; San Francisco 9, St. Louis 7; Pittsburgh 10, San Diego 1; and Chicago 4, Los Angeles 0.

Indians 6, Twins 4

At Cleveland, Sandy Alomar scored two runs and drove in another as the Indians remained unbeaten in six home games. Greg Swindell, 2-2, pitched 5 2-3 innings for the victory and got relief help from Steve Olin and Doug Jones, who pitched two innings for his sixth save. In winning their fourth straight game, the Indians remained baseball's only unbeaten team at home. Roy Smith, 0-3, was the loser for the Twins who have dropped four straight.

Brewers 6, Tigers 1

At Detroit, Paul Molitor and Glenn Braggs each belted homers and Chris Bosio kept Milwaukee starters unbeaten in a game that included a bench-clearing brawl. Bosio, 3-0, had a shutout until the sixth, when he gave up a walk and two singles. Dan Petry, 1-1, took the loss. In the seventh, Detroit reliever Edwin Nunez threw inside on Gary Sheffield, who charged the pitcher. After a couple minutes of pushing and shoving, players left the field.

Angels 4, Yankees 3

At New York, Mark Langston scattered six hits over six innings as the Angels salvaged the finale of a three-game series. Langston improved to 2-1. Mark Eichhorn allowed one run in the seventh and Byan Harvey earned his second save despite allowing a ninth-inning run. Dave LaPoint, 1-2, took the loss.

White Sox 10, Blue Jays 3

At Chicago, Sammy Sosa belted a three-run home run and Carlos Martinez added a solo shot and two-run single to help the White Sox complete a sweep of their three-game series. Eric King, 1-0, gave up eight hits over five innings for the win. Wayne Edwards finished up for his first major-league save. Martinez and Sosa both homered off Toronto starter Jimmy Key, 2-1.

Royals 5, Rangers 2

At Kansas City, Mo., Bo Jackson returned to the Kansas City lineup and scored twice and drove in a run, helping the Royals snap a six-game losing streak. Kansas City's 6-12 record is the team's worst start since 1981. Jeff Montgomery, 1-1, pitched two perfect innings for the victory. Mark Davis earned his fourth save. Kenny Rogers, 1-1, took the loss in his first major-league start.

Orioles 5, Mariners 4

At Baltimore, Rene Gonzales belted a home run with one out in the ninth inning to snap a six-game Baltimore losing streak and a four-game winning streak by the Mariners. Gonzales, a .167 hitter, belted a delivery from reliever Mike Jackson, 1-1, 420 feet over the left-field fence for his first home run of the season. Mark Williamson, 1-0, allowed two hits over 2 1-3 innings for the win.

#90120u0083 04/30/1990 ~United Press International
WASHINGTON (APRIL 30) UPI - Racial tensions, sexism, abusive language, substance abuse and crime are playing an increasingly disturbing part of campus life and weakening the undergraduate experience, a report released showed.

The Carnegie Foundation study contended that a larger, more integrated vision of ''community'' is needed to improve college students' classroom and social experience.

The study was based on surveys of 500 college and university presidents, 500 student affairs officers and many interviews with students, faculty and administrators,

''We conclude that the idyllic vision so routinely portrayed in college promotional materials often masks disturbing realities of student life. On most campuses, expectations regarding the personal conduct of students are ambiguous at best,'' according to the study, which was released Sunday.

''The goal as we see it is to clarify both academic and civic standards, and above all, to define with some precision, the enduring values that undergird a community of learning,'' it said.

The presidents said racial and ethnic divisions are deepening, with 24 percent saying racial tensions are a major problem.

The president of the black student body at the University of Massachusetts Amherst, said, ''I think within the next decade we will see an increase in racial altercations, not just white on black, but black on white.''

The issue appears especially troublesome at the large research and doctorate-granting institutions, where 68 percent of those presidents said racism was a major problem.

Various forms of anti-Semitism also are flaring up - the study cited instances of fraternity theme parties mocking Jews - and sexist attitudes and sexual harassment persist.

''Sexual insults and prejudicial acts are intolerable, but most shocking are the physical assaults against women, which were reported on nearly a third of the campuses we visited,'' the report said.

Incidents of racial, ethnic and sexual slurs are occurring more often, the study said in noting efforts being made to regulate offensive speech are encountering opposition from those wishing to uphold free speech rights.

''We conclude that restrictive codes ... do not provide a satisfactory response to offensive language,'' the report said in encouraging campuses to define high standards of civility and condemn any violations.

Crime on campus appears to be on the upswing, with one-quarter of the surveyed student affairs officers reporting an increase over the past five years, the study said.

''We also found a close connection between alcohol abuse and campus crime '' the study said. ''Further, contrary to conventional wisdom, most criminal activity is committed not by 'outsiders' but by students.''

Substance abuse, primarily involving alcohol, ranked highest among presidents' campus life issues of greatest concern.

(APRIL 30) UPI - The Islamic Dawn Organization... a group in Lebanon NOT heard from before... issued a statement Sunday, announcing it would release American hostage Frank Reed within 48 hours. The group released the statement to a Beirut newspaper, along with a photo of a bearded and smiling Reed.

In Massachusetts, Reed's elderly mother says the State Department told her Sunday afternoon her son may be released soon. Leota Sprague noted her son's release is NOT yet a sure thing, but nevertheless expressed optimism. Says Reed's brother, Edward- ''We're in a very relaxed, humorous, hopeful mood.''

Panamanian President Guillermo Endara arrived in Washington, D-C, Sunday on a five-day U-S visit. He'll meet with President Bush Monday and on Tuesday travel to New York to meet with Chase Manhattan Bank executives. Bush administration officials say Endara's visit will highlight the White House's push for 720-Million dollars in aid to Panama and Nicaragua.

Panamanian police have arrested seven suspects in the kidnapping and slaying of the three-year-old grandson of a former military official. The grandson of former Panamanian Defense Forces chief of staff Marcos Justine was found decapitated 10 days ago... one week after being abducted. Justine is in a Panamanian prison on embezzling charges.

(APRIL 30) UPI - A Salvadoran church official says President Cristiani's plan to cut aid to the poor in order to fund the military will hurt those most affected by the civil war. He says there's NO justification for any measure that'd take money away from the poorest people. Last week, Cristiani said he would divert money from social programs to defense if the United States reduces military aid.

Nepal's Christian minority is demanding religious freedom and calling for the government to free people jailed for proselytizing. The Hindu kingdom allows freedom of religion but prohibits the spread of religions other than Hindu. A Christian leader, Simon Pandey, says- ''Everybody has a right to choose a religion.''

SINGAPORE (APRIL 30) UPI - Organizers behind the planned broadcasts of pro-democracy messages from a ship off China's coast Monday rejected Beijing's claim that the mission was illegal.

''We will proceed exactly as we planned,'' said Christophe Nick, a French journalist and an originator of the project who was awaiting arrival of the Goddess of Democracy, named after a statue built by students in Beijing's Tiananmen Square before the bloody crackdown on their pro-democracy movement.

The ship was originally expected to arrive in Singapore for more supplies Friday but was delayed by a severe Indian Ocean storm.

The official Xinhua news agency said Sunday that Taiwan's willingness to assist the vessel was an ''open provocation'' against China. It is ''totally illegal for the so-called Goddess of Democracy ship to broadcast on high seas toward the Chinese mainland,'' the Xinhua commentary added.

''That's absolutely crazy,'' said Nick. ''The Chinese are trying to make up new international regulations. How could Taiwan forbid a boat in need the right to resupply?''

The Chinese Foreign Ministry has not ruled out the use of force to halt the broadcasts of music, news and pro-democracy reports from international waters starting next month.

''If countries complied with China's stand, international maritime practices would be back in the Middle Ages,'' Nick said.

Despite an earlier warning from Beijing, Singapore officials announced last week the 1,140-ton research vessel turned pirate radio ship would be allowed to dock in Singapore.

The first nation to feel China's wrath was France, where Chinese student leaders and dissidents fled after government forces rolled into Tiananmen Square last June and crushed the pro-democracy movement.

China demanded the ship be stopped from sailing. Paris refused and the red-and-white vessel departed March 17, carrying one television studio, two radio studios and a French crew and technicians.

The Goddess of Democracy is sponsored by a coalition of groups headed by the French news magazine Actuel, with the cooperation of the Federation for a Democratic China, a Paris-based Chinese dissident organization.

Nick said there are currently no Chinese dissidents aboard, only French citizens. Xinhua charged that leading Chinese dissidents planned to board in Taiwan to conduct ''anti-Chinese government propaganda.''

Taiwan has confirmed that following its stop in Singapore the vessel will be allowed to dock at the port of Keelung, north of Taipei, and the military will protect the Goddess of Democracy if attacked while in Taiwan waters.

Xinhua said the use of the harbor on the nationalist-held island was a ''new step to oppose the Chinese government and create disturbances on the Chinese mainland.''

The Goddess of Democracy heads to Taiwan through a stretch of water where piracy is rampant, and will also pass by the disputed Spratly Islands in the South China Sea.

China has fought several skirmishes with Vietnam over the scattered chain of coral atolls, which both countries claim.

RIGA, Latvia, U.S.S.R. (APRIL 30) UPI - The nationalist Popular Front suffered an election setback, winning only four of the 17 remaining seats in the Latvian Parliament, but the front's leaders said it has enough support from other lawmakers to pass an independence resolution Thursday.

The election Sunday, coming four days before Parliament's expected vote on independence for the Baltic republic, could determine whether Latvia follows neighboring Lithuania in a bid to break from a half-century of Soviet rule.

Imants Ziedonis, a Latvian poet and head of the Latvian Cultural Foundation, said before the voting that the nationalists had to take control of Parliament to stop ''the Russian elephant that is stomping on the Baltic ant hill.''

The Latvian Popular Front claims it won 124 places in the republic's 201-seat Supreme Soviet in the first round of voting March 18 and needed to win 10 of 17 remaining spots in the runoff election to gain a clear two-thirds majority necessary to proclaim independence when the new Parliament opens Thursday.

But results announced on Latvian television at midnight Sunday showed the Popular Front winning only four seats, with other candidates taking 11. One race was too close to call, and another runoff was necessary in another district because neither candidate drew more than half the vote.

The runoff election results left the Popular Front several seats short of the outright two-thirds majority needed to declare independence, but leaders of the nationalist organization said they still have enough support from other Parliament members to pass an independence resolution.

Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev has warned Latvia and Estonia that if they move rapidly to secede, they will face the same tough economic measures he has imposed in Lithuania, the third Baltic republic that was annexed in a secret deal between Moscow and Nazi Germany in 1940.

Gorbachev, who has demanded that Lithuania annul its March 11 declaration of independence before negotiations can begin, cut off oil shipments and most deliveries of other raw materials to the defiant republic beginning April 18.

The Estonian Parliament, also controlled by nationalists following elections last month, passed a weaker declaration March 30 calling for phased independence but Gorbachev has not matched the tough steps taken in Lithuania.

The Latvian Popular Front has vowed to defy Gorbachev and push through an independence proclamation soon after the new Parliament convenes May 3.

Unlike its fellow Baltic republics, where Lithuanians and Estonians claim comfortable majorities of the population, only 52 percent of Latvia's 2.7 million people are Latvians. The 935,000 Russians in Latvia make up 34 percent of its population.

The front said a recent straw vote among its deputies elected last month showed overwhelming support for quick and decisive movement toward secession.

Even before the polls closed Sunday, the front caucus of deputies met at the Latvian Academy of Sciences to begin choosing what they believe will be the new government after the Legislature convenes.

Interviews at several Riga polling places indicated voting was following ethnic lines, with Latvians chosing front candidates and Russians and Russian-speaking people of other nationalities supporting their opponents.

After casting her ballot at Polling Station No. 20 in the historic Agenskalns district of the medieval city, 24-year-old Latvian Dr. Ilze Barone said she had voted for front candidate Leopolds Ozolins, also a physician and a local environmentalist.

''I'm a doctor myself and he's also a big defender of ecology,'' she said.

But a middle-aged woman, who identified herself as a Russian Jew but declined to give her name, said she had voted for Ozolins' opponent, Igor Garaev, a Russian who heads a Riga district branch of the Latvian Communist Party.

''We think he'll do more for the Russian-speaking people,'' she said. ''If I were Latvian, I would also be for independence, but my position is a little different because I'm the wife of a Soviet military officer.''

President Bush declined to speculate on the situation as he returned Sunday from a golf game. Quoting the president- ''If that proves to be true, that's wonderful.'' The Islamic Dawn Organization said it plans to release Frank Reed within 48 hours.

Latvia's nationalist Popular Front did NOT get the victory some had predicted would come as a result of Sunday's run-off parliamentary elections. The party only came away with four out of 17 remaining seats, falling short of the two-thirds majority needed to launch a strong secessionist campaign. But leaders of the nationalist organization in the Soviet republic say they still have enough support in Parliament to pass a resolution seeking independence from Moscow.

HO CHI MINH CITY, Vietnam (APRIL 30) UPI - Vietnam's communists, facing economic difficulty and political uncertainty, Monday celebrated the 15th anniversary of their victory over the U.S.-backed South Vietnamese government with traditional dragon dances and fireworks.

Nguyen Van Linh, general secretary of the Communist Party, told United Press International that Vietnam wanted to forget the U.S. involvement in the Vietnam War and renew relations.

''We wish to forget the past and we wish to have cooperation with the American people and the American government,'' Linh said in an impromptu interview at the anniversary celebration.

Linh spoke in a park behind the presidential palace where a North Vietnamese tank smashed through the gates April 30, 1975, to end the 20-year struggle to reunite the country.

He called for an end to an American embargo on aid and trade with Vietnam, admitting that Vietnam faced ''many difficulties.''

Linh said the anniversary marked the end of more than a century of colonialism, division and war as well as the victory over the U.S.-backed government of South Vietnam.

Communist leaders and specially invited guests listened to speeches and watched an exhibition of dragon dances, fireworks and the music of Vietnam's ethnic minority.

For the former soldiers of the defeated regime, there was little to celebrate, but there was no immediate sign of rumored anti-government activity.

''It all seems like a dream, a bad dream when we think about the end of the war,'' said a former air force security officer.

The officer recalled that he had been ordered to stand guard at Tan Son Nhut airport on the final day of the war.

''I watched as my commander got on a plane and flew away, leaving us all behind,'' he said.

The officer, who asked not to be identified, said all he hoped for now was to go to the United States with his wife, an Amerasian fathered by an American early in the war.

Gen. Tran Van Tra, commander of the communist forces that captured what was then Saigon, said the victory was glorious, but he called for new contacts with American veterans of the Vietnam War.

Tra, vice chairman of a newly established Vietnam Veterans Association, said his group wanted relations with veterans of the United States and former South Vietnamese forces ''in order to promote peace.''

In a speech at the anniversary celebration, the outspoken general emphasized the economic and political problems still facing the country.

Tra, who has occasionally criticized the Communist Party, said major mistakes had been made after the victory, such as trying to force the country to adapt to socialism too quickly.

After the ceremony, he told UPI the country had to fight corruption, excessive bureaucracy, theft of government property, incompetence and lack of democracy.

''We must work for democratization, but it must be democratization in good order,'' he said.

Tra said he worried that if political change moved too fast the Vietnamese Communist Party could go the way of communist parties in Eastern Europe.

''We don't want to follow that kind of democratization,'' he said, in apparent reference to Poland's struggling economy and Romania's ethnic unrest and continued anti-communist unrest.

Diplomatic sources said Vietnamese leaders were engaged in a struggle over the pace and extent of change, with a senior Politburo leader being fired last month for demanding speedier reform.

The economy has done better in the past year because of market-oriented reforms, but it is expected to have difficulty compensating for expected reductions in Soviet aid and for the return of thousands of Vietnamese workers who have been remitting money from their jobs in Eastern Europe.

TOKYO (APRIL 30) UPI - The first group of boat people to arrive in Japan this year landed Monday on the southern main island of Kyushu, signaling immigration and maritime authorities to prepare for a huge influx of refugees, officials said.

A group of 40 refugees arrived at Sasebo Port on Kyushu Monday morning, the Fukuoka Immigration Office on Kyushu said.

The refugees told investigators they boarded the ship at Mon Cai Port near the Vietnam-Chinese border March 25 en route to Japan, immigration officials said.

The first group of boat people to arrive in Japan this year will be taken to a reception center in Omura near Nagasaki, where they will be screened by immigration officials.

The immigration officials suspected the refugees may have stopped in southern China and transferred to a larger ship to accommodate Chinese economic refugees coming to Japan.

The group arrived aboard a 50-ton steel vessel, commonly used by the Chinese, the officials said.

A total of 22 ships carrying 2,804 boat people, mostly Chinese economic refugees posing as Vietnamese, arrived in southern Japan between May 29 and Oct. 27 last year. In addition, 306 boat people rescued at sea by a U.S. oil tanker were brought to Japan.

Japan tightened the screening of boat people to prevent entry of Chinese fleeing China for economic reasons.

More than 2,500 boat people who have been found to be Chinese economic refugees would be sent back to China, the Justice Ministry said.

A total of 792 Chinese have been sent back while an additional 1,855 Chinese are awaiting deportation, the ministry said.

Japan does not accept political and economic refugees but allows a small number of Vietnamese boat people to settle in Japan.

BEIJING (APRIL 30) UPI - A lead team of American, Soviet and Chinese climbers left base camp on Mount Everest Monday to begin a delayed ascent of the world's highest peak, the first by a joint expedition from the three nations, the Chinese news agency reported.

The first team is expected to reach the summit Sunday, about two weeks later than initially planned. Organizers had hoped to put the expedition atop Mount Everest April 22 to mark Earth Day and collect debris left by earlier expeditions at the summit as a symbolic cleanup, but dangerously high winds kept back the climbers.

The official Xinhua news agency, reporting from the expedition base camp on the Tibet side of Everest, said six climbers left the camp Monday to make the ascent to the 29,028-foot summit.

Xinhua identified the climbers as Robert Link and Stephen Gall of the United States, Sergey Arsentjev and Grigoriy Lunjakov of the Soviet Union, and Jiabu and Daqimi of China. The expedition is the first joint effort by climbers from the three countries.

The first team was scheduled to reach a camp at 21,325 feet late Monday, another at 23,050 feet Wednesday and a final camp at 28,540 feet Saturday before making the final summit assault the following day.

A second group of six climbers is scheduled to leave base camp Tuesday and reach the peak May 7. A third team is also expected to attempt the summit assault.

Xinhua reported that an American climber, Laverne Woods, came down with pneumonia and left base camp during the weekend.

Slightly more than 200 people have made it to the summit of Everest since Sir Edmund Hillary of New Zealand and Tenzing Norgay of Nepal became the first in May 1953.

About 100 climbers have been killed on the mountain, where would-be conquerors face treacherous rock and ice faces, temperatures plummeting far below zero Fahrenheit and winds reaching 50 mph.

(APRIL 30) UPI - Cold and rain gripped the nation's midsection early Monday while wintry storms dumped more than a foot of snow over the mountains of Colorado and the East Coast cooled off following a spring heat wave.

The National Weather Service said cold weather that dumped snow in the Dakotas over the weekend moved into Minnesota early Monday, chilling International Falls to 23 degrees and Duluth to 30.

Strong thunderstorms pushed across southeast Missouri and southern Illinois at 35 mph, producing small hail, the weather service said. Showers were reported in southwest Wisconsin and northern Illinois.

The NWS reported snowfall along the front range of Colorado's Rocky Mountains and posted winter storm warnings for Pikes Peak and the Palmer Divide area, as well as the southern mountains and Gunnison Valley.

Up to 16 inches of snow fell between Colorado Springs and Trinidad, Colo., the weather service said.

Skies were partly to mostly cloudy across much of Texas. A weak cold front began drifting in over northwest Texas and the Texas Panhandle, New Mexico and northwest Arkansas.

In the West, an upper-level low pressure area dropped snow on the Lake Tahoe area of the Sierra Nevada range late Sunday, and cool, blustery weather buffeted much of the California. The system headed into Southern California early Monday,

In Washington state and Oregon, the weather was fair, with warming temperatures headed in.

After two record-setting warm days, New England returned to typical April weather Monday, registering 44 degrees in Boston and similar temperatures across the region. The six New England states also got light rain. Over the weekend, the mercury had pushed up to 90 degrees in parts of the region.

A cold maritime front swept into the mid-Atlantic region, dropping temperatures into the mid-50s from southern New Jersey to Virginia. The front also brought with it increasing precipitation.

In the South, weather as partly clear and warm. Charleston, S.C., Jacksonville, Fla., and Atlanta all registered 70 degrees.

RENOVO, Pa. (APRIL 30) UPI - A fire that destroyed about 10,000 acres of a state forest in central Pennsylvania was still burning Monday, but was contained and not expected to spread further, forestry officials said.

The fire in Sproul State Forest will not jump containment lines ''unless severe weather conditions occur today, and that's not likely,'' said Fred Wilcox, staff forester with the state Bureau of Forestry's Fire Protection Division in Harrisburg.

The fire in Clinton and Centre counties forced the evacuation of about 100 people, including two hikers who had to be given directions over a helicopter's loudspeaker.

Forestry officials said five state-owned hunting cabins were destroyed by the fire.

''We were very fortunate in the fact that there were no injuries,'' Wilcox said. ''We will be working at it, probably for several days.''

There were fires still burning within the control lines, Wilcox said.

''There was an extensive amount of dead material and that stuff will burn until either we get in and put it out, and that's really not feasible,'' Wilcox said. ''We have to hopefully get some rains this week that will put it out.

''There are areas between the control lines and the area that burned that need to burned out.''

The cause of the fire, which started about 11 a.m. Saturday about 10 miles from Renovo, was unknown, said Art Creelman of the Fire Protection Division.

Some 60 firefighters and foresters continued to work on widening the fire control line that, at the fire's height, was carved out by about 250 workers using hand tools and water hauled from area fire departments, Creelman said.

''We are strengthening the control lines, which is a process of burning out some of the vegetation,'' Creelman said. ''We've got a lot of dead, down, dry fuel (to burn out).''

About 100 people, many of them turkey hunters, earlier had been evacuated without incident from the 540,000-acre forest, bureau spokeswoman Susan Woomer said.

Two hikers trapped in the burning forest overnight were led away safely early Sunday with help from a police helicopter, which gave them directions by loudspeaker, Woomer said.

BEIJING (APRIL 30) UPI - China announced Monday it would end nearly 14 months of martial law in the capital of Tibet, saying anti-Chinese unrest there had been subdued, but Western diplomats called the move cosmetic and cited reports of continued repression.

The lifting of martial law, to take effect Tuesday, was seen by Western analysts as a possible bid to improve relations with the United States, which has been critical of human rights abuses in China since June's crackdown on the democracy movement.

The official Xinhua news agency carried an announcement of the order signed by Premier Li Peng on behalf of the State Council, China's Cabinet, lifting martial law in the Tibetan capital city, Lhasa, and its environs as of Tuesday.

Li ordered martial law in Lhasa March 8, 1989, after several days of fierce rioting by Tibetans demanding independence from Beijing. Dozens of people have been killed in anti-Chinese violence in Lhasa since unrest erupted anew in September 1987.

''In view of the fact that the situation in the city of Lhasa has become stable and social order has returned to normal, the task of enforcing martial law in the city has been successfully fulfilled,'' the premier's order said.

No serious violence has been reported in Tibet since martial law was imposed. But Western diplomats said the lifting would be largely symbolic, since 300,000 Chinese troops are stationed there along with large detachments of paramilitary police.

''I can't see how this will be more than cosmetic,'' a Western diplomat said. ''It's a grand public relations gesture.''

The diplomats also cited recent reports of continued persecution of the Buddhist monks and nuns who have repeatedly led protests against Beijing.

Reports from the region this year indicated persistent small protests in outlying towns.

''There are signs of increasing religious repression,'' one diplomat said.

China claims Tibet as its territory and has controlled the region since the Chinese army occupation in 1950. Many of the 2 million Tibetans resent communist rule and hope for the return of the exiled Tibetan spiritual leader, the dalai lama, who fled into exile to India in 1959 after an abortive armed rebellion against Beijing.

The New Delhi office of the dalai lama welcomed the decision to lift martial law, but questioned the sincerity of the move.

''I think it's too early to tell how sincere the Chinese leadership is in addressing the sufferings of the Tibetan people inflicted on them as a result of their past policy. If it is only a cosmetic change, it will not help resolve the Tibetan problem,'' an office spokesman said.

''However, if the Chinese leadership is ready and willing to take any positive step toward resolving the Tibetan problem, we are ready to respond accordingly,'' he said.

The dalai lama last year called on Beijing to name a time and place of its choosing for negotiations on Tibet's status, but no response has been announced.

Western analysts viewed the martial law lifting as also intended to impress Washington, where critics in Congress have helped thwart President Bush's short-lived campaign to restore ties with Beijing, which plunged after the democracy movement crackdown in June.

''It will have some impact,'' one analyst said. ''I don't know how much.''

The Chinese are currently in fear of a move in Congress this spring to withdraw ''most favored nation'' trade status from Beijing on human rights grounds. Removal of the preferential classification would cost China billions of dollars in U.S.-bound exports.

But Bush, who sent a high-level delegation to Beijing in December in a bid to patch up ties, has been stalled by China's lack of credible response. Although martial law in Beijing was lifted in January, Beijing's symbolic moves have failed to satisfy Congress.

The U.S. State Department's annual human rights report this year also cited wide-ranging abuses in Tibet, including imprisonment without charge or trial and torture and beatings of detainees.

Last week, supporters of the dalai lama made new charges of human rights violations.

China has persistently denounced the dalai lama, last year's winner of the Nobel Peace Prize, for allegedly instigating unrest in Tibet.

Unofficial estimates say far more people have been arrested in Tibet under martial law than the few hundred acknowledged by Chinese authorities. Under martial law, troops patrolled Lhasa streets and residents were required to show identification to move around.

The lifting of the decree also is likely to help revive tourism, which was sharply reduced after martial law was declared. Only about a dozen foreign residents have remained in Tibet, including hotel staff and teachers.

(APRIL 30) UPI - NASA says the shuttle Discovery emerged from its five-day mission with only a few bumps and bruises.

Discovery's five-person crew guided the two-BILLION-dollar spaceplane to a perfect landing yesterday at California's Edwards Air Force Base.

(APRIL 30) UPI - Tomorrow is the 30th anniversary of one of the flashpoints of the Cold War... the downing of an American U-2 spy plane over the Soviet Union.

A Soviet military newspaper has published the first detailed Soviet account of the downing of the plane piloted by Francis Gary Powers.

The May 1st, 1960, incident led to a sharp deterioration in U-S-Soviet relations and the cancellation of a Khrushchev-Eisenhower summit.

The Soviet account reveals that Soviet gunners shot down one of their own aircraft along with the U-2. Powers ejected safely and was captured after parachuting to Earth... but the Soviet pilot was killed.

The Soviets first scrambled three jets to intercept Powers... including two MiG-19 warjets, which failed in their attempts to shoot down Powers.

On the ground, an anti-aircraft missile struck the U-2 jet and blew it apart. But the Soviet gunners on the ground did NOT realize they had hit their target and they continued firing because they thought the interference on their radar screens was the U-2 ejecting scrap metal to confuse them. At least three bases kept firing missiles... and one hit one of the MiGs.

The death of the pilot was kept secret until yesterday.

(APRIL 30) UPI - Long Island community leaders and police plan a series of round-table discussions aimed at averting a repeat of unrest in which a crowd beat five police officers.

Five officers responded to a report of a stabbing Saturday night in Bellport. When the officers arrived, they were told the stabbing victim had already been taken to a hospital. Then police heard shots.

The officers stopped a car which several people identified as the source of the shots. The officers removed one occupant from the car but he screamed for the crowd to attack the officers. About 200 people were involved in the beatings.

The officers escaped with scrapes and bruises.

As one of the officers commented after the attack, ''If the crowd wanted to take over, they would have had NO problem.''

Officials in San Luis Obispo, California, say a weekend fraught with rioting has jeopardized the future of a college festival dating back to the 1930's.

For three nights, college age young people at California Polytechnic State University's annual spring festivities clashed with police. The disturbances included skirmishes, bottle throwing, smashing car windows and setting dumpsters on fire.

By yesterday, police had arrested more than 100 people.

Some of those at the festival question whether police responded diligently to the upheaval. One witness says police could have avoided the chaos that ensued night after night if they had acted before crowds grew too large and unruly.

MIDDLETOWN, CT (APRIL 30) UPI - Police were investigating Monday the second firebombing in a month on the campus of Wesleyan University and said they suspect the two incidents were linked.

At least two Molotov cocktails scorched the outside wall of the prestigious university's boathouse Sunday, but caused no serious damage or injuries, police said.

The incident followed a similar firebombing April 7 that caused at least $60,000 damage to the office of Wesleyan President William M. Chace. There were also reports last week of early morning gunshots on the campus.

There have been no injuries.

Letters from self-described student groups seeking changes in university policy claimed responsibility for the office firebombing and the gunshots, authorities said. Police have not disclosed what demands were made in the letters, but said no letter was found Sunday.

Police said the methods used in the two firebombings were almost exactly the same and investigators said they strongly suspected the two incidents were linked. No arrests had been made.

University officials declined to comment on whether they believed the firebombings and gunshots were related.

Chace condemned the latest firebombing as an ''attack on a student activity'' by ''a very deluded and troubled individual or individuals,'' but insisted the Wesleyan campus was safe.

Those responsible for Sunday's firebombing apparently tried to throw a rock through a boathouse window some time between 3 a.m. and 8 a.m., but the rock bounced off the plastic pane, police said.

Investigators believe the suspect, or suspects, then hurled at least two and possibly three firebombs against the wall after failing to break the window.

The boathouse held about $100,000 worth of rowing shells, but the fire burned out quickly and flames did not reach the interior.

A rock shattered Chace's office window about 4 a.m. April 7 before Molotov cocktails were thrown inside, leading police to believe the same person or persons may have been responsible.

Authorities also were investigating reports of four or five gunshots early last Wednesday near North College. No bullets or damage to university buildings was found, but four spent shell casings were discovered on Foss Hill near Vleck Observatory.

Detectives had said there were suspects in the two earlier incidents.

NEW YORK (APRIL 30) UPI - Commerce Secretary Robert Mosbacher plans to resign from the Bush Cabinet and lead the Republican National Committee, unless ailing RNC Chairman Lee Atwater's failing health improves, Newsday reported Monday.

The newspaper, citing unidentified senior GOP sources, said that under the plan Mosbacher would be elected party chairman at the RNC meeting in July, by which time Atwater would have announced his plan to take a less demanding job.

The sources said Atwater, who is suffering from a brain tumor and undergoing agressive medical treatment, would take a senior title at party headquarters, such as general chairman.

Republican Party officials and Mosbacher's office denied the report. "It's just not true," RNC Chief of Staff Mary Matalin told Newsday. "Lee gets better every day." She added that Atwater, 39, plans to return to his job.

Marion Blakey, the Commerce Department's chief spokeswoman, said Mosbacher would remain in his current job. "Secretary Mosbacher is very happy in his job," Blakey told the newspaper. "The secretary is planning to be secretary of Commerce for the forseeable future."

A high administration official said Mosbacher has already begun looking for government jobs for his aides in anticipation of his departure, Newsday said.

NEW DELHI, INDIA (APRIL 30) UPI - The Asian Development Bank Monday said that the region's growth rate declined steeply in 1989, but it projected a marginal recovery over the next two years.

The growth rate dropped to 5.4 percent in 1989 from the previous year's rate of 9.3 percent. However, it was expected to expand slightly to 5.9 percent in 1990 and to 6.3 a year later, said the Asian Development Outlook, the bank's annual publication that analyzes trends and prospects of major developing member countries.

The Asian Development Bank released the report two days before the 23rd annual meeting of the Board of Governors of the bank in New Delhi. The report said the projection for 1990 and 1991 was based on the assumption that a recession will not occur and that normal rainy season conditions will prevail and not interfer with agricultural production.

On an optimistic note, the report said that while the Asian growth rate fell to 5.4 percent in 1989, the overall global growth rate dropped to 3.2 percent. It said slower economic growth rates in China, India, and the newly industrialized economies of Taiwan, South Korea, Hong Kong, and Singapore were responsible for the Asia-wide slowdown in 1989.

The report projected slightly improved growth for China and India in 1990. It said Asian countries remained the world's most dynamic in terms of economic activities and growth, and are generally well placed to face the challanges of 1990s.

"The increased reliance on market forces, the sustained high rates of investment, the rapid introduction of new technologies and structural inforamtion ... are some factors underpinning the economic buoynancy of developing Asia," said the report.

"In 1989 the star performer was Southeast Asia, where a vigorous expansion of 7.8 percent was recorded," said the report, referring to the economic performances of Thailand, Malaysia, Indonesia, and the Phillipines. It reported a three percent decline in growth in South Korea, Hong Kong, Singapore, and Taiwan.

On South Asia, the report said that economic growth fell to 4.4 percent in 1989 from the previous year's high of 8.5 percent. The publication predicted a mixed outlook for South Asia in 1990 with India, Bangladesh, Burma, and Sri Lanka improving their performance, but a decline was projected for Nepal.

It said, "1988 had been an exceptional year for India, but in 1989, growth returned to a more modest trend of almost five percent." It blamed the slow down on natural disasters and on government economic policies that advocate tight control over the economy.

China, where the growth rate declined to four percent in 1989 from previous year's 10.9 percent, was expected to record a modest growth of 5.5 percent in 1990, with further acceleration in 1991 to 6.5 percent, the report said.

The report cited high investment and savings were responsible for the strong economic performance performance of Asian economies during the 1980s.

WASHINGTON (APRIL 30) UPI - The Supreme Court brought to an end Monday a 10-year effort by abortion rights advocates to strip the Roman Catholic Church of its tax exempt status.

The court refused to hear a case brought by a coalition of abortion rights activists seeking review of a ruling by the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, which dismissed the case.

Those bringing the suit charged the church should lose its tax exemption because it is involved in political campaigns on the abortion issue, activity barred by Internal Revenue Service rules.

The court's action in the case comes less than a month after the National Conference of Catholic Bishops announced it was hiring a large public relations firm and a political polling organization to conduct a multimillion-dollar anti-abortion campaign.

Monday's Supreme Court action should be the last chapter in the suit that first began in 1980 when Abortion Rights Mobilization and others filed suit in federal court against the church and the IRS.

The suit charged the church ''engaged in a nationwide, persistent and regular pattern of intervening in elections'' in favor of those against abortion and in opposition to those who favor the right.

Federal law grants tax exemptions to religious and charitable organizations, but not to groups involved in political campaigns.

The federal court had said ARM could not sue the church but could sue the IRS. The Supreme Court, in 1986, refused to review that ruling. A later court ruling ordering the church to turn over internal documents on its anti-abortion activities was reviewed by the Supreme Court, which ruled the order was improper.

In September 1989, the appeals court dismissed the suit on the grounds ARM did not have legal standing.

Again seeking high court review, the abortion rights activists said the tax exempt status ''presents one of the greatest dangers the First Amendment was designed to prevent: a mutually supportive relationship between government and a particular religion.''

The federal government argued against review and lawyers for the United States Catholic Conference and the National Conference of Catholic Bishops warned that the suit could affect the tax exempt status of some 30,000 Catholic organizations in the country.

''The affected church entities ... include not only (those named in the suit), but also virtually every Catholic diocese, parish, elementary and high school, college, seminary, hospital, home for the aged or infirm, orphanage, counseling center, monastery, retreat house, and refugee assistance group in this country.''

WASHINGTON (APRIL 30) UPI - The Supreme Court let stand Monday a ruling that former General Motors employees may sue the auto giant in federal court on charges they were misled when they accepted a severance plan.

The court refused to hear the case brought by GM seeking review of a ruling by the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

The case stems from the layoffs of a number of employees at the Packard

Electric plant in Clinton, Miss., in 1983. Under a plan GM negotiated with the union, employees could opt for severence pay in lieu of preserving their seniority and rehiring rights.

At meetings to explain the plan, GM representatives allegedly told the employees they could be rehired if new jobs were created but they would have to apply like everyone else.

When new positions opened in 1985, management informed them they were ineligible under the severance plan.

The employees brought suit in federal court, charging fraud and misrepresentation under state law. GM claimed the state law claims were pre-empted by federal law and, in the alternate, the National Labor Relations Board had jurisdiction.

The district court denied the motion and the appeals court concurred, sending the case back for probably trial.

PORTLAND, OR (APRIL 30) UPI - Portland Trail Blazer officials said they plan no disciplinary action against rookie forward Cliff Robinson, who was arrested after allegedly assaulting a policewoman and two other people outside a popular Portland nightclub.

Police responded to a call at 3:30 a.m. Sunday at Goldie's Restaurant and Lounge in northwest Portland. When police arrived, they found 20 to 30 people fighting outside the establishment.

Portland police officer Elaine Slone, 42, was taken to Good Samaritan Hospital, where she was treated and released.

Slone stated in her police report that she was trying to break up the fight when she was knocked to the ground ''by a violent blow to the side of the head.'' Her report said she received abrasions and had ringing in her ears. She also suffered a bruise to her kneecap that made it difficult to walk.

Slone, whose doctor ordered her off work for two days, reported she never knew who hit her. However, the manager of the nightclub, Gerald Marshall, told police he saw Robinson strike the officer. Robinson then was taken into custody without incident, according to detective Dave Simpson.

After his arrest, two nightclub patrons told police they also had been punched in the face by Robinson. He was cited on three counts of fourth-degree assault and one count of disorderly conduct, all misdemeanors, and released from the city's Justice Center Jail.

In her report, Slone said that as she wrote the citations at the jail before Robinson's release, the 6-foot-10, 225-pound forward said, ''If I'd known you were giving me all these tickets, I would have made the hit worthwhile.''

She also said Robinson made several ''ethnic comments'' about the last name of her partner, Officer Susan Fachini, referring to her as ''fettucine,'' and mimicked Slone as he was read his rights.

Robinson later denied having struck the policewoman and said he swung at the other people in self-defense.

''I was in this place and some people were giving my brother a hard time '' he said. ''The next thing I knew, someone swung at me. I swung back. I was the only one picked up.''

''I didn't hit any cop,'' he said, adding that he had a couple of drinks but didn't consider himself drunk. ''I wasn't out of my mind,'' he said.

Blazer Coach Rick Adelman said after talking to Robinson and team Vice President Bucky Buckwalter that no disciplinary action against Robinson was planned.

Simpson said the report did not indicate alcohol was a contributing factor in the incident. He said Robinson's arraignment has been set for an unspecified date in May.

He was released on his own recognizance and joined the team for its trip to Dallas, where the Blazers meet the Mavericks Tuesday in the third game of a best-of-five Western Conference playoff series. Portland leads the series 2-0.

Robinson, a second-round draft pick from the University of Connecticut, was Portland's sixth-leading scorer during the regular season, averaging 9.1 points per game. Six hours before the incident, he scored five points in Portland's 114-107 victory over the Mavericks.

HOUSTON (APRIL 30) UPI - Domestic drilling slid for the fourth week in a row while offshore drilling increased slightly, and utilization of rigs in European waters reached its highest level since January 1986, industry sources said.

A total of 927 rotary rigs were working in the United States last week, compared with 932 the week before and 751 the same week a year ago, Baker Hughes Inc. said Sunday.

One more rig went to work in the Gulf of Mexico last week, boosting the utilization rate there a half point to 71.4 percent, with 152 rigs working out of a fleet of 213, Offshore Data Services said. The Gulf had a utilization rate of 51.1 percent a year ago. The increased utilization rate in European waters reflects strong demand in that market, said ODS drilling editor Tom Marsh.

ODS reported 119 of 132 rigs in that area now are under contract, pushing the utilization rate to 90.2 percent. It is the first time the rate has topped 90 percent since January 1986, Marsh said. Only a year ago, the utilization rate was 78 percent, with 110 rigs working out of a fleet of 141.

Worldwide activity also inched up last week to 81.1 percent, with 542 rigs working out of a total fleet of 668. The rate was 71 percent a year ago. There were 336 rotary rigs working in Texas last week, compared with 340 the week before and 230 the same week a year ago. Other rig counts included Louisiana, 146 last week, 142 the prior week and 136 the same week a year ago; New Mexico, 45, 48 and 35; Oklahoma, 119, 126 and 124; Canada 52, 50 and 54.

WASHINGTON (APRIL 30) UPI - The Supreme Court Monday let stand a ruling that upheld widespread, random drug testing of Department of Transportation employees.

The court refused to hear the case brought by an employees union that sought review of a decision by the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia.

The case stems from a drug-testing plan enacted in June 1987 for all the Transportation Department's 62,000 employees and an continuing random testing program for some 30,000 employees in such job categories as motor vehicle operators, criminal investigators, mechanics and air traffic controllers.

The random testing program was challenged in federal court as a violation of the Fourth Amendment, which bars unreasonable and warrantless searches.

Nonetheless, the federal courts sided with the government. The appeals court, in 1989, cited two 1989 Supreme Court ruling that upheld two drug testing programs.

However, seeking high court review, the union argued that the drug testing programs at issue are ''far deeper and far more pervasive intrusions into personal privacy and dignity than any suspicionless searches this court has ever validated.''

The government argued against review.

WASHINGTON (APRIL 30) UPI - President Bush will meet with West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl on May 17, two weeks before the U.S.-Soviet summit, to coordinate views on German reunification and other East-West issues, a spokesman announced Monday.

White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said Kohl, who held a consultative meeting with Bush at Camp David the weekend of Feb. 24-25, will discuss reunification issues with Bush following the early May meeting of the four major allied powers that still exert authority over Berlin and representatives of the two Germanys.

The talks, known as ''two-plus-four,'' are focusing on the details of ending the last vestiges of World War II.

Bush and Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev will hold a summit in Washington May 30-June 3. Fitzwater said the talks with Kohl will also deal with the forthcoming summit and ''other issues.''

Bush has been holding a series of consultative meetings with European leaders in advance of the summit to coordinate positions on the question of Lithuania's declaration of independence from the Soviet Union.

He met earlier this month with British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher in Bermuda and with French President Francois Mitterrand in Key Largo, Fla.

West German and French officials urged Lithuania to hold off on its plans to implement its decision to break away from the Soviet Union and appealed to Moscow to ease up on the pressure on Lithuania while a dialogue is under way. A spokesman for Gorbachev reacted favorably to the ''appeal for reason against extremism.''

WASHINGTON (APRIL 30) UPI - The typical home buyer's purchasing power remained relatively strong in March despite rising interest rates, the National Association of Realtors said Monday.

The NAR's Housing Affordability Index for existing single-family homes was 104.1 in March, down from 104.9 in February, but above the 100 mark, the point where the median family income matches the income needed to qualify for a loan on a median-priced resale home with a 20 percent downpayment.

The index shows that a family earning a median income of $33,924 had 104.1 percent of the income needed to qualify for a $76,900 loan, which represented 80 percent of $96,100, the median price of existing single-family homes sold in March.

Half the families earn more than the median income and half earn less. Likewise, half the existing single-family homes sell for more than the median price and half sell for less.

The March index was calculated on an average effective mortgage rate of 10.07 percent. A buyer making a down payment of $19,200 - 20 percent of the median home price - would have monthly principal and interest payments of $679, representing 24 percent of his income.

The NAR said that the interest rate used to calculate the index was the average effective interest rate on loans closed for previously occupied homes as reported by the Federal Housing Finance Board.

GREENBELT, MD (APRIL 30) UPI - NASA engineers unjammed a troublesome antenna on the Hubble Space Telescope, ''a major milestone'' in the slow process of bringing the giant $1.5 billion observatory to life, officials said Monday.

''What a team. What an effort,'' said Ron Schlagheck, director of orbital verification at the Goddard Space Flight Center. ''There were a lot of people representing a lot of organizations working this issue, and they all pulled together into a single unified team to figure out what happened and develop a plan to recover from it.''

Engineers sent the last of a series of computer commands to the telescope orbiting 381 miles above Earth at about 10:25 p.m. EDT Sunday and apparently unjammed one of the telescope's two ''high-gain antennas.''

The antennas are parabolic dishes mounted on masts extending from each side of the 12-ton telescope required to transmit the telescope's all-important science data to astronomers on the ground.

The antennas were designed to swivel on computer command to make contact with and track a NASA data relay satellite, maintaining a crucial link between ground controllers and the satellite regardless of its orbital position.

But when ground controllers tried to point one of the antennas at the relay satellite on Friday, a motor driving the appendage showed signs of strain, indicating the antenna was stuck, apparently on a nearby power cable.

Engineers Sunday managed to get the satellite to beam down stored data about the antenna's motion using one of the observatory's ''low-gain'' antennas, even though they are designed only to receive commands.

About 75 engineers pored over the data and analyzed computer images of the antenna at Goddard, the Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala., Lockheed Missiles & Space Co. in Sunnyvale, Calif., and elsewhere, to try to solve the problem.

''One control center engineer even went to a toy store, purchased an assembly kit consisting of plastic sticks and joints and built a model of the antenna gimbal assembly with the components and a piece of lamp cord '' according to a NASA statement.

At about 9:50 p.m. Sunday, controllers began sending commands that ''gingerly recentered high-gain antenna (No.) 2, relieving the stresses previously detected,'' the statement said.

''Successful centering of the antenna marked a major milestone in the prcess of recovering use of the high-gain antenna system,'' it said.

To prevent the problem from occurring again, engineers planned to limit how far the antenna can be moved - possibly limiting its usefulness - officials said.

The telescope was placed into orbit Wednesday by the crew of the space shuttle Discovery, which landed Sunday at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., to complete a successful five-day mission.

The long-awaited telescope is expected to revolutionize humanity's understanding of the birth, structure and fate of the universe by studying planets, stars and galaxies more clearly than ever before.

NASA has battled one problem after another since beginning an eight-month process of slowly turning on the complicated telescope's many systems and five high-tech instruments.

As a result, work to activate the electronic observatory was about a week behind schedule and the historic first photo from the instrument will be delayed.

WASHINGTON (APRIL 30) UPI - The Supreme Court ruled unanimously Monday that a federal judge had the power to order two supermarket chains in California to operate separately until an antitrust case against their merger was settled.

The court's action, in a decision by Justice John Paul Stevens, is a victory for state officials who argued the merger of American Stores and Lucky Stores would cost consumers hundreds of millions of dollars a year.

The court noted, however, that the state of California's delay in originally bringing the suit against the merger could eventually protect the merger. But Stevens said that question was not before the court.

''We are merely confronted with the naked question whether the district court had the power to divest American of any part of its ownership interests in the acquired Lucky Stores, either by forbidding the exercise of the owner's normal right to integrate the operations of the two previously separate companies, or by requireing it to sell certain assets located in California.''

Stevens said that such a ''remedy'' was within the power of the court under the meaning of antitrust laws.

American Stores, which operates 252 Alpha Beta and Skaggs Alpha Beta stores in California with headquartrs in Salt Lake City, purchased Lucky's 550-store chain in June 1988 for $2.5 billion at a cost of $65 a share.

Lucky Stores is based in Dublin, Calif., 40 miles east of San Francisco.

The merger with Alpha Beta, California's fourth largest supermarket chain, would give American Stores about 27 percent of the supermarket business in California and would make American Stores owner of the largest supermarket chain in the country.

California Attorney General John Van de Kamp opposed the merger on antitrust grounds. He argued the merger would cost consumers $400 million a year.

It would allow American Stores to control prices by eliminating competition in violation of antitrust law, he argued.

A federal judge had ordered that the stores continue to be operated separately, but the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals reversed. However, that ruling was stayed by Justice Sandra Day O'Connor in August.

(APRIL 30) UPI - There are more indications that an American hostage will be freed by tomorrow night. A newspaper in Iran quotes an unidentified Iranian official today as saying that Frank Reed will be released. A previously unknown group in Lebanon, the Islamic Dawn, announced yesterday it will free Reed.

Vietnam is celebrating today's 15th anniversary of its victory over South Vietnam by calling for closer ties with Washington. Nguyen Van Linh, general secretary of the Communist Party, told U-P-I in Ho Chi Minh City that Vietnam wants to forget the U-S involvement in the Vietnam War and renew relations.

There could be some embarrassing testimony for the Reagan White House today on Capitol Hill. A report says a former top aide to former Housing Secretary Pierce will divulge how Reagan administration officials handed out federal housing programs as political favors.

Panamanian President Endara will visit President Bush for high-level talks and lunch today. Endara arrived in Washington yesterday for a five-day U-S visit. Endara told reporters he has ''every confidence'' that Congress will follow through on its pledges to help his country financially.

China says it's ending martial law in the capital of Tibet tomorrow. Martial law was ordered in March last year after several days of rioting by Tibetans demanding independence from Beijing. Analysts see the move as a possible effort to improve relations with the United States.

CAMDEN, NJ (APRIL 30) UPI - An announcement from Campbell Soup Co. regarding substantial layoffs at its headquarters in Camden could come this week, a company spokesman said said Monday.

As part of its announced plan to reduce costs, the company said this year it will lay off 100 to 500 of its 1,800 workers at corporate headquarters in Camden. "Word could come this week," said spokesman C. Scott Rombach.

Meanwhile, Campbell accepted the resignations Friday of two top executives in its frozen-food business, which includes the Mrs. Paul's frozen fish operations.

The company said the resignations of Steven McNeil, 47, a vice president, group manager of convenience meals and president of Mrs. Paul's, and Raymond Land, 45, category general manager for convenience foods, came under cost-cutting measures at Campbell developed under new chief executive David W. Johnson.

Johnson, who was hired from Gerber Products in January, has been charged by the Campbell board with improving the company's financial picture. Mrs. Paul's, unprofitable in recent years, also has been mentioned as a possible candidate for sale, the Philadelphia Inquirer reported.

But under McNeil, its performance improved. After posting a loss of $3.5 million for the fiscal year ended July 31, 1988, Mrs. Paul's bounced back in fiscal 1989 to earn $400,000. "That's why this is a shock," John McMillin, a food-industry analyst for Prudential-Bache in New York told the Inquirer. "Steve's done a good job."

Campbell spokesman David Hackney told the Inquirer: "Any decision to divest Mrs. Paul's would have to be made by the board of directors. No such action has been taken."

The Dorrance family, majority owners of Campbell, has been dissatisfied with the firm's performance in recent years and has split publicly over whether to sell their shares.

NEW YORK (APRIL 30) UPI - A barge carrying more than 4.2 million gallons of unleaded gasoline on the East River slammed into a dilapidated pier early Monday, damaging the vessel but spilling no fuel, officials said.

The Morania 440, carrying about 4.23 million gallons of unleaded gasoline, was being towed up the river by the Morania 1 tug boat when it collided with Pier 36 in lower Manhattan at 3:25 a.m. EDT, officials said.

The barge, which measured 372 feet by 72 feet, sustained damage to its bow above the waterline, but no tanks were punctured and there was no danger of leakage, said Petty Officer Gary Rives, a U.S. Coast Guard spokesman.

No injuries were reported in the accident, said Rives, who added that investigators were on the barge at the pier trying to determine what went wrong.

''We've got investigators on board and they haven't indicated why this barge took out the pier - it wasn't the barge's destination,'' Rives said.

Officials were unsure of the barge's destination or where it had sailed from.

The ramshackle wooden pier was ''badly damaged'' and more than 10 percent of it, about 50-75 feet, collapsed into the East River, said Petty Officer Tom Buckley, another Coast Guard spokesman.

He said pieces of the pier were floating in the waters off Manhattan, and the Coast Guard dispatched tug boats to the area to try to capture the debris before it blocked shipping channels.

Rives said after the investigation and the interviews of all those involved were concluded, authorities would determine how best to move the barge, probably no sooner that Tuesday.

WASHINGTON (APRIL 30) UPI - Americans earned and saved more in March as personal income gained $35.8 billion, after rising $34.7 billion in February, to an annual rate of $4.6 trillion, the Commerce Department said Monday.

Americans also managed to tuck away more in savings during the month, as savings increased by $17.9 billion to $229.7 billion, compared with savings of $6.8 billion in February.

Personal outlays, including personal consumption and interest paid by consumers to businesses, increased $14.2 billion during the month, compared with a gain of $21.8 billion the month before, to an annual rate of $3.7 trillion, the department said.

But American consumers spent less in March than the month before, with personal consumption spending rising by $13.8 billion in March after gaining $21.3 billion in February.

The department attributed the March and February increases in personal income to gains in subsidy payments to farmers. Without these payments, personal income increased by $24.6 billion, or 0.5 percent.

Farm proprietor income increased $18.2 billion in March after rising $5.4 billion the month before. The increase in farm subsidies totaled $11.2 billion, up from $5.8 billion in February.

Overall, paychecks fattened during the month by $14.1 billion after gaining by $22 billion the month before. Payrolls for commodity-producing industries increased $3.8 billion, after rising $8.7 billion the month before. Manufacturing payrolls were up $4.4 billion after rising $5.5 billion in February.

Distribution industries posted a payroll gain of $2 billion in March from $3 billion the month before. Service industry payrolls rose $5.7 billion after gaining $7.6 billion the month before. Government payrolls in March rose $2.6 billion, compared with a rise of $2.7 billion the month before.

Personal tax payments and nontax payments increased $3.6 billion in March after rising $6.3 billion the month before. Disposable income, the amount of personal income minus tax and nontax payments, increased by $32.1 billion in March after rising $28.6 billion the month before.

(APRIL 30) UPI - An Iranian newspaper quotes an Iranian government official as saying American hostage Frank Reed will be released any time between now and tomorrow night. The report also cites the official as saying the release stems from Iran's request to Reed's captors to free him as a good-will gesture. The White House reiterates its policy of wary hope regarding Reed's possible liberation.

Israeli caretaker Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir said today a proposal offered by Secretary of State Baker is NOT the only way available to re-start stalled Middle East peace talks. Six weeks ago, Shamir's opposition of the Baker plan resulted in the collapse of the coalition government between the Labor and Likud parties. A Labor spokesman called Shamir's comments ''impudent.''

There's skepticism among Western diplomats regarding an announcment by China that it's lifting martial law in Tibet's capital city. WASHINGTON (APRIL 30) UPI - Single family home sales dropped five percent in March, the fourth straight monthly drop, to an annual rate of 574,000 from a revised rate of 604,000 the month before, the Commerce Department said Monday.

Economists blamed rising interest rates for slowing home sales. "It does suggest that interest rates are beginning to bite into the market," said Robert Villanueva, an economist with the National Association of Home Builders.

Last Friday, the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp., said rates on 30-year fixed mortgages increased to 10.56 percent and adjustable-rate mortgages remained stable at 8.56 percent.

The department said 59,000 new homes were sold during the month at a median price of $123,200. The average sales price was $150,300. At month's end, there were 357,000 new houses for sale, representing a supply of 7.5 months. During the first three months of the year, there were 153,000 new houses sold, compared with 161,000 during the same period last year.

The Northeast housing market, long battered by the area's suffering economy, posted a surprising 33.8 percent gain in housing sales during March, with 99,000 sales, compared with 74,000 the month before. The Midwest also posted a gain, with sales rising 9.2 percent to 95,000 during the month from 87,000 in February. But the West's usually hot real estate market cooled during the month, with sales dropping 13.8 percent to 161,000 from 186,000 in February.

Villanueva attributed the declining sales in the West to price resistance and weakness in the usually vibrant Southern California real estate market, namely San Diego and portions of the Los Angeles metropolitan area. "It's difficult to figure out," he said. "Maybe the defense layoffs have something to do with it."

The South also posted a 14.8 percent drop in new home sales of 219,000 from 257,000 the month before.

APPENZELL, SWITZERLAND (APRIL 30) UPI - Swiss women in one small region, losing their patience after males again denied them the right to vote in local affairs, said Monday they are now taking the matter to the country's Supreme Court.

Switzerland has 26 cantons, or states. The canton of Appenzell comprises two parts, Rhodes Exterior and Rhodes Interior.

It was only in 1971 that Swiss women, in a referendum, won the right to vote on national affairs.

The men in a few small conservative cantons, however, continued to exclude women from local decisionmaking.

Appenzell-Rhodes Exterior women finally obtained local suffrage last year but the 5,000-odd men of Appenzell-Rhodes Interior again rejected the idea in a show of hands Sunday on the local town hall square.

Representatives of the 5,000 or so women of voting age began proceedings Monday to take the whole matter to the Supreme Court.

''This sort of Stone Age attitude on the part of the men is a violation of sexual equality provisions of the Constitution,'' the local womens' rights organization said.

ATHENS, GREECE (APRIL 30) UPI - Greece sent a protest to Albania after five security officers forced their way into the Greek Embassy compound in that country and dragged away a man seeking political asylum, the Foreign Ministry said Monday.
